GERALD THORNDYKE ACCIDENTALLY HURT.

His Foot was run Over by a Train Yesterday.

An unfortunate and serious accident occurred yesterday afternoon to Gerald, the five year old lad of Mr. Albert Thorndyke, a moulder in the employ of the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Company.

It transpires that it is customary for freight trains to stand on the track between Hamilton's foundry and the junction with the Lakefield line, while the engines go down to the station for water. Yesterday when the train was in this position a man named John Farren boarded the train, which was on the point of starting. A few minutes later the train started and when near the steps leading up to the Protestant Home Mr. Farren saw the child lying on the side of the track. He at first thought that the little child was playing dangerously near the rails. A second look and he noticed the child's clothing was stained with blood. He at once jumped off the platform and ran to the little fellow, and found that the wheels had passed over a portion of the foot, frightfully crushing it. Tenderly picking the child up he carried him to his home, opposite the protestant home, on Stewart street. A physician was telephoned for and Dr. Brown arrived quickly and after dressing the wound had the child taken to the hospital, where a partial amputation of the foot was found necessary. It is feared that the whole foot will have to come off.

57TH OFFICERS HOLD A SMOKER.

Col. Montizambert Entertained Last Evening.

The officers of the 57th Regiment held an informal reception and smoker at their headquarters in the drill shed last night in honour of Col. Montizambert D.O.C. An exceedingly pleasant evening was spent. Col. Montizambert expressed his pleasure at finding the equipment and stores of the Regiment in such excellent shape. He had made a careful inspection of all the armouries in the morning and as well, the quartermaster's stores and had also inspected the books of the Regiment, everything being found in the most perfect order. He complimented the Colonel and officers of the Regiment on the satisfactory condition of the interior economy of the Regiment and in conclusion expressed the hope that the forthcoming inspection of the Regiment would prove as in the past, the high standing and efficiency which it has always shown.

A large turn-out of the Regiment is expected this evening.

EFFECTIVE SPEECH BY MR. STRATTON.

A Scathing Rebuke Administered to Wrong Doers.

Manly Reply to the False Accusations Made Against Him—Pays Tribute to Hon. Mr. Ross.

Special to the Examiner.

Toronto, June 18th. — Hon. Mr. Stratton in the Ontario Legislature concluded his address at noon to-day in his own defence in the debate on the motion of the Premier to adopt the report of the Royal Commission in the matter of the Gamey charges. The address occupied four hours in delivery. It was a most convincing and logical one and was received with frequent and hearty applause by the Ministerial side of the House. It reviewed the history of the case from the beginning, exposing the attitude of the Opposition in the shameful prejudging of the case before investigation, their equally shameful attack upon the judges, not only before the sittings of the commission, but after the report was presented, and the keeness of their desire for making party capital, rather than a desire to arrive at the truth. It included a clear analysis of the evidence bearing upon the branch of the subject he was treating. Hon. Mr. Stratton concluded his address as follows: "The findings of the Royal Commissioners I accept without any feeling of triumph or personal boast and in the same spirit as I hope they will be accepted by my friends in this house and in the country. I was content to have the charges preferred against me investigated and tried by any tribunal chosen by the legislature. No one free from prejudice doubted that the conclusion would be that which the evidence warranted. The learned judges, who sat as commissioners, have found that I am innocent of the serious charges made against me by a member of this House. The charges gravely affected my position as a Minister of the Crown, my standing as a member of the Legislature and my character as a citizen of Ontario. I met them at the proper time and place. I desired the fullest enquiry and sought the closest investigation. The consequences were of greater importance to me than to any other member of the Government. It is true that the political life of the Government was endangered, but my whole business and personal career depended upon the result. Yet throughout the long and trying investigation which was made I never feared nor faltered. Considering that my relations with the member who made accusations would bear the most careful scrutiny and feeling secure in the ultimate triumph of truth. I bore with patience the abuse of the Tory press and never flinched under the lash of the Tory hirelings. Long before the accusations had the sanctity of proof, however worthless to support them, I was condemned and pronounced guilty by my opponent. The average fair play which is given to the worst and meanest criminal was denied me. Every fact was tortured, every circumstance was coloured, every act was purposely misconstrued in order to destroy my character as a public man, and as a private citizen, and all this was done with a greedy delight far beyond the lines of decency and honest self-respect on the part of my enemies. At length in the halls of justice, I met my accuser. I stood my ground whilst he fled. I had everything to lose. He had everything to gain. I at least played no part of the coward, shrinking from justice. I waited in silence whilst some of those who had once called themselves friends doubted my innocence. When called on for my answer I was ready. There was no mutilation of books, no fabrication of documents, no fleeing from the terrors of the law on my part. The records of my private life were laid bare to my enemies. Not a page was found missing, not a leaf bore evidence of the hand of the despoiler. The sanctity of my family relations was not spared. Business dealings with my fellowmen were openly laid on the dissecting table and every item of my personal transactions was willingly offered as a sacrifice to the knife of my accuser. I asked for no favours, sought no man's interventions, save the assistance of counsel, and claimed no protection from first to last in this long trial. To-day I have my reward, and I accept that reward more gratefully in the interest of the good name of my native province than as a vindication of my own personal honour. The attempt to cast a stain on the fair name of Ontario has miserably failed. The strenuous effort made to destroy the character and wreck the future of myself, has met with a like defeat. The judgment of the Royal Commissioners may not be able to undo all the wrong that has been done to me and mine, and may not effectually silence the tongue of the slanderer, or stay the pen of the libeller, but it will be a source of gratification to the many friends who have stood loyally by me in these months of shadow and suspense to know that their confidence was not unfounded. Such friends will be gratefully remembered throughout the years God may give me to enjoy, but no one of them with that great feeling of affection and thankfulness which I owe to my esteemed friend, the Premier of this province, whose faith was never shaken for a moment and whose sympathy for me never wavered in the hours of greatest adversity. I feel no resentment against those of my opponents who have been misled, for the great wrong they have endeavoured to do me. And I would say to my accusers that I hope they will learn as a result of their experience in this matter that falsehood works its own revenge, and deceit brings its own just retribution."

THE SHANNON TIMBER MATTER

The Opposition in the Ontario Legislature have used the Public Accounts Committee to investigate a charge that there was irregularity and loss to the province, through the sale of a license of a timber limit in Rutherford township. A brief history of the transaction will be interesting to the public. The application for this license was made by Mr. Grant, a Toronto solicitor, for his client, Mr. Shannon, a lumberman of position for whom Mr. Grant had instructions to act. The limit had previously been sold at a fee of 75 cents per thousand feet. It had been cut over by two companies on these terms and, persumably, the best of the timber had been cut. It was sold to Mr. Shannon for $250, and the present dues of $1.25 per thousand feet. A Mr. Sullivan, who had knowledge of the timber standing on the limit, and of the value of it to Charlton Bros., who were operating their own limits in the vicinity, obtained the license from Mr. Shannon for the payment of the costs, and sold it to Charlton Bros. for $9,000. The large difference between the purchase price and the sale price, which is made a charge of neglect of Provincial interests by the Crown Lands Department, is easily explained. The limit in question was a small one—500 or 600 acres. It would not have paid Shannon to work it ;for he would have had to go to the expense of taking in his lumbering equipment at a great expense, and, as every lumberman knows, it would not pay to make such elaborate preparations for so small a cut —the game would not have been worth the candle. No doubt timber to the value of $9,000 was there; but not for a lumberman who had to go to great expense and trouble to take in equipments to cut it. But the value of $9,000 was there to the Charlton. They were operating in the vicinity on other limits, their plant was on the spot and they were in a position to get their money out of the limit at the price paid $9,000. It is a mistake to conclude that Sullivan applied or approached the Crown Lands Department, althoug he was in some way aware of Mr. Grant's application on behalf of Shannon and was, without the knowledge of the Crown Lands Department, as it turned afterwards practically the purchaser. The low price of the limit was placed according to the reports of the officials of the Department and of many lumbermen who knew the limit. It must be remembered that the $250 is simply for the license to cut, and that $1.25 will have to be paid for every thousand feet cut; so that, contrary to the impression sought to be created ,the $250 for the license is not all the revenue by any means, the province will get out of the little 600 or 800 acre limit in the Township of Rutherford.

THE ONTARIO BANK.

The report of the annual meeting of the Ontario Bank, held in Toronto yesterday, will be found in another column and shows the year to have been a most successful one in every respect. The profits of the Bank show a healthy increase, and after having paid in dividends to shareholders, $90,000.00, there is a balance of profits carried forward of $73,606.91.

The rest account has been increased to $500,000, and is now equal to 33 1-3 per cent. of the capital, showing the conservative and safe policy of the management.

The amount on deposit bearing interest is now $8,095,460.66, which is an increase of about $800,000 during the year.

A number of new branches have opened up, which shows that the management is fully alive to the increasing commercial prosperity of the country and is securing a share of the increased wealth.

It is a matter for congratulation that the Bank has in the office of President a man who is considered one of the safest business men in Canada, and the directors have shown their approval of the progress made under his presidency by re-electing him to the same office for another year.

A pleasing feature of the report, and one which shows the liberal policy of the Bank towards its employes is the grant of $5,000.00 which was made to the Officers' Pension Fund.

PERSISTENT ADVERTISING.

From the Canadian Grocer.

To insure the greatest results one must advertise right. The methods, mediums, space, circularizing, etc., must be correct in every detail, or the largest results will not be obtained. It is therefore false economy to use poor and careless methods, improper mediums, insufficient or superfluous space, inferior circulars or other printed matter.

To attempt to save money by issuing cheap circulars is no economy. A circular, poorly printed, on a cheap grade of paper, is seldom read by its recipient. It usually goes at once to the waste basket, or into the stove, wit hnot even a glance at it. And the impression at once received is that a firm who cannot afford or knows no more than to send out such stuff as that is certainly not offering anything worthy of consideration.The logical conclusion is that the firm that pays as little attention to these details, is consistent enough to give the same kind of attention to the other details of the business.

Even if read, the cheap circular creates in the mind of the reader a feeling of distrust towards the house which attempts to economize by the use of such literature. A neatly printed circular on good paper, and well written, creates a favourable impression at once. The largest cost of cheap circulars is simply money thrown away.

Another kind of false economy is the irregular, intermittent advertising—practised so much by a certain proportion of retailers and others. You place an ad. in the paper. A reader sees it—reads it through—is favourably impressed—thinks he will send for the article advertised—or he decides to "call in and get one nexxt time I am down town"—but not just then. Perhaps he forgets about it, and if he never sees your name in the paper again, chances are he will never be reminded about it again.

"The" stores in any town are the stores which advertise the most regularly in the newspapers. The proper kind of advertising will build up any business so that it will become one of "The" stores—the representative store in the trade.

Advertising to be successful must be continuous. One big ad. inserted once, or only occasionally, will not take the place of an ordinary ad. published regularly. Might as well think of taking one huge meal a week, instead of the three regulars every day. You'd feel starved most of the time, and so the business which is represented by an occasional large ad., or even an occasional small one, is simply starved in between times.

A small ad., appearing regularly, is worth much more than the same amount of space concentrated into one big ad. for one issue. The public has a short memory for things advertised—there are so many of them. It is soon forgotten, and its usefulness gone. The smaller ad. may not attract so much attention at first, but if persisted in, day after day and week after week,, the more permanent results will follow. The name of the firm and the character of the store and its offerings become well fixed in the mind of the public and the results will finally come. Successful advertising means persistent advertising.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The town Sabbath School Association calls upon all parents, teachers and scholars of all the Sunday schools in town, to remember the convention to be held in the Y.M.C.A. Peterborough, on Monday, June 22nd, at 8 p.m. Addresses will be given by the secrtary, J. A. Jackson, B.A., and Rev. W. E. Hazzard, B.D., both of Toronto. There will also be special music.

A mass meeting has been arranged for to be held in the George street Methodist church at three o'clock. It is understood that all the schools will convene in their own halls and march to the church. Rev. W. E. Hazzard, B.D., of Toronto, will address the children.

NO USE EATING

Unless you Digest Your Food—Winnipeg Man Proves That Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Digest it.

It is necessary to eat to live, but it is yet more necessary that the food should be properly digested. If the food is not properly digested the different organs and muscles do not receive the sustenance they require, and they become starved and weak. This is the experience of Mr. H. Bailey, 256 Patrick street, Winnipeg. In a statement to the public he says:

"Although my appetite seemed to be good, I never seemed to gain much strength or weight, till I started using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. Then I think my food was properly digested and turned to flesh and to strength. I gained eight pounds in weight and received so much benefit otherwise that I can heartily recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to anyone suffering from dyspepsia."

The moral is that you must digest your food as well as eat it. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest it.

Poison In Young Rattlesnakes.

Observations on live rattlesnakes show that the poison glands become functionally active as soon as the snakes begin to shift for themselves, which must be very soon after birth. Experiments on the young ones six days after birth proved the presence of venom in small quantities. Experiments made three months after birth showed that considerable venom is secreted, as a pigeon inoculated at this time died in two hours with the usual symptoms of chronic poisoning.

REV. E. H. DEWART.

Taken Ill In His Home and Died Almost Immediately.

HEART TROUBLE THE CAUSE.

Sketch of the Eminent Methodist Divine, Who Was, For Twenty-Five Years, the Editor of the Christian Guardian—A Well-Known Writer of Virile Prose and Poetry—Compiled Hymn Book.

Toronto, June 18.—The sudden death yesterday afternoon of Rev. Dr. Dewart came as a great shock to thousands of Toronto's citizens, and the announcement will be received with deep regret throughout Canada, for the name of Dr. Dewart was well known from ocean to ocean.

Dr. Dewart, who was 75 years of age, is survived by a widow and two sons, Hartley H., K.C., County Crown Attorney, and Edward, of the Bank of Commerce. The former was in Ottawa yesterday, but left last night for Toronto.

In the death of Dr. Dewart the Methodist Church in Canada loses one of its oldest and foremost representatives. He was a man of great natural ability and force of character, a vigorous writer, a powerful debater and an able preacher. He was in the true sense of the term a self-made man, with his success largely attributable to his indomitable perseverance and unwearied application.

REV. DR. E. H. DEWART.

Literary composition, both in prose and verse, was always Dr. Dewart's favorite employment.

In politics, Dr. Dewart was a staunch supporter of the Liberal party, and in the provincial elections in 1898 contested North Toronto in his party's interest against G. F. Marter, but was defeated by the narrow margin of 24.

Career of Dr. Dewart.

The Rev. Edward Hartley Dewart was born in County Cavan, Ireland, in 1823, came to Canada with his parents six years later, and passed his boyhood and youth in the County of Peterboro. His early opportunities for obtaining an education were few, but the effects were largely counterbalanced by his incessant study, his passion for reading and an insatiable thirst for learning. In 1848 he became a student at the Toronto Normal School, which had been opened just a few months previously for public instruction, traveling the entire distance from his home to the city, 120 miles, on foot.

After a period of study and school teaching, he entered the ministry in 1851, on the St. Thomas circuit, and was ordained in London in June, 1855. His first station was Dundas, after which he labored successively at St. Andrew's, Adelltown, Montreal (West), St. John's, Toronto (Elm street Church), and Ingersoll. In 1869 he became editor of The Christian Guardian, continuing in that office until Sept., 1894, when he was superannuated. He received the degree of D.D. from Victoria University in 1879. In 1873 he was a delegate to the English Wesleyan Conference. In 1881 a member of the Ecumenical Conference in London, and in 1891 of a similar conference in Washington. He was also for two years president of the Toronto Conference. In 1880 he was president of the Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance and in 1889 president of the Canadian Press Association.

His literary taste aided much in compiling the new Methodist hymn book. He was always a strong advocate of Methodist union, and the union of Victoria University with the University of Toronto. Some of his volumes and pamphlets published are: "The True Church," "Broken Reeds," "Way Marks," "Priestly Pretentions Disproved," "Curious Catholicity," "The Development of Doctrine," "Jesus, the Messiah," "Storm Signals," "Misleading Lights," and "Living Epistles." He also edited "Selections from Canadian Poets," and published a collection of original verse entitled, "Songs of Life."

Stabbed in the Neck.

St. Petersburg, June 18.—Kroushevan, the Jew baiter, and the editor of The Bessarabetz, the articles in which the anti-Semitic organ in Kishineff, are believed to have been largely responsible for the massacre of the Jews in Kishineff, was attacked by a party of Jews in the street here yesterday. He was stabbed in the neck by one of the Jews, but the wound is not believed to be fatal. His assailant was captured.

THE GAMEY REPORT

Debate Opens in Legislature With Leaders' Speeches.

MR. STRATTON'S VINDICATION

Premier Ross Moves the Adoption of the Report in a Speech of Great Logic and Calmness—Mr. Whitney Says Judges' Report Is Partisan—Mr. Stratton Fully Explains His Position.

Toronto, June 18.—After a thorough investigation by the Royal Commission and weeks of discussion by the press and the public, the Gamey sensation reverted once more yesterday to the chamber in which it had birth. The members of the Legislature, as a result, had one of the greatest days of debating of the session. The galleries were crowded continuously, and the attendance of members and their privileged friends on the floor of the House was as great as the space would accommodate. Both principals in the famous case were present during the entire day. Mr. Gamey evidently followed the speeches with much care, and Mr. Stratton was one of the speakers toward the end of the day.

The Premier's Speech.

The Premier began his address immediately on the opening of the House, shortly after 11, and he continued until it rose for luncheon at 1 o'clock, having spoken an hour and forty minutes. His address was one of the most clear and convincing of his recent utterances in the Legislature. It was apparent that he had himself under strong restraint, and the logic of his address was its distinguishing feature. He reviewed briefly the circumstances under which the charges were made, justified the method of dealing with them, and then adverted to the result. Rather than give his own opinion, he quoted from the Judges' report on points in dispute, thus giving the strongest support to his contention, that the report was just and impartial, a contention with which he had no doubt the country would agree. Mr. Ross' concluding words were as follows:

Splendid Tribute to Mr. Stratton.

Before I conclude let us look at the position of Mr. Stratton. He entered political life with a small majority fifteen or sixteen years ago. He has gone in and out among his people. At every election that followed his majority has increased, until, I think, at the last election it was 1,200 or thereabouts. No one who knew him would lay such a charge at his door as was made by the member for Manitoulin. How did he build up that reputation and become the head of a great financial concern? Is it not evident on the face of it that there was public and political morality there? How did he bear himself during the strain— not as a man who had done a smart thing and was not going to be caught at it, but with the steady defiance of a man that knew no man could prove him guilty of the charges. (Applause.) And when he said to me, "I shall resign, I shall cut myself free from the Government," I said: "I have known you for fifteen years; you have filled important and responsible positions; your department has handled about one million dollars a year; you are an able administrator, most industrious and faithful. I say I shall not believe any charge against you until it is proved in the courts of law." (Loud applause.)

Appeal to the Jury.

And the imputation cast upon myself and my other colleagues we resented then, and we resent now; and we appeal to the jury, we appeal to the great jury of this country, in the hope and in the belief that the report of these commissioners will be the crystallized judgment of the people of this whole country, and we hope that this matter will be removed from the sphere of active politics, that this House will never have to weary itself as it has done and to preoccupy its time with similar investigations, but, relieved from these, it will be able to apply itself to the great functions of a Legislature, looking for the prosperity of the country and for the elevation of public morality and the progress of education.

When the Premier resumed his seat there was a great outburst of applause from his supporters, and, as the House rose immediately for lunch, he was surrounded and congratulated upon his great effort.

Partisan, Says Mr. Whitney.

Mr. Whitney, who followed during the afternoon for two hours, was in excellent voice. He did not review the evidence in any great detail, but his address was in the nature of a criticism of the Judges' finding for its alleged partisan nature, the extremeness of which, he said, was more than the Liberals desired. He said many Liberal wanted yet to get rid of the Provincial Secretary. He also declared that the omissions from the report rendered it unacceptable to the general public.

Summary of the Argument.

In conclusion, Mr. Whitney delivered a summary of his argument, and of his opinion, reading from a prepared statement, for which he craved the indulgence of the House. Mr. Whitney's conclusions, with which he ended his speech, were as follows:—

(1) While the manner of the payment to Gamey, taken by itself, may present an arguable question, it is clear, from the evidence recited, and admitted by the report as worthy of credence, that money was paid to Gamey for the purpose alleged.

(2) That Stratton tried to induce Hammond to alter The Globe interview.

(3) That the charge of making and carrying out a corrupt bargain as to patronage has been already proved; Fletcher and Jackson got appointments, and Dr. Arthur admitted he understood Gamey had patronage.

(4) That the Provincial Secretary attempted to induce Hammond to commit perjury.

(5) That the Premier produced from his custody the letter from Gamey, forming part of the corrupt bargain, and the other letter to him, but refrained from giving evidence himself to exculpate himself, and, strange to say, the commissioners took care not to call him, nor did he offer himself as a witness.

(6) That the finding shows that the commissioners have unduly strained the effect of the evidence, and omitted reference to portions of it, so as to favor Stratton, the Provincial Secretary, and members of the Government.

(7) Finally, that there are errors, omissions and misstatements in the report which discredit and render it of no value.

Mr. Stratton's Vindication.

Mr. Stratton rose shortly before 6, and instantly everyone was attention to hear the first explanation to be made to his peers by the Minister who had been accused. Mr. Stratton commented severely on the pre judging of the case which had characterized the Opposition members and journals, and "the treacherous independent press" of this city. He then entered a formal and specific denial to the charge, and, proceeding, reviewed in much detail the evidence in the case as it related to himself. He had not concluded when the House adjourned at 10, having spoken two hours and a half. During the address, Mr. Gamey exhibited uneasiness, and at one time rose to contradict a statement. The House will resume at 11 to-day, and Mr. Stratton will likely conclude before the 1 o'clock adjournment.

Mr. Lucas or Mr. Gamey is expected to follow, and in the former case Mr. M. G. Cameron will probably reply.

Fighting the Mad Mullah.

Aden, Arabia, June 18.—The British lines of communication between Berbera and Bohotle, Somaliland, East Africa, are threatened by the forces of the Mad Mullah. Three companies of the Hampshire regiment and 300 native troops have been ordered to proceed from here to Somaliland, June 20. Further confirmation has been received of the reports that three British officers are prisoners in the camp of the Mullah. About 14,000 Abyssinians are now co-operating with the British against the Mullah's forces.

News too Good to Keep.

Persons who have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are usually so well pleased with the benefits derived that they tell the good news to their neighbours. There is no medicine which so promptly awakens the action of the liver, invigorates the kidneys and regulates the bowels as Dr. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and for this reason they are unapproched as a family medicine. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers.

British Liberals Defeated.

London, June 18.—The whole evening of the House of Commons yesterday was occupied by a motion to adjourn made by the Liberal leader, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, in order to obtain further light regarding the Government's position on the preferential tariff question. The motion was finally rejected by 252 votes to 183.

Unions Condemn Preference.

London, June 18.—The Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress, held to represent 1,500,000 organized working people of the United Kingdom, passed a resolution yesterday, strongly condemning Mr. Chamberlain's fiscal proposal, and urging the working people to combat the "delusive doctrine."

GRAVES WERE DECORATED

By the Oddfellow Societies of Peterborough.

A VERY PRETTY CEREMONY.

The Procession Down George Street Headed by the Band of the 57th Regiment.

This afternoon the Oddfellows of the two local Lodges, accompanied by some visiting brethren, observed their beautiful memorial service and decorated the graves of their deceased brethren, whose remains have been laid to rest beneath the green sod of Little Lake Cemetery.

In addition to the decorations which the Oddfellows placed on the graves of those who in life had been members of their Order, nearly all those who have friends whose bodies rest in Little Lake Cemetery, placed on their graves some floral token, so that the whole place of burial was one vast bower of flowers.

Mayor Roger in response to a request from a number of citizens, proclaimed a half holiday, and the stores and business places are closed, so that all may join in this beautiful custom of honouring the dead.

The members of the Oddfellows' Order met at Central Park and, on being joined by the 57th Band, proceeded in a body to the cemetery bearing their floral offering, the sight, as the members marched in their regalia being one of imposing beauty. The Marshall for the parade was Lt.-Col. Miller, and Bro. M. W. Matchett, P.D.D., was in charge of the ceremonies at the gravesides. After an invocation was offered and a hymn sung, addresses were given by resident ministers, and a wreath was placed on the graves of all deceased members of the I.O.O.F.

The graves decorated were those of the following:

RECITAL GIVEN BY MRS. MORROW'S PUPILS.

Opera House the Scene of a Pleasing Musical Event.

Miss LeGros' Playing Much Admired—Singing by Pupils and Mr. Ross Pleased the Audience.

One of the best musical entertainments ever given in Peterboorugh, was that presented in the opera house last night by Mrs. Morrow's pupils, assisted by Mr. David Ross, of Toronto. To say that it was enjoyed by the large and critical audience present, would be to express it but mildly. The programme was thoroughly appreciated from the first number to the closing chorus, and Mrs. Morrow has great reason to be proud of the success which she and her pupils attained.

The stage was very tastily decorated with flags and bunting, and when the programme opened with a chorus given by the pupils, the effect of the blending of colours and the very prettily dressed young ladies was, indeed, beautiful.

That the audience, which was a large one, was pleased with the programme presented, was evidenced by the hearty applause which followed each number.

The opening selection was a chorus given by the whole class, "Dragon Flies," and the effect upon the audience which the harmony of this rendition produced, was most pleasing. A duet was taken by Miss Bell and Miss Bryce. Miss Bell has a rich, mellow contralto voice, which at once captivated her hearers, and Miss Bryce in the soprano showed a great range and a particularly sweet voice. In a subsequent rendering of a Stacor Polka by Milder, Miss Bryce gained fresh laurels. This is a most difficult composition, and her interpretation of it was all that could be desired. In the second number, "My Hame is where the Heather Blooms,"—(DeKovan) Miss A. Pedlar, displayed great talent, her voice showing consistent training. A solo by Miss Bernadette Hackett, was very much appreciated. She has a voice of great carrying power, and a most pleasing stage manner.

A difficult piano duet by Miss L. LeGros and Mrs. Morrow followed. This was played on two pianos, and the talent which was manifested by the precision with which Miss LeGros rendered her part was freely commented upon. Miss LeGros is a musician who has a brilliant future. Added to her musical talent she possesses a manner which is at once unaffected pleasing.

The next number was one which was particularly enjoyed. Mrs. C. B. McAllister sang in a very effective manner, "Calm as the Night," by Bohm. In this selection Mrs. McAllister displayed marked ability to correctly interpret the composer's thought. After singing this two beautiful bouquets of roses were presented to McAllister as an evidence of the pleasure which her singing had given. An encore was demanded and pleasingly responded to, the selection being, "Could I Love Thee More," by Lee Miller, in which, as well as that preceding it, Mrs. McAllister's voice showed great magnetism.

Mr. E. A. Frowde sang with a fine effect Lavellee's "Bolero," and received most hearty applause, responding with a pretty ballad, "Love Lies Bleeding." Mr. Frowde possesses a voice of great promise, and his many friends listened with pleasure to his selections.

Mrs. E. Callender, with a very sweet voice, was next heard in Thomas' "Mignon." Mrs. Callender, without apparent effort, took some high notes very correctly and has a voice which shows great melody. Mr. David Ross, of Toronto then sang Clay's "Gipsy John," and at once made a decided "hit" with the audience. He is a true artist, and sings with a marked dramatic effect.

The last number in the first part was a piano solo "Polonaise," rendered by Miss L. LeGros, and in it she showed remarkable musical culture.

The second part opened with a solo by Miss Ruth Dawson, "A Village Wedding Song," and was much enjoyed. Miss Dawson's sweet voice has great carrying power and in this selection she had one which was well suited to her. A piano duet by Miss L. LeGros and Mrs. Morrow followed, the selection being Gottschalk's "Radieuse," and it was played with a delicacy of touch and correctness which can only be produced by those who have the true musician's instinct.

A lady's quartette was then given by Misses Miller, Dawson, Pedlar and Bell. This was one of the most enjoyable numbers on the programme.

A chorus, "Serenade," was next enjoyed and a tenor solo by Mr. J. Legg was a pleasing feature of it. This was followed by a solo, "Toriadore" given by Mr. Ross, which was as much enjoyed as his former selections.

A duet by Miss Florence Miller and Mr. Legg followed, the selection being "Remembrance." Their voices blended well and the rendition had great effect.

In Life's Lullaby" Miss Lillian Bell, who possesses a very full, rich voice, was heard to good advantage. Mr. Norman Jolliffe followed in Pinsuti's "Bedovin Love Song" and he delighted his hearers by a very pleasing expression of the spirit of the composition. His voice, which, is a rich bass, shows considerable musical powers.

Miss Miller's rendering of "Roberts' D'll Diavolo" was thoroughly enjoyed. Her voice is rich and clear and she pleased the audience by her distinct enunciation.

A male quartette by Rev. W. L. Armitage and Messrs. Frowde, Jolliffe and Legg, without accompaniment, was an enjoyable number. Their voices being perfectly harmonized.

The programme closed with a pupils chorus, "Cheerfulness" after Mr. Ross had again delighted those present by singing "Sands O'Dee" and "The Years at the Spring."

Special mention should be made of "Annie Laurie" which Mr. Ross sang as an encore.

A piano duet, "Don Juan," overture by Mozart, which was to have been played by Miss L. Legros and Mrs. Morrow, was accidentally omitted.

Mrs. Morrow accompanied all the soloists and choruses very efficiently and in this materially helped the singers in their selections.

She deserves great credit for the programme which was presented. Mr. Ross declared that he had never heard amateur singing which could equal that given by the young ladies last night. This is a high tribute not only to Mrs. Morrow's teaching, but also to the musical talent possessed by those who took part. The stage decorations were the work of Mr. A. Kingscote.

The following is a list of those taking part in the choruses:—

DISMISSED HUSBAND FROM HER PRESENCE.

Italian Wife Shows Prerogative of Her Sex.

Man From Sunny Italy Charged With Pointing a Revolver at a Fellow-Countryman.

A very interesting case, which lasted all day, took place yesterday in the police court, before Police Magistrate Dumble.

Francesco Uira, a young Italian, who came to Canada about a year ago, laid a complaint against Nicholas Martino, with having on the 7th day of June unlawfully pointed a revolver at complainant, contrary to the Criminal Code. There was an additional charge laid against Martino of unlawfully having upon his person a pistol with the intent therewith to do injury to Uira.

The circumstances of the case disclosed a low moral tone, if the word tone can be used in that connection.

It appeared in the evidence that Uira, the complainant, was married to the daughter of one Angelo Sansoni, sometimes called "Frank Scott," and that for a period, he together with his wife and child, besides other boarders, lived with Sansoni, on Sherbrooke street. Among these latter boarders was Martino, a man of 55 years of age, and 30 years older than complainant's wife.

About a month ago, accordinging to the evidence of the complainant, Uira was dismissed from the family at the instance of his wife, and told to seek his lodgings elsewhere, she having transferred her affections to the defendant Martino, with apparently no great objections on the part of either her father or mother and Martino. It transpired that on Sunday, June 7th, Uira, and a friend, Fabiano, went to the Sansoni house, and in some way, not clearly indicated in the evidence, a disturbance arose, in which it was alleged on one side, that Martino procured a revolver, and aiming it through the window, threatened to shoot the complainant, but was prevented from doing this by the exertions of Mrs. Sansoni and Mrs. Uira. On the other hand it iis alleged that Uira came to the house looking for trouble and to raise a disturbance, and further that he endeavoured to break into the house and attack Martino, and was only prevented from so doing by the women closing the door and keeping him out—frightening him away by saying that Martino was going to shoot. The defendant denied that he threatened to shoot, and also claimed that all that he had in his hand was a stove lid lifter, which was mistaken for a revolver.

As has before been stated the case took up all the day and after careful consideration the Magistrate considered that he could not convict, it appearing that Martino only acted in self defence. He therefore dismissed both charges.

In view of the feeling between the two parties he directed the defendant to give bonds and to keep the peace one year.

An interesting feature of the trial was the presence of Mr. Michael Basso, the well-known Italian of Toronto, who showed himself to be a very clever and able interpreter.

Messrs. W. H. Moore and R. E. Wood appeared for the prosecution and F. D. Kerr for the defence.

PETERBOROUGH BAPTISTS MEET.

Mayor Roger Gives Address of Welcome—Missions Receive Much Attention in Convention.

The afternoon meeting of the Baptist Association opened at 2 o'clock with Mrs. J. Bastow presiding. After the opening hymn and devotional exercises, Miss Hitchen, of Belleville, gave an interesting talk on Home Missions, which was followed by an inspiring address by Mrs. Marshall of Cobourg on the Grande-Ligne Mission. Mrs. Marshall pictured in a graphic manner the struggles which have long existed between the different organizations and paid a glowing tribute to the heroism displayed by the missionaries in the East to-day.

Mrs. Scott sang with a pleasing voice the beautiful solo, "My Lord and I."

Much interesting information was given on the missions of the church in the West by Mrs. Matthews, who read a letter from Mrs. Sharpe, of St. Peter's Reserve. Mrs. Sharpe in her letter spoke most hopefully of the work among the Indians in our own Dominion. They are rapidly adapting themselves to civilized customs, and by the aid of the different instrumentalities are becoming Christianized.

Miss S. J. Hutch, a returned missionary from India, was present and delivered an address dealing with the work in that country.

Miss McLaughlin read a paper on Mission Band Work, which was followed by some interesting exercises given by members of the Mission Band in connection with Murray street church.

At this stage Miss Emily Miller pleased the audience with a pretty solo.

A question drawer in which questions were asked with reference to Mission Circle Work, was conducted, and in the course of it many important features of the work were discussed and much valuable information gained. Mrs. Bastow in speaking urged the organization of Baby Bands in connection with the Mission Bands. This exercise was heartily entered into and was one of the most helpful features of the day's proceedings.

A letter of sympathy was ordered to be sent to Mrs. Sharpe in the sorrow which has come to her, occasioned by the illness of her daughter.

The meeting closed with prayer being offered by Mrs. Marshall.

Last night the meeting of the Baptist Association held in the Murray street church was well attended, and much enjoyed. The Moderator, Rev. Mr. Marshall, was in the chair, the opening services being conducted by Rev. J. E. Hawkings, of Norwood.

A number of vacancies on committees were then filled as follows:—

Nominating Committee — Messrs. C. A. Baker, L. B. Randall, George Cochrane, Revs. J. E. Hawkings, J. Bastow, R. Wallace, and Morton.

Obituary Committee — Rev. W. E. Orton, Mr. R. W. Kelly and Mr. W. Mann.

Resolution Committee — Rev. J. Trotter, T. C. Robinson Major Caswell.

A duet was then given by Miss Hall and Mr. Brown.

Rev. J. Bastow addressed the convention, welcoming the delegates to the town and church, and hoped their deliberations would prove of benefit to the cause they represented.

Mayor Roger also gave an address of welcome in which he said he was pleased to endorse the words of Mr. Bastow. He wished them a prosperous existence and hoped that they would again visit Peterborough.

Rev. Mr. Marshall spoke in reply and said they were glad of the privilege of seeing such a progressive town, and was sure they would enjoy their visit here.

The reports of the Mission Bands and Circles were then read, a summary of which was given yesterday.

Rev. L. McKinnon was then called upon to speak on the missions in the Northwest and gave a most interesting address. He spoke of the claims that great country had on the church. The "fields were white on the harvest but the labourers were few." Speaking of the great immigration into the West, he said that this year 100,000 new settlers would come to Canada and the church must not neglect them. After this address the choir rendered a selection and Rev. J. G. Brown, B.A., spoke on the Foreign Missions. This work is most encouraging and great progress is being made. The church is becoming to recognize its responsibilities along this line and great good is being accomplished.

MR. TARTE'S AMENDMENT.

An Advocate of Increased Protection—Mr. Borden Supports Him—Motion Defeated by 88 Majority.

Ottawa, June 18.—In a speech of nearly three hours' duration yesterday afternoon Hon. Mr. Tarte submitted to the House of Commons the amendment of which he had given notice, favoring a policy of greater protection for the manufacturing and agricultural industries, and calling upon the Government to pursue an energetic transportation policy.

Mr. Tarte was followed by a number of Opposition members, all of whom supported the amendment, the occupants of the Government benches never vouchsafing any reply, with the exception of a speech in French by Mr. Demers of St. John and Iberville, and a brief address by Hon. Wm. Ross, Victoria.

Shortly before 1 o'clock this morning Mr. R. L. Borden took the floor, and in a vigorous speech supported the amendment. He was followed by the Minister of Finance, Hon. Mr. Fielding, who in a vigorous speech, suggested that instead of being the master of the Administration it appeared, from the readiness with which the Opposition leader followed his lead, Mr. Tarte was now "the master of the Opposition."

After further speeches the vote was reached and the amendment was defeated by 102 to 50.

Grand Trunk Pacific.

Mr Pringle of Cornwall made an unsuccessful effort to have the Grand Trunk bill referred back to the Railway Committee, and he submitted the amendment, which he moved in the Railway Committee that so far as practicable the Grand Trunk Pacific should purchase its supplies in Canada. A division was demanded and Pringle's amendment was defeated on a vote of 102 to 55.

Consideration of the bill respecting the Toronto and Hamilton Railway has been postponed till Friday, June 26.

WHAT AMES & CO. PROPOSE.

Statement of Settlement Offered Publicly by the Firm to Creditors.

Toronto, June 18.—Messrs. Ames & Co., who recently suspended payment, in a statement to the press today propose "settlement of our liabilities upon the basis of a payment in full, with interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum," as follows:

"(1) To unsecured creditors, being savings depositors, clients with credit balances, and clients with surplus margins, 25 cents on the dollar, payable on July 5th, next, and the balance in three equal payments, at six, twelve and eighteen months hereafter.

"(2) From banks, institutions and other lenders, holding securities as collateral, and whose individual positions differ, we ask that they will be good enough to continue to co-operate with us upon the satisfactory basis, under which, with practically no exception, we have been acting, exercising such additional patience as may be necessary until our accounts with them become quite normal in character.

"The foregoing proposal is made publicly, in view of the impossibility of getting creditors quickly together. Notice of the proposal, with forms of consent, will be mailed to creditors as soon as they can be put out."

THE AWFUL AGONY OF AN ACHING BACK.

There is nothing more excruciating than backache — can't turn stoop, or move without suffering terrible pain.

DR. PITCHER'S BACKACHE-KIDNEY TABLETS

Are the most prompt, complete and permanent cure known for sore, stiff, aching, painful backs. Read the proof:

THE PAIN SEVERE.

Mrs. George Inman, Carleton Place, Ont., said: "My husband suffered from an acute lameness in his back. To stoop or assume an upright position was excruciating. He tried various remedies, but said he never had anything come up to Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets.'

TOOK HOLD IMMEDIATELY.

Mr. John Kinnes, Durham, Ont., gave the following account of his case: "For three or four years I suffered from good hard backache whenever I over-exerted myself. I got a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets and they took hold immediately, and by the time the bottle was finished I was cured."

NO REST AT NIGHT.

Mrs. Richard Meyers, Preston, Ont. says: "I had a severe pain in my back that gave me no release in the day time, and disturbed me at nights. Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets cured me of the pain, and I no longer have that depressing weakness in the mornings as formerly."

If you suffer from backache or any kidney, bladder or urinary troubles and are anxious to be cured quickly and permanently, see that you get Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets.

50 Chocolated Coated Tablets 50 cts. at druggists or by mail. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto.

Tortured with Pain.

Too Weak to Work.

ULCERS, BOILS AND PIMPLES ALL OVER HER BODY

Such was the condition of Mrs. Samuel Deitz, Zurich, Ont.

She happily found relief from her terrible suffering by using

Burdock Blood Bitters.

A remedy without a rival for the cure of all diseases and troubles arising from bad blood. A record extending over a quarter of a century and thousands of testimonials will prove this. Mrs. Deitz writes: "Too weak to work, tortured with the pain of ulcers, boils and pimples all over my body, especially on my face. I had almost made up my mind to give up trying to have them cured. I was ashamed to have any person come to see me, my face was in such a terrible state. I tried everything I could think of but got worse and worse. I was then led to try Burdock Blood Bitters and was surprised at the wonderful change the first bottle made. Altogether I took seven bottles and am now completely cured and am in perfect health again. I feel that B.B.B. saved my life."

Sad News Confirmed.

Detroit, Mich., June 18.—A telegram from Ione, about 20 miles from Heppner, Oregon, destroyed by the flood on Monday, has been received by Dr. E. R. Ellis, of Detroit, informing him that his married daughter, Mrs. Alexander Gunn, and her husband, were drowned.

Wanted Every Detail.

Pauline, aged six, was listening to the story of the marriage at Cana and the miracle of the water and the wine. After her mother had finished her recital the little girl inquired:

"Mother, what did you say was the name of the gentleman what gave the party?"

Not Wholly Idle.

Clara—Does Harry help you with the house cleaning?

Harriet—Well, he hangs the pictures crooked and does the grumbling.

His Proud Boast.

"What is your position in the choir?" asked the new church member.

"Absolutely neutral," replied the mild tenor. "I don't side with either faction."

For Six Months He did no Work

Was a Victim of Nervous Collapse—Weak, Helpless, Suffered An Extraordinary Cure by

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

That Dr. Chase's Nerve Food possesses unusual control over the nerves and rekindles nervous energy when all other means fail, is well illustrated in the case described below. Mr. Brown was forced to give up his ministerial work, and so far exhausted that for a time he was positively helpless. Doctors were consulted and many remedies were restored to in vain. Every effort to build up the system seemed in vain, and it is little wonder that the sufferer was losing hope of recovery when he began to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Rev. T. Brown, Methodist minister of Omemee, and late of Bethany, Ont., writes: "A year ago last November I was overtaken with nervous exhaustion. For six months I did no work, and during that time I had to be waited on, not being able to help myself. Nervous collapse was complete and though I was in the physician's hands for months, I did not seem to improve. At any little exertion my strength would leave me, and I would tremble with nervousness.

"From the first I used a great many nerve remedies, but they seemed to have no effect in my case. I had almost lost hope of recovery when I heard of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and began to use it. As my system became stronger I began to do a little work and have gradually increased in nerve force and vigour until now I am about in my normal condition again. I consider Dr. Chase's Nerve Food the best medicine I ever used. Not only has it proved its wonderful restorative powers in my own case, but also in several others where I have recommended it."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, six boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 9

THE PASSING OF THE SUMMER BOARDER

By TEMPLE BAILEY

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

"Goodby, dear."

"Goodby."

Miss Tremont held Cornelia in her arms for a moment as she kissed her. The figure of the girl was rigid, and the lips she touched were cold, but Miss Tremont did not notice the lack of enthusiasm. She was used to conquests, and she was sure Nelle loved her.

She whispered in the girl's ear. Her voice was penetrating, and, as she intended, the clear tones reached the ear of the man who stood close by.

"When you are married, let me know, and I will come and dance at your wedding," was what she said.

Then she gathered up her rustling skirts and waved her bunch of American Beauties at the pair, and the coach drove off.

Cornelia turned to the man beside her.

"Did you hear what she said?"

"Yes," he answered absently, his eyes on the fluttering bit of white veil far down the road.

"Well, she needn't have said it. I shan't let her know."

The man turned, his sunburned face showing his surprise.

"I thought you liked Miss Tremont."

"So I did, and I do yet, but I tell you now, Dave Clinton, that if mother takes boarders again next summer I shall go away and stay." Her voice was fierce.

An uneasy look came into the blue eyes of the young farmer.

"And leave me?" He tried to ask the question easily, but his voice was not steady.

She laid her hand on his arm, with a kind of doubting appeal.

"Would you care if I went—if she was here?"

The man shifted his position uneasily. "I don't see that you are called upon to ask me that question, Nelle," he said.

"But I do ask it." Her fingers were locking each other nervously. "I did like her," she went on, "for she is so beautiful, and she interested me—until you began to notice her"—

He tried to take her hand, but she flung herself away from him. Then for a moment there was tense silence.

"I love you, Nelle," he said at last.

"You don't, you don't! You love her!" she cried passionately. "And I wish we had never seen her." She ran swiftly up the path and shut the door of the house behind her.

That night the family sat down at a small table in the big kitchen. The dining room had been restored to its original position as a living room, and the parlor was closed. The supper of warmed over potatoes and eggs, with one kind of preserve, announced the return of plain living.

After supper Nelle washed the dishes in the big pantry just outside the kitchen. Her mother was in the milk-room, skimming, so when Dave came and stood beside her they were alone.

"What's the matter, Nelle?" he said. "Are you mad at me?"

She raised her blue eyes.

"No, Dave," she said quietly.

She poured some hot water into her pan so recklessly that her fingers were burned, and she uttered an involuntary cry.

Dave reached over and took them, red and wet as they were.

"Poor little fingers!" he said.

Nelle's eyes blazed. "I won't have your pity, Dave Clinton!" Her voice was hushed, but vehement.

Without another word the man turned away, but she called him back in a whisper.

"I want to see you when I finish. I'll come down to the orchard seat."

The orchard was spicy with the scent of apples, and under the moonlight the great red globes showed dark in the shadow of the leaves. Dave sat on a natural bench made by the gnarled trunks of two old apple trees and watched Nelle come down the path. He rose to meet her and put his arm around her, but she thrust him aside with a little, impatient gesture.

Then she sat down and looked up at him as he stood in front of her.

"It isn't that I am jealous," she began, as if their conversation of the afternoon had not been interrupted, "but it's because I can never be the same to you, no matter if you do think you love me. You have seen Miss Tremont, and now, always, she will be the most beautiful woman in the world to you."

"She is a beautiful woman," he assented gravely.

"Yes, and before she came you thought my hands were pretty—my little, red, rough hands"—her voice broke—"and you admired my hair and the little dresses I made myself. I am not blaming you," she went on, "but you had never seen a woman like her. I hadn't, either, and you were carried away just as I was. But don't you see that I want to be first with you?"

"You are first, Nelle," he said gravely.

"But I haven't wonderful eyes like hers, and I can't use them as she does. I can't say the right thing as she does in her soft voice. And her perfumes! Will you ever smell a violet again, Dave, without thinking of her? Will you?"

He smoothed her hand soothingly and said nothing.

"Did you ever see such dresses and beautiful shoes? I was ashamed all the time, and wore my best slippers every day. She was like a rose—one of the big, beautiful roses that were sent her from town so often."

She went on in a sobbing monotone, while the man's face was white and set.

"And now it will be her that you love and not me. Of course you will marry me because you couldn't marry her; you are not her kind. But I don't want your pity. That's why I am going to give this back." She stripped a little garnet ring from her third finger and handed it to him.

He took it and turned it over and over in his hand.

Then he walked up and down under the trees, and she watched the tall, strong figure with the steady, firm tread as she leaned trembling against the old gnarled apple tree.

Suddenly he came over to her, and in spite of her protests he lifted her in his arms to a higher seat in the old tree where he could stand beside her and stroke her hair and watch the moonlight on her face as he had watched so many, many times before.

"Nelle," he said, "I bought this little ring for the woman who was to be my wife, and there can never be any other."

Both of her hands were on his big ones now, and her eyes were searching his face wistfully.

"When she came," he waved his hand down the road as if the summer boarder were still a visible presence, "I had never seen anything like her. She fascinated you; she fascinated me. She is a wonderful dream woman." His voice trailed off into silence.

"But I want to be your dream woman," she wailed.

With an effort he brought his eyes down close to hers and smiled at her tears. "You are my real woman," he said.

"But," she began.

"There are no 'buts.'" He lifted her down, and they stood together beneath the dark boughs. "She is beautiful, little girl; but so was the picture that we saw in the art gallery when we went to the city, but I didn't want to bring the picture home, and I couldn't take her into my little home any more than I could the picture. I want the tender, sweet woman who has filled my heart since I was a boy and who fills it still."

She laid her head down on his arm with a sigh of content.

"But I can't help wishing you had never seen her."

Into the blue eyes which looked over her bowed head and down the long, long road that led to the city there came a shadow, but Dave's voice was gay as he raised her face to his and kissed her.

"The summer is ended, sweetheart, and the little house is ready. When?"

Ben Butler's Short Speech.

Francis E. Leupp in the Century says that probably the shortest speech ever delivered in congress was made by Ben Butler of Massachusetts. An Ohio member had fallen afoul of him one day and poured upon him a torrent of abuse which would have excited general indignation but for an unconsciously ridiculous gesture with which the orator accompanied almost every alternate sentence. This tempered the disgust of his hearers with mirth. He would raise his arms just as high above his head as possible and then wring his hands as if he were making a delirious attempt to wring them off. Butler sat through the speech with his eyes half closed, not moving a muscle. He rose when his assailant finished and stood grimly in the aisle. After perhaps a minute of silence he began, "Mr. Speaker!" Another impressive pause, and expectancy reached nearly the bursting point. Suddenly raising his arms, Butler reproduced exactly the awful gesture of the Ohio congressman. Then his arms fell to his sides, and for another minute he stood silent. "That is all, Mr. Speaker," he said finally. "I just wanted to answer the gentleman from Ohio."

History and Biography.

The whole value of history, of biography, is to increase my self trust by demonstrating what man can be and do. This is the moral of the Plutarchs, the Cudworths, the Tennemanns, who give us the story of men or of opinions. Any history of philosophy fortifies my faith by showing me that what high dogmas I had supposed were the rare and late fruit of a cumulative culture, and only now possible to some recent Kant or Fichte, were the prompt improvisations of the earliest inquirers; of Parmenides, Heraclitus and Xenophanes.

In view of these students the soul seems to whisper: "There is a better way than this indolent learning of another. Leave me alone. Do not teach me out of Leibnits or Schelling, and I shall find it all out myself."

Still more do we owe to biography the fortification of our hope. If you would know the power of character, see how much you would impoverish the world if you could take clean out of history the lives of Milton, Shakespeare and Plato, these three, and cause them not to be. See you not how much less the power of man would be? —Emerson.

The Care Free Swazis.

Who are the happiest people in the world? Undoubtedly the Swazis of South Africa. There are about 70,000 of them, and if you searched the world over you could not find 70,000 people of a happier temperament. They utterly refuse to worry about anything, they positively decline to work, and they will not be civilised on any account. Unlike most savages, they are not troubled by any superstitions. A happy, careless people, loving idleness and the sun, the Swazis go through life with the least possible trouble. They are prodigal in times of plenty, philosophical in times of want, optimistic at all times.

The Hare.

In the economy of nature the hare is the one creature that stands between most of the carnivorous animals and starvation. In the northern woods, where snow lies on the ground for more than half the year and where vegetation is of slow growth, the hare serves as a machine for converting birch twigs into muscular, lean meat and providing it in such quantities that hawks, owls, wildcats, weasels and foxes can live in comparative luxury. A pair of hares under favorable conditions produce 70,000 individuals in four years.

Power Stored in Watch Springs.

Many watches make five beats per second, 300 each minute, 18,000 every hour or 432,000 per day. Thus it will be seen that half a dozen turns of the key once a day, taking up but a few seconds of time, store up a modicum of power in the spring which is cut up into nearly 1,000,000 beats. If we multiply the daily beats by 365¼, the number of days in a year, we find that the watch ticks 157,788,000 times while the earth is making one annual trip around the sun.

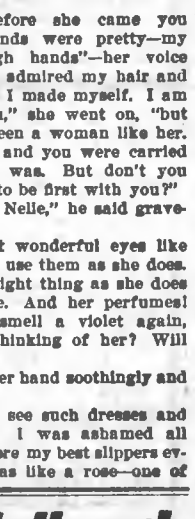
In Girlhood

There is a great need of motherly watchfulness and care. A growing girl needs all her strength, and if she is nervous and melancholy, and loses appetite there is surely something wrong. This is especially true as the young girl approaches that important period of change when the womanly function is established. Timely care and proper treatment at this period may save much after suffering.



The best medicine for young girls who are nervous, melancholy, and irregular of appetite, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures nervousness, dizziness, and melancholy, promotes the appetite, and gives the body robust health. There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription" and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics.

"My daughter was troubled with dizziness and constipation and was very nervous for five years," writes Mrs. M. Carter, of 1545 4th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. "I tried several doctors but they gave her no relief. At times she would eat nothing, had green and purple circles under her eyes, and was melancholy. A woman friend of mine told me to try your 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Pleasant Pellets' which I did. After taking one bottle of each she began to improve and is still improving. People said she looked as though she were going into a decline. She is twelve years old. There are no circles around her eyes now and she is healthy and robust, eats as much as any child, and is growing fatter every day."

QUOTATIONS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET

The Quotations of the Leading Stocks —Market Letters.

One of the features of the Wall street market this morning was the sudden drop in M. R., from 124 3-4, its opening quotation, to 121 1-4. This was no doubt due to the lawsuit pending with that company. On the Boston market Dominion Steel opened at 14 and went as high as 15 1-4, but reacted to 13 1-4 by 12 o'clock. Dominion Coal opened at 91 but fell back to 89 3-4. Pa. and Reading remained strong throughout the morning.

Messrs. E. M. Poussett & Co. have received the following:—

New York, June 18.—Morning Market Letter—Best news this morning is the Bank of England reducing its rate of 2½ to 3 per cent. This is regarded as a great thing on the other side and indicates the confidence there in the present situation and outlook and as indicative of easy money for rest of year. We should have a better market to-day with possibly some further rally. We do not expect the market will show any very decided tendency just now, as business is mostly professional.

M. & M.

11.00 a.m.—Treasury statement shows banks gained $507,000 since Friday. Stock market opened pretty good but trading narrow and highly professional and looks as if it will continue narrow without decided tendency.

M. & M.

Messrs. McMillan & Maguire, stock brokers, Hunter street, have received the following:—

New York, June 18th, 1.15 p. m. — Reduction in rate of Bank of England gave the market a good opening but prices could not stand up against the selling on account of several unfavourable features. The Trust Co., of the Republic is in trouble and the probing of its affairs threatens to expose some high U.P. financiers. Rumors of a fight in C.P.I., hurt that stock and all the steels suffered on account of steel and iron news. The revelation of the inner workings of Metropolitan by President Vreland on the witness stand gave the stock a sharp decline. The weakness of U.S.S. was especially unsettling. Its evident that there can be no marked upturn at present and the big men will only support the market on declines. Strength of Penna. was attributed to an attempt to support the market. On the hard spots sell stocks for a moderate profit.

DICKINSON.

New York, June 17.—There was considerable jokeying in to-day's price movements, but market in the main held strong. Slight recessions occurred during the day, but then prices recovered as quickly. C. P. & I. was hammered for 5 points during the noon hour on revival of rumours that a receiver was to be applied for; but on its denial it quickly rallied to 63 3-4. The tone of the market was fairly strong, especially among the coalers. The consensus of opinion favoured a rally of small proportions after such heavy selling of the past few days, but the undertone of the market indicates a generally dull and declining market pending improvement in the financial horizon. London was a buyer on balance. Demand sterling 487 7-8. Market closed rather weak.

Crop advises are fairly good.

Chicago.—Wheat held steady but the principal interest centred in corn, which has advanced steadily to new high records on the present movement and must be exceedingly gratifying to customers who took advice expressed in former letters.

Close.—Wheat, July, 78 1-8, 1-4; Corn, July, 50 3-8; Oats, July, 39 1-2, 5-8; Pork, July, 17.00; Lard, July 8.85, 87.

ANGLING.

Owing to the excursion of the Benefit Society, the C.G.E. Angling Club will not hold their regular weekly outing this week. On June 13th 30 of the members took in the first trip by the staunch steamer Myrtle to Jubilee Point, and to say they enjoyed it would be putting it mildly. They got home delighted with the afternoon's recreation, after the long winter months, and are looking forward with great expectation to the next, which will take place at an early date. It has been deemed advisable by the anglers to throw in their lot with the benefit society this week, so come along and help to swell the number. Mr. W. W. Swallow, a representative of the Canadian Rand Drill Co., of Sherbrooke, Quebec, was the guest of the club.

COUNTY COUNCIL ENJOYS A SAIL.

Took a Trip Down the River to Inspect Hales' Bridge.

Extensive Improvements Will be Made —Caretakers' Salaries Increased.

Wednesday afternoon the Warden and members of the County Council took a trip down the Otonabee River for the purpose of inspecting Hales' Bridge. This is the iron structure which spans the river from the Otonabee and South Monaghan shores about nine miles from town, and is jointly maintained by the united Counties of Northumberland and Durham and the County of Peterborough. Mr. John Belcher, County Engineer, Mr. Samuel Ferguson, Warden of Northumberland and Durham, and County Commissioner for the Northern Division, and several other interested gentlemen accompanied the deputation.

Mr. R. Roy had kindly placed his pretty steam yacht "Rob Roy" at the disposal of the council, and accordingly, shortly after one o'clock, the party left the King street wharf with Capt. Roy himself at the wheel. The sail down the river proved an interesting and pleasant one to the members of the deputation. The comfortably rigged "Rob Roy" and her speedy performance combined with a delightful condition of weather, contributed to the pleasure of the afternoon's business.

On arriving at Hales' Bridge, the party were met by two other members of the Council of Northumberland and Durham, Messrs. W. T. Donaldson, of Cavan, and Mr. H. H. Walker, of Hope, chairman of the Road and Bridge Committee, who joined in a careful inspection of the bridge. It was found on examination that the middle pier had become cracked, showing a rather serious fracture extending nearly the whole length of this pier. The cope stones which carried the principal weight of the bridge, were split, and would have to be removed. After consultation, the engineer decided to remove the damaged stones at each end of the pier and substitute a steel girder the full length of the pier, which would form a more substantial bearing across the entire width of the bridge. The deputation expressed their approval of the plan and left the work in the hands of Mr. Belcher.

The matter of the salaries received by the caretakers of the Bensfort Bridge and Hales' Bridge was then discussed. Authority had been given the deputation from the Council of Northumberland and Durham to add $10 extra to the salary of Mrs. Smith, the caretaker of the Bensfort bridge, provided Peterborough County Council added another $10. The members of the Peterborough Council willingly voted the necessary $10, and Mrs. Smith's salary was increased from $60 to $80.

This concluded the business of the afternoon. Before leaving, Mr. Roy requested the whole deputation to "line up," and in a few moments he had secured two photographs of the group. The party reached town about 6.30 in the evening.

HON. MR. STRATTON'S EFFECTIVE ADDRESS

Delivered in the Legislature on the Report of the Royal Commission.

VINDICATION OF THE JUDGES' REPORT.

Brief History of the Case From the Beginning of the Gamey Affair—Attitude of the Opposition—Prejudgment of the Case Dealt With—Attacks on Character of the Judges—Base Charges Condemned—Review of Evidence.

The following is an extended report of the speech of Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, in the Ontario Legislature on June 17th-18th, upon the motion to adopt the report of the Royal Commission appointed to investigate what is known as the "Gamey charges." Hon. Mr. Stratton, on rising to speak, was enthusiastically applauded by the members of the Government side of the House. He said:

Mr. Speaker:—In addressing myself to a consideration of the circumstances connected with the resolution now before the House, I must crave the indulgence of the House in being permitted a few personal references, which seem pertinent to the occasion. I have, it will be admitted, been the centre of attention in regard to certain matters for the past ten or twelve weeks. Few men in public life have been placed in a position similar to that in which the events of the 11th of March last placed me. The member for Manitoulin on that occasion made one of the most extraordinary statements ever made on the floor of a Legislative Chamber, extraordinary, not only in the light which subsequent events have thrown upon it, but extraordinary in its audacity of misstatement, and as a structure of malignant fiction, built on harmless fact; extraordinary as a statement prepared with apparent deliberate design, and, as is stated in an article in the Mail and Empire of April 12th, prepared by the member for Manitoulin, "acting on legal advice. It was a statement involving charges, made by the member for Manitoulin on his responsibility as a member of the House — a story which, under one of the most searching, thorough and persistent investigation ever conducted under the highest judicial auspices of this country, was proven to be unfounded in fact, as far as the essential and material character of the charges its language clothed, were or are concerned.

UNHALLOWED REJOICING.

His statement was not only extraordinary in the character of its intention but in the manner of its reception by the member's political friends in the Legislature.

As the speaker dealt out his charges, which, if true were a humiliation to the country, and should, as the honourable member for West York remarked, during a subsequent debate, "cause every honourable member of the House, and every honourable citizen of the province to hang their heads in shame," what was the attitude of his fellow members of the Opposition? Were their heads bowed in sorrow over the revelations of the man from Manitoulin? No. On the contrary their faces were radiant with unholy joy. They seemed to be seized with convulsions of delight. They pounded their desks uproariously. What was the cause of their jubilation? Would it be unfair to suggest that they were delighted with the apparent success of a plot which would destroy the Government and bring the Conservative Opposition to the power they had coveted so long, the power they have in the past attempted to compass by futile plots, base intrigue and all the persuasive effects of corrupting influences. They hailed Mr. Gamey's concocted story as the dawning of a brighter day. No matter how the good credit of the province, the honour of a Minister of the Crown might be tarnished, so long as the base charges of the member for Manitoulin, which seemed to be a stepping stone to power, there was cause for rejoicing. And they did rejoice. In the excitement of their new-born hopes, they figuratively clasped Mr. Gamey to their bosoms, but when the floodlights of investigation were poured upon the scene, when the structure Mr. Gamey had built upon the shifting sand of unsupported statement, was tested, it collapsed like a bubble, and the builder shared the fate of those who fail. The man who was embraced as a hero during the month of March, who was lauded as a self-sacrificing patriot, was dropped in April, dropped into disfavour, and "none so poor to do him reverence."

GAMEY'S EPHEMERAL POPULARITY.

At a banquet given in honour of the member for West York on Friday, March 20th, among the "distinguished Conservatives supporting the chairman were Messrs. J. W. St. John, M.P.P., R. R. Gamey, M.P.P., —reclining on the bosom of the guest of honour—and others."

The Mail and Empire report states:

GAMEY GETS WARM RECEPTION."

"The ovation that Mr. R. R. Gamey, M.P.P. for Manitoulin, received on rising to respond to the toast, 'The Province,' must have warmed the very cockles of his heart. Every one of the two hundred stalwarts present cheered until his throat was sore. They waved napkins, they sang 'For He's a Jolly, Good Fellow,' and they cheered again, and sang, and cheered until Mr. Gamey blushed like a timid girl, and when the man of the hour and finished a brilliant address the enthusiasm broke out afresh. Such a scene was a most striking indication of the admiration the Conservatives of West York feel for the strength of character shown by the member for Manitoulin in his impeachment of the Ontario Government."

Even the member for Manitoulin, with all his faults, had better taste and more fairness than some of his confreres who spoke on that occasion, for he "declined to speak on the matter then being discussed in the House." The transient popularity of the member for Manitoulin is easily accounted for. He was hailed as the Moses that was to lead the Israelites of the Opposition into the Promised Land of Power. It may not be that all the members of the Conservative Opposition had full knowledge of the plot or plan of the member for Manitoulin to entrap the Government and compass its overthrow, but it seems certain that many of the leading lights of the party had sufficient knowledge of the scheme to give it the character of a conspiracy—they took the chief manipulator to their hearts, they submitted the precious documents to eminent counsel. Careful examination of these documents evidently showed that they could not be of service to prove the charges that had been based upon them, and accordingly the leader of the Opposition sought to be relieved of the heavy responsibility he had assumed in accepting the precious bundle of documents delivered to him on March 11th by the member for Manitoulin with so much dramatic display, and with as ostentatious solicitude for their safety as if they had been the title deeds to the Premiership of Ontario, (applause) which, indeed, was the first hope entertained as shown by the portions of the Mail and Empire report of the manner of reception of the fairy tale of the member for Manitoulin:

'Mail and Empire, March 12th, 1903:

"The scene was one dramatic in its intensity. There was a silence as of death in the Chamber, as page after page was turned over by Mr. Gamey, a silence broken only on the Opposition side of the House when each fresh point scored drew forth a round of vigorous applause. . . . . .

"Amid the wild applause of the Conservative members, Mr. Gamey walked with deliberation up the floor of the House, and, passing in front of Mr. Whitney, laid the mass of manuscript and the bundle of bills on his desk.

"I ask the honourable member what he wishes me to do with these documents?" said Mr. Whitney, rising.

"Mr. Gamey answered, 'You can do just what you like, but I think you should not part with them under any circumstances.' And with these words the man from Manitoulin turned and walked back to his place."

WHITNEY'S WILLINGNESS TO PROFIT.

What more conclusive evidence can be asked to show that the leader of the Opposition was willing to cooperate in the success of the plot, to reap all the party advantage possible, up to the time when close examination and analysis of the document by counsel showed the hopelessness of succeeding in the event of impartial and unpartisan investigation. For, on March 16th, these precious papers, which were guarded so jealously a day or two before that Mr. Whitney refused to place them in the custody of the Speaker, were returned to the member for Manitoulin, who, I shall not say stole them out of the House, but stole out of the House with them. (Applause.) to the evident relief of the leader of the Opposition, who in a too trusting moment, had accepted a trusteeship which, upon investigation, threatened to be so embarrassing a charge that he insisted that the responsibility would be placed upon the shoulders of the visible figurehead of the conspiracy. Why this, unless Mr. Whitney having in the meantime learned that the documents upon expert examination would not bear out the statements and charges made, wished to escape the odium of the failure of the plot, which at this early date was foredoomed to the failure that eventually resulted, and he turned the member for Manitoulin over to his legal advisers and to his own devices, which events have shown fully justified his leader's lack of faith. The leader of the Opposition, however, was ready to accept the word of an unknown man, bringing charges against public men, many of them with almost a quarter of a century of useful and upright public life, and to enjoy the fruits of the plotting of his henchman and his paid advisers, but he was careful to avoid the responsibility; and the member for South Toronto assisted him.

The latter combatted the Attorney General's contention that the leader of the Opposition was the trustee for the House of the papers. He even used an argument which implied that the Opposition leader was not a safe trustee of the documents, for he asserted that the member for Manitoulin wanted to go into the box and be sure of producing these papers before the Chief Justices and not depend upon anyone else, not even his leader, to produce them.

MR. WHITNEY'S LOSS OF FAITH.

This practical evidence of the loss of faith on the part of the leader of the Opposition in the value of the story of the member for Manitoulin did not, however, deter him and his followers from making the fullest as well as basest use of it. As an instrument in the hands of the party managers the member for Manitoulin may not have done his work well, yet the occasion was one that must be made use of for political purposes. Though the prosecution of what is known as the Gamey charges did not promise much, yet that prosecution must go on. It must go on for the sake of appearances. And it had to go on for another and more important reason. The Government, seeing the monstrous and malignant nature of the charges, insisted upon immediate, complete and thorough investigation. The Government knew that the charges could not be sustained but they must be investigated. They had been made with daring circumstantiality in the open day on the floor of the House. The charges had been flaunted in the face of the public through the press and with all the distortion and false colouring which a malignant, partizan press, and a section of the yet more malignant independent press, could give them.

PREJUDGING THE MATTER.

Meantime the Conservative party in the House and the Conservative press in the country, and the treacherous independent press were to make the best party use possible of the practically discarded charges which the leader of the Opposition had returned to the member for Manitoulin. The occasion was too good to be lost. The Opposition members might not be able to prove the charges, but they could use the privilege of the House to accept the charges as true, to assert and spread abroad the guilt of the persons charged. No opportunity was omitted to prejudge the case pending its submission to the commission, and while the hearing in connection with the charges was actually going on. Everybody on the Government side was pronounced guilty and deemed on the bare ipse dixit of the member for Manitoulin. What more clearly shows the utter disregard of fair dealing, fair argument and their haste to assume guilt without proof. They sought to prejudge the case and unduly inflame and influence public opinion by rabid denunciation of the members of the Government. With monumental hypocrisy they sought to show an interest in the promotion of political purity by condemning political corruption which did not exist except in the diseased imagination of the tool of the Opposition party managers. The first action of the Government on the presentation of the charges was to provide for immediate and thorough investigation. What was the tactics of the Opposition? To frustrate and delay this course. Three solid weeks were consumed in bringing about a result which could, with amicable concurrance and co-operation, have been accomplished in three days. So anxious was the Opposition to purify politics, so anxious to elicit the truth of the serious charges made, that they must take the fullest opportunity to outrage the principles of British fair play, of British justice, by condemning the accused without trial or hearing, and declaring them guilty. Every means was lawful to them to prejudice the public mind against the Government. And in one sense they were not much to be blamed. That was their only chance to make political capital out of the occasion.

HOLLOWNESS OF CHARGES EVIDENT.

After the first burst of enthusiasm over the pretended revelations of the man from Manitoulin, after a little cool reflection, after a little investigation into the merits of the charges, their proof was seen to be hopeless and when proof was wanting assertion must take its place. An effort must be made and was made to snatch from public opinion a verdict which could not be got from judicial investigation of the charges. That I may not lay myself open to a similar charge I ask permission to submit proof of what I assert. I have referred to the gleeful manner in which the Opposition received the gravest charges ever made on the floor of this House. The leader of the Opposition, speaking on March 13th says, according to the Mail and Empire report:—

OPPOSITION'S BASE CHARGE OF CONSPIRACY.

"The Minister of Public Works can surely have no possible denial to the charge that the honourable member for Manitoulin was being unduly influenced to support the Government.—"

Unabashed by the indignant denial of the Commissioner of Public Works, the honourable gentleman continues in the same strain:—

"I say with all possibe confidence, believing that all reasonable men who listen to me now agree with me on this point, that the people accused by my honourable friend yesterday and who will find it necessary to make their defence before the bar of the people of the Province, include more than the Provincial Secretary, they include three other members of the Government."

The Honourable member for Dundas in continuation accepts as a fact a statement which has since been entirely disproved. Referring to the correspondence in the Gamey charges he says, according to the Globe report:—

"The correspondence, in addition to what I have stated, establishes the fact conclusively that not only was Gamey promised it, but that he exercised the patronage, he did exercise patronage, the first Conservative member that ever did it in the history of this or any other country under a Liberal Government."

On March 17th, the member for West York asserts:—

"There is a strong conviction in the minds of the people of the Province that the trail which leads direct to the door of the Provincial Secretary's office will also be found to lead to other members of the Government."

On March 19th, the member for Centre Bruce said:—

"That the large majority of the people of the Province of Ontario believed that the charges made by the member for Manitoulin against the Provincial Secretary and other members of the Government were absolutely true."

CONSERVATIVE IDEAS OF HONOUR.

Further on in the same speech he said:—

"A deliberate attempt was being made to bring discredit upon Mr. Gamey, but he would tell those who were trying to do so that Mr. Gamey was no worse now than he was three weeks ago, when he had been bought, or rather when they thought he had been. They might not approve of the methods taken by Mr. Gamey, but they were the only ones that could be taken to catch the criminals and were perfectly legitimate."

The honourable member for North Toronto, speaking on March 21st, according to the Mail and Empire report, said:—

"The charge was not one against the Provincial Secretary only. The whole Government stood self-convicted, both by the statement of the Minister of Public Works and the silence of its other members, of trafficking in the honour of members of the House. The crime was not the payment of a sum of money by the Provincial Secretary, it was the crime of the whole Government seeking to buy the support of a member."

And further on in his address he said:—

"The House has seen the extraordinary spectacle of the Premier, with his 30 years of Parliamentary experience, standing in his place and with clenched fist threatening the member for Manitoulin, a new and untried member, that he would be called to account for his statements made on the floor of the House. The people could best decide who should be called to account—the man who had courageously and nobly done his duty, or the cringing, crawling, crawfishing, commission-hunting Government.

OPPOSITION PREJUDGMENT.

But the Opposition members of the House were not the only offenders. The Opposition party press and the treacherous independent press were far greater sinners against the spirit of fair play. Two or three rabid journals of the party class and one or two professed independent journals out-Heroded Herod in the matter of prejudgment. They had me neatly hanged, drawn and quartered. They had the members of the Government in irons before a word of evidence was presented, and every day all through the investigation the reports printed and the prejudiced headings given them, the editorial remarks often violent, always asserted more or less directly and insidiously the guilt of the accused Minister and of the Government as a whole. To judge by the foul insinuations and unfair deductions and direct statements of these journals, repeated from day to day, it was clear that the accusations of Mr. Gamey were regarded in advance as true and that they felt that "the man from Manitoilin" would not only overthrow the Ross Government, but emerge from the investigation, not only a hero but with the halo of sainthood surrounding and illuminating the brows of the patriot and saint. The Mail and Empire, the chief Conservative organ, was a conspicuous offender. In its issue of March 12th, it put forth Mr. Gamey's statement with the sensational headlines, "THE ROSS GOVERNMENT TRAPPED," and introduced its "disclosure" with the following bombastic paragraph:—

"Had a second Mount Pelee burst beneath the Government benches in the Ontario Legislature yesterday the physical devastation it would have caused would be a fitting comparison for the mental consternation wrought in the Government's ranks by the astounding revelations made by R. R. Gamey, M. P.P., for Manitoulin Island. The shattering crash of a death-dealing thunderbolt from a smiling and cloudless summer sky could not be more startlingly unexpected than the amazing disclosures which awed members and spectators alike with a realization of the depth of corruption which had been reached by a party resolved upon maintaining its grip upon office, no matter by what desperate means."

MAIL'S ATTEMPT TO PERVERT PUBLIC MIND.

Then we have all through its reports of the proceedings in the House commenting headlines, prejudging the Government's course and action: "Commissioners are Named, Enquiry to be Restricted." Chancellor Boyd and Chief Justice Falconbridge to Investigate Charges." "Will be Hampered by Instructions—Liberal Members slow to Support Government's Stand." Another day the headlines declare:—"Commission's Terms Violate Statute"—"Government Seeking Methods to Escape." And another day:—"Government Climbs Down—Admits Gross Deception (which it did not admit)—Trying to Cover up Conspiracy Charge." Then another day:—"Accused Cabinet Muzzle the House—Government Refuses to widen scope of Commission" (which as a matter of fact it did not do.) And still another:—"Seeking to Escape Through Ambiguity—Government Trying to Evade Conspiracy Charge." (As a matter of fact the conspiracy charge, as it was called, was embraced in the terms of the Commission.) It would be impracticable to enter into details of the manner in which the organ sought to colour the case while it was under investigation. It would involve reading a good part of nearly every issue during the course of the investigation.

CULMINATES IN CONTEMPT OF COURT.

It is well known to all who read this journal that it was a most persistent and constant offender, and continued till its offence culminated in an especially offensive article on April 24th, which procured the proprietors the honour of being summoned before the Commissioners to answer a charge of contempt of Court and be put upon their good behaviour in future. This article, which was printed separately from the report of the proceedings of the investigation, was plainly a gratuitous attempt to spread throughout the country as established facts the idea of my connection with the alleged bribery funds. This outrageous article was embellished with such headings as these:—"Startling Discoveries Made by Lawyers in Gamey Case." "Ontario Bank Cashed $3,000 Cheque, Two Days Before Date on Which Gamey was Bribed." "Cheque was Drawn by Trust Company." "Fact that Stratton was President of that Corporation Awakens Expectations of surprising Developments."

ABSURD INSINUATIONS DISPROVED.

To show the utter unfairness of these commenting headlines we all know that investigation disclosed the fact that the cheque in question was used in the course of a perfectly legitimate business transaction, and had no more to do with the alleged bribery fund than had the spirit of the member for Manitoulin in making his charges, the spirit of the prosecution in the Mail and Empire newspaper, to do with the spirit of truth and righteousness and the spirit of British fair play. In the body of the article the same innuendo is contained as in the headlines. For instance:—

"It was found on September 9th, one day before Mr. Gamey signed the letter to the Premier in Mr. Aylesworth's office, and two days before the date on which he says $3,000 in Ontario Bank bills were divided between himself and Frank Sullivan, a cash payment of $3,000 was made by cheque. Reference to the Supplementary Cash Book showed that the cheque was one drawn by the Trusts and Guarantee Company, of 14 King street West, Toronto, a financial institution of which Hon. James Robert Stratton is President."

These unfair insinuations are printed in black letter type, a fitting type of the black character of the defamatory comments.

The Toronto World had a similar article, and was similarly dealt with on its own account.

The senior Conservative organ took its cue from its masters, and it can be credited with serving its masters well. It followed in its columns the course of the Opposition in its disposition in prejudging the case, and pronouncing condemnation in advance.

ALSO AN OLD OFFENDER.

In work like this the organ is an adept. It has long practiced the role of trying to destroy and dethrone opponents whom the people honoured with their confidence. I might quote examples of the attacks made by the Mail on the late Sir Oliver Mowat, when he was premier of this province. It is not pleasant, but is instructive reading, to show the spirit in which the organ did the work of its political masters.

Here Mr. Stratton read extracts from the Mail of former dates, as a sample of vituperation, with the suggestion that was easily possible that from the same fount the leader of the Opposition drew his apparently unlimited supply of robust invective. The extracts quoted consisted of virulent attacks on the late Sir Oliver Mowat when he was in active public life, attributing to him, not only political but personally corrupt actions and motives. In comment on these extracts, Mr. Stratton, continuing, said:

To illustrate that the violence of such attacks is intended to remove political leaders from the path to preferment of an aspiring Opposition, to show the insincerity of such attacks, which are always invariably made upon such men when they are dangerous, when they stand in the way, let me quote an eulogy or two on Sir Oliver after he passed away. Read the following from the Mail of April 20th, and contrast it with the slang-whanging attacks of 1884. The article describes Sir Oliver as:

"A solid and safe man, free from extreme tendencies and exceedingly cautious in his legislation."

In his lifetime one of the cries against him was his hasty and ill-advised legislation.

Another article describes him in the following manner:

"Sir Oliver Mowat was a great party leader and a great public man, and he was also a good man, with all that those two words implied, and it was due to that, that he occupied at the time of his death the position that he did in the estimation of the people who knew him best."

The late Hon. Mr. Hardy had been, perhaps, the best abused man in Provincial politics. When he had passed away he was eulogized by those who condemned him most. Unscrupulous charges were made, with no attempt to prove them, only to be practically withdrawn after death came.

HOW CHARGES WERE RECEIVED AND MET.

I have referred to the extraordinary manner with which the extraordinary statement of the member for Manitoulin on March 11th, was received by the members of the Opposition. It is fitting that I should also refer to the way in which such a statement was received upon this side of the House. It was received with intense astonishment by myself, by my colleagues who were mentioned, for they had, like myself, the consciousness and personal knowledge that the crude concoction called, in the first burst of enthusiasm by some of the admirers of the member for Manitoulin, an impeachment, was as false as it was possible for any statement to be. As to myself I fully recognized the serious character of the statement, and the situation it created, though I felt certain—from the certainty of knowledge—that the material assertions of the statement as affecting my honour and conduct, either as a member or a man, could not be sustained by any credible proof or testimony. But, at the same time, such a statement made upon the floor of the Legislature, fully reported, as I knew it would be, and sent broadcast in the press throughout the province, would have its damaging influence, before denial or disproof could reach the same quarters. I knew from the attitude of the Opposition, while the disgraceful and defamatory calumny was being related, that the story would be received with a certain degree of credence, especially amongst the large class easily open to the reception of political prejudices.

TRUTH OF CHARGES NEVER ENTERTAINED.

For my own part, hardly had the echoes of the slanders of the man from Manitoulin ceased to be heard in these walls, when I communicated my emphatic denial of the correctness of his charges to my leader, the Premier. That was the first step in clearing my character of the foul aspersion that had been cast upon it. At the moment it was all that I could do, and that was hardly necessary, so far as my colleagues, my fellow members on this side of the House, and those who knew me best in my own riding, were concerned, for they would never entertain a moment's belief of such a charge, without the most direct and convincing proof.

And here I may be permitted to bear testimony to the fact that no man, in the face of such an accusation, and under the circumstances, in which the astounding story of the man from Manitoulin placed me, ever received such cordial and loyal evidence of confidence, support and encouragement as was accorded by my chief, my colleagues, and my Liberal friends, and, I am bound to say, some of my Conservative friends, both in and out of this House.

GRATIFYING EVIDENCES OF CONFIDENCE.

My word that I had done nothing in the connection in question, but what was constitutional and legitimate, was instantly accepted without the shadow of doubt or incredulity. I may confidently add that I had done nothing that was under the circumstances even injudicious. I am violating no confidence when I say that the late honoured and lamented Lieutenant-Governor, to whom I felt it my duty to tender an explanation, accepted it without hesitation or qualification.

Nor am I violating any confidence in saying that my denial of the charges made to the Premier was not unaccompanied by the suggestion, or rather demand, on my part, that an immediate and thorough investigation of the charges, was due to my impeached honour. And his instant compliance and immediate announcement that such an investigation should be made, was as large a cause for gratitude on my part as his assurance of his confidence expressed in the belief that, so far as he was concerned, no investigation was necessary. But I felt how necessary, how inevitable, it was. I stood that day charged — malignantly and maliciously and malignantly charged—which, if I had committed them, imperilled my honour as a Cabinet Minister, as a member of this House,

RECORD OF A LIFETIME CLEAN.

In my home in Peterborough, where I have passed practically all my life, and have been nearly a quarter of a century in business relations with its citizens, and also nearly a score of years in public life, I have done nothing to forfeit the respect and confidence of any citizen, of any class, or of any political faith. Under such circumstances I felt that my attacked honour must be vindicated. As a public man and as a newspaper man, I appreciated the sensitive character of public opinion. Knowing that the statement of the member for Manitoulin would be in the hands of the people of the province the next day, I welcomed the opportunity afforded of giving on the evening of the 11th of March, an interview, touching the circumstance, to the Globe and Mail and Empire newspapers, which appeared the same day in which the statement of the member for Manitoulin appeared. From my own point of view the importance of that interview does not consist in its merely being a substantial denial of the charges made. It consists in the circumstance that the simple recital of the real facts it contains have been literally borne out by the results of the searching and thorough judicial investigation recently closed. On this account I may be pardoned a little more particular reference to that interview. With your permission, Mr. Speaker, I will read it:—

"Mr Gamey came to my office in the Parliament Buildings on three or four occasions. On one occasion Mr. Gamey spoke to me in reference to the appointment of a justice of the peace in Manitoulin, and I suggested that if he (Mr. Gamey) had any recommendations to make, he should forward it in writing to the Attorney-General, who has charge of such appointments, but who was at that time out of the city.

"On the occasion of another of Mr. Gamey's visits, he came to see about some road grants which he desired for certain roads in Manitoulin. I told him he had better send his application in writing in the usual way to the Department of Public Works, which has charge of colonization road matters.

"On another occasion Mr. Gamey came to be complaining of the bad enforcement of the license law in Manitoulin. He asserted that hotel keepers were not observing the law, and that the Inspector was absent from his official duty a great deal, attending to his private affairs. Mr. Gamey asked for the appointment of an inspector, but his request was not acted upon, and he also asked to be allowed to name one of the License Commissioners, who were to be appointed for the new license district, resulting from the sub-division of the district into constituencies.

"Mr. Gamey also spoke of his intention of supporting the Government — that he had no use for Mr. Whitney—his mining policy was bad, and he was not in favour of giving any encouragement to the development of New Ontario. He believed the Liberal policy would be best for the improvement of the northern country, and that he felt that the interests of his constituents would be best served by his supporting the Government. I told him that if that was the case, he had better declare his intention. The Government would in that event consider his recommendations, as they would do in the case of their other supporters.

"I never saw Mr. Gamey in any ca-

GOURLAY FOR EVER!

The Fire-Eater From Nova Scotia Makes a Speech.

SLOW PROGRESS OF CANADA

Cheers and Interjections From Both Sides of the House Greeted the Doughty Blue Nose Member For Colchester —Favors Subsidies For Railways and Plenty of Them—C.N.R. Guarantee.

Ottawa, June 19.—In the House yesterday, Mr. Fowler of King's asked for information concerning demurrage on cars loading and unloading at Intercolonial stations. Mr. Blair replied that the statistics were too voluminous to give any reply to the question.

In reply to Mr. Folwer, Hon. Sydney Fisher said he had no knowledge of J. T. Schell, M.P. for Glengarry, being a partner in McPherson & Schell, who sold the Government goods to the extent of $5.50.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier announced that he would inform the House as to the Yukon Commission on Monday.

Gourlay For Ever!

The House proceeded to consider the resolutions guaranteeing the bonds of the Canadian Northern Railway to the extent of $9,500,000.

Mr. Seymour Gourlay of Colchester now made the speech of the day. He had not proceeded far in the discussion of the resolutions, when he made the startling statement that Canada is no more developed in this year 1903 than it was on the day that Jacques Chatier came here. For this backward condition of the country he blamed Ontario. He promised to forgive Ontario, however, if she would now help to carry Canada on her glorious destiny.

"We possess the most dominant portion of the continent," declared Mr. Gourlay. "We will command the military and political power of the continent, but we must play the game of men, not children."

This declaration provoked an outburst of applause that continued at frequent intervals during the hour or more that Mr. Gourlay had the floor. Government followers were as demonstrative as the Opposition.

"Yes," pursued Mr. Gourlay, "If Jacques Cartier came here to-day, he would be ashamed of the country. If the Indian chiefs came back, they would have small respect for the white men. The country is as poorly developed as when the Indians sang their war songs on the banks of the ocean."

Mr. Gourlay went on to picture the unpierced wilderness of the country in the reign of Hudson Bay.

"Does the hon. gentleman mean the Canadian Sea?" asked Mr. Lemieux of Gaspe.

Mr. Gourlay admitted that he did, and went on to lament the tendency of Ontario to oppose subsidies to railways. He said he did not know who on earth edited the papers in that Province. The trouble was that, while Canada had had good domestic leaders, she had no national leaders. He recalled a Fourth of July celebration in Western Illinois, where the speaker of the day referred to a local hill as a rival of the great Alps, and a glancing stream, the peer of the Majestic Rhine. He taught the people that they were the greatest on the face of the earth.

"I give the Americans credit for that spirit," said Mr. Gourlay, "even while detesting their very existence.

He proposed to devote the next few years to showing that the only country worth living in is under the Red Cross of the flag of England. Give Canada a proper policy and the population of the earth would come pouring in.

"Sir John Macdonald and Sir Charles Tupper were the greatest men Canada produced," said Mr. Gourlay, "They were sent by God, as God sent the prophets," he said, "and they were treated by the Liberal party as John the Baptist was treated."

A guarantee of bonds did not please Mr. Gourlay as a lump cash subsidy would. He would not quibble over millions. He would give the country railways and spend liberally to procure them. With a transcontinental railway through our Northwest we could retire from invasion.

"No, no," came from several members, and cries of "Never, never!" "To the trenches!"

Mr. Gourlay vigorously denounced the Grand Trunk for building up Portland. Every man in Canada ought to be whipped for allowing it. He would give the Grand Trunk two years to tear up its Portland terminals.

C.N.R. Way Cost.

Mr. Blair stated that the road from Grandview to Edmonton would cost $18,301 a mile, and the Prince Albert branch of 100 miles $18,856, including the cost of equipment. The guarantee in each case is $13,000 a mile. The rolling stock will cost $800,000.

The Amalgamation Clause.

Dr. Roche of Marquette took up the clause which provides that the Canadian Northern may not amalgamate or lease any portions of its lines to the C.P.R. This restriction, he said, should not apply only to the C. P. R., but to every other railway. The west is anxious that the trunk lines should remain independent of each other.

The Minister of Railways informed Mr. Haggart that the extent and population of the Saskatchewan demanded three roads. There is to be one on each side of the Saskatchewan River. The country is well able to sustain all the projected lines.

Replying to Dr. Roche, Mr. Blair said that there was no second transcontinental road in existence now. There might never be a Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, and it would be absurd to stipulate that the Canadian Northern should not amalgamate with a mythical railway. Amalgamation of the C.P.R. with the Canadian Northern would be most prejudicial. In an amalgamation of the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern he was unable to see danger to the public interests.

Mr. Borden said he could not see why it would be against the national interests for the Canadian Northern to amalgamate with the C. P. R. and not with the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Mr. Blair replied that the absorption of the Canadian Northern by the Grand Trunk Pacific would still leave two great competing transcontinental roads.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said the object was to retain competition and amalgamation of the two existing railway corporations would defeat that object. The Grand Trunk Pacific was not yet an entity, and there would be no object in broadening the provision to include a projected line.

Mr. Borden said the Grand Trunk Pacific would soon have a charter, and then it would have an entity. A provision should be inserted either in this contract or in the Grand Trunk Pacific bill. The Minister of Railways had practically announced that the Canadian Northern would be a part of the Grand Trunk's transcontinental system.

Mr. Blair said that he had made no such announcement, and his statement simply had reference to reports published in the press.

The House spent the evening session in discussion of the estimates of the Marine and Fisheries Department.

purchasing supplies without tender was made, and energetically pressed. Appropriations amounting to $55,000 were held up, pending more satisfactory explanations by the Minister.

The supplementary estimates, amounting to $5,090,968 were laid on the table.

Redistribution Committee.

Ottawa, June 19.—The Redistribution Committee sat again last night, and disposed of all the provinces except Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba. It was decided that King's and Albert, in New Brunswick, be formed into one constituency. The Northwest Territories were then taken up. Alberta, it was arranged, should have four constituencies, and Assiniboia three.

The Marconi Bill.

Ottawa, June 19.—The Commons Railway Committee yesterday reported bills to incorporate the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company, and respecting the Manitoulin and North Shore Railway.

CALLED SUDDENLY.

Mr. T. H. Macpherson, of Hamilton, Dies on C.P.R. Steamer.

Hamilton, Jnne 19.—The news of T. H. Macpherson's death on a C.P.R, boat nearing Owen Sound reached here yesterday morning, and was a shock to his friends, for, although he had been in poor health for some time, his death was not looked for. He had left Hamilton a few days ago to meet his brother, Malcolm, who was coming from New Zealand. His brother was with him at the time of death. The dead man was 61 years of age, and was a member of the wholesale grocery firm of Macpherson, Glassco & Co. He is survived by Misses Emily, Jean, Christine and Elsie. It appears that he retired to his berth on the C.P.R. steamer Manitoba Wednesday night in his usual health and was found dead this morning. The deceased was a prominent Liberal, and with the late Hon. A. T. Wood, was elected to the Dominion Parliament in 1896, retiring from public life at the end of his term.

BLOWN TO PIECES.

Fourteen Men Victims of Explosion at Lyddite Factory at Woolwich.

London, June 19.—Fourteen men were killed and thirteen injured by on explosion in the lyddite factory at the Woolwich Arsenal yesterday morning. Several of the victims were literally blown to pieces. The building was completely wrecked. The roof was blown off and the interior collapsed. The explosion is attributed to the bursting of a shell.

Six additional men are missing, and it is believed they were blown to atoms. The remains of the victims were collected in buckets.

Burned to Death.

Toronto Junction, June 19.—The two-year-old daughter of Mr. Hube, while playing in the back yard, ran on to the smoldering embers of rubbish heap, which ignited her clothing. Before her mother discovered her, the flames had severely burned her body, and, although immediate remedies were applied, the infant died last evening.

Killed by a Fall.

Galt, June 19.—Adam Hauck of New Germany was thrown from his rig yesterday, and died within ten minutes.

News too Good to Keep.

Persons who have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are usually so well pleased with the benefits derived that they tell the good news to their neighbours. There is no medicine which so promptly awakens the action of the liver, invigorates the kidneys and regulates the bowels as Dr. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and for this reason they are unapproched as a family medicine. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers.

The Only Thing They Ever Did.

John Bright's powers of sarcasm were almost unrivaled. Some of his sharpest utterances have been against members of the nobility. When boasts had been made of the antiquity of a prominent family, that their ancestors came over with the Conqueror, his reply was prompt, "I never heard that they did anything else."

IN BUSH AT OSPREY

Two Glory Whalen Suspects Hunted by the Police.

ARE ARMED TO THE TEETH.

Posse of Twenty-Three Armed Men Started This Morning at Four O'clock to Capture, If Possible, Two Men Supposed to Be the Murderers and Alleged to Be Hidden in the Bush.

Collingwood, June 19.—Interest in the capture of the murderers of Glory Whalen was at a white heat last night, and an armed posse of police expects shortly to surround two suspects and lodge them in safe keeping.

Repeated reports have lately come to town of there being secreted in the bush on the 10th line of Osprey, in the County of Grey, a negro and a white man, who subsisted by stealing chickens, ducks and geese from the neighbors in the vicinity.

These two persons are supposed to be the perpetrators of the murder of Glory Whalen, in the vicinity of Collingwood.

Lawyer A. A. Bond, Chief Wilde and Night Policeman Best have left for the locality in which the men are supposed to be.

It is their intention to swear in twenty special constables and surround the bush where these men are, at 4 o'clock this morning, and thus effect their arrest.

All the constables will be heavily armed, so as to meet all emergencies, as these men, if they are the murderers wanted, must be desperate characters.

One in Four Persons.

One person in every four suffers more or less from itching piles. Some do not know the nature of their ailment and others have not heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment as the only absolute and guaranteed cure for this distressing disease. If you are a sufferer ask your neighbours about this great preparatio. It has grown popular as a result of the news of its merits being passed from friend to friend.

What The People Have Found Out.

When Malta-Vita was first brought out, a laboring man was heard to say, "It tastes good and I like it but I want something substantial. I don't mind if I do feel a lump in my stomach after a meal, I must have something solid that will help me to lift big stones and that will put steam behind my hammer," But—there's always a "but"—experience has shown the fallacy of his first conclusion and to-day thousands of laboring men find that Malta-Vita, eaten twice a day, gives abundant strength for the heaviest work.

The office man said—"I think that I must eat meat to give me life. I have to think quickly and my brain must be alert. Meat, I believe, will give a man stamina and grit. I know I feel heavy and sleepy after my meals but"—that but again—"that wears off after a while." After eating Malta-Vita for breakfast and supper for a week, he said to his wife, "Do you know, I find I feel brighter and can do more work on Malta-Vita than I can when eating anything else."

Malta-Vita contains all the food properties of wheat, combined with the tonic and digestive qualities of barley malt. It is palatable and nourishes both body and brain.

No work, no heat, just cream—then eat.

Another White Deer.

Alfred Fowler, of Cambray, secured last November a beautiful white deer, very little of the normal colour, however, remaining upon it. It was mounted by Mr. Elcome and is now in the Simpson House, Lindsay. Mr. Fowler had a photo of it taken by Mr. Lendrum, Charlotte street, and it can be seen in his window on Saturday. This is the 2nd white deer mounted by Mr. Elcome, the one mounted in 1901 was sold to the Natural History Museum of New York City.

Moonlight a Success.

The first moonlight excursion given by the Trent Valley Canoe Club last evening was a complete success. About one hundred were on board the steamer as she pulled out from the dock and everyone had an enjoyable evening. There was abundant music on the boat which added materially to the pleasure of the evening. The success with which this first venture has been met has encouraged the management to arrange for a series of similar events of this nature, the next one will take place next month. Any who hold tickets which have been unused may use them in the coming events.

DECORATION DAY WAS OBSERVED.

I. O. O. F. Decorate Grave of Departed Members.

Some Interesting and Eloquent Addresses Were Delivered—Band in Attendance.

Yesterday afternoon the members of Peterborough Lodge, No. 111, and Otonabee Lodge, No. 13, Independent Order of Foresters, fulfilled their customary and annual ceremony, the decorating of the graves of their departed brethren, whose mortal remains alone are laid beneath the sacred soil of the Little Lake Cemetery.

Some sixty members of the two Lodges turned out, and were accompanied by the band of the 57th Regiment.

After the graves had all been decorated a number of eloquent and appropriate speeches were made by clergymen and members of the Order. Past District Deputy Bro. M. W. Matchett acted as chairman on the oratorical platform.

Past Grand Master, J. W. Miller, was the first to address those present. He commenced his excellent speech by remarking that his discourse would be a very short one, as the sky looked threatening. He expressed his gratitude to all for coming down to honour their departed friends and relations, and said he was pleased beyond measure to see such a very large number of persons, outside the members of the two lodges, present. After mentioning the solemnity of the occasion and remarking on the uncertainty of life, the speaker exhorted all present to endeavour to live exemplary lives, so that those who came after could decorate their graves, meanwhile saying "he was a good and trusty citizen."

Bro. M. W. Matchett then called upon Rev. Mr. Kilgour to address the meeting.

This reverend gentleman's address was very short, but, it must be said, none the less effective. The speaker asked all to try and make peace with God. He said that all power had been given into the hand of our Saviour and implored all to accept His mercy so that when the body sinks the soul may rise to Him, who alone can save.

The next speaker was Rev. J. C. Davidson, Rector of St. John's church, who delivered an exceptionally eloquent address. After speaking of the very great pleasure it gave him to address such a large number of persons on such a solemn occasion, Rev. Mr. Davidson said that Peterborough was indeed under an obligation to the Order of Oddfellows for the ceremony, which not only afforded an opportunity to visit the exceptionally beautiful cemetery, but also to note the fraternal spirit which existed between the churches of different denominations. The speaker in the course of his remarks said that now days religion unfortunately tended as much to divide as it did to unite. He said it divided men and women with warm hearts for the fellow creatures of a parallel disposition, and, that this was an occasion when a unity should be made. Rev. Mr. Davidson then directed his remarks to the graves which the Oddfellows had previously decorated. He said that their souls and persons were not dead but were merely gone before to the bright Paradise of God, and that none of those present knew how far or near we were from that Paradise. In conclusion the Rector again remarked that it gave him very great pleasure in congratulating the Oddfellows in giving an opportunity for all to congregate together under such inspiring circumstances.

Rev. Mr. Thompson, of Mark street church, Ashburnham, was the next speaker. He said that on being present at the ceremony he felt greatly moved. He took up Rev. Mr. Davidson's remarks about the seeming division in the church of God, and said that the churches were all working towards one Lord, one creed and one baptism, which he felt assured would one day be realized and the last enemy crushed. He finally remarked that it was the duty of every one to try and destroy the works of the devil and to endeavour to shut their eyes to that which they did not think to be right.

Rev. J. G. Potter, pastor of St. Andrew's church, who was the next clergyman to speak, expressed the great pleasure it gave him at being present not only as a citizen but as a member of the Order. He said that he felt certain there were many present who had deep feelings and sacred memories for their friends who had been called away from this world; friends with whom they were present during periods of difficulty, tribulation and sickness and dying hours. The speaker then showed how a flower in many ways resembled a human life. He said that we all faded in character as the flower faded in beauty, after it had been plucked, and remarked that none of us knew what would happen on the morrow, and when we should be plucked. He said as the flower was of use to others, so should we make our lives a benefit to our fellow beings. The speaker called upon his listeners to exist in this world in order to bless and give fragrance to others. Rev. Mr. Potter said that we owed much to the Oddfellows for having one day to unite and meet together to do one act of reverence to our departed brethren.

Bro. M. W. Matchett, P.D.D., then called upon the pastor of the Charlotte street church to speak. In the course of his address Rev. W. J. Jolliffe remarked on the decorating of the graves of the dead. He said that the flowers which are put there may perish but that the spirit will not die. He finally called upon those present to let their lives be as fragrant and beautiful as the flowers.

The next speaker was Rev. W. L. Armitage of All Saints' church, who commenced by expressing his appreciation of having the opportunity, which he attributed to the Order, of visiting the cemetery, which, he stated, brought back many memories of the past. The speaker remarked that it was possible that they did not always come to the cemetery in as happy a mood as they did to-day. He knew many had deeply felt the solemnity of the occasion, for he had seen tears in the eyes of numbers, and remarked that many would be greatly indebted to the Order of Oddfellows for giving them an opportunity to fulfil another token of remembrance towards their dead brethren. In conclusion the speaker said that it was meet for all to look to their own lives in order that when it was time for them to be called away they might be honoured in the same manner as they were honouring those who had gone before.

Bro. Matchett then remarked that Rev. J. P. Wilson, who was on the platform would not speak, as he was indisposed. On behalf of the Oddfellows he thanked all the speakers for their very pleasing and eloquent remarks.

The ceremony was brought to a close by the band playing "In the Sweet Bye and Bye."

A VERY UNFORTUNATE DROWNING ACCIDENT

Occurred This Afternoon in the Little Lake.

Mr. Innes Hamilton Supposed to Have Been Seen to go Under Three Times—Story of One Who Viewed the Accident.

A sad and most unfortunate canoeing fatality occurred about twenty minutes to three o'clock this afternoon, in the east portion of the Little Lake, as a result of which it is supposed that Mr. Innes Hamilton, son of Mr. Peter Hamilton, town, was drowned.

An Examiner representative, who on learning the news was quickly on the scene in a canoe, interviewed Mr. Howard Bennett, of Mark street, Ashburnham, who made the following statement: "I was at my home at about a quarter to three, when I was informed that a man was drowning in the lake. I got into a boat and saw a young man clinging to the side of an overturned canoe. I whistled and shouted to him, and he called out 'Help!' three times. As I was rowing out the canoe turned over, and he let go. I whistled but he did not seem to hear me. He went down twice. He seemed to hear me and looked round, but although he looked straight at me he went on swiming towards the shore. I saw him go down the third time and did not see the body again. I ran to Mr. A. E. Peck's residence and telephoned Coroner Dr. Gray, who was soon on the scene. The boy had two sails up and a trawling line out also. His coat, hat and two sails were found about 300 yards out from where the canoe was discovered upturned.

On receipt of the news a number of friends and relations of the drowned young man obtained canoes and paddled to the scene of the accident where they tried to recover the body by aid of trawling lines.

The only explanation which can be given is that in some manner the sail must have upset the canoe.

It is stated that the unfortunate young fellow could not swim at all. There can be no possible doubt but that the young man has met a most unfortunate and untimely death. He is the youngest son of Mr. Peter Hamilton, and is about twenty years of age.

Of course there is no certainty as to whether it was Mr. Innes Hamilton whom Mr. Bennet saw; that can only be surmised, but it was known that he went out sailing and it was his canoe which was found. It will be superfluous to say that all Peterborough will be very deeply grieved, besides being shocked in the extreme to hear of the sudden ending of such a youthful and bright life.

A DISCUSSION ON MISSION TOPICS.

Baptist Association Takes Active Interest in Mission Work.

Reports of Different Departments—Officers Appointed for Coming Year.

Yesterday morning's session opened at 9 o'clock with devotional exercises by Rev. O. Kelly, Indian River. Then followed the introduction of new pastors of which there were eight,—Revs. Trotter, Robinson, McKinnon, Killy, Leavitt, Cook, Brace and Quarington.

The Moderator's address was then given by Rev. J. F. Marshall.

The clerk read the Church statistics which showed that there had been an increase of membership of 59. The churches had expended during the year $14,718.01 as compared with $18,834.48 in 1902.

19 churches gave to Home Missions 15 to Foreign Missions and the same number to the Grand-Ligne Mission. A very profitable discussion was then indulged in on the facts brought out in the above report.

The following additional delegates registered:—Mrs. W. C. Barrie, Mrs. Pilling, Peterborough; Miss S. T. Hatch, India; M. A. Nurse, Bailliieboro; Miss Nichols, Bailliieboro; Mrs. J. C. Barnard, Miss Nichols, Mrs. W. Montgomery, Peterborough; Miss E. Darling, Gilmon Memorial; Mrs. E. J. Hunter, Peterborough; Mrs. Post, Brighton; Thos. Mann, G. W. Mann, Gilmon Memorial; Emily Miller, Peterborough; W. P. Hinman, Haldimond; J. E. Hawkins, Norwood; R. W. Killy, Bailliieboro; Jos. Riggs, Belleville; Rev. L. McKinnon, Gilmon Memorial; Major Albert Caswell, Belleville; Elfe McGregor, Peterborough; A. A. Kelly, W. H. Barland, Indian River; W. C. Barret, Peterborough; Robt. Darling, Gilmon Memorial; J. E. Brown, W. E. Norton, Toronto; H. Hume, Port Hope; Miss Ella Hidd, Warsaw; Geo. E. Peary, Cobourg; Rev. W. E. Orton, Mrs. Orton, Campbellford; Isaac Puffer, Norwood; Rev. R. Wallace, Belleville; W. Barton, Colborne; W. J. Huston, Cobourg; H. G. Nisbett, Indian River; John W. Rarabeck, Dummer; Jas. Duff, Indian River; W. Quarrington, W. Gordon, Lakefield; W. Graham, Gilmon Memorial; Jas. Raddon, Norwood; Mrs. F. E. Hunt, A. A. Scott, Mrs. Scott, Park Street, Peterborough; E. Bosworth, Grand-Linge Mission.

As they progress, the meetings of the Baptist Association now being held in the Murray street Baptist church, grow in interest. Yesterday afternoon a most instructive service was held, a large number being present. Pastor Cook, of Havelock, conducted the devotional services, after which Rev. R. W. Kelly, Bailliieboro, gave the expository address, his theme being "The Sovereignty of Christ," showing that a great deal of prophecy had already been fulfilled and that eventually all would be verified in the coming of Christ, when He would assume the sceptre and be crowned King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

The report of the Nominating Committee was then received. The following will be the officers for the coming year:

Moderator — Rev. J. E. Trotter, Port Hope.
Clerk and Treasurer — Rev. O. C. Elliott, Belleville.
Home Mission Secretary — Rev. O. C. Elliott.
Foreign Mission Secretary — Rev. Robert Wallace, Belleville.
Grande-Ligne Mission Secretary — Rev. W. E. Orton, Campbellford.
Manitoba and North-west Secretary — Rev. L. McKinnon.
Secretary B. Y. P. U.—Mr. W. J. Huston, Cobourg.
Educational Society Representative —Rev. J. E. Hawkings.
Superannuated Ministers' Society—Rev. R. W. Kelly.

The annual sermon was then preached by Rev. J. E. Trotter, of Port Hope. His subject was "The Bulwarks of Zion." He enumerated some of the strong factors in the upbuilding of the church, and the sermon throughout was one of great power and delivered with an earnestness which had a decided effect on the members of the association.

The different Associational Secretaries then presented their reports. That of the Home Missions was given by Rev. O. C. Elliott, and showed that all the churches in the district, exxcept one, had contributed to this cause, the amount given being $820.23, which was considered a good record, when it is remembered that this is in addition to that given to all other branches of church work.

Rev. W. E. Norton spoke in complimentary terms of the deep interest taken in all the churches in this missionary work and made special mention of the Picton church in this respect.

Rev. R. Wallace gave the report of the Foreign Mission Branch, stating that 16 churches had given $843. In all this district there was not a church which did not willingly give to the Foreign Mission cause. An encouraging feature of the work is the fact that while last year this district received from the Home Missionary Board $1,400, for churches which were not yet self-supporting, this year only $1,000 will be required, as two of those which received aid last year, have become able to sustain themselves.

Mr. L. B. Randall, of Port Hope, reported that there had been given to Missions in Manitoba and the Northwest last year only $213.75. This had all been contibuted by 9 churches, and 12 churches had not given anything to this fund. He though more could be done and pleaded for an increased interest in this important branch of the work. In reference to the Grand Ligne Mission, the clerk reported that $320.88 had been given for its support and it was pointed out that of this, $221 had come from one church, the others contributing but litte.

Rev. Mr. Scott, who has been elected to the missionary work was then introduced to the Association by the Moderator, and made a short address in reference to his work.

The last business transacted in the afternoon session was that of deciding where the next annual meeting will be held. An invitation was received from Belleville, and it was unanimously accepted.

EVENING MEETING.

The meeting which commenced at 7.30 by a song service which Rev. W. Quarrington conducted, was one of particular interest. As was also the case with all the former sessions a large portion of the meeting was occupied with considering the missionary question. The devotional exercises were led by Rev. W. E. Norton, after which a most inspiring address was given by Miss S. I. Hatch, who spoke most enthusiastically of Foreign Missions, in which she is especially interested, as she has been in the work in India.

Miss Ivah Fisher, of Peterborough followed with one of the best addresses given during the Convention. Her subject was "Loyalty to the Pledge," and in it the importance and helpfulness of a pledge were emphasized. This address was listened to with the greatest interest.

Following this was another missionary address, by Rev. W. E. Norton of Toronto, who spoke on "Home Missions." This session lasted until abot 11 o'clock. The missionary subject seems to be one which produces wonderful enthusiasm. This is evident by the fact that the different addresses on this theme were all eagerly listened to.

PRESENTATION MADE TO REV. C. L. THOMPSON.

Members of Congregation Present their Pastor With a Purse of Gold.

The members of the Methodist church in Ashburnham, of which Rev. C. L. Thompson has been pastor for three years, gathered at the home of Mrs. W. Wand on Lake street, last night to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, and their family, who are removing to Foxboro. Mr. Thompson has proven a most faithful pastor, and during his stay the church has been prosperous.

After the gathering had been called to order Mr. A. A. Fowler read an address, and Mrs. Wand presented Mr. Thompson with a bag of gold on behalf of the congregation. The following is the address :

Rev. C. L. Thompson, Mark street church, Ashburnham :

Reverend and Dear Sir,—It is with feelings of deep regret to us, that your term as Minister in our congregation has expired. We know that in this world of changes, we can expect nothing else, and yet a feeling of sorrow is the most natural under the circumstances, where the tie is broken between pastor and people.

We have been helped in spiritual thing by your ministry, and certainly in the temporal affairs of the church, we have been highly successful under your able and wise leadership.

In the Sunday School work and in the choir, Mrs. Thompson and your daughters will be greatly missed, in fact you and your family have become so endeared to us as a people that we will miss you very much in the work of the church, and also in the home life of the congregation, where by wise counsel and tact, you have often helped us more than you knew.

Deeds are more effective than words, and in proof thereof, we ask you to accept our golden appreciation of your services by the acceptance of this bag of gold.

We as a people will always be interested in your welfare, and wish you God speed in the Master's service.

Signed on behalf of the congregation.

A. A. FOWLER,
W. CHROW,
MALCOLM McINTYRE,
M. CARTON.

Mr. Thompson made a very touching reply. It was a complete surprise to him to be remembered in this way. He had tried to do his duty while in charge of the church, and was pleased to know that his labours were appreciated.

A short musical programme was then proceeded with, in which Mrs. T. Cunningham, Miss Flo Thompson and others, took part. Refreshments were then served by the ladies of the church. Mr. Thompson will leave to take his new charge about July 1st, and will carry with him the best wishes of the congregation to which he has ministered so successfully during the past three years.

Rev. Mr. Lewis will be the new pastor at Mark street.

The gathering dispersed after singing "God be with You Till we Meet Again."

DELIGHTFUL SOCIAL LAST EVENING.

Strawberry Party on Mr. D. J. Lundy's Lawn was a Distinct Success.

The pleasure-loving public of Peterborough, had an opportuitny to fulfil their desires at the strawberry social given on Mr. D. J. Lundy's lawn, Aylmer street, last evening. In every detail the garden party was a complete and distinct success, and was much appreciated by a large and select number of persons. A part of the 57th Regimental Band was in attendance and added much to the evening's enjoyment, by the following attractive selections : "Men of Harleck," (Welsh march) ; "Mississippi Bubble," (Cake walk,) a Scotch selection ; "Freaks of Blackville," (cake walk ;) Plantation Melody, and "Under the Double Eagle." Too much stress cannot be laid upon the excellence of the music supplied by the band. The audience was also favoured with one or two vocal selections from Miss Ruby Gordon.

Everyone seemed heartily to partake of and thoroughly enjoy, despite the somewhat cool evening, the ice cream, strawberries and similar delicacies. Although at the commencement the sky looked somewhat black, rain fortunately kept off until the delightful social drew to a close. The enjoyable party was in aid of All Saints' church and the promoters should be heartily congratulated on its success.

COUNCIL RECEIVES DEPUTATIONS.

Numerous Requests Made to County Council.

Hiawatha School Question Still Unsettled—Aid Asked for Peterborough Fair.

THURSDAY'S SESSION.

The council met again this morning at 9.30, with the Warder in the chair.

The Clerk read the minutes of the last meeting which were, on motion, adopted.

DEPUTATION FROM SOMERVILLE.

Messrs. Sudby, Wilson and Doan from Kinmount, appeared before the council requesting an additional grant towards wiping off the balance due on the steel bridge across the Burnt River in the village of Kinmount.

Mr. Sudby stated that this bridge was within 30 yards of the boundary between Peterborough and Victoria counties, and was erected at a cost of $4,050. Of this amount $1,600 was contributed by the county of Victoria, $1,500 by the Provincial Governmetn, $100 by the township of Galway, and $100 by the county of Peterborough, leaving a balance of $750 unprovided for. The bridge was largely used by the people of the township of Galway, being on the leading road to that township.

Mr. Wilson, who also addressed the council, said he had been a former member of the Peterborough County Council and was pleased to meet the members, although he noticed the absence of many of the old familiar faces. He thought that Peterborough Council might fairly be asked to contribute half the amount required to wipe out the debt on this bridge. As a ratepayer of Galway he considered it was the council's duty to be generous in their assistance to this bridge, as it was of great service to the Galway people.

Mr. Coban, Reeve of Galway, pointed out the great benefit this bridge was to the people of his township. He hoped the council would be impressed with their duty in this matter,—that they would be neighbourly, and grant an additional sum toward the debt on this bridge.

Moved by Councillors Hunter and Maloney, that the matter be referred to the Roads and Bridges Committee.—Carried.

VISIT TO GANNON'S NARROWS.

Councillor Fitzgerald stated that, in accordance with the agreement between the members, the Warden and himself had made the necessary arangements for the council to visit Gannon's Narrows on Thursday. He had received a wire from Mr. Boyd stating that a steamer would be in readiness for the members at Chemong wharf at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning.

The council then went into committee of the whole.

The council resumed again at 10.30 o'clock.

PETERBOROUGH INDUSTRIAL FAIR.

Mr. Ed. Elliott and Mr. Robt. Fair members of the new Board of Directors of the West Riding Agricultural Association addressed the council on behalf of a special grant. The deputation laid the claims of the Association before the council in a business-like manner and pointed out in brief the policy intended to be pursued in the management of its affairs. Mr. Fair stated that the prize list would be a large and a liberal one, but in any case prizes would not be put on the list unless the money to pay them was in sight. The town council had doubled their grant to the association and made it $200 this year, and the deputation appealed with confidence to the members of the County Council as representative men of the county to deal in a liberal spirit with their request for a special grant.

Councillor Hunter said it was not often that busy men like Mr. Hugh Charles and Mr. Fair were found taking an active interest in agricultural matters, and it was an encouraging sign to find such men giving their attention to the interests of this association. For himself as a member of the Board of Directors, he could give his assurance that whatever money the council saw fit to grant, it would be well looked after.

The matter was left in the hands of the Finance Committee.

DEPUTATION FROM EMILY.

Mr. Boates, Reeve of Emily, appeared before the coucil asking for assistance to help to improve the boundry line road between Emily and Ennismore. In order to make this road more valuable in the interests of the dairy and cheese factory business of this section, the road required considerable improvements, especially in cutting down the hills, which interfered so much with the increasing traffic and compelled the farmers to go round them much out of their way.

A member of the County Council of Victoria, Mr. Fairbairn, also addressed the council in favour of some joint expenditures by the two counties for this road. He also reminded the council of their promise two years ago to aid in painting the Bobcaygeon bridges, and hoped the council would fulfil their promise this year.

Councillor Fitzgerald, who had the matter in mind, said that the county of Victoria might have gone on and done the painting and sent in their account for Peterborough's share, when the bill would have been paid without any hesitation.

On motion of Councillors Maloney and Peck, the Ennismore and Emily boundry road grant was referred to the Roads and Bridges Committee.

Moved by Councillors Hunter and Shaw, that this council give the necessary authority for painting the bridges at Bobcaygeon, according to agreement with the County of Victoria.—Carried.

The council adjourned.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

When the membes of the council assembled after the noon hour, they found deputations representing the two sections of the Hiawatha school question waiting anxiously to be heard. There was every indication that the end of this difficulty was not yet in sight.

Messrs. Troop, Davis, Mather and Gray were present in the interests of those desiring that a new school be built ; while Messrs. Thompson and Kiley ventilated their views in opposition thereto.

The council decided to give the opposing parties until September to come to a satisfactory settlement among themselves. In the event of a failure the matter would be referred to arbitration, and appointed His Honour, Judge Weler, J.C.Brown County School Inspector, and Councillor Shaw as arbitrators.

NORTH MONAGHAN DEPUTATION.

Reeve Hadill and Councillor Smith of the Township of North Monaghan, appeared before the council asking a grant to assist in repairing the three bridges.

Engineer Beecher explained the present condition of the bridges. He was satisfied that they were in a dangerou scondition. These bridges were difficult to maintain owing to the hilly condition of the county.

On motion of Councillor Curtis the matter was referred to the Roads and Bridges Committee.

The council adjourned.

On the Nicholls Oval by Nine Goals to Three.

A Large Crowd Witnesses the Struggle —Very few men Ruled off.

Fully six hundred people gathered on the Nicholls Oval last evening to witness the struggle between the Athletics and Belleville teams in a junior C.L.A. match. Considerable interest had been aroused in sporting circles over this struggle, as Belleville had been successful in administering a crushing defeat to the speedy Hastings aggregation in that burg some weeks ago, and those who witnessed the contest in that village were somewhat dubious as to the outcome when the Athletics faced the dozen from the Bay City. The supporters of the locals, however, felt satisfied that Belleville would have to travel a rapid pace in order to have victory perch on their banners and were confident of victory.

The day was an ideal one for a lacrosse match as far as the players were concerned, although the stiff wind that came up at times caused many of the spectators to heave a sigh for their light coats.

About the game. It was not what might be termed a brilliant exhibition of the national game, though at times some exceedingly pretty work was exhibited by both teams, but it lacked the ginger and vim that the spectators delight to enthuse over. Belleville team possesses a very nice combination, which they used very effectively at times and with good results, but occasionally they became demoralized and their work as a result was somewhat ragged. In McFee they have a goal keeper who is a veritable star. He was kept busy from start to finish warding off the hot ones, and although he allowed nine shot to locate in the nets, still he played a remarkably clever game throughout. McGuire at centre, who is prominent in hockey circles is a good man, as is also Whitley. In fact the whole dozen is speedy and have no reason to feel discouraged over the result of yesterday's contest. They met a speedier aggregation who won the game because they played the better lacrosse.

Of the Athletics a great deal can be said. They possess a very speedy home as was demonstrated in yesterdays struggle. Best's work was of the stellar variety and he played the game of the day. A great deal was expected from Cavanagh and expectations were realized. He is a very clever stick handler, accurate in his passing and graceful in his movements. Rollie Glover had a bosom companion in the person of Fords who watched him like a lynx, but Rollie eluded him at will and played his usual effective game. His presence on the home strengthened it considerably. Robertson was as cool as ever, and whenever he secured the rubber he showed his unselfishness by passing it just where it was required. Once or twice the defence allowed ed themselves to be lured away from the flags, but towards the close of the struggle they held their positions with the tenacity of drowning men and could not be coaxed out. The locale played much better lacrosse the last forty minutes of the struggle than they did the first half, and introduced some good combination work which was very pretty to witness.

Mr. T. E. Scriver, of Hastings, refereed the game, and at 5.15 the teams lined up for the struggle.

McGuire and Cavanagh knelt for the face-off and in a few minutes the ball traversed to Belleville territory where Hamilton, Robertson and Best did some clever work. A hot shot by Best was cleverly stopped and Belleville started their combination going up the field and a goal nearly resulted. Finally after fifteen minutes' play Best located the nets on a neat pass from Glover.

In two minutes more Belleville after a neat combination play tallied one on a shot by Winchester. This ended the score for the first quarter, both teams breaking even with one goal each to their credit.

In the second quarter both teams went in to try and break the tie, and the ball travelled in combination play several times which was interrupted now and again by hot shots on the flags. After some sensational work on the local's home Robertson scored on a pretty pass from Best. Score 2-1.

Belleville took a hand the next game and started their famous combination going which was broken up by the Athletics' defence. McGuire secured the ball at centre and after a pretty run notched another goal for Belleville, which again tied the score.—2-2.

Things began to look interesting at this stage and the spectators wondered how long the teams would keep up scoring in this manner. After five minutes' play Kennedy scored for Belleville and the visitors had a lead of one one goal. Score 3-2.

The Athletics went into the next game with do or die determination, and it was only after a minute's play that Cavanagh scored on a pass by Hamilton. Score, 3-3.

Four minutes more Cavanagh notched another on a pass from Best, and did the trick again one minute later on a pass from the same player.

At this juncture of the game Belleville became demoralized and their playing from then on lacked vim and effectiveness which characterized their work at the beginning of the struggle. With the score 5-3 against them they seemed to have lost heart while the Athletics appeared to be more anxious for the fray than ever. Vic Hamilton got a solar plexus blow and was rendered hors de combat just as half time was called.

In the opening of the second half the Athletics got down to good lacrosse and had it not been for the number of face-offs, the latter part of the game would have been immensely interesting. In the third quarter Best notched another goal for the locals on a pretty pass from Robertson. Score 6-3.

In the last quarter the interest lagged in the game and both teams simply parried. Best scored again on a pass from Robertson one minute after play started, which was followed by another in short order by Cavanagh on a pass from Glover. A few minutes before time was called, the locals, who were besieging the visitors' nets with a hurricane of shots, notched their ninth goal and the game ended without further scoring. Score 9-3.

NOTES.

The game was not a rough one. Only two men were ruled off.

The spectators encroached upon the Oval space yesterday, and interrupted the players quite often.

Hastings should be an easy proposition for the Athletics.

McGuire of the Bellevilles was knocked out twice.

Eddie Howell is a good man and played a steady game yesterday. Dunsford also showed up in good form on the field.

The four defence men on the locale as well as Galley in the flags are a pretty strong quartette.

Only one Indian figured on the team yesterday. The other two were unable to come.

Belleville plays Hastings on July 1st.

CRUELTY TO HORSES.

Strong Protest Again Made Against the Overdraw Check.

Horses, as a general rule, cannot read fine print, or they would rejoice to know that the Humane Society is interesting itself in a matter which is very important to them. The campaign against the overdraw check, waged for many years with spasmodic vigor, is about to be renewed, and a fresh protest made against the use of this cruel device, says The Toronto Mail and Empire. To keep an overdraw check on a horse that is working all day is little short of inhuman and indefensible from any point of view. The animal tires hours sooner under this treatment, the neck and shoulders and muscles become numbed, and general exhaustion follows. For a long road or a heavy load, a horse needs no check but that applied by the driver's hand on the reins. With his head held up in an unnatural position, it is impossible for him to put his strength into the work. He is in agony. Well may the Humane Society say a word for him. Those who are advocates of this check-line declare that by its use a horse is enabled to recover himself should he stumble. Nothing is more absurd. The contrary is the case. A horse will not only stumble more frequently in a tight check, but his head is not free to help him regain equilibrium without coming to his knees. It is urged that the overdraw is more stylish-looking than the ordinary rein, and that it makes the horse keep his head in the proper position. Regarding the latter contention, Chinese mothers may advance the argument in reference to shoes their daughters should wear. As for the stylishness—why is it not used on hackney horses, the most stylish of the equine family? It must be said, however, that for short, swift journeys the overdraw check is harmless. The simple reason is that it does not come into operation. A horse trotting at speed will keep his head up, so that the check does not inconvenience him. The only real defence of the device is that it keeps a hard-mouthed horse from getting his head down on his chest, and becoming unmanageable, and that it discourages kicking and applies also to the ordinary side check, which was designed to answer just this purpose. It may be noted, however, that a loose overdraw check does not cause greater misery than a tight side check. Any tight checking of a working horse's head is cruelty that should be stopped by law, and if the Humane Society can bring this to pass, it will have added another jewel to its crown.

A Tragedy of the Spring.

Spring brings tragedies. I am watching a fading life, an old man who gazes at the renewal of the world, while his powers, mental and physical, know no renewal. But nature, even when cruel, is kind, and those failing powers only let him dimly realize the tragedy that we can see so clearly. It was only last spring that he was out rejoicing, as only those who live close to nature do, in the revival of what for months had lain dead. As people grow older they take a tremendous interest in the miracle of resurrection. I think, deep down in the heart, thy must almost unconsciously cherish the belief that the miracle will extend to their own falling lives. But it does not on this side of the bar, at all events. What the real process is after death, who can say? Meanwhile for those who stand between the very young and the very old the tragedy is so apparent. As the whirl and bustle of the modern world increases, the tragedy of old age keeps growing, the spirit of bustle and struggle renders it difficult for us to find those who are content to stand aside and tend the feeble, either very young or very old. Trained nurses cannot do it. Hired tenderness is a small substitute for the genuine article which they crave for when entering or passing from this world. The feebleness of the babe appeals where the feebleness of old age often repulses. The transformation of the parent who has guided into the dependent, for whom all has to be arranged, brings about an almost unnatural state of mind in the adult who is in the prime of life.—Lally Bernard, in The Globe.

The Statue to Governor Simcoe.

Governor Simcoe goes down in the pages of history as the man who saw. He spent barely five years in Canada, and but half-a-dozen of his recorded acts are of importance. But those half-dozen were the acts of one who, at a critical moment, had prophetic fore-knowledge of the destiny of the colony. He brought the capital of the Province to this city, says The Toronto News. He carved out Yonge street as a trade route, and gave the right direction to the traffic of the colony for many decades thereafter. He planned and commenced Dundas street, which, but for the incapacity of his locum tenens, would have been an even greater thoroughfare.

His coming to Canada was of itself an evidence of a vision of things to be. Had he come merely as a soldier to serve his King in such place and for such time as duty bade, he would never have thrown himself into the erection of Castle Frank. An English gentleman of independent means, a brilliant soldier and a prominent member of Parliament, he was yet prepared to spend the best of his life, if not his life, in a new, wild, dangerous but promising colony. There is not a doubt that he went to San Domingo with regret, a regret which will be shared by all who mark his work in this young province.

A Mine for Water Storage.

At Rossland the question of the water supply is important. Storage room is needed and the town has hit on the ingenious idea of utilizing some of the worked out mines. One mine which has not been worked for three years, would contain 700,000 gallons of water.

A DRAFT HORSE'S DEBUT.

How the Auctioneer Introduced Him to the City Buyers.

How Chieftain, a heavy draft horse, made his debut in New York city is told by Sewell Ford in "Horses Nine" as follows: He had been the boast of Keokuk county for a whole year. "We'll show 'em what we can do in Indiana," the stock master had said as Chieftain, his silver white tail carefully done up in red flannel, was led aboard the cars for shipment east.

They are not unused to ton weight horses in the neighborhood of the Bull's Head, where the great sales stables are. Still, when Chieftain was brought out, his fine dappled coat shining like frosted steel in the sunlight, and his splendid tail, which had been done up in straw crimps over night, rippling and waving behind him, there was a great craning of necks among the buyers of heavy drafts.

"Gentlemen," the red faced auctioneer bad shouted, "here's a buster; one of the kind you read about, wide as a wagon, with a leg on each corner. There's a ton of him, a whole ton. Who'll start him at $300? Why, he's as good as money in the bank."

That had been Chieftain's introduction to the metropolis.

The Somali.

A military correspondent gives a good description of the Somali, who as a fighting man is not first class, though he is fond of drill and proud of his uniform. But he is by nature decidedly effeminate; his toilet is a constant source of anxiety to himself, and the pains he will take to curl his crisp black hair by the application of various substances to his head is incredible. He is fond of finery, of luxurious and indolent habits, and keeps up an incessant fire of chatter. He is grasping, and in the matter of food is greedy. Timid in the presence of the European, he is easily excited and quickly loses his bead. Dancing is one of his chief pastimes, accompanied by the loud clapping of hands and a continuous and monotonous wail, which no doubt does duty for a song. Somali women never dance, and scarcely even smile; they are completely cowed by the men, who treat them in most cases unkindly, if not actually cruelly. The Somali is most punctilious in the performance of his religious rites; but he seems hypocritical to a degree.—London Express.

NO USE EATING

Unless you Digest Your Food—Winnipeg Man Proves That Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Digest It.

It is necessary to eat to live, but it is yet more necessary that the food should be properly digested. If the food is not properly digested the different organs and muscles do not receive the sustenance they require, and they become starved and weak. This is the experience of Mr. H. Bailey, 256 Patrick street, Winnipeg. In a statement to the public he says:

"Although my appetite seemed to be good, I never seemed to gain much strength or weight, till I started using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. Then I think my food was properly digested and turned to flesh and to strength. I gained eight pounds in weight and received so much benefit otherwise that I can heartily recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to anyone suffering from dyspepsia."

The moral is that you must digest your food as well as eat it. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest it.

Bear Worshipers of Japan.

The queerest and perhaps the oldest people of the earth are the Ainos, the bear idolaters, who are found in the Japanese islands of Kovriles, Sahkalino, and chiefly in Yezo or Honnaido. They number more than 18,000 souls in all, and they are fast disappearing. They have the broad nose and the oblique eyes which characterize the Chinese and Asiatic races generally, but there the resemblance ends. The Ainos are a large and powerful people, straight as an arrow. All the Ainos declare they sprang from the Great White Dog—the bear—and a princess of the south. The bear is their chief god.

How to See Under Water.

A lens for seeing under water is described as producing an effect which is both astonishing and delightful. It gives distinct vision to objects from twenty to thirty feet below the surface which are usually out of ordinary eye range. The eye's loss of extending vision when under water is owing to the fact that an entirely different focus is required. The spectacles which can adjust this focus are made by putting two watch crystals back to back or with the concavities outward. Try it and be surprised.

FAMILY OF ISAAC BROCK.

Descendants of Famous Hero Held Church Lying in Channel Islands.

It will interest many Canadians to read that on Easter Sunday a noteworthy centenary was celebrated, the date when the rectory of St. Peter in the Wood, Guernsey, Channel Islands, England, had been held by the Brock family in direct succession from Father Coxon for 100 years. The first rector of the family was born in Canada, and a first cousin of Sir Isaac Brock of Queenston Heights fame. A table, recording the circumstances is to be credied in the parish church of St. Pierre du Bois, which locality already contains in its parish schools a replica in oil of the battle of Queenston Heights. The following facts, bearing on the centenary, will be of special interest.

On the death of the Rev. Francois Emeric de St. Dalmas, in 1803, the Rev. Thomas Brock, M.A., of Oriel College, Oxford, first cousin of Isaac Brock, and born near Quebec, was presented to the rectory of St. Pierre du Bois cum Lihon by Lord Grey, governor of Guernsey, and on April 19 of the same year, was admitted to the rectory by the Very Reverend D. F. Durand, M.A., Dean of Guernsey, by virtue of the authority of the Right Hon. and Right Rev. Bronsios North, Lord Bishop of Winchester.

Mr. Brock held the living for 48 years, and was succeeded in 1851 by his son, the Rev. Corey Brock, M. A., of Trinity College, Cambridge, who was presented thereto by Major-General John Ben, lieutenant-governor of Guernsey. Then Mr. Brock, in 1869, was appointed Dean of Guernsey, and held the living for 41 years, and on his death, in 1892, was succeeded by his son, the Rev. H. Walter Brock, M.A., of Otterbourne, Hampshire on his appointment by Sir Edward Gascoyne Bulwer, to the rector of St. Pierre de Bois, and still holds the benefice. It will thus be seen that the rectory has been held by members of the Brock family in direct succession from father to son for 100 years.

A Legal Gladiator.

When the Irish party came to appoint a committee to draft their amendments to the Land Bill they had plenty of trained legal talent to draw upon. Of the twelve members of the committee six are lawyers. Mr. John Redmond himself is a barrister, and had a fine and most promising practice in Ireland when he abandoned the law for politics. Mr. Edward Blake is a K.C. of the Canadian bar, and was Minister of Justice in the Dominion. His legal position is recognized in two hemispheres.—London (Eng.) News.

Atmosphere That Kills.

One cannot survive in an atmosphere containing more than one part of carbonic acid gas to 233 of air.

A Dream and a Reality.

An Irishman and a Scotchman once went traveling through a western prairie. It happened that one afternoon they shot a single quail, which would do for the breakfast of one of them on the following morning. Knowing that the bird was not enough for two, they agreed to have it eaten by the one who should have the best dream during the night.

When they woke early in the morning, the Irishman said to the Scotchman, "An' phwat did you dr-ream, Sandy?"

"Well," answered the Scot, "I dreamed that I saw a beautiful basket descend from heaven, and then I got into it and was borne up to paradise.

"An' I dr-reamed," said the Irishman, "that I saw you goin' up an' thought you wouldn't come back, an' so I ate the quail."

Heaven a Home of Wealth.

Yaas, they's life an' happiness a-plenty in cheerful labor in the open fields an' a mighty slim chance for the doctor. Why, they's even wealth in it of it's lived right; not riches, maybe, but wealth. Why, the way I read Scripture, it seems to me we're given to understand thet heaven is a home of wealth. "Many mansions" sounds that a-way, I'm shore, an' golden streets shows thet they won't anything be considered too good for use. An' sometimes I've thought thet maybe it meant to give us to understand thet simple riches, like gold, was to be trod underfoot. An' all the Revelational jewels, why, they seem to be set either in the walls or doors or somewhere, not let loose in piles, to be swapped or squabbled over. No riches to possess, but thess wealth to enjoy.—Ruth McEnery Stuart in Century.

At the Reception.

"I think Daisy is going to announce her engagement to Dick tonight."

"Did she tell you she was?"

"No. But see how uncomfortable Dick looks."

An Optimist.

"He's an optimist."

"Indeed?"

"Yes. He thinks he gets handsomer as he grows older."

FASHION NOTES.

Hats Versus Bonnets—Some Dolly Varden Shapes.

There is an attempt abroad to revive the bonnet, but it has not yet proved popular. The reason is not hard to find. The average woman dislikes intensely to have her age added to by the slightest degree. For the white haired matron of mature years, however, nothing is more becoming than a broad bonnet with wide black strings made of velvet or lace.

From the bonnet has sprung a glorious picture hat something after the order of the old Dolly Varden shape, with a lace brim threaded through with ribbon tied loosely under the chin or perhaps hardly tied at all. This is one of the prettiest hats of the season, especially in summer straw with lace tulle or wide satin strings and a single flower of great beauty.

There is one golden rule in choosing a hat. Have it as simple as possible, but be sure that the outlines are good. One of the most perfect hats of the season is of Romney shape in a fine black chip. On one side is a very smart black bow, and from this two ostrich plumes take a graceful sweep to the left side.

The cut shows a smart stole of black chiffon and white lace.

The Twinging Pains of Rheumatism

And Sciatica, Distressing Headaches and Dizzy Spells, Made Life Wretched—Doctors and Medicines Availed Nothing, but Cure Came With the use of

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Instead of giving you reasons why Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills should cure you, we prefer to quote from the experience of the cured ones. This case of Mr. Haines was unusually serious because it was of twenty years' standing, and had resisted the efforts of two physicians and all sorts of treatment. It is merely another illustration of how Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills reach the seat of disease and cure when other means fail.

Mr. William Haines, farmer of Thorold Township, near Port Robinson, Welland County, Ont., states: "I have been subject to severe and distressing headaches since boyhood, and in later life this became complicated with rheumatism and sciatica, and altogether my life was made miserable The headaches were accompanied with dizziness and vomiting, and I was for days and often weeks unfit for any thing. As the trouble advanced I became reduced in flesh, and was wrecked in health and spirits.

"After undergoing treatment by two doctors and trying many domestic remedies and patent medicines, I almost gave up in despair, as none of those I tried me any good.

"Fortunately I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, thinking that if I were only benefitted it would be a wonder. However, I persisted in using these pills until the time came when bad symptoms of nearly twenty years' standing disappeared. I had gained nicely in flesh and began once more to enjoy life. For this great change all the credit is due to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I shall never cease to recommend them whenever the opportunity offers."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have attained their enormous sale because they succeed where others fail. One pill a dose; 25 cents a box; at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 19

A WARNING TO CANADIANS.

The Globe Sounds a Timely Note About Novels That Pervert History—Four Excellent Examples Sketched.

The demand, of which much is heard nowadays, that the importation of machines, manufactured goods and produce from the United States be restricted, might well be applied also to the tons of doubtful books, magazines and papers which the Canadian public buy from American publishers. People are evidently less particular about what they read than about the things they wear or the tools they work with, says The Toronto Globe; it is patriotic, in general, to buy Canadian-made wares, but a book or a magazine may be tolerated for its interest's sake, even if it be strongly anti-British.

The most insidious form of this alien literature is the historical novel. The history of the United States has been marked by a series or more or less stirring events which have made good copy for the writers of war stories. From this material scores of novels, some good, some only passable, and many mediocre, have been written during the past thirty or forty years, and they are still coming. These novels deal with events in which the thirteen colonies, and later the United States, were the party of the one part and Great Britain of the other. But when a novel of this kind, American in theme and point of view, circulates in Canada its fitness ceases and it becomes a source of danger. In its own country it is a natural product, and be it ever so rabidly anti-British it can be pardoned, but when it comes into British territory its alienism chafes or would chafe if we had not grown to expect and even to welcome that sort of thing.

Of recent novels one of the most open offenders in this respect is "D'ri and I," by Irving Bacheller. Its scenes are laid during the war of 1812, immediately preceding and following the naval engagements on Lake Ontario. The heroes in the story are very brave and just, and very ardent patriots; the enemy—the British—are cowards, cruel tyrants, and inhuman. They are made the butt of ingentous trickery, a handful of Yankee recruits disposing of them once with a hose of water and again by releasing a few nests of hornets upon them. Where they do not figure on the losing side, the British are unfeeling tyrants. Canadian soil is made the scene of a midnight torture, whose intent was to kill the two heroes, then prisoners of war. Escaping from the British clutch, they reached the southern shore not far from their own camp.

"Listening, we heard the faint, familiar strains of 'Yankee Doodle,' We came ashore in silence, and I hugged the nearest tree, and was not able to say the 'Thank God,' that fell from my lips only half spoken."

D'ri afterward explained the adventure, referring to the Canadian country in these terms:—

"'Seems so we come ashore 'bout here," said he, dropping the middle finger of his right hand in the vicinity of Quebec. "Then we traveled aw-a-a-ay hellwards over 'n this 'ere direction.' With that illuminating remark he had slid his finger over some two hundred leagues of country from Quebec to Michigan."

This same D'ri, the real hero of the story, maintains an attitude of intense spitefulness against everything British; in the fight on Perry's brig, "Lawrence," he is animated by an "Old Glory" fever in which he is so recklessly brave that the reader, it is taken for granted, must applaud and admire. Throughout the story is built upon the unpopular character of the British position and action, and the contrasting justice of the American campaign.

A later production, "Hearts Courageous," by H. E. Rives, goes back to the declaration of independence, when Patrick Henry incited the burgesses of Virginia to rebellion. Here again the British are made to appear as unscrupulous ruffians, devoid of honor either as men or as soldiers. One of them, Captain Jarratt, beats an old colored woman to within an inch of her death because she will not give up a paper; another traduces the character of George Washington, and fights the inevitable duel for it. Lord Cornwallis plays a sorry part. Patrick Henry, in contrast, has the heroic rolo of starting the revolution, tirelessly scouring the country, inflaming the populace, opposing the bloody threats of the sinister Governor," and calling for deliverance from the bondage and oppression of the British. Another such a Jefferson, his revolutionary colleague. A French Marquis is introduced, who intrigues against the British, falls into their barabrous hands, escapes, and becomes a hero of the noblest order. The colonial maiden, whose love affair runs through the story is ardently American, and for her love's sake suffers British indignities. A revolutionary story is this, well filled with subtle eagleism.

Very similar in motive is "The Master of Appleby," by Francis Lynde, another of last year's books, whose scenes are laid in Carolina during revolutionary times. In this the British are again described as unfeeling tyrants, resorting to methods altogether fiendish. They employ Indian scouts and scalpors, and subject their captives, even helpless women, to brutal tortures. Col. Tarleton and Sir Francis Falconnet, the two most prominent English officers, are arch-fiends, against whom the always-innocent American patriots wage an unequal but finally triumphant conflict. Lord Cornwallis is again a losing leader, and is made the dupe of the hero-spy, for trickery on the winning side is pardonable. Few books are more plainly anti-British in sympathy than this, and few are less particular as to the terms applied to the British cause and its upholders.

"Alice of Old Vincennes," by Maurice Thompson, is a fourth example of American history-twisting in the guise of a racy novel. In a book of Thompson's it may be expected that there should be better art than in the writings of the lesser novelists, but the attitude is precisely the same. There is a bad English officer to contrast with a brave young American; there is the same old tale of British indignities heaped upon a beautiful heroine, and the dramatic climax of the story is the levelling of the British flag and the unfurling of "Old Glory" in its place by the same heroine. The fort at Vincennes, an important point during the revolutionary campaign in Thio, is the centre of a conflict conducted with great harshness, but poor soldiery, on one side, and with great skill on the other. From first to last it is a picture which paints the British in unenviable colors; the old French-American village was an idyllic place before the British came, and Paradise was only regained after the triumph of the revolutionists.

Of such are the historical novels written in glorification of the American past, and read with apparently as much interest in Canada as in the United States. These four, which are but instances of the latest publications, have sold widely in this country, and have been very favorably received as timely additions to the literature of the continent. People are still reading them, admiring the heroes and the heroines, sympathizing with their hardships, and rejoicing in their deliverances. The verisimilitude of a successful novel demands the reader's sympathy with the hero and with his point of view, and so when one reads these American tales he becomes necessarily anti-British in his feelings. The effect of this is not always transient; it leaves its impress, and one's patriotic sentiments suffer, sometimes little, sometimes much.

The greatest danger is of course with young readers, to whom a hero is always in the right, and whose attitude is unreservedly one of sympathy with that hero. To such readers these novels serve as history lessons, more appreciated and longer remembered than any book of more historical facts or chronicles. They may be admirable reading matter for American youths, who are thereby moved to greater faith and pride in their country; but the same effect is left upon the Canadian youth, with this difference; that an increased approval of American history means a lessening of pride in Canadian or British history.

The past history of Canada is filled with incidents that should furnish abundant literary material. There are novel plots as good as the best American waiting for the Canadian novelist, who, with a native faith in his country, shall write the historical tales we all are looking for. They will have the added advantage of not being worn out. But till such writers and such novels of our own production shall appear must we continue to import and imbibe the productions of alien writers and publishers, in which there lurk seeds of certain evil? What American school books used to do in this denationalizing respect, the popular historical novels are now doing in more tempting but more insidious form. It is time that Canadian self-pride were more apparent.

There often comes a time in the struggle with pulmonary disease when the victim loses heart and gives up hope. The ambition to be up and around gives way before growing weakness, and the sufferer keeps to the bed.

No one who suffers from lung disease should lose heart or give up hope while there is a possibility of cure. In many cases Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has cured lung "trouble" when the cough was obstinate and deep seated, with hemorrhage, emaciation, night-sweats and general weakness. A great many men and women are living to-day in the full enjoyment of health and happiness who had been "given up" by doctors, but found a perfect and permanent cure in the use of "Golden Medical Discovery."

"My wife had hemorrhage of the lungs," writes W. A. Sanders, of Hern, Mason Co., W. Va. "She had ten hemorrhages, and the people all around here said she would never be well again. But she began to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and she soon began to gain strength and flesh. After taking ten bottles she was entirely well. Should you think this would do you any good to publish, just use it, and if any one disputes the merits of this almost omnipotent medicine they may enclose self-addressed envelope with stamp, and I will answer, the same as written in this letter."

FREE. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 50 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills CURED.

Read what Miss L. L. Hanson, Waterside, N.B., says: "I feel it my duty to express the benefit I have received from Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. A year ago last spring I began to have heart failure. At first I would have to stop working and lie down for a while. Then I got so bad I had to give up altogether and go to bed. I had several doctors attend me but they did me no good. I could get no relief until urged by a friend to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Before I had used three quarters of a box I began to feel the benefit and by the time I had taken three boxes I was completely cured."

Voiles and Eolliennes in New Shades. Ecru Tints Smart.

In voiles and eolliennes the colors are much the same as last year, but the new mignonette tint is less like reseda than of yore and shows more of a bluish shade.

The two leading blues are delft and pastel blue, the latter resembling the former veiled with gauze. There are fewer pinks, and the new pink is too much on the blue tone and lacks the warmth of last season's tone.

All the ecru putty and biscuit tints are extremely modish, and touches of color in the chou and belt act as a charm on such neutral shades.

The new skirts are excessively wide, and the circular gaugings are accepted with avidity, but these are woeful failures when touched by the 'prentice hand, and the new housemaid skirts gathered at the hips are becoming to but few figures. Neither fashion is likely to be very popular, and gaugings must necessarily be restricted to few textures.

Black point d'esprit dresses are decorated with ruchings and made on a glace taffeta lining which only shows here and there through the fullness.

Ecru veiling makes a charming tailor made when trimmed with lace dyed to match.

Lace is as much worn as ever for a trimming, and all over lace is even more used this summer than before.

Whole dresses made of lace are the smartest thing a woman can have, and nothing is prettier than a three-quarter wrap made of heavy lace in black, ecru or gray.

The shirt waist in the picture is of linen. JUDIC CHOLLET.

The Black Death in England.

In England the black death in the fourteenth century made its first appearance in Dorsetshire and quickly spreading over the west it reached London by way of Oxford, leaving death and desolation behind it everywhere. It was as fatal in the country as in the town. Whole villages were depopulated and small towns almost wiped out of existence. The dead lay unburied as they had died, for priests had been swept away with their flocks, and in many parishes there was no one left to celebrate mass, while every trade and craft was suspended in the universal terror and suspense.

To add to the horror of the times bands of marauders roamed about unmolested, robbing alike the dead and the living, and dogs, deprived of their masters by death, came together in packs, made ferocious by hunger, and scoured the country like so many bands of wolves.

CARLYLE AND EMERSON.

No Evidence That Either Ever Seriously Studied Christianity.

The grave charge is to be brought against both Carlyle and Emerson that, while they were the product of Christian civilization and drew the substance of their message from the religious faith of their people, there is no evidence that either ever seriously studied Christianity. The greatest phenomenon in human history engages but lightly the attention or the enthusiasm of either, nor does either fathom the need of the humanity that has risen on the strength of the gospel of Christ. It was the dim perception of this fact that led Lord Jeffrey to remark to Carlyle that he went about as if he were to found a new religion. No one had done anything for man's soul until he came. One can hardly read the correspondence of Carlyle and Emerson without the feeling of their excessive consequentialness in the presence of the immense historic achievement of spiritual genius; in the presence of the spirit, the teaching and the influence of Jesus. Both were essentially modest men, and yet they lived in the sense of a uniqueness and an importance which they do not possess. They are both frequently oracular when uttering with literary distinction only the commonplace moral wisdom of the Christian world. It is a valid criticism upon Carlyle and Emerson that they failed to recognize the rock whence they were hewn and that they did not exhaust the quarry; that they were oblivious of the pit whence they were digged, and that the precious metal remained after they were taken out in boundless abundance.—Rev. George A. Gordon, D. D., in Atlantic.

An Old Church Knocker.

The grotesque knocker on the sanctuary door of Durham cathedral, which bears a rather distinct resemblance to a lion, is said to be of the twelfth century. The hollows for the eyes may have been formerly filled with crystal or enamel, or, as it had been suggested, the open eyes may have been contrived to emit light from within the church, so as to guide the hapless being seeking sanctuary by night to the welcome haven of safety. —Chambers' Journal.

"Told Him Goodby."

"I know that article was written by a southerner," said the astute city editor, and when some one asked why he explained: "A northerner would have put it, 'I said farewell,' or 'I said goodby,' but never 'I told him goodby.' Your southerner always has it 'I told him goodby.'"

QUOTATIONS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET

A Very Slow Day Among the Bulls and Bears.

The Quotations of the Leading Stocks —Market Letters.

The Wall street market opened rather weak this morning but an upward movement soon followed. U.S. Steel was a weak issue as a result of bear gossip. Reading was quite strong and reached as high as 49 3-4 by noon. C.P.R. opened at 120 7-8, a point below last night's close, but recovered to 122 1-4. Dominion steel showed marked strength and was quoted at 15-14. The market continued very slow throughout the afternoon but closed fairly strong.

The announcement that the Bank of Commerce has reduced its call loan rate 5 per cent., is a big bull argument on Canadian stocks, signifying as it does the willingness of this and other large banks to assist the market in every possible way in order that many holders of secureties may extricate themselves from the many unpleasant entanglements encountered recently. None of the other banks have followed the Commerce, but the majority of them are now offering call loans at 51-2 per cent., and will in time doubtless follow the 5 per cent. rate established by the rival Institution.—Financial News.

pacity outside of my office in the Parliament Buildings, and only when he came in to see me on the business mentioned.

"No consideration for support, or money was ever mentioned directly or indirectly between us in any shape or form. During his visits Mr. Gamey was ever energetic and severe in denouncing Mr. Whitney.

"The Government will order and insist upon the strictest investigation into the matter, and the public will have an opportunity of judging of the correctness of Mr. Gamey's story."

HIS STATEMENT VERIFIED.

It may be noted that this interview and the denial it contained, covered generally all the charges in any way directly affecting me personally, and I may be permitted to add that the value of such a simple story as the interview contains, consists in the fact that it was given on the spur of the moment and without premeditation. I had neither time, nor—it can be easily see—was I mentally fitted under the strain of the circumstances to devise or invent a cunning and complicated rejoiner to the cunning, laboured and carefully concocted statement prepared by the member for Manitoulin, "acting under legal advice,"—I simply stated the truth according to the facts as they existed. And it is a great satisfaction to me that the simple statements made in the interview have not only been verified but corroborated by the investigation and the finding of the distinguished Commissioners who conducted it. My 'plain, unvarnished, tale, has stood the test. The position I took in that interview has been sustained; my honour, basely assailed, has been vindicated, while the elaborate figment of the imagination of the member for Manitoulin, prepared under "legal advice," had been exploded and doubly discredited. (Applause.)

GOVERNMENT ASKED FOR FULLEST INVESTIGATION.

Another result of my own and the Government's knowledge of the falsity of the "Gamey charges," was the decision upon an immediate investigation, as thorough as it could be made.

Grave charges had been made on the floor of the House—charges of the most heinous gravity—the only alternative was refutation or ruin, and the way to refutation was opened by an investigation. In this connection it might not be amiss to review the influences which moved the Government in providing an investigation. In the course of his remarks on introducing a motion—the day after the charges were made—asking the Lieutenant-Governor to issue a Commission of Inquiry, the Premier used these words:

"I want to say to the country that unless our character will stand clear of reproach, above suspicion, vindicated of all such insinuations and charges as have been brought against us by the Honourable Member for Manitoulin, then we do not want any longer to govern this country. We will govern this country as honourable men, with characters unimpeached, or we shall not govern it at all. We ask this House to give us every facility, and I ask my honourable friend opposite to give us every facility for the vindication of our character and reputation as members of the Government."

OBSTRUCTIVE OPPOSITION TACTICS.

The House asked the Lieutenant-Governor to issue a Commission and the answer was the Commission. The Premier asked the leader of the Opposition to give the Government "every facility for the vindication of their character and reputation as Members of the Government," and the answer was,—obstruction at every stage. (Applause.) This brings me to a brief consideration of the tactics pursued by the Opposition during the three weary weeks the Government and its supporters struggled against the dead weight of Opposition opposition to bringing about efficient investigation—to put to the proof the statements of the Member for Manitoulin which the Opposition and their leader adopted and endorsed with so much enthusiasm. All through the different stages of the legislative process which led up to the actual constitution of the Commission, they showed a disinclination to a commission that would ensure thorough investigation, and when wearied of kicking against the Commission, resort was had to abuse of the Judges, imputations of possible unfairness and dishonesty. It was another application of the spirit of the saying—"No case; abuse the defendant." A Royal Commission of Supreme Court Judges was proposed. That met with opposition and various objections were urged. These were met and still other objections were raised,—there was an evident determination to balk inquiry. The object seemed to be to prolong the debate and to inflame and influence public opinion by heated and partizan denunciation and assertion and insinuation of the guilt of those charged under the statement of the member for Manitoulin. The moment the Commission was proposed, the Honourable leader of the Opposition set the pace for the obstructive tactics and imputations upon the rectitude of the judiciary, two of whose members were to constitute the personnel of the Commission.

Speaking on March 13th, as reported by the Mail and Empire, the Opposition leader says:—

"So it seems, Sir, that the decision is that the accused are to choose their own tribunal. They have been accused before this House and before the country of matters so grave that they may not be lightly or hastily disposed of, yet they come before the people and say: 'We, who are accused of high crimes and misdemeanors, will answer to no tribunal save one appointed by ourselves.' It is a fitting climax to the conduct of the Government of this country for the past few years. The honourable gentlemen opposite know they have no safety except the dice be loaded — except they name their own tribunal."

This is a fair sample of the habitual strong language of the honourable leader of the Opposition. Was that respectful language to apply to our Judges? The Supreme Judges were the means, the instrument, for investigating the charges. According to the honourable gentleman's figure of speech, they were the dice and to say that the dice were loaded is only another way of saying that the Judges would be biassed, one-sided, unjust and false to their oath of office. The Opposition contended for a Committee of the House and in this regard I will not say they were unreasonable. The leader of the Opposition had said that the Judges had no right to complain of criticism. I do not think that there is any man in the Province, Judge or Jury, politician or layman, who would complain of honest criticism. The leader of the Opposition had referred to the case of the late Hon. George Brown criticising judges, but he forgot to add that every possible effort had been made to put him in jail for this offence, and it was only by a disagreement of the judges that Mr. Brown was not commited for contempt. So that the leader of the Opposition was rather unhappy in his reference to that incident. I say the judges do not complain of honest criticism. I have no authority for saying so, but I believe that as honourable, honest men they do not fear honest criticism when it is directed to them. The leader of the Opposition said at the same time that it was a monstrous proceeding for the Government to frame the indictment. My honourable friend is again mistaken. (Hear, hear.) We did not frame the indictment. The Government did not frame the indictment. The accusations from end to end of the member for Manitoulin were presented to the Court. It was open to them to bring evidence as to the proof of any word in that indictment, and the slightest suspicion of accusation had to be met by the defence, and he will remember that the Court stated that the Prosecution had a right to have everything investigated that was mentioned in that indictment. (Hear, hear.) Sir, if the indictment was a plain, honest statement of fact we would not have had any objection to it. If we had had the preparation of an indictment we would have prepared, no doubt a statement of fact absolutely that would have had to be met. But that was not the position of the accused. Under the statement they were allowed to investigate anything that might arise. If so and so was said, that was included; if there were insinuations or innuendo s in the statement, we had to meet them on that occasion. We met them. The scope of the Commission was wide enough to meet the hon. gentlemen, and I think a little too wide, as I will be able to show as I proceed in my remarks. I do not desire to attribute to the leader of the Opposition, any language or word that I do not think his statement would warrant, but I think that his statement this afternoon with regard to the judges was another way of saying that they were false to their oath of office; and that is a statement that is somewhat too strong to be made by the leader of Opposition, or by any other member in this House.

Mr. Whitney—I am willing that you should construe it that way, only don't say that I said it.

Hon. Mr. Stratton — My hon. friend was pretty strong in his attitude to the judges to-day.

Hon. Mr. Stratton—He meant to be.

Hon. Mr. Stratton—And I think it is no wonder that a debate begun in such a spirit became further insulting, with aspertions and attacks upon the judiciary, as this case has proceeded from day to day. I said a moment ago that there could be no cause for complaint from the prosecution in regard to the scope of the Commission. The scope was wide enough to investigate what are known as the "Gamey charges," and any others preferred in writing by any member of the House. The statement was made that the witnesses would be shielded and would refuse to answer on the ground that they were not required to incriminate themselves. This objection was removed by special legislation, and yet the Opposition were not satisfied. There seemed to be a determination on the part of the Opposition to object to everything that was done, no matter how reasonable and fair. Was it because they feared that the Gamey charges would fail of proof, and that a definite decision, adverse to their hopes, would be arrived at. They naturally preferred the everlasting contention and squabbling and the chance to make unlimited political capital, which investigation, or rather recrimination, before a Parliamentary Committee would afford.

BASEBALL.

AUBURNS vs. LINDSAY.

The Lindsay team shut the Auburns out 5-0 in their game of ball in Lindsay yesterday, and the Lindsay people claim it was the greatest game there in years. The Auburns made a few errors at the start and it cost them the game. They settled down in the fourth and played gilt-edged ball the remainder of the game. McCorry pitched a fine game and had his support been near as good as the support given Miller, the Lindsay twirler, he would have garned a shut-out too. Miller played good steady ball and kept the Auburns driving long flies to the outfield, which were caught every time. Foster made a pretty throw from left field to the plate in the fourth, catching Cinnamon. Mr. Walters umpiod and was very good, his decisions pleasing all. Lindsay has a good team and will pay here soon.

NO PROCESS BUTTER.

Factories Driven from United States Are Barred,

THE PRECAUTION NECESSARY.

Hon. Sydney Fisher's New Bill Will Prevent Our Dairy Produce from Getting a Bad Name—The Elimination of the Cow in Butter-Making Finds No Favor in Canada.

Ottawa, June 20.—In the House yesterday afternoon Mr. Blair submitted an engineer's estimate of the cost of constructing the portion of the Canadian Northern Railway, for which the bonds are to be guaranteed by the Government. It will be printed.

Adulteration of Butter.

Hon. Sydney Fisher moved a resolution to prevent the improper marking of butter, and to prevent the manufacture or sale of renovated, adulterated or process butter, or of oleomergerine, butterine or other substitutes for butter manufactured wholly or in part from any fat other than that of milk or cream. He said that of late years a United States concern has carried on a profitable trade in the manufacture of what is called process butter, or butter made from cheap butter melted down, churned with butter milk or skimmed milk and then chilled. Congress stepped in and legislated these manufacturers out of business. Now the Canadian Department of Agriculture learns that the Americans thus deprived of their enterprise propose to establish themselves in Canada. Hence the act will prevent the marking of dairy butter as creamery butter, that contains more than 16 per cent. of water. The act will also prohibit the use of alkalis or chemicals to absorb water. Adequate penalties are provided for breaches of the act. Mr. Fisher pointed out that it would injure Canada to have process butter marked Canada and sent abroad, and it was desired that the country's good name as a producer of high-class butter should be maintained.

After some debate the resolution was adopted, and the Minister introduced a bill founded upon it, which was read a first time.

Mr. Fisher then introduced his resolution providing the penalties for the sale of impure seed, which legislation, he explained, was requested by the farmers throughout the country. The resolution was adopted.

The C.N.R. Resolutions.

The resolutions guaranteeing the bonds of the Canadian Northern Railway were again considered.

After some discussion the resolutions were passed.

The supplementary estimates for 1903 were taken up, and forty items were passed. The House then adjourned.

HANGED FROM JAIL WINDOW.

A Montana Mob Makes Quick Work With an Outlaw.

Glasgow, Mont., June 20.—William Hardee, the condemned murderer, who, with three other prisoners, escaped from the city jail here two weeks ago after killing one guard and beating two others almost to death, has been shot and killed in the Bad Lands, 75 miles from this city, after a desperate battle with the posse under Sheriff Cosner. Charles R. Hill, one of the posse, received wounds from which he died in a short time. Fred McKinney, Hardee's outlaw companion, escaped after the battle, but his capture is believed to be certain.

When the news reached this city late Thursday night a mob was quickly formed. The guard at the jail was overpowered, and Jack Brown, one of Hardee's companions, who was re-captured, was taken from his cell and hanged from a window in the county court house.

Newspaper Man Murdered.

London, June 20.—A telegram received here yesterday from Jibutil, Abyssinia, announces the arrival at Adis Abeba, capital of Abyssinia, of the expedition, headed by W. N. McMillan of St. Louis, Mo., which is to explore the whole course of the Blue Nile to ascertain its navigability as a trade route from Central Abyssinia to the Mediterranean. Mr. McMillan was detained a week owing to the murder by natives of M. Dubois de Saulle, the correspondent of The Figaro, who was accompanying the expedition.

THE SCOTCH DEPUTY RULES.

Lord Balfour of Burleigh's Duties During King Edward's Visit.

What the Duke of Norfolk was to the coronation ceremonies, so is Lord Balfour, of Burleigh, to those which were held during the King's State visit to Scotland. In other words, Lord Balfour, who is Secretary of State for Scotland, arranged everything, was responsible for everything, and was the most important person in the whole business, excepting only His Majesty himself. Scotland, of course, is different from Ireland, and has no Viceroy to be its deputy ruler in name; but in actual practice this nobleman is at the head of its affairs, and is its deputy ruler in a very large sense. He is descended from one of the most ancient Scottish families, and it is said that he has at present in his possession a document by which Robert Bruce himself transferred a small estate to one of Lord Balfour's ancestors. Like all good Scots his loyalty is very fervent, and he is understood to have been the first peer to take the oath of allegiance to King Edward. It was not surprising, therefore, to find him throwing himself heart and soul into all the arrangements for the Royal visit to Northern Britain. He was determined that it should lack nothing in quaint Scottish ceremonial, and to that end looked up all the forms and precedents available.

The most noticeable thing about Lord Balfour is undoubtedly his size, for he is truly a gigantic specimen of the northerner, and it is not all mere adipose tissue, for his lordship has strength and muscles to match. He is a very keen sportsman, especially when the sport is Scottish. A couple of seasons ago he was popularly supposed to have shot more birds than anybody else; he is an ardent golfer, and above all, he is a very keen curler, so much so, in fact, that as ice cannot be depended upon in Scotland, he is very fond in the winter time of taking himself to some Swiss retreat where he can be guaranteed a curling rink every day for as long as he likes to remain.

On the curling rink all men are equal, and his lordship thoroughly upholds this doctrine, telling in illustration of it an excellent story. One of the most humble menials, he said, was acting on one occasion as skipper of a side on which was a Lord Abercromby. It is the skipper's duty to direct the other players on his side to sweep the ice in front of the stones as they make their way to the tee, and much judgment has to be displayed in the directions given as to sweeping. As the momentum of the stone dies out, hard sweeping is sometimes necessary to keep it going, and those are exciting times. "Soop (sweep), my Lord Abercromby!" the menial called out in his most encouraging tone to begin with. When the stone had advanced a little he shouted: "Soop, ma Loard!" A second later he yelled out: "Soop, man!" and when the stone was, as it were, at its last gasp, and the skipper was frantic with excitement, he screamed to his lordship. "Soop, ye rascal!" This story is strictly true in all points save in the last word, for a much stronger one than rascal was chosen by the anxious skipper.

The Tipperary Rifle.

The shillalah, or the Tipperary rifle, as it is called in the south of Ireland, is not a mere stick picked up for a few pence or cut casually out of the common hedge. It grows to maturity under the fostering care of its owner.

The shillalah, like the poet, is born, not made. Like the poet, too, it is a choice plant, and its growth is slow.

Among 10,000 blackthorn shoots perhaps not more than one is destined to become famous, but one of the 10,000 appears of singular fitness. As soon as discovered it is marked and dedicated for future service. Everything that might hinder its development is removed, and any offshoot of the main stem is skillfully cut off.

With constant care it grows thick and strong upon a bulbous root that can be shaped into a handle. The real shillalah is not more than a foot and a half long, while the knob should be about as large as a big man's fist.

The best shillalahs can easily be told by the three sprigs which grow from each offshoot of the main stick. —London Answers.

Mr. Chamberlain's "If."

Joseph Chamberlain (in his Radical days) was once indebted to a nursery rhyme for a great oratorical hit. In one of his speeches he was criticizing Lord Beaconsfield and Lord Salisbury, on their return from Berlin, where they had been carrying on negotiations with Bismarck.

Both had made speeches explaining their actions; and one of them, in the course of his oratory, used the word "if" so many times as to give Mr. Chamberlain a chance, in his reply to make one of those popular allusions which are remembered longthan any logic.

"'If all the seas were bread and cheese,
If all the rivers were ink,
If all the lakes were currant cakes,
What should we have to drink?'"

The effect on the audience was tremendous. No one would ever forget that "if."

Elizabeth and the Carter.

There is an amusing story of an carter who went to Windsor three times to move a portion of Queen Elizabeth's wardrobe, only to be told each time that Her Majesty had changed her mind. When this information was imparted to him the third time, after a long wait in the courtyard, the poor man clapped his hands in wrath and despair and cried out, "Now I know that the Queen is a woman as well as my wife!" Elizabeth, at her window, happened to overhear this significant observation, and it hit her Tudor sense of humor. "What villain is this?" asked she and straightway sent him out a substantial present of gold.

British Antarctic Expedition.

The following letter has been received from Capt. Scott, the leader of the British Antarctic expedition: "McMurdo Strait, Feb. 15.—It is a most unexpected development; the ice that went out last year was 'one year's ice;' it cleared before this date, and the bay was open for more than six weeks; under these circumstances it will be poor luck if we are held by a close season after two certain open ones. We may, of course, be released later. If so, you will hear before this reaches you; meanwhile, I am hurrying up the transfer of stores with the intention of getting the Morning away as soon as possible, so that there shall be no doubt about her return at least. All on board have worked with a unanimity and good will that has made my own task very easy. Colbeck (the commander of the relief ship) is evidently quite the right man; he has conducted the business with great skill, and followed up the scent with much intelligence; now that he is here, he and his people are indefatigable in their endeavor to do everything they possibly can for us. The distance is much too great, and the ice too heavy for us to attempt to do anything with our own devices, and we must wait patiently for Nature to perform this task."

HON. MR. STRATTON'S EFFECTIVE ADDRESS

Delivered in the Legislature on the Report of the Royal Commission.

VINDICATION OF THE JUDGES' REPORT.

Brief History of the Case—Attitude of the Opposition — Base Charges Condemned—Review of Evidence.

The following is a continuation of the report in yesterday's Examiner of Mr. Stratton's address on the motion to adopt the Commissioners' report:—

The Opposition feared a definite decision so greatly that the member for East Hamilton was put up to move an amendment forbidding the judges to make a decision on the evidence—to make a finding. Why all this obstruction and opposition to full investigation and a final settlement of the question, unless the desire that the matter be left open to permit its use as a means of making party capital.

There can, in the light of the events of the month just past be no doubt that the scope of the commission was exceedingly wide — wide enough to constitute it virtually a roving commission. Even the Chancellor is authority on this, for on one occasion in permitting evidence that counsel suggested was impracticable, he admitted it upon the ground that the prosecution was "fishing" for information. Here we have the Commission specifically allowing itself to be used as a "fishing" commision, practically a roving, unrestricted, unlimited Commission. I can produce evidence as to the wide and satisfactory scope of the Commissino which should satisfy hon. gentlemen opposite, that is if they are faithful to their first love for the distinguished authority which I herewith beg to submit. In making his argument before the Commissioners on Thursday, May 21st, Mr. S. H. Blake, K. C., counsel for the Conservative Opposition, referring to the scope of the act creating the Commission, used these words:—

"It will be necessary for a moment to consider the scope of the Act, as in place of the House vindicating itself it has thought proper to leave this in the hands of two commissioners, and I simply state that there is no doubt of the wide scope of the Act and of the Commission, and that all the evidence that was given was clearly within the competency of the Commission. I do not go, my Lords, into the details, because upon that your Lordships have ruled, and I feel satisfied that it has been of great satisfaction to those that I represent here, the people of this Province that so wide a scope has been given and that all the evidence virtually which has been tendered has been received by your Lordships; but I may say, that if one looks at the formal charges that are on file, which do not go beyond the statements found in the papers D and C, and that of the 27th March, the last clause of the Evidence Act, and the Commission, especially the last clause, all the evidence given is clearly covered by these various documents which govern in this matter; and so I submit, my Lords, that without question all the matters that have been gone into have been matters that are covered in these three ways, and in respect of which the evidence adduced should have been, as it has been, received."

It will be remembered that the Opposition all along contended that the Government was amenable to the people, that we should have as a last resort, the people to appeal to. Well the people were represented in this case by the senior counsel, Mr. Blake, and he said, with regard to that, the language that I have just quoted. Now, Sir John Boyd, in his remarks at the close of the investigation, what did he say?

"My brother and myself have had little opportunity to confer on this controversy during the sittings, and some days will be needed for such a full, fair and unhampered inquiry as will satisfy every thoughtful and honest man that a fair inquest has been kept in view as the object to be attained. We may not go far into the inviting fields of casuistry and ethics, which are open to us, but we do hope to dispose of the matter secundum allegata et probata.

"The final words used by a great judge at the close of a great inquiry of kindred character, the Parnell Commission, can be fittingly adopted by us:—'Conscious that throughout this great inquest we have sought only the truth, we trust we shall be guided to find it, and set it plainly in the sight of all men.' More apt, more terse, more striking words could not be used to express this thought and aspiration, which has inspired the hope to make complete discharge of our duty under the Commission."

Mr. Blake then stated and in concluding his argument before this restricted, biassed and venal Commission:

"I leave this matter in the hands of the Commissioners—men well-known and honoured in our community for their high position, for their honour, their ability. I may say they are men with whom I have companied all my life, and know whereof I speak."

THE COMMISSION A FAIR ONE.

(Hear, hear, and applause.) These are the words of the "representativa of the people" before the Commission. We know and believe, the people know and believe, this House knows and believes, that the Commission was a fair one. They know that the gate of evidence was opened wide. It was a common remark in the press, a common remark in the court room, it was common talk everywhere, that the Commission afforded every facility for a full and free investigation of the facts; and, sir, the Commission showed every anxiety and every eagerness to elicit the truth, and they gave, I believe, the widest interpretation of the rules of evidence, and I believe that their decisions were fair, although they did not hold any objection taken by the counsel for the defence to be good, and they over-ruled all objections made by my counsel at the trial and they gave the benefit of the doubt to the prosecutor in this case. But, sir, the World newspaper of April 20th, 1903, from the conclusion of the evidence, said: "Sir John Boyd and Chief Justice Falconbridge have undoubtedly done their utmost to be fair." (Cheers.) Every possible means was taken to provide all the information possible, so that the investigation would be as far-reaching as possible, impartial, minute and skilful; and I think, Mr. Speaker, that that every reasonable man, that every member of this House who took occasion to visit the court, would have no reason to complain. But, sir, the Government accomplished its purpose of fair, impartial and thorough investigation, and against the persistent obstruction of the Opposition. Another object I have in dealing at length with this matter is to show the insincerity of hon. gentlemen opposite in professing that their desire was to purify politics. Instead of assisting the Government to get at the truth, it took three mortal weeks for discussion of this matter in the House. They professed to be shocked at the revelations that were made and they made very long speeches. Some times one thought, sitting here as I sat, that some hon. gentlemen were talking against time when they pretended to be defending the outraged honour of the province, and they were making, as I thought, campaign harangues that might be used for political purposes when occasion offered in the country. But I did not complain. I waited the opportunity of going before the Commission.

INSINCERE COMPLAINTS.

And while they complained of the limited scope of the Commission, and that the commission would be a farce, they did not take the full responsibility and advantage of the provisions of that Commission, for it will be remembered that the member for North Essex stated that he had been offered the Speakership of this province, (hear, hear) and that, as Speaker, he was to be allowed into the select four hundred of Toronto's society. (Laughter and Ministerial applause.) It was stated by the member for East Toronto — and subsequently withdraw — that half a dozen other members of the House had been offered the Speakership as well. (hear, hear,) The Commission permitted of these charges being laid. Why were they not laid? The scope was unrestricted; then they did not take advantage of the full scope of the Commission. Scores of times charges were hurled across the floor of the House that the Ministers were all involved; and on March 27th the charge was amended by the member for Manitoulin, a rider to his statement was added that widened the scope and included the members of the Government in the role of conspirators. But, sir, the scope was wide enough to permit of this evidence being submitted to the court. Every Minister was summoned; not one was called. (Hear, hear, and Ministerial applause.) The leader of the Opposition taunted the Premier this afternoon: "Why," he asked, "didn't he go into the box, and explain the position in regard to the letter of the 10th September?" I think it comes with bad grace for the leader of the Opposition to taunt the Premier in that way. The Premier was here; he did not run away; he was ready to go into the witness box, as all the members of the Government were, (hear, hear,) and they sat day after day ready to be called, yet the counsel for the prosecution did not feel justified in calling any member of the Government, for reasons, perhaps, which they might best explain themselves.

Well, sir, what did we find? On the first day the Chancellor asserted, 'We have the text of the Gamey charges before us, and the Commission is wide enough to investigate everything in these," and he subsequently added to Mr. Johnston, "You are also asked to meet the last charge of Mr. Gamey on the floor of the House—conspiracy, in which everybody (all the Ministers) are implicated. You have o take that into account." Yet not a particle of evidence was presented to sustain the charge of conspiracy. (Hear, hear.) And the prosecution dare not put a single Minister in the witness box. (Applause.) Was it because the charges were trumped up? Was it because it served as campaign literature to Opposition speakers? I cannot answer these questions; the Opposition can best answer them themselves. But the purpose has been served, and the members of the Government were not called. I feel myself that the Opposition, if they had believed the charges of conspiracy of the member for Manitoulin, they should have placed each of the members of the Government in the witness box; there was no object in subpoenaing them unless they had reason to believe that they were conspirators; and if they were conspirators they had a right to obtain from them the evidence that they had to give; so that, when they did not place them in the witness box, the only conclusion that can be drawn is that they did not themselves believe the charges that were laid and formulated by the new star of the Conservative party from Manitoulin. (Applause.) Sir, the scope was restricted, as was charged, and yet Mr. Blake, counsel for the prosecution, of all the privilcges. He refused to call Mr. Gamey after he had returned from his visit across the line. The Commissioners themselves were forced to elicit certain evidence that Mr. Blake did not take the responsibility of calling. (Hear, hear.) Then, Sir, why was Mr. McGregor not call-(Hear, hear.) It is said that he came down to assist Mr. Gamey in his undertaking; that he saw him enter my office with Mr. Sullivan. Why was Mr. McGregor not put in the box to discredit Mr. Sullivan and my statement with regard to that occurrence? (Hear, hear.) These are questions that can best be answered by the member from Manitoulin. Then, Sir, Mr. Jones was mentioned in the charge that was made in the House. Why was Mr. Jones not called by the prosecution? (Hear, hear.) Mr. Jones was called by the Commissioners. The counsel for the defence took the responsibility of examination, with the right to cross-examination. The commission was wide enough to take in all Manitoulin; yet the hon. gentleman from Manitoulin did not even call his pal, who, he says, came down with him on the 28th January, and saw him enter my office with Mr. Sullivan on the 29th. But, Sir, what is the use of further dwelling upon the statement? It is obvious to everybody that the object of the statement of the member for Manitoulin was the making of party capital. Now, Sir, all that the Government proposed in connection with this matter was opposed by the Opposition regardless of what interests might suffer. If a committee of this House had been proposed, I am satisfied that hon. gentlemen would have complained. (Hear, hear.) When the Royal Commission was appointed, they complained also. I do not think they would have been satisfied, no matter which way we turned. They did not show any great desire to get to the Commission or to get to the Committee of the House at once.

DID NOT TAKE ADVANTAGE

FULL INVESTIGATION DESIRED.

The Government had nothing to fear. We courted and we welcomed the investigation, and we wanted that investigation to be before such a court or such a tribunal that, whatever the result might be, it might be acceptable to the great majority of the people of this province. I do not know, and I cannot account for the fact that was selected by the member for Manitoulin for the unenviable notoriety that he has given to me in this particular instance. I had no knowledge of any plot—though there doubtless was such a plot—that was working outside of his jurisdiction before he made his statement in the House on March 11th. But I do not complain of the prominence that the hon. gentleman has given to me; I only complain of the vindictive pursuit of myself, either by himself, or his counsel, in the prosecution of the case. Perhaps the people of this province will be surprised to know that I was dogged by sleuth hounds of the member for Manitoulin or his counsel, for the three long weeks that this house sat, and for the month that we had it under investigation. I could not leave the door of the Parliament Buildings but one or two men were shadowing me in whatever direction I chose to go, some on wheels, some on the street car; and I was pursued with a vindictiveness that I think the people of this province will resent when the opportunity is afforded them of knowing all the facts. Drivers of cabs were interviewed and employed by some person and I could not leave or go any place in the city that drivers of cabs were not interviewed by some one to know where I had gone and what I was doing, with a view to elicit in some way information that could be used to my disadvantage. No man in public or private life was ever so maliciously and malignantly persecuted and condemned in advance and without one iota of proof, only the bare statement of a notoriety and self-seeking, political adventurer who was exploiting politics for his own benefit. (Loud Govment applause.)

ANIMUS OF THE PRESS.

The party press, Mr. Speaker, was bitter enough, Heaven knows, but the miscalled independent press distanced the party press in their persecution in this regard; and the independent press in this city stand convicted before the face of all honourable men in this province as being the most unfair and partizan, in giving prejudgment of a case where there had been no hearing and where there had been no trial. I could not have been more viciously assailed if I had a record of perhaps the worst criminal in the province of Ontario; and I say that the independent press of the province, if it is to be of any use to the people of this province, should take a higher and loftier standing; it should be more judicial and dependable than the party press, because the party press sometimes have to take a stand that perhaps they do not always relish or are not always pleased with, but there is no reason why the independent press of this city, why men who feel their great superiority over other men, whose high ideals of public life and public probity and public morals should prevent them prejudging in a case where a man is charged with one of the most serious offences that it is possible for a man to be charged with. Sir, even that lofty jurist, Mr. Blake, did not hesitate at all to stoop from the pedestal and accept the fruits and works of those hirelings that followed me around the city.

MR. BLAKE'S KINDNESS RECOGNIZED.

I should be wanting in my sense of recognition if I did not acknowledge the brotherly kindness of the senior Counsel, and I am not going to take advantage of this opportunity of saying what I have every reason to say of the senior Counsel for the prosecution, but on some other occasion I will take advantage of the opportunity of saying what I have warrant for saying. His energy and zeal never flagged. I can bear testimony to the great energy he displayed in the enthusiasm which he threw into the endeavour to destroy a Liberal Government in this Province. (Hear, hear.) And Sir, from motives that were no loftier nor no higher than those of the member for Manitoulin. (Loud applause.) Sir, his zeal never flagged till the idol from Manitoulin destroyed the important evidence and absconded from the city. (Government applause and laughter)—and then the senior Counsel dropped the senior plotter. (Cheers.) I was not surprised nor disappointed at the result, that Mr. Blake dropped the member for Manitoulin after his Buffalo outing—(applause) — because Mr. Blake seemed to forget himself. In his cross examination of myself he did not seem to have a desire to get at the facts so much as a desire to vent his spleen; but sir, he capped the climax when he denounced his own chief witness as "an unblushing, wilful liar, a man utterly reckless of the truth." (Loud Government applause.) One can hardly understand the counsel dealing with his own witness, Mr. Sullivan, in that way. (Opposition laughter.) Hon. gentlemen smile.

Hon. Mr. Whitney—Which did the hon. gentleman mean, because he said Sullivan.

Hon. Mr. Stratton—Yes, I said Mr. Sullivan. (Opposition Laughter.) I say that he denounced his own chief witness as an unblushing, wilful liar, a man utterly reckless of the truth.

MR. BLAKE'S POSITION.

I can hardly understand the senior counsel dealing with his own witness in that way unless it was a mental lapse or a slip of his tongue. It may be on other grounds. I don't know; but it is quite to be believed that Mr. Blake did not relish the position he was in at that particular time; and sir, he finds that the position that he occupies at the present time is not even relished by the party press of the party that he was identified with, and the Hamilton Spectator speaks out in no uncertain way of him on May 16th, and says:—

"There is a strong feeling among Conservatives that the prosecution has been spoiled by its lawyers as well as by Gamey's 'slip.' A gentleman who has had a chance to know told your correspondent that they have been at sixes and sevens ever since they were selected to conduct the prosecution. With division amongst his counsel it is not to be wondered at that Gamey was sometimes at sea."

Then the Cornwall Freeholder says:—

"Mr. Blake might have known it. There has been a good deal of hard feelings among the hard-working Tory lawyers, that all the pickings should be handed over to Mr. Blake on a profession of faith, supplemented by work only to the extent of writing 'My dear Foy,' and now that feeling has broken out. Letters are being written from Conservative sources in Toronto to the Opposition papers harshly criticising the manner in which the prosecution in the Gamey case has been conducted by Mr. Blake. This is rather cruel to the new convert, but he will discover, in fact he has already done so, that kicks rather than embraces come to those who fail to succeed. The difference between a hero and a chump is often measured by the distance between success and failure."

So that Mr. Blake will observe that the friends he is identified with, at the present time have not the affection in him that he though they had.

STEPS TOWARDS VINDICATION.

I referred a moment ago to the steps I took in stating to the Premier that the statement made by Mr. Gamey was not in accordance with the fact. The next step I took, I followed the precendent and sent in my resignation. I felt it was due to the leader of the Government to be relieved of the embarrassment under the serious and unfounded charges that were then made, and I left him to do as he saw fit in regard to the matter, confident that he would do what he regarded to be in the best interests of the Government and the party, without any regard to myself. I did not interfere in the investigation. I did not attend the Council meeting when the Commissioners were being selected. I did not advise who would be selected. I did not even have a voice in saying who the Counsel would be. (Hear, hear.) I was perfectly satisfied to abide by any judges that the Government saw fit to appoint; and I think that it comes with bad grace from the party press of this Province to complain that two of the highest judges in the land, two of the best men perhaps and the greatest men that we have ever had upon the bench in Canada, should be attacked for holding an investigation into charges of such a serious nature as we are now considering. It was no fault of mine that my resignation was declined. It was at no suggestion of mine but it was no surprise to me when I received a letter from the Premier that he had the utmost confidence in me, and that he could not accept my resignation until there was some credible proof to substantiate the statements made by Mr. Gamey. I was quite satisfied with the position that was taken at that time and I am quite satisfied at the present time.

ATTITUDE TOWARDS MR. GAMEY.

Before entering into a consideration of the evidence adduced at the investigation I might say that when Mr. Gamey made his visit to my office on official business, I treated him courteously, I treated him just in the same way as I treated every one that comes to my department, just in the same way of courtesy that I treat those who support me on conviction. I did not feel that if Mr. Gamey desired to change his politics that it necessarily involved corruption. I do not think that it does, unless that he was changing his politics from impure and improper motives, and being approached by me or some one on my behalf. He could have justified his course by distinguished precedents, had he so desired. The history of the country is full of precedents. We have had prominent politicians changing their party allegiance from time to time and there is no corruption charged at their doors because they think from time to time differently with regard to public questions or with regard to matters that affect their political relations. There are many instances that can be mentioned. There is the Hon. R. W. Scott, he was a Conservative, the Conservative speaker, under Sandfield Macdonald, and he entered Mr. Blake's Cabinet. The Hon. E. B. Wood was Treasurer, under the Sandfield Macdonald Government and he went over to Mr. Blake, and it was charged but not proved that he was influenced by corrupt motive, on a charge made but never proved. Then we have Sir W. P. Howland. He was once a Liberal, he became Post Master General under Sir A. McNab. Then we have the Hon. J. B. Aikens, a Conservative, and Sir Richard Cartwright, they became Liberals at the time of the Pacific scandal. Then we have Mr. Tarte, who left the Conservative party as well and we have Sir Leonard Tilley, a Liberal, who afterwards became Finance Minister under Sir John MacDonald's Government. We have Mr. Beatty, who was elected in 1894 as a Conservative and after the first vote in the Legislature with the party he was elected by, he afterwards supported the Government. He then ran as an Independent, or as a Conservative, and he supported the Government, he supported the Liberals.

ALMOST AS GOOD AS GAMEY.

Here we have several statesmen on both sides of politics almost as great and as good as the member for Manitoulin. (applause,) who changed their political allegience without any charges, except in one instance, of corruption and without any corrupt acts influencing them in that regard and the one charge made, was that in regard to the Hon. Mr. Wood, which was found as baseless as the charge is in the present case. But sir, though the Gamey charges may have been startling they were certainly not unique. The Liberals in Ontario as I have said have been up against this kind of accusation for a great many years, it will be remembered the Hon. Mr. Pardee was threatened by Mr. Meredith in 1883 with indictment before the House, and in 1885 he was charged with personal corruption and was threatened to be brought before the bar of the House in connection with an oil-well swindle. The charge of corruption was as strong as it was possible to be made, but it was not proven, no attempt was made to prove it, and the same has been the case in regard to various questions. It was charged in 1886 that a corrupt bargain was made with Archbishop Lynch and Archbishop Cleary. Here is what was said of Sir Oliver Mowat:—"No man could have believed when he came down from the bench in 1872 that he, a valiant champion of Protestant liberties, should one day become a marionette (a puppet) in the hands of the Catholic hierarchy."

ANOTHER BARGAIN CHARGED.

A similar bargain in 1894 was charged with His Grace the late Archbishop Cleary and it was thus described:—

"In no other country of the world would such a project be tolerated. Ontario has fallen behind little by little and she can retrieve her position if she but strike a decisive blow against the church of Rome."

In the same year, 1894, the Government was charged with making a corrupt bargain with Principal Grant

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Cures Summer Rheumatism.

A Cornwall, Ont., Gentleman Completely Cured After the Failure of Physicians.

Recent reports from medical men in various sections, indicate that rheumatism is on the increase this summer. This being the case, we implore rheumatic victims to make every effort to remove this dangerous febrile disorder before the intense hot weather comes on. During the month of June a few bottles of Paine's Celery Compound will speedily banish articular, inflammatory or muscular rheumatism. Mr. G. J. McDonald, Cornwall, Ont., speaks about his cure as follows:—

"For three years I suffered terribly from rheumatism. It seemed to me that I was forced to endure all the agonies and pains that a mortal could possibly experience from the dreadful disease. While suffering I tried many of the advertised medicines and also doctors' prescriptions, but never found a cure until I procured a supply of Paine's Celery Compound. It worked like a charm and seemed to strike at the very root of my trouble. I am now cured; all my pains are banished, and in every respect I am a new man."

and certain alleged improper gifts were said to have been given to the late principal of Queen's and he had sold himself to the late venerated Lieutenant Governor, Sir Oliver Mowat, then Premier of Ontario. It was charged:—

"When the relations between them are understood, the cry 'Ontario cannot afford to dismiss Sir Oliver' will simply mean 'Principal Grant of Kingston cannot afford to dismiss Sir Oliver."

And we see that the personal honour of Sir Oliver was attacked after all those years. On June the 16th, 1884, the party organ says:—

"Sir Oliver Mowat in his keen regard for family aggrandisement has been somewhat unscrupulous and cynical, a curious and uninteresting semblance of piety in most men would be nauseating, but which in Sir Oliver is only an instance of his singularly composite character."

The great constitutional contentions of the past in this province have been practically conspiracies on the part of the Conservatives, and those that were attached by them, conspiracies which caused much trouble and expense to the Province of Ontario. The Boundary Award and the Rivers and Streams Bill, the License Question, and other questions, have been conspiracies practically growing from corrupt acts charged by the Opposition against the Government. But, Sir, in all these cases the investigation of these baseless charges were just as far from proof as they have been in this case.

CONSIDERATION OF EVIDENCE.

I have concluded my opening remarks respecting the general features of the subject now before the House, and I desire to deal with the evidence as to the Gamey charges, which to the Conservative mind, are the greatest of all charges that have been made in the Province of Ontario. Sir if we come to a consideration of proof, I want to empahsize the fact that no evidence was rejected on account of the objection from Counsel for the defence. I desire to emphasize that. (Hear, hear.) And to point out that the old law of evidence that ought to be good enough for anybody was not good for Mr. Gamey and I consented to an enlargement, and the rules of evidence were enlarged, and I do not desire and I am not going to, at the present moment, find fault with the action of the House with regard to this matter. First, Sir, I desire to point out out what was Mr. Gamey's condition of mind when he loomed up upon the horizon of notoriety. He had been Independent in politics in the early period of Manitoulin and it is said he voted for Mr. Lyon. Dr. Arthur said that after the election in 1898, Jones' evidence in reference to Mr. Gamey is: "If I run I will run as an Independent," and it is said that Mr. Gamey even told strangers that he would support the Government. This was Mr. Bowen and Mr. Martin, who slept in the same room, one, I believe, in the same bed with him, between the 1st and 10th of September. If he was not going to support the Government why did he tell Martin? Why write Mr. Conmee that he was going to support the Government? Why did he consult Dr. Struthers and Dr. Arthur as to the course he was going to pursue? Then we have his action at his own convention, and it was stated there by Dr. Fell and Mr. Kinney, that he gave no pledge as to the course he would pursue.

GAMEY'S FREE HAND.

He was left free to act as an Independent, and in his campaign speeches, it was said by many credible witnesses that Mr. Gamey had declared that he was independent of party, that he would support any party in power, that he would give the Government support toget grants, and that if the Government was sustained that he would support the Government. These statements were not contradicted by Mr. Gamey. He had an opportunity of going into the box, and contradicting them if they were untrue. It is true that other inconsistent statements were sworn to, but it is clear by all the statements that if the Government was sustained, Mr. Gamey was going to take a course other than the usual one. He was "not going to have his hands tied." Manitoulin was going to be really his politics. It is true that he abused the Government, and that he abused the Government policy; I have no doubt the member from Manitoulin would rather have seen Mr. Whitney in power than Mr. Ross in power, but I am just as satisfied that he would have preferred supporting Mr. Ross in power than Mr. Whitney in opposition. (Applause.) The member from Manitoulin may deny these statements, but all his friends and neighbours say this. There were Socialists, there were Conservatives, and there were Liberals brought down, and they gave their evidence in court in regard to this matter. They were strangers to me. I never saw them before; I may never see them again. They were friends of Mr. Gamey's; they made these statements and their mutual conclusion was that Mr. Gamey sought the election upon the terms that I have just spoken of. It was either to his personal advantage, or the advantage of the constituency, as distinguished from the province of Ontario, that he was seeking. This position was stated at a Conservative meeting. It was not contradicted by Mr. Gamey, and the telegraphic report that was sent to the press by Mr. Gamey himself — in his own handwriting — which appeared in the Globe, and which is in the evidence which has been submitted to the House, is to the effect that I have just stated, that Mr. Gamey's position was the position that I have attraibuted to him

SMALL ADVANTAGE OF GAMEY'S SUPPORT.

Then why did he say to Dr. Arthur that he was going up to his constituency to get the farmers to sign a paper. Mr. Gamey did not deny that after hearing the statement. He was in the box. He did not offer to refute the statement that he was going to get the electors of his constituency to approve of the course he was going to pursue. It was not much advantage to the Government, Mr. Speaker, to secure the support of Mr. Gamey at that time. We had a majority of one.

Mr. Whitney—Hear, hear.

Mr. Stratton — And I will give my hon. friends some more solace of that description. We had an uncertain constituency vacant; there were about forty protests, and there was absolute uncertainty, either with or without Mr. Gamey, as to whether the Government would continue. If the Government could not hold on without Mr. Gamey, it could not hold on with him. (Applause.) The only safety that we had, Mr. Speaker, was in the bye-elections, and it is not unreasonable to think and the people of this province do not think it, that any one would take great risks for so inadequate a value as Mr. Gamey's support would have been to the Government at that time. Mr. Gamey's allegations are that on Sept. 9th, 10th or 11th he came to my office, an utter stranger to me, and that I promised to have his protest withdrawn. (I am not quoting his exact words, I do not desire to be understood as doing that; I am giving the facts as I remember them); that I promised him the patronage of the Government, and that I gave him $3,000, with $2,000 to be given him after the session of the Legislature.

CONFUSION AS TO DATES.

And he says that a letter was produced on the 10th—he says that in his statement—when he comes to the Court he does not say it was on the 10th; in fact he does not know whether it was on the 9th, 10th or 11th actually, but when cross-examined he finally said it was on the 11th that he received the package of $3,000. He says that the letter was signed; that the money was taken from my pocket. He says that I took the money from my pocket; I gave it to Mr. Myers, Mr. Myers gave it to Mr. Chase, and that Mr. Chase took it to the smoking room. Is there anyone on earth believes that yarn? (A voice, No.) I know that Mr. Gamey himself does not believe it. (Applause.) Mr. Chase has sworn that it is not true. Mr. Myers has sworn that it is not true; and I have sworn that it is not true. I think that is all that is necessary to substantiate the proof of the truth of my statement. Now, what proof have we of Mr. Gamey's statement. There is no man swears that Mr. Gamey was bribed. There is no man swears —not even Mr. Gamey himself swears —that he was bribed. Mr. Gamey swears that he was working in a plot, and consequently that he obtained this money in the scheme that he was concocting to entrap the Minister, and entrap the Government. Mr. Gamey alone swears to a payment of money. All the others swear to no payment. Then if there was a payment, the hon. members oppose it do not say that it was bribery—they say that it was a plot and that Mr. Gamey obtained this money as an element in the plot.

NO EVIDENCE OF BRIBERY.

I say that there is no evidence whatever that he was bribed; not a witness swore that it was true. This saviour of the country, this patriot from Manitoulin, is the only man who stands up and says that there was any money passed between him and myself, directly or indirectly, and he knows in his innermost heart, that the statement is as false as a statement can be. The only fact, if it be a fact, is the deposit of $1500 that he is said to have made in the Traders' Bank on the 11th of September. This is not any proof, Mr. Speaker. There is not a lawyer in the House who would would say that that is any proof of Mr. Gamey's statement. My books were examined, my private accounts—all the accounts that I possessed from some time in August (the first of August, if I remember correctly,) until the 11th of March — were examined. My bank books were produced and searched, every cheque gone over, and there was no $3,000 withdrawn from my account. I think that is quite as good proof that I did not buy him as the statement that he deposited $1,500 is proof that I bought him. There is no question of doubt about that. It is equally proof of non-payment as Mr. Gamey's statement is of payment. Why did Mr. Gamey not produce his bank books, his accounts at Sudbury and Gore Bay, and the Crossin Piano Co. accounts? The piano bank account was produced, the Sudbury bank account from March the 3rd only, if my memory serves me correctly, was produced. The statement made was that the ice would prevent him getting his account from Gore Bay and the Sudbury Bank account was the only one that was produced, except the Crossin Piano Factory account. The Gore Bay bank account has never been produced up to this day.

Mr. Gamey — You are absolutely wrong; the account was filed in the Court. The Sudbury account was filed from last fall, in September, in the Court.

Mr. Stratton—I do not know whether it was or not, I will have to substantiate it to be certain. My recollection was there were except the one from Sudbury and the account book that did not give the correct statement of the account from the time that the defence desired the account to show. Now, Sir, first let us leave out the fact, that Mr. Gamey is contradicted by Mr. Myers, by Mr. Chase by Mr. Costello, by Mr. Buckingham, by Miss Jaffray and by Mr. Sullivan on these statements, and in opposition to the statement by Mr. Gamey. Look on the contradictions and the improbabilities and the alterations of Mr. Gamey's statements and the suspicious conduct with regard to the 9th and 10th, a date fixed no doubt to suit the bank entry that the member from Manitoulin had made in his books, and fixed too, no doubt, after he had learned the date of the Aylesworth letter, which was made the foundation of the case by the counsel for the prosecution. If it were necessary that a letter should be written and handed over at the time of the bargain, why was it not done at the time? What object was there in having this letter go to Mr. Aylesworth, and pass through Mr. Aylesworth's hands if no bargain had been made with him. Mr. Aylesworth is the last man in thworld, in the city of Toronto, that any man would go to expecting that he would conclude or complete a bargain of that kind. But, Sir, Mr. Gamey came to my office on the morning of the 9th, and that was the only time he was in my office to my knowledge, during the month of September. (Applause.) On the evening of the 9th I met Mr. Aylesworth in the corridor. I told him of Mr. Gamey's being present, being in my office, and what he said, and he asked me what evidence had I to the effect that he was going to support the Government, and hadn't I better get a letter from him, suggesting I write a letter. I took him the letter on the 10th, and the evidence is there of myself, and Mr. Boland and the driver of the cab—and Mr. Boland, that it was on the 10th, that I saw Mr. Aylesworth there.

NO ACCOUNT BOOKS SUBMITTED

MR. GAMEY CHANGED THE DATE.

But when Mr. Gamey, after he had made his statement in the House with regard to the letter that he had signed in Mr. Aylesworth's office that had been sent to the Premier, he changed the date, he had to push on the date in order to meet the condition of that interview. I had with Mr. Aylesworth. If he did get any money from me, Mr. Speaker, do you think he would not know the date he obtained it? Is it reasonable to expect that he did not know when he was at the Conservative caucus on the afternoon of the 10th September whether he had $3,000 or $1,500 in his trousers pocket or not. Is it not unreasonable to think that a man don't know the that he had received $3,000 when he was fixing, as he stated, a date as a means of entrapping the Government, that he was going to drive from power, a Government that had been corrupt as he has said this Government was. Did he get the money the day he went home? Would he not know he got the money the day he went home? He says he went home on the 11th. He would certainly know, that, he was confronted with these difficulties, he revised the story as to the day he got the money, or as to whom he got it from. There is as much difference between Mr. Myers and Mr. Chase in their personal appearance as there is between the Premier and the Hon. Mr. Harcourt, and it is strange to say if Mr. Myers took the parcel to the smoking room, and Mr. Gamey was looking around for the arrival of the money he would stand gazing out of the window and not looking who delivered the parcel. There is no one in the world would believe a statement of that kind. Mr. Gamey could not have been at the Conservative caucus without having remembered. He could not have had an interview with me and then gone to the caucus without having remembered. He could not have obtained the money the next day from me, even alleging that there was a possibility, without my knowing that he was at the Conservative caucus, and it is an unlikely thing, and those who know me best will not believe that I am as simple as that, that even if all these statements were true, he would get $3,000 on the day after he had attended a Conservative caucus without some explanation of why he had been there.

IMPROBABILITY OF STORY.

Why, Sir, if he had gotten this money on the 10th as he stated in the House on March 11th that he had done, if he had spread that $3,000 upon the floor of the caucus that day, on September 10th, this Government could not have lasted 24 hours, and if he had had money from the Government or from any member of the Government he would certainly have done better service to his party if he had made the explosion prior to the bye-elections in the three Norths. The conclusions that can be come to in connection with these matters are that Mr. Gamey is a good deal mixed in some way accountable only to himself in regard to his actions on these particular days. He says he was in my office on the 11th and that the money was sent there at that time. I was not in my office on the 11th., impossible for me to be there. There is no question of doubt upon that score, there is not my own evidence, but Mr. Boland's, Mr. Buckingham's and Mr. Myers' in regard to that matter, and then we have the evidence of, —I think his name was Green—the cab-driver, against this specific and positive proof, to say that a carriage left the building with myself and two ladies on the 11th, and that we had gone down town and gone shopping, that we had gone to a blacksmith shop and a foundry with two ladies to do shopping, and landed at McConkey's. (Laughter and applause.) The driver had got mixed, he had got his occasions mixed, and he got it mixed with the residence of Mr. Strathy. Green was clearly mistaken; he was probably mixed by statements or suggestions made to him. If I had desired to concoct this story what better company could I have been in on that day than if I had gone down with Mrs. Stratton and the lady that was with her. The story would have suited me as well if I were concocting a story. I had considerable difficulty in finding out myself, Mr. Speaker, where I was on these days connected with this branch of the matter, but I had examined the books prior to these gentlemen having examined them, and I know all about the cab, and the occasion, and who were with me, and the statement was made by Mr. Green that I was in the cab, but Mr. Green is absolutely mistaken in that, and the only reason we have perhaps, for thinking anything wrong was perhaps the two gentlemen that he was out driving with the evening before, asked the livery people to be certain to send them this particular driver, whom I presume they wanted to get loaded up the right way before he gave his evidence in the morning. He got so badly mixed as to the time and location and my residence over here at 71 Queen's Park, that my counsel thought that the evidence was so far wrong that I would be doing the ladies an injustice to bring them to court to prove to the contrary.

GAMEY'S PECULIAR FINANCING.

Now, Mr. Gamey says that he only received, that he only had $1,500 going through the bank on Sept. 11th. Now we discovered that he had $2,400 going through the bank on Sept. 11th; $1,500 in the Traders' Bank, and $900 in the Ontario Bank, and I believe afterwards $250 at Gore Bay. Then he said he had got $2,700—$1,500 and $1,200—from Mr. Sullivan. Where did he get it? He said he left the building last. He went to dinner and deposited the money. He never told us where the I.O.U. was drawn up, whether it was drawn up in the smoking room. Was it drawn up in the corridor, was it drawn up in the lobby at the outside of the building? Why were the bank books not produced? Why was the cash book destroyed? Why was the bank deposit slip destroyed and stolen? We had the statement that the $900 was gathered in money at the Island, if there were no contradiction in this statement the story could not stand, Mr. Speaker, for one minute. It is only by the contradiction made by the member for Manitoulin and which mixed it up in the public mind that requires us, to-night here, to take up the length of time I am taking in endeavouring to place my case before the House and the public. My venerable friend, the counsel for the prosecution, said that he was bought and sold by this letter which was the foundation of this transaction, but if he was not bought and sold, then there was no transaction, and the whole case fails. And it has not been proven in any manner, shape or form that the statement of Mr. Gamey, that the letter dictated by me, was taken to Mr. Aylesworth's office, and was afterwards returned to me; that statement is absolutely incorrect. Mr. Aylesworth says that he handed the letter to Mr. Gamey, he thinks Mr. Gamey took it away, and Miss Jaffray, the Premier's private Secretary at that time, has sworn that the letter came to her in the usual way, (a statement supported by the evidence of Boland, Aylesworth, Myers and myself,) and that it was ordered to be placed in a private drawer by the Premier, with some of his personal matters.

IMPORTANCE OF THE LETTER.

Now that is the crux of the whole thing, Mr. Speaker, this letter, and if it had been the desire of the Government, if we had been corrupt, if we had been desirous of destroying the evidence and the whole foundation for these charges, all we had to do was to destroy the letter of the 10th September, and then there was no foundation for the charge; but, Sir, the Government had nothing to fear in this regard. My meeting with Mr. Aylesworth on the 9th was, as I said, purely of an accidental character, when I discussed the visit of Mr. Gamey with Mr. Aylesworth in the corridor. Mr. Aylesworth

MRS. W. J. MORROW THANKS MEMBERS OF CHORAL CLASS.

Words of Praise for Mrs. Morrow From Mr. David Ross.

Mrs. Morrow desires to thank all the members of her chorus class and her pupils for their great assistance in making the concert given on Wednesday evening such a complete success. It was only by regular attendance and application that such a result could have been accomplished and much credit is due to that reason, for the pupils were very regular at rehearsals.

Mrs. Morrow especially wishes to thank Mrs. McAllister and Miss Dobbin for their assistance in matters regarding the concert and chorus class.

Mr. David Ross in speaking to the pupils at the reception given at the Y.M.C.A. after the concert, congratulated Mrs. Morrow on the excellence of the work of the pupils and the class and spoke very highly of their instructiveness saying that he hoped they would have Mrs. Morrow in Toronto musical circles before long. It is hoped that the rumor which has been circulating that Mrs. Morrow intended going to Toronto to accept an excellent position with a large musical institution is not true, for this town cannot afford to lose such an artist.

MR. INNES HAMILTON'S BODY WAS FOUND

Last Night in Some Ten Feet of Water.

Accident Occurred Between One and Two o'clock—Funeral Will Take Place To-morrow.

With his hands clutching the very weeds which caused his death, Innes Hamilton was found drowned about 10.10 o'clock last night in some ten feet of water.

It is ascertained that about a quarter to one o'clock yesterday afternoon, the young man went out sailing in his canoe, little thinking, as he glided swiftly over the rippling waters of the Little Lake, of the awful death which he was destined to meet, and which death, although but a boy, he met like a man. It is stated that the young man had a trawling line out. When in the eastern portion of the lake his canoe in some manner, which will probably never be explained, capsized, and precipitated its occupant into the water, in a place where the weeds grow unusually long and thick, and almost float upon the surface.

The fatality must have occurred some time between one and two o'clock. The story of how Howard Bennett, a young man residing in Ashburnham, gallantly attempted to rescue the drowning man, has already been narrated in these columns, and need not again be entered into, but it must be stated that the young man's attempt was most praiseworthy.

Within half an hour after the sad news reached town about a dozen canoes were either on or making for the place where the young man was seen to disappear for the third time beneath the peaceful waters of the lake. It is learned that the young man was a powerful swimmer, and perhaps it was his confidence in his swimming powers that made him relinquish his only safety—the canoe.

During the remainder of the afternoon and throughout the evening, canoe after canoe arrived upon the scene and joined in the search for the missing body. By eight o'clock there were some forty or fifty canoes on the spot, the occupants of which were endeavouring to locate the body with grappling hooks. At ten minutes past ten o'clock, the body was found by Mr. George Gauthier, by the aid of a rod with a single hook attached. It was in some 12 feet of water, and was about 40 yards distant from the shore. The unfortunate young man had struggled through the weeds, some of which were even clinging to his throat, and had reached water in which he could have swam had he not been so exhausted. Such was the tragic ending of a bright and happy young life.

The body was taken to the Ashburnham wharf, where it was met by Mr. A. Comstock's undertaking wagon. It was conveyed to the undertaker's, and later to his late home.

The deceased who was only 18 years of age, was the youngest son of Mr. Peter Hamilton. He was an enthusiastic member of the Colts Hockey Club and took an active interest in its management. He was a good canoeist and swimmer and took a deep interest in all legitimate sport. Besides this, the late Innes Hamilton was a valuable unit of No. 4 Company, 57th Regiment, where he will be greatly missed. The deceased was generally known in town as a genial young man and had a very large circle of friends. After leaving school the young man was connected with the office staff of the Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Company, and showed great promise of having in the furure a very successful business life. He was an attendant of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

Great sympathy is felt for the bereaved family, more especially the father, whose health at present is not good, and the tragic death of his youngest son will be one of his hardest trials.

The funeral, which will be without military honours, will take place tomorrow afternoon, from the family residence, Water street, to the Little Lake cemetery for interment.

A number of communications were read as follows:—

From H. C. The communication was referred to the Board of Works.

From H. P. Bryce, Secretary of the Ontario Health Officers' Association, stating that the executive of the Association had suggested Peterborough as the next place of meeting. He wrote to say that if it were agreeable to the town they would hold their next annual meeting here. This will be during the first and second weeks in September.

On motion of Aldermen Rush and Corkery the council will extend an invitation to them to meet here as they proposed. It was considered an honour to the town that this important educational body should wish to meet here.

Two communications from the Otonabee Power Co., asking permission to string wires and erect poles on certain streets in the town for the purpose of supplying light and power to those who had made application for the same. Also from the Town Engineer in reference to these communications, stating that he had gone over the parts of the town in which the company proposed to erect poles and he recommended that the council grant permission to the above company to erect the number of poles necessary (71).

These communications were all received.

From Chief Roszel and other members of the police force, asking that the council grant the members of the force a vacation.

Referred to the committee on appointments.

From J. Arthur Ash to the effect that he proposed building a house on Aylmer street and that as a sidewalk is needed in that particular section, he suggested to the council the advisability of having the walk built outside the rows of trees.

"That in consideration of the fact that the Water Commissioners are now doing the work formerly done by the Directors of the Water Co., and for which $700 each per annum was paid, it is advisable that the Commissioners be paid $150 each per annum, out of the revenue of the Waterworks Department and that the council be asked to confirm this arrangement, also that the Water Commissioners be authorized to pay the Town Solicitor $50 for extra services on account of the Waterworks Department."

Referred to Committee of the Whole.

From the Chairman of the Town Trust Commissioners, Mr. W. H. Moore, stating that they would require $4,312.50 for payment of the interest on the Waterworks Department, and if this is provided the Commissioners will be prepared to take up at par all the 4 p.c. debentures which the town is offering for sale, to be applied by them on the sinking fund account.

On motion of Aldermen Rush and Morrison the treasurer was authorized to pay the amount referred to.

From the Clerk of Stouffville Village in reply to a notification from this council that the village would be charged for the use of the Road Roller (which this town loaned them for the whole of the time it was in their possession. The communication stated that they had not been able to procure the stone as readily as they had hoped and asked permission to retain the roller until they had finished the work, which would take about three weeks.

FIRE, WATER AND LIGHT.

The Fire, Water and Light Committe's report was presented by Alderman Clinkscale as follows:—

Your Fire, Water and Light Committee beg leave to report and recommend that the fire brigade be authorized to have 16 men in the brigade in addition to the Chief, to date from Jan. 1st, 1903.

This report on motion of Aldermen Clinkscale and Batten was received and adopted.

STREET RAILWAY.

Alderman Morrison, as Chairman of the Franchise Committee gave a verbal report to the effect that progress was being made in negotiations with reference to Street Railway question. A franchise had been drafted which he considered very favourable, it was now in the hands of the Cereal Company for their consideration and he expected to receive it from them in the course of a few days when the matter would probably be settled. The Street Lighting contract will also be included in this franchise.

BOARD OF WORKS.

The Board of Works presented a lengthy report which will be published on Monday.

Mayor Roger called the attention of the council to the fact that as yet no provision had been made to drain the surface water off George street. This matter had already occasioned the council trouble and more was in prospect unless the work was immediately taken up.

The Engineer had already asked for tenders, but it had been thought by the Board of Works that it would cost too much to have an 18 inch pipe laid as the plans called for. This work, therefore, had never been proceeded with. A spirited discussion then ensued between the Mayor and Alderman Best, the latter stating that as soon as the Commissioner could get some of the works completed which were already under way, he would commence this important work. Alderman Best vigourously defended the action of the Board of Works, and stated that it was he who had first called the attention of the council to the necessity for this extra drainage provision being made, and declared that when the council had given the committee instructions to proceed with the work, it would be carried on as rapidly as possible.

The Mayor was emphatic in his expressed belief that the undertaking should at once be proceeded with and if the Board of Works was not in a position to do it, the council as a whole should take the matter up.

After considerable discussion had been indulged in a motion by Alderman McWilliams and Finnie that the council instruct the Board of Works to proceed as speedily as possible with this drainage improvement, was carried.

BY-LAWS PASSED.

A number of by-laws then were introduced and after having received their several readings were passed, the first being By-law No. 1029 to authorize the execution of a contract with John Kincaid to erect a Band Stand in Victoria Park at a cost of $430.

By-law No. 1030 introduced by Alderman Best to authorize the construction of granolithic sidewalks on streets named in Board of Works report also received its several readings and passed.

A By-lay authorizing the construction of sewers on parts of Simcoe, Dalhousie, McDonel and Downie streets was passed after having received the required number of readings.

Alderman Corkery moved the first reading of By-law No. 1032 authorizing the appointment of the following assessors for 1903:—Thos. McKee, W. Aldridge, John Kincaid and Thos. B. McGrath at a salary of $200 per year each, and also defining their duties. The By-law was passed after receiving its several readings.

The Mayor remarked that a number of requests had been made to have the assessors' lists published. He would not advise the council but thought the matter should be considered.

A By-law to appoint Dr. Jas. Bingham to the office of Medical Health Officer and town physician at a salary of $350 per year received the three readings.

A deputation from the Fire Brigade waited upon the council and asked that some improvements be made to the meeting room in connection with the fire hall. The deputation also asked that the members of the brigade be furnished with uniforms. Mayor Roger promised them that the matter would receive due consideration. Subsequently the first request was referred to the Property Committee with power to act and the latter with reference to the uniforms will be dealt with by the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE.

Before the council adjourned the following resolution was presented by Aldermen Rush and Shortly:—

"The council has learned with deep regret of the sad loss which our highly respected ex-councillor, Mr. P. Hamilton has sustained in the loss of his son who was drowned this afternoon. That the sympathy of the council be extended to him and that the Clerk be requested to write him a letter of condolence." This was carried by a standing vote.

The council then adjourned.

MEDICAL ASSOCIATION MEETING

An Isolation Hospital is Urgently Needed.

The Central Ontario Medical Association met Thursday night in the council chamber and after seeing a number of chemical cases and discussing the various numbers of the programme the "Isolation Hospital" question was discussed and the following resolution unanimously carried:—

"That in the opinion of this society there is an urgent demand for the establishment of an Isolation Hospital for the town and county of Peterborough. Infectous diseases have been constantly in our midst for some years and as rigid isolation the most essential means to stamp out cases of this nature, suitable means and equipment should be provided to further this end."

It was also recommended that a copy of the resolution be sent to the Mayor, Chairman of Board of Health and the Warden of the county.

THE LATEST NEWS OF LOCAL SPORT.

HOCKEY.

The death of Innes Hamilton came as a severe blow to the friends who had been associated with him in hockey circles. He was one of the most prominent members of the Colts Hockey Club, and was a young man who won the esteem of all who knew him.

* * * *

A meeting of the Peterborough Hockey Club will be held to-night at 8 o'clock in the Oriental Hotel. All members are asked to be present.

LACROSSE.

The lacrosse game last evening between the T.A.S. II. team and Millbrook, on the Murray street grounds, attracted a fair crowd who saw the locals win by a score of 1—0 in a game that was far from being brilliant or scientific. There was an entire absence of combination work, and altogether too much "shinneying." Of course two or three of the locals turned out last evening for the first time, and were unable to put up the quality of lacrosse which they are capable of doing, still the team on the whole put up a ragged game, and showed the need of practice. The Millbrook dozen are not much better in team play, but this is their first year in lacrosse and will do better with experience. There was considerable unnecessary dodging and holding the ball on the part of the locals and it behooves them to get down to practice at once, if they wish to make a showing in fast company. Mr. J. Mulligan scored the goal for the T.A.S. just before time was up. The referee, Mr. John McCabe, gave entire satisfaction.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A number of races were run off at the Driving Park on Thursday. The following is the result of the 1-2 mile horse race:—

1. Freak.
2. Keepabell.
3. Powell's Black Horse, (no name.)
4. Lakefield Boy.

Mr. Geo. Gauthier won the 100 yds. foot race, for which there were in all four entries.

Mr. D. Belland won the 220 yards footrace. There were no entries for the 1-4 mile flat race.

The 1-2 mile foot race was won by D. Belland.

Only the Quakers entered for the tug-of-war, consequently they were awarded the prize. A tug-of-war will be pulled off on Dominion day, and there should be sport enough in Peterborough to furnish two teams.

THE POWERS AND SERVIA.

Britain Withdraws Minister Until New Regime Is Inaugurated.

London, June 20.—In the House of Lords yesterday, Foreign Minister Lansdowne announced that the British Minister to Servia had been instructed to withdraw from Belgrade for some time, on the arrival there of King Peter, and in the meanwhile to do nothing which could be construed as a recognition of the new Government. Lord Lansdowne expressed indignation at the crimes at Belgrade, and said he thought it was not desirable that Sir George Bonham, the British Minister, should be in that city when the new regime was inaugurated. The Foreign Minister added that no proposal had been received for concerted action towards Servia by the powers, but the British Government had no intention of maintaining ordinary relations with the persons concerned in the massacres.

The Government had ascertained that France, Germany and Italy were maintaining an attitude towards Servia similar to that of Great Britain, while Russia and Austria were prepared to recognize the new regime, although Russia appeared to have claimed that proper punishment should be inflicted.

A WEAKNESS TO OVERCOME

The Morbid Young Woman Who is Like a Sensitive Plant.

I suppose everybody knows the nature of the sensitive plant, its disposition to shrink away and shrivel up at the touch of a finger. There are girls like this, so delicately adjusted that they are hardly fit for living in a world of rude contacts, where people jostle one another every day. But there is one great difference. While the plant cannot help itself, the girl can, and if she will but try she may overcome the weakness which after awhile does not wait for a rebuff, being actually on the watch for slights and apparently reveling in its own distresses. I cannot exaggerate this statement. My dear sensitive plant of a girl, do you know that your family live in terror of hurting your feelings, that your friends dread you and that you give us all the experience of skating over thin ice or walking on a rickety bridge? We never are quite sure that inadvertently we may not say the wrong thing or omit what we ought to say or forget a compliment or stumble across some stone we did not see. Really, dear child, you are not a very satisfactory companion. Tears are too near your eyes. You too often wear an injured air. If you had malaria or the measles we might send for the doctor, but where shall we find one to cure a malady which has its root in the spiritual nature? You must yourself recognize the need of treatment, and, asking God to help you, begin without delay to be another sort of girl. For, uncomfortable as the morbid young woman may be to others, she must in the nature of things be more so to herself.—Ladies' Home Journal.

NO USE EATING

Unless you Digest Your Food—Winnipeg Man Proves That Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Digest It.

It is necessary to eat to live, but it is yet more necessary that the food should be properly digested. If the food is not properly digested the different organs and muscles do not receive the sustenance they require, and they become starved and weak. This is the experience of Mr. H. Bailey, 256 Patrick street, Winnipeg. In a statement to the public he says:

"Although my appetite seemed to be good, I never seemed to gain much strength or weight, till I started using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. Then I think my food was properly digested and turned to flesh and to strength. I gained eight pounds in weight and received so much benefit otherwise that I can heartily recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to anyone suffering from dyspepsia."

The moral is that you must digest your food as well as eat it. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest it.

Wild Birds in Germany.

A correspondent of the London Mail at Dresden writes that the Germans are far in advance of some other people in caring for the wild birds in their towns. During the winter shelters from the snow are erected in public parks and private gardens for them and plentifully sppplied with food of various kinds, including mountain ash berries for thrushes and blackbirds and other seeds for the smaller birds. This mixture is sold at a very cheap rate in shops for the purpose. In springtime one may see many birds nesting in special wooden boxes placed in the higher trees, out of the reach of cats. The boxes are of different sizes, to suit starlings, sparrows or tomtits.

Give Tone and Strength to Your Weakened Digestive Organs.

Malt Breakfast Food

Whets the Appetite of Old and Young in the Hot Weather.

If you have not yet tried Malt Breakfast Food, begin at once, and see how quickly this peerless cereal food will tone and strengthen your stomach and whole digestive organism. If your appetite is jaded and uncertain, Malt Breakfast Food is the form of nourishment you need for soothing and comforting every organ connected with the stomach. Malt Breakfast Food keeps people well in summer. All grocers sell it.

Healthy Womanhood.

"Abolish the corset; remove all compression from the vital organs, hang the weight of the clothing from the shoulders instead of the waist, use beef or its juices for food, with plenty of vegetables—lettuce, celery and green things instead of starchy foods, like potatoes and macaroni, and you will literally recreate the race."

This is the prescription of Dr. Robert Sanglovanni to build up healthy womanhood and, therefore, a healthy race. In the fight against tuberculosis the doctor is waving a standard with a twofold device. It declares corsets the main cause of that disease and beef the main cure. He advocates the complete suppression of "the instrument of torture," as he styles the corset, but as a compromise he dictates that if it must be worn it shall not be assumed till the age of twenty-five, when the organs have attained normal development.

NEW EFFECTS.

How to Widen Revers—Medallion Trimmings and Fringe.

Revers, collars and stole pieces of coats and wraps may be widened admirably by ruched chiffon frills and a border of contrasting lace, black on white or ecru on white and cream or ecru on black. The contrasting lace is placed at the edge, and the frills fall from this.

The plain sailor hat is being revived, and nothing can be smarter, provided always that it is becoming. For those who wish a plain hat and cannot wear the stiff brim, the French sailor, with its jauntily rolled brim, is suitable and smart.

Some of the two and a half inch or three inch black insertions can be put into admirable medallions with only trifling waste. Another plan is to trim them with strappings of the silk piped with velvet or outlined with baby velvet and the pointed ends finished with tassels. An old fashioned fringe in jet or silk makes good tassels under a medallion of lace or jetted passementerie, and a waved trimming is also effective with tassels at the points.

Blouses or slips of plain silk or satin soon lose their freshness, but if covered with ficelle lace they acquire a new lease of life.

The cut shows a pretty bridesmaid's frock trimmed with bands of lace.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Shaking Up a Room.

A writer refers to the passage in Fanny Kemble's "Recollections of a Girlhood" where she tells of a habit her mother had of changing effects in her living rooms. Instead of allowing sofas and chairs to retain undisturbed possession of the places to which they had been first assigned, this good matron frequently introduced new combinations and new effects.

Try it, if you are in a state of discouragement. Pull your parlor to pieces. Bring the piano out from the corner where it has been standing for a year or more. Contrive corners by the judicious use of screens and drapery. Let the little rocker and the lounge hobnob sociably. Introduce a growing plant or two if none has been there before and if the light is favorable. Do away with the monotony. You will find a real advantage in the effort to change effects.

Japanese Panels.

Now that all things Japanese are in such favor, Japanese furnishing schemes are of particular interest. Japanese panels in anything from quaint prints on native paper to exquisite paintings and embroideries on satin are to be had, many of them in collections. Just how effectively they serve in paneling must be seen to be understood. Framed in dark, handsome woodwork such works of art are delightful as a frieze for hall, library, den, dining or sitting room. For a hall the long panels below are splendid if done in the Japanese handmade paper in leather effect. Or if one has long panels like those in the frieze they may be utilized with admirable results. Very rich will it be with the entire wall in handsome wood panels quite in accord with the beamed ceiling and the imposing stairway if it be a hall.

Had Quick Consumption.

"Three doctors said that I had quick consumption. Angier's Petroleum Emulsion was prescribed. In six months I had gained fifty-nine pounds in weight, and had no more night sweats or hemorrhages. Am now in perfect health." B. H. Walton, Medford, Mass. 9a

THE HOME DOCTOR.

Remove warts by rubbing several times with onion dipped in salt.

A hot strained infusion of camomile flowers is useful as a lotion when the eyelids are inflamed.

For constriction of the lungs a mustard plaster should be applied, and the surface of this should be spread with sweet oil or white of egg to prevent blistering the skin.

Dry heat is a valuable pain reliever, without any of the depressing effects common to drugs. It often possesses a sedative action on the nervous system obtained by other means.

A sty is best treated with an application of hot cloths. Wring them out of water as hot as can be borne; also bathe the eyes frequently with warm water containing spirits of camphor, the proportion being five drops to half a cup of water.

Vinegar, as is well known, prevents discoloration. Bathe a bruise with vinegar as soon as the accident happens. If it can be kept in place lay a cloth soaked in vinegar over the injury, moistening it as it dries, and there will be little if any discoloration.

Woman and Love.

One of the hardest things for most women to learn is how to love wisely. There are many women who "love not wisely, but too well," and there are many more who serve the idol of their devotion with such heroic self sacrifice that their efforts "waste their sweetness on the desert air." When a woman loves too unreservedly, too openly, she takes from love its delicacy, its beauty, its romance, and she makes herself commonplace, says the Pittsburg Observer.

How is it that a young man who is very much in love with a young woman will soon find his affections for her on the wane? Often it may be his own fault, yet often, too, it is the young woman's fault that brought about this indifference to her. When a woman comes off the high plane that a man sets her on, she injures herself, and though she may lower herself simply to show her devotion to him he cannot appreciate the efforts that brought her condescension in his eyes.

THE SOLAR PLEXUS AND INDIGESTION

How Worry and Mental Exertion Cause Dyspepsia—Cure Found in

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

The solar plexus is the largest nerve centre of the sympathetic nervous system, and may be described as a storehouse of nervous energy. It is situated just back of the stomach and supplies the motive power which runs the machinery of the digestive system.

If an excessive amount of nerve force is consumed in the brain by worry, anxiety, mental strain or disease the quantity supplied to the solar plexus is correspondingly deficient, and hence lacking nerve force the vital organs only feebly perform their functions. The digestive fluid flows slowly, the stomach loses its contracting power, the liver and kidneys grow torpid and sluggish, and indigestion soon develops into what is known as nervous dyspepsia.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new red corpuscles in the blood, creates new nerve force, and so affords lasting cure for dyspepsia, indigestion and resulting headaches, dizzy spells and irritability by supplying the necessary energy of the solar plexus. By noting your increase of weight from week to week while using this great food cure, you can prove that your system is being built up and new flesh and tissue being added to the body. Fifty cents a box; six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co, Toronto. To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 11

CONTINUATION OF DEBATE.

Mr. Lucas and Mr. Cameron Speak in the Legislation on Motion to Adopt Report.

At the conclusion of Mr. Stratton's speech on the motion to adopt the report of the Royal Commission, the floor was taken by Mr. Lucas (Centre Grey), who spoke till the Speaker left the chair. He said that the treatment complained of by the Provincial Secretary was largely the result of his own conduct. He had not taken the opportunity of giving an immediate denial on the floor of the House, to the charges made against him.

Mr. Stratton—I gave a denial through the press next day.

Mr. Lucas—An absolutely colorless denial. Why was not the denial given on the floor of the House?

Mr. Gibson—He denied it through the Premier.

Mr. Lucas—Did he? The Premier said he had every confidence in the Minister, but was that a denial?

Mr. Ross—The Provincial Secretary gave the charges an unqualified denial through his leader.

The Premier and his supporters had realized that if the Provincial Secretary was found guilty, it would mean the downfall of the Government. For this reason he had deserted Liberal traditions and British precedents and referred the charges to a judicial commission, whose report the House was now asked to endorse as a fair and impartial one.

Continuing, Mr. Lucas said that when the Provincial Secretary was negotiating with Mr. Gamey he was confronted with the question as to whether he would stay bought, and then his natural desire would be to get some documentary evidence binding or committing Mr. Gamey. What then could be more reasonable than that he would adopt the suggestion of Mr. Aylesworth and get a letter from the member for Manitoulin setting forth his position.

Mr. Lucas said he proposed to point out some very glaring inaccuracies in the judges' report. One of these was the failure to insert in the X.Y.Z. letter, which, it is admitted, was written by Frank Sullivan, the enclosure with instructions now to act when Gamey faced his constituents at North Bay. Another was the judges' comment on the timber transaction in which Gamey was to benefit to the extent of $5,000, Mr. Lucas said the evidence of R. A. Grant and Frank Sullivan showed that the conclusions of the judges were wrong.

Where did the money come from? was still unanswered. The Commissioners went so far as to say, if the missing leaves of the Crossin cash-book could be found the question might be answered. Where was the authority for that statement? "If I wanted to be unkind," Mr. Lucas said, "I could say that Mr. McEvoy, according to the evidence, was the last man who saw the books intact."

Adverting to the request of Stratton to Hammond to forget some things, Mr. Lucas charged that the Commissioners were not fair in omitting the statement from their report

Mr. Lucas' concluding remarks had to deal with the satisfaction which was experienced on the Government benches because of the character given the accused by the judges.

Mr. Cameron on the Floor.

Mr. M. G. Cameron (West Huron) followed Mr. Lucas. He said that he had on a previous occasion on following Mr. Lucas said the latter had been fair. He wished he could say so this time. (Applause.) As to Mr. Stratton's prompt denial of the charge, how could he have said more than he did, that the charges were fiction. A loud proclamation of innocence was not always borne out, for in 1873 Sir John Macdonald had proclaimed "These hands are clean;" but they were not. The aspersions cast on Mr. McEvoy were exceedingly cowardly, and if Mr. Lucas would repeat the statement out of the House he would be promptly brought to account. Mr. McEvoy's visit to the piano factory on that occasion was in company with two Conservative lawyers, Mr. McPherson and Mr. Macdonald, and if the leaves had not been torn out we might know where the money came from. The evidence

Mr. Crossin left no doubt as to who made away with the leaves. Mr. Cameron then quoted from Mr. Aylesworth's evidence to show that he contradicted Mr. Gamey on several points. The prosecution had failed to show that Sullivan was the agent of Stratton; hence their whole structure fell to the ground.

One minute the Opposition said the Judges went too far, and the next minute they said they did not go far enough. At any rate the report was satisfactory to the Liberals, and would be accepted by the country as a finality. It was true there had been a few verbal slips in the report, but they were of no consequence whatever in regard to the main issue, and his hon. friend should be above referring to them.

Compared to a She Bear.

In resuming in the evening, Mr. Cameron remarked that Mr. Whitney's speech had made up in vituperation what it lacked in argument. The loyalty of the Tory party out of office could never be counted upon, and, as Joe Rymal used to say, "a she-bear was not more ferocious than a Tory out of office." The Judges would live down the ire of Mr. Whitney; they were too high to be injured by a man of the calibre of the leader of the Opposition. The Chancellor had not commanded Frank Sullivan's evidence; on the contrary, he had linked Sullivan's name with Gamey's. The Government did not call the Judges to their assistance, but they called them to get at the truth. (Applause.) Mr. Blake had had perfect confidence in the decisions the Judges would give. The people would punish these men for their outrageous attacks on the Judges. (Opposition laughter.) The Opposition had at first said the scope of the commission was not wide enough; but later on, when it was proposed to investigate the campaign funds, they thought it was too wide.

Mr. Cameron asked if the evidence of such a creature as Gamey would be effective in consigning to oblivion a young man like the Provincial Secretary, who had risen from the bottom of the ladder almost to the top. His accuser, the man who had posed as a patriot, was only a common liar. The Opposition hoped to attain office by clinging to the skirts of a degenerate, who had left himself open to the charges of larceny, perjury and forgery.

Mr. St. John raised a point of order as to whether such language was permissible.

The Premier said the force and pith of the hon. gentleman's words had been embodied in the report of the Judges.

The Speaker said he did not know where he would begin if he called every hon. member to order for using unparliamentary language. There had been wide latitude allowed in the discussion, which the very nature of it made unavoidable, but occasionally a member would say something he should not say. He had no doubt the hon. member for Huron (Mr. Cameron) would say he should not have used the expression common liar. He had anticipated trouble, but he hoped such words as liar and thief would not be used any more in the discussion.

Mr. Cameron said he had much pleasure in bowing to the Speaker's ruling. He had intended to convey the meaning that Mr. Gamey by his course of action had left himself open to that charge.

Mr. Whitney said that he did not object to the language used, because he thought that the Provincial Secretary and the member for Manitoulin could not make their speeches satisfactorily without using such language. He thought it would have been improper to interfere with the Provincial Secretary, and if the hon. member for Manitoulin were given the same liberty no objection could be made. Under that consideration, and with the ruling of the Speaker he thought that there would be no further trouble.

Mr. Cameron, continuing, referred to some of the triumphs of the Liberal party, and concluded with an eloquent tribute to the Premier.

Dr. Beattie Nesbitt had only commenced when the House adjourned.

Violin Varnish.

The violin dealer was talking about the mystery of the old violin varnishes. "The wonderful tone of the old violins," he said, "depended on the varnish a great deal. The secret has been lost. We don't know today how the old varnishes were made. Charles Reade, who went into this subject deeply, claimed that oil with gum in solution and color evaporated in spirit were the bases of the best varnish. But whether he was right or wrong no one knows. A violin consists of from thirty to seventy pieces. We make violins today just as they were made in the past, but we don't varnish them the same. Some varnishes contained ground amber. Recently, to the ruin of a priceless Guarnerius, its varnish was scraped off and analysed and an abundance of amber powder was found."

Hope is always liberal, and they that trust her promises make little scruple of reveling today on the profits of tomorrow.

Two Are One

In marriage only when there is equality of health as well as affection. Affection may be the basis of unity in marriage, but the superstructure depends largely on the womanly health. When the wife is tormented with backache, distressed by headache, and racked by nervousness, she has no ambition for exercise or pleasure.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It cures headache, backache, and other womanly ills by curing the diseases of the womanly organism which cause them. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

Weak and sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The dealer who offers a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" does so to gain the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines. His profit is your loss, therefore accept no substitute.

"My wife commenced to complain twenty years ago," writes Lewis A. Miller, ex-Chief of Police, 33 Prospect Street, Weissport, Pa. "We have tried the skill of twelve different doctors. She took gallons of medicine during the time she was ill, until I wrote to you and you told us what to do. She has taken eight bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and six of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' She can do her own work now and can walk around again and is quite smart.

"You can publish this letter if you wish. We have received such benefit that we wish every sufferer could derive the same amount of good. My wife's complaint seemed to be a complication of diseases—so the doctors said. We will ever remain your friends. May God bless you and your Institute."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets are the most desirable laxative for delicate women.

Burdock Blood Bitters

CURED THEM.

It is well-known to all that bad blood is the direct cause of all skin diseases and it is necessary for the blood to be cleansed before the eruptions will disappear. For this purpose there is nothing to equal Burdock Blood Bitters as the thousands of testimonials we have on hand will testify.

Mr. Willard Thompson, McNeill's Mills, P.E.I., writes us as follows: "I wish to state to you what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. Some time ago my blood got out of order and many boils appeared on my neck, legs and arms. They were so painful that I could not sleep at night. After having tried many different remedies without any success, I finally decided, on the advice of a friend, to use Burdock Blood Bitters. Before I had quite used two bottles the boils had completely disappeared, and I wish to emphasize the fact that I think Burdock Blood Bitters the best blood purifier on the market to-day."

AN INFANT MAGICIAN.

Mozart at the Age of Four Composed a Difficult Concerto.

As a child of three Wolfgang Mozart's wonderful playing on the harpsichord was the talk of Salzburg, and a year later his compositions were being played in public by his father. He was only four years old when he composed a concerto so difficult that even his father, one of the most skilled violinists in Germany, could not play it. "Of course," said the infant magician, "no one can be expected to play it without diligent practice." A year later, when Wolfgang was only five years old, he was invited to give a recital in the hall of the university, when the magic of his tiny fingers worked his auditors to a pitch of the wildest enthusiasm.

At six he made a tour of Germany and became the idol of the courts, the empress herself taking him on her knees and hugging him in an ecstasy of admiration, while Francis I. embraced him and called him "my little magician." Shortly after he had passed his eighth birthday Mozart was electrifying England, was being petted and caressed by George III. and his queen and was publishing sonatas, a symphony and an anthem, which created a furore among music lovers from one end of the country to the other.

A Remarkable Clock.

Japan possesses a remarkable timepiece. It is contained in a frame three feet wide and five feet long, representing a noonday landscape of great beauty. In the foreground plum and cherry trees and rice plants appear in full bloom. In the rear is seen a hill, gradual in ascent, from which apparently flows a cascade, admirably imitated in crystal. From this point a threadlike stream meanders, encircling rocks and islands in its windings and finally losing itself in a faroff stretch of woodland. In a miniature sky a golden sun turns on a silver wire, striking the hours on silver gongs as it passes. Each hour is marked on the frame by a creeping tortoise, which serves the place of a hand. A bird of exquisite plumage warbles at the close of each hour, and as the song ceases a mouse sallies forth from a neighboring grotto and, scampering over the hill to the garden, is soon lost to view.

Same Old Excuse.

An old minister returned to his alma mater after forty years of ministerial service, and was being conducted over the old place.

"Same old corridors," he ejaculated as he entered—"same old corridors!" They took him to the dining hall. "Ah, me! Same old dining hall!" Then he opened a study door. "Same old study—same old study!"

Half round the fire a screen was drawn, and behind it he saw a student talking with a young lady.

"Dear me!" exclaimed the old minister pensively. "Same old practice—same old practice!"

The student sprang up indignantly.

"Excuse me, sir, this is my sister!"

A smile broke over the ancient one's face.

"Ah, and the same old explanation—same old excuse!"

WHY The Standard Mines and Milling Company

Capital $1,000,000 Ten Cent Shares

Is the Best Mining Investment on the Market To-day.

It's mines are in three great mining camps in Idaho, Thunder Mountain and Trinity County, California. It has vast bodies of ore already above ground and extensive workings under ground, thus enough insight for its three plants for years. It has one-third of the stock in another company that has the biggest and richest reef of ore (all above ground) in the world. All it has to do is to wait for dividends on this stock. It has a capable honest and reliable Management. The price of stock is very low for the present, virtually ground floor.

CURED HIS BRIGHT'S DISEASE

Former President of Bricklayer's Union Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Andrew McCormick, of Toronto, Tells of a Cure for the Most Dreaded of all Diseases.

Toronto, June 15th, (Special.)—In these days when the dreaded Bright's Disease seems to be selecting its victims at will, the report of an authenticated cure is received with relief by all classes of the community. And such a report comes from Andrew McCormack, of 243 Spadina avenue, this city.

That Mr. McCormack is well known and highly respected is evidenced by the fact that he has held several high offices in a number of fraternal societies, and was for several years President of the Bricklayers' Union. Interviewed regarding the cure, Mr. McCormack says:

"I suffered with an attack of Bright's Disease and naturally was much troubled concerning it. I heard of the wonderful cures effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills and concluded to try them. The result was so satisfactory that it gives me pleasure to recommend them."

Make and keep the kidneys sound using Dodd's Kidney Pills and there can be no Bright's Disease.

suggested the letter, Mr. Boland was with me, when the letter was dictated, and I took the letter to Osgoode Hall and handed it to Mr. Aylesworth. The letter was not signed; there was no objection by Sullivan to Mr. Aylesworth keeping the letter, but Mr. Gamey had pocketed the letter, and it goes up to the Premier by mail, and in no other manner, and this version is supported by Mr. Aylesworth, Mr. Myers, Mr. Boland, Mr. Costello and Mr. Sullivan, leaving myself out altogether. Against all this we have the unsupported story of Mr. Gamey. If this is a true account of the genesis of the letter, the whole story falls to the ground. Mr. Gamey says he saw me at ten o'clock on the 10th. Mr. Boland produced his books and letters showing he was with me at the time, and Mr. Costello, the messenger at the door, swore Mr. Gamey was never there two days in succession, and the livery keeper show they took me to Osgoode Hall that day, and the books show I was in the office of the Press Company on the forenoon of the 11th, so that on these days I was absolutely out of my office at the time and on the occasions stated by Mr. Gamey. Then Mr. Gamey says he deposited the money in the Ontario Bank on the afternoon of the 11th.

MATERIAL CONTRADICTIONS.

Now, his partner, Mr. Crossin, says that that money was deposited in the forenoon of the 11th September, so that there is a discrepancy there between these two gentlemen with regard to the time of the deposit, and when Mr. Crossin was asked to produce his books he failed to bring them. He was called for cross-examination on Thursday afternoon, he was called again on Friday morning, he was called again on Monday morning, and again on Monday afternoon, and after dodging all these days he finally came and produced a book. In the meantime the bank account had been examined, $930 had been discovered, and the books had been found mutilated, the bank slip had departed, and Mr. Gamey had departed also. (Laughter and applause.) Mr. Gamey stated in Buffalo, telling the Globe, Mail and World newspaper reporters, that the $900 had been laundered on the Island; while Mr. Crossin was in the box about the same time, or within 24 hours of the same time, swearing the $900 had been deposited on the forenoon of the 11th, and that the books were mutilated, not by him, and that Mr. Gamey had the only other key to the office. No doubt the $900, Mr. Speaker, and the $1500, came from the same transaction. Mr. Gamey is the largest stock holder in the Crossin Piano Company, and if these books were produced, and if the leaves of these books that were destroyed, were only produced, I have not any doubt whatever they would show where the money came from. Mr. Gamey had his own notes maturing at Sudbury, had about $1,500, and it is not surprising to a business man if he provided payment for them in some way when he was in the city. He owed the Crossin Piano Company on the stock, and it is not surprising that he should pay the stock. He told Mr. Martin—at least Mr. Martin says he told him—that he was closing a mining deal about that time, and it is not improbable that he closed the mining deal and that the $900 and $1,500 came from that very source. He says he borrowed $1,200 on an I.O U. from Frank Sullivan, and he did that to account for the $900. Well, I do not think that the member for Manitoulin has strengthened his position by the statement that he made at that particular time.

WHY MONEY CANNOT BE TRACED.

I am satisfied that if the Piano Company books were intact, we could very soon show where the money came from. There is no use; there was no necessity for getting this money anywhere. He owed the money, he owed money at that very time, and his credit was such that he could have obtained the money from the bank in which he deals, had he desired to do so, and it is not to a business man strange that the member for Manitoulin provided for the money in some way, but it is very strange to those who have watched this case with interest, the public of the province, to see the hon. member for Manitoulin going through all the different sinuosities of purloining, fabricating, destroying and endeavouring to foist on the bank different or improper bank slips. It is rather strange that the member for Manitoulin would do as he is alleged to have done, unless there were some very strange entries upon the book at that particular time; and I do not desire to be unfair, or to use strong language in connection with the discussion of the case, but I think the evidence has been destroyed, or at any rate it is not forthcoming. It would have been sufficient to crush the allegation of the member for Manitoulin, or he would not have done what he did. No sane man would have done what he is alleged to have done, unless he was destroying this for a particular purpose of covering up some crime that had been committed, and, sir, I have heard mentioned, "perjury," "theft," "fabrication of evidence," "liar and assassin," and I think I might say to Mr. Blake, if he were here, "I thank thee, Jew, for teaching me these words." (Applause.) What was the motive, Mr. Speaker, for all these actions. There could be only one. The perfidy would have been brought home with more telling effect if the evidence had not been destroyed. Where did the money come from? That is what the people of this Province and the members of this House have been anxious to know, and what, I think, the member for Manitoulin has been trying to conceal. He destroyed the account books, concealed the bank books which would have told the story of where the $900 came from, and they do not tell that to his counsel, and I do not believe his counsel or his friends; or himself believe the statement he made on that particular occasion.

MR. GAMEY'S INCONSISTENCY.

But, Sir, if I had bought him on the 9th, 10th or 11th, or rather if I had paid him money in connection with his plot, more correctly speaking, how did he become to be growing weaker if I paid him, when one would think he would be growing stronger. He commenced to get away from me after the 10th or 11th of September, according to his own evidence. If he had been paid by me he was very treacherous with me, because he was becoming weaker and weaker all the time after he had taken the money, and he had gone into the three Norths in the bye-elections to shew his fidelity to the Government that he had been paid its support. I think, Mr. Speaker, that even admitting for a moment, which I never will admit, and which could not be that bad, and which never occurred—admitting that some transaction had taken place, he had been growing weaker instead of stronger in support of the Government.

Then he says he got a $1,000 for the Globe interview. What were the conditions at that time? The bye-elections had just been carried, and there was no need of Mr. Gamey. We had sufficient of a majority without Mr. Gamey. If being bought why not buy him before the bye-elections? If the Government desired to prey upon Mr. Gamey's weaknesses, why could not we publish the letter of the 10th September, or the letter of the 27th October, which I believe were in the hands of the Premier? It might be said they were in objectionable form, but it need not have been put in that form. The statement could be sent out to the press that Mr. Gamey had given a letter, stating that he was going to give his support to the Government, and it would not have been necessary to have paid him money, or to induce him to take the money, or to have given him any inducement of any kind to induce him to publish the interview at that time. Why should a person take the risk to get the other document, that he alleged we took on that occasion? He was asking no money, he heard of no money until leaving on the 29th. Why money then? He came to me in my office then on the afternoon of the 29th, he saw the interview that had been prepared at his suggestion, he took it away with him, he brought it back in the evening and he altered it, and the altered document is among the evidence before the House. The interview, Mr. Speaker, that is complained of, it is a small interview of about three sticks—three or four sticks, and merely contains the statement which Mr. Gamey's letter did, but, Sir, if he was paid $1,000 for an interview of that kind, and he was plotting to secure the downfall of a Minister and the Government, why did he alter and change the document so that the document itself would be useless in regard to being any advantage to the Government, or being of any advantage as a means of using Mr. Gamey publicly, or affording any support to the Government. Mr. Gamey himself admits the interview, and he himself states that he made certain changes in it, and then he met Mr. Hammond, and he gave the interview to Mr. Hammond, after Mr. Hammond had interviewed him on numerous other questions of almost the same length as the interview prepared, and then he goes out, and as he is going out, he is met by me, he says in the anteroom, and I told him the denomination of the bills that Frank Sullivan was going to give him. Why would I tell him the denomination of the bills? What difference would it make what denomination the bills were? Why should I step out of my office to the room opposite to give him a knowledge of the bills in an envelope that were going to be handed to him by Frank Sullivan? There is no one Mr. Speaker in his senses that believes any such statement was made, or that I handed to Mr. Sullivan any money to give to Mr. Gamey. Mr. Gamey knows the facts as well as I do, and he know that at no interview on no occasion did he ever ask or speak of any consideration with regard to money, and the only time he ever used the word "consideration," was when he asked to have the same consideration extended to him as a supporter of the Government received. He says Sullivan handed him the money, they divided the money in front of the building, in a public place.

The whole story, Mr. Speaker,

BEARS THE MARKS OF A FABRICATION.

Why was no effort made by the prosecution to trace the alleged nine $50 bills? They made a great ado about the bills that were alleged to have been paid on the 9th, 10th, or 11th September; they made a great effort to trace the $3,000 of Ontario Bank bills? What evidence have we that they were Ontario Bank bills? There is the evidence, Mr. Speaker, that the Traders' Bank sent through the clearing house on the 12th bills amounting to a certain number, but if my memory serves me correctly, there is no evidence that these were the identical bills, and I tell the hon. gentlemen, they might try till the crack of doom,, until the end of time, and they will never be able to trace any money to my hands that ever was placed in the hands of any person to go to the hon. member for Manitoulin. (Applause.) Then, sir, the member for Manitoulin has not yet produced of his own funds any of the alleged bribe money. He has not produced any of these funds. It is true he produced the cheque for $1,500 made payable to his own order, which was afterwards endorsed over to the order of the Court, and he afterwards produced the $500 he was alleged to have got on the 30th of January; but, sir, he does not say that he ever discussed money with me, and it is rather strange, if he was endeavouring to entrap me, if he was endeavouring to secure evidence against the Government, he would not have made some effort to secure some evidence against me, and have some conversation with me, in regard to money matters. But, perhaps, if the truth were known, it is not at all unlikely that on the 10th September when Mr. Gamey went down to the Conservative leaders, and when he explained the nature of the contest that he had to run, then he shewed his party friends the costly fight he had put up that perhaps then and there, and that time, they provided him with funds and that these were the funds which were deposited in the Traders' Bank, or perhaps deposited in connection with the deposit in Mr. Gamey's story.

THIRTEEN MEN HURT

The Wall Gave Way at a Wilmot Township Barn-Raising.

ON THE FARM OF JOHN WEBER

While Placing Heavy Timber on a Green Cement Wall the Latter Gave Way and Precipitated Those Handling It to the Lower Portion of the Stables—Names of the Men Who Were Injured.

New Hamburg, June 22.—Saturday afternoon shortly before 5 o'clock a very serious accident occurred on the farm of ex-Councillor John Weber in the township of Wilmot, situated about two miles east of this village, whereby about thirteen persons were more or less seriously hurt. Mr. Weber was building an addition to his large barns, and had invited forty of fifty of his friends to assist him to raise the frame. When placing one of the heavy timbers in position the cement wall, which had only been built a few days ago, and which had apparently not thoroughly set, gave way, and precipitated those who were handling the timber to the lower portion of the stables, with the result described.

The following are the names of those seriously hurt:— Messrs. Gingerich, chest crushed and eye pierced; Aaron Shantz and John Steiner, injured internally; Jacob Binkle, thumb cut off; Allan Schiedel, one arm completely severed below the elbow; Edward Kropf, shoulder crushed; Joseph Stemmann, ankle broken. Solomon and Noah Shantz are also reported to be seriously hurt.

SAILBOATS TURNED OVER.

During a Squall Two Parties Were Upset and Two Were Drowned.

Rochester, N. Y., June 22.—The first drowning accidents of the season occurred yesterday at Irondequoit Bay, near this city. Andrew Hertfelder, a tailor, 20 years of age, and three others, were in a 16-foot sailboat, which was caught in a stiff northwest squall. The boat was under full sail when the squall struck it and it was instantly capsized. Hertfelder went down in 72 feet of water, and the body may never be recovered. The others were rescued.

The second accident occurred at almost the same time and about 1,000 feet from the first. Three men were out in a rowboat when water began pouring into the boat and one of them becoming frightened jumped out. This capsized the boat, and Joseph Lester, one of the occupants, was drowned.

IN A SOUTHERN CITY.

A Canadian Shoots Himself in Forest Park, St. Louis, Mo.

St. Louis, Mo., June 22.—The dead body of John Flett was discovered in Forest Park Saturday. A bullet hole in his right temple and one behind his right ear and a 36 calibre revolver lying by his side clearly pointed to suicide. The dead man was about 24 years old. A letter found on him read:

"To whom it may concern: Please have my body shipped to our family burial lot, Chippewa, Ontario, Canada.

"Notify Mr. John Flett, care of Flett, Lowndes & Co., Toronto, Ont."

Toronto, June 22.—Mr. John Flett was seen but was unable to throw any light on the suicide's identity. He has no relative in St. Louis, he said. Mr. Flett was informed of the tragedy by the St. Louis police on Saturday, but he replied that he did not know the young man.

FATE OF A SAFE BLOWER.

Dropped a Can of Explosive and His Body Was Mangled.

Noblesville, Ind., June 22.—George Marvin is in the county jail here in a dying condition as a result of an alleged attempt to blow the safe in a general store at Jolietville. Citizens of the village, who were awakened by a terrible explosion, found Marvin lying unconscious near the store with one arm blown away and his body otherwise so terribly mangled that he cannot live. When the citizens approached a second man ran away. The accidental dropping of a can of nitro-glycerine was the cause of the explosion.

Wrecked by Explosion.

Cincinnati, June 22.—The building of the Central Manufacturing Company at Court and Russell streets was wrecked by an explosion yesterday. Fred. Pape, the principal owner, was killed, and his partner, Joseph Kitchowski, was fatally injured. Several girls employed at the plant were injured, none seriously.

Lightning Killed Six Men.

Cambridge, Ohio, June 22.—Lightning struck a hut stored with 3,000 pounds of dynamite at the new mines now being opened near Senecaville, 12 miles from here yesterday during a storm, killing six men and injuring a score of others, besides ruining the mine shaft. The men were scattered over a radius of 100 feet.

Through an Iron Bridge.

New Richmond, Wis., June 22.—Twelve cars of a Wisconsin Central freight train left the tracks, broke through an iron bridge and plunged into Willow Creek early Saturday morning. A lantern was accidentally dropped into the wreckage and two tanks of naptha exploded. Thomas Carroll and an assistant were terribly burned and several others were less seriously injured.

Murder or Suicide.

Halifax, June 22.—A young Italian was found dead on Saturday evening on the St. Margaret's Bay road, fifteen miles from Halifax, with a bullet in his forehead. The Coroner's jury returned a verdict of shooting by his own hand, but the police hold the theory of murder.

Saved Children From Fire.

Tweed, June 22.—Ben Fisher, a farmer, living about three miles from this place, had his house and contents burned yesterday morning. He arose early to milk, leaving his children in bed, when he discovered fire. He ran up to the house just in time to save his children.

CATTLE-POISONING.

Woman Arrested Near Windsor on This Serious Charge.

Windsor, June 22.—On Saturday an information laid before Magistrate Cheyne in Windsor by James W. Hawkins against Eva St. Louis, daughter of Joseph St. Louis, a neighbor, living on the Tecumseh road, six and a half miles from Windsor. She is charged with feeding Paris green to cattle belonging to the former. The warrant was issued.

Hawkins and his own family, consisting of his son, two daughters and wife, were seized with cramps. Several families in Walkerville who bought milk from Hawkins also experienced the same sickness. The constable and Hawkins suspected that poison had been placed within reach of the cattel, and upon investigation found quantities of salt mixed with Paris green spread along the roadside between the two farms.

With the giving of the royal assent the wildest enthusiasm reigned. Flags were everywhere manifest and many buildings were decorated with bunting. A CARDINAL'S DEATH

Very Rev. Dr. Vaughan Dies After Making Farewell Address.

ARCHBISHOP WESTMINSTER.

Although Head of Roman Catholic Church Had Been Sinking For Some Weeks His Death Was Not Expected So Soon—Remains Will Lie in State—Sketch of His Career, Which Was a Busy One.

London, June 22.—The Very Rev. Herbert Vaughan, Cardinal and Archbishop of Westminster, died Friday midnight.

Cardinal Vaughan was born April 15, 1832. He became Archbishop of Westminster in 1892. He had been ill for more than three months. Late in March it was thought he could not survive more than a few days.

The Cardinal, who had been sinking for some weeks from heart disease and dropsy, died peacefully.

THE LATE CARDINAL VAUGHAN.

His death was not expected so soon. Friday Cardinal Vaughan was wheeled in a bath chair about the corridors of St. Joseph's College, which he founded. On the previous day, he appeared in the college chapel in full Cardinal's robes, and made a farewell address to his bishops and priests.

His remains will lie in state in the Cathedral at Westminster, another monument to Cardinal Vaughan's work, and will be buried at St. Joseph's College.

Sketch of His Life.

Cardinal Vaughan was born at Gloucester, April 15, 1832, the eldest son of the late Lieut.-Col. Vaughan of Courtfield, Herefordshire, and served with his father in the Crimea, where he invented a new and serviceable rifle pit when before the enemy. He was educated at Stonyhurst College, on the continent and in Rome. He was the founder of several colleges for foreign and home missions, among them St. Joseph's Foreign Missionary College, Mill Hill, Middlesex, and in 1871 he accompanied the first detachment of priests sent from that institution on a special mission to the colored people of the United States. He succeeded the late Bishop Turner to the Bishopric of Salford in 1872, and was made Archbishop of Westminster in 1892. He laid the first stone of Westminster Cathedral, June 29, 1895. While still Bishop Vaughan he acquired considerable reputation as a preacher, and published a series of pastorals, besides numerous pamphlets and letters on educational, social and religious questions. He was also proprietor of The Tablet and The Dublin Review.

Funeral of Dr. Dewart.

Toronto, June 22.—Impressive in its simplicity was the public funeral service of Rev. Dr. E. H. Dewart at Sherbourne street Methodist Church on Saturday afternoon. The church was filled with a large gathering of Dr. Dewart's friends and co-workers when the flower-laden casket was borne into the church. A simple service had been held at the family residence, conducted by Rev. Dr. Cleaver and Rev. Dr. W. H. Parker. The service at the church was attended by the Methodist Ministerial Association in a body, the official board of the church, the employes of the Book Room, about forty in number, and a large number of friends.

HON. MR. STRATTON'S EFFECTIVE ADDRESS

Delivered in the Legislature on the Report of the Royal Commission.

VINDICATION OF THE JUDGES' REPORT.

Brief History of the Case—Attitude of the Opposition — Base Charges Condemned—Review of Evidence.

The following is the conclusion of the report from Saturday's Examiner of Mr. Stratton's address on the motion to adopt the Commissioners' report:—

DID GAMEY'S FRIENDS PROVIDE MONEY?

I do not say that that is the way in which the money is to be accounted for, but have just as good reason to think it might have been provided by some of the friends of Mr. Gamey at that very time for his election expenses as that it was provided in any other way. The large sum of $3,000 in one man's hands, Mr. Speaker, every business man knows, is hard to hide in these days of keenness and system in commercial transactions, and it is just about as difficult to hide as one hundred acres of land. If you give me the name of a man who absolutely drew $3,000 and paid that money to Mr. Gamey, or anybody else, there will be no difficulty in a short time in absolutely tracing where that money comes from, because business men know that money, large sized cheques of that amount, could not be withdrawn from banks without their being traced. Now what was there in the Globe interview to pay for, or why should it be paid for. He said he was going to support the Government "in matters in which he was satisfied." Why every member of the Opposition supports the Government in matters in which they are satisfied. There is no question of doubt about that. They do; there are votes in this House on certain matters they are satisfied with when they support the Government, and that is all Mr. Gamey said he would do in the statement that he had prepared, and I do not think, Mr. Speaker, that we are accustomed to dealing with matters of that kind in that way. If he was going to give an interview that was going to be useful for the Government, it certainly would have been an interview that would have been stronger than the statements it contained. Now his friends were not surprised when they read that interview. Mr. Scott, the Socialist, said it exactly represented Mr. Gamey's platform. Mr. Martin and Mr. Bowen said it represented his views expressed to them — he only promised an independent support in matters he was satisfied with. If that be the case why was he paid for it? Why was it altered by Mr. Gamey himself, if he was playing a part? If he was conscientious in trying to support the Government there was no reason for his altering the article unless it was to modify the position he might seem desirous of taking when he entered the House.

GAMEY'S POINT OF TURNING.

Now when did the honourable gentlemen determine not to support the Government? I think he himself, while he will not perhaps admit it, could bear me out in saying it was the time when he saw his friend McMillan, and he determined to say he had got money. After Mr. Sullivan had refused to help him hold up the Government, he changed the sheets in this written story. Was the man looking for evidence? Why did he destroy the written contract, the evidence of the crime? Why did he destroy the contract of Mr. Sullivan? Why did he destroy, and I might emphasise it, the Piano Company books, and the evidence that there was any crime if there was any crime. Then he said in his affidavit on production that the copy of the agreement would be produced. Why was it not shewn to the court. Was it, Mr. Speaker, because the paper on which it was written was not in existence at the date of the alleged writing, the defence had examined on this point and the hon. gentlemen knows whether the insinuations contained in these remarks are correct, or whether they are not. There is no dispute whatever, then, with regard to the protest, as I said in my evidence and I say here that up to a certain time I was charged by the Premier with dealing with protests, and they were dealt with as I said in my evidence, and I had no further connection with any protests, good bad or indifferent. Mr. Grant gives his account of how these protests were dealt with, and if Mr. Grant's statements were not true, and if Mr. Grant had stated what was false, then all the prosecution had to do was to place Mr. Bristol, who was acting for the Conservatives in the box to contradict Mr. Grant. They did not do so, and the statement with regard to the protest made by Mr. Grant is absolutely true. This afternoon the leader of the Opposition said the protest was made concurrent with the letter of September 10th. My hon. friend will remember that the saw-off was made, not by Mr. Aylesworth and Mr. Grant, but by Mr. Bristol and Mr. Grant, on the 29th September, and it was carried out on the 4th October. The transfer of trial was moved to take place in Toronto, and it was finally dismissed on October 28th, so that negotiations could not have been going on at that particular time. Then it is said, Mr. Speaker, that there were 20 or 30 other seats that were dealt with in the same way, and there was no contradiction in regard to that.

THE MATTER OF PATRONAGE.

Now, with regard to the patronage that he was to receive — the same consideration that was given to other Government supporters — the same offer, Mr. Speaker, might in all honesty and all publicity be made right her to any hon. gentleman opposite, to-night, as was made in relation to Mr. Gamey. What I stated to Mr. Gamey was that if he was a supporter of the Government, he would receive the same consideration as other Government supporters, and he was perfectly satisfied with that; there was no holding out of patronage, and there was no corrupt inducement, and the only two letters written by me or upon my authority to Mr. Gamey were the two letters mentioned by the leader of the Opposition in the House to-day, and Mr. Gamey himself swore in the box that there was nothing improper in these letters. The whole correspondence of the Government was produced before him, and he was asked by the counsel for the defence to point out anything improper or corrupt in these letters, and he was absolutely unable to do so, and did not do so. If I had a corrupt bargain, Mr. Speaker, with the hon. member, I think that I would at least have appointed a little issuer of marriage licenses for him at Gore Bay, but, sir, the fact that when he made several recommendations to me, and they were not carried out, is, and should be, pretty conclusive evidence at least that there was no contract of bargain and sale between the member for Manitoulin and myself, and as to the appointment mentioned by the leader of the Opposition position, Mr. Flesher, I transferred to the Attorney-General, the letter with the petition that was enclosed, and the Attorney-General, after further correspondence with the persons connected, and not upon Mr. Gamey's recommendations at all, the appointment was made. But if it were a corrupt appointment, and I had spoken to the Attorney-General to make it, and had explained the corrupt bargain I had entered into, the Opposition had an excellent opportunity of finding out by placing the Attorney-General in the box, and obtaining the information from him on the matters they desired. I do not think it necessary to take up the time of the House with regard to the patronage question. I do not believe there is anybody believes I had anything to do with the protest, or with the patronage, or with regard to the money payment to Mr Gamey, although the money payment is the crux of the whole thing, and it required a little time to deal intelligently and fully with the whole matter.

MR. GAMEY'S BANK BOOK WITHHELD.

Now, I desire to return to a remark that I made during the evening with regard to Mr. Gamey's books having been submitted to counsel for the Court; and in connection therewith I desire to repeat and to emphasize what I stated in my remarks last evening. I have examined the book of exhibits of the Court and I cannot find nor place my hand upon the books that I said had not been submitted to the Court. Mr. Gamey has the exhibits, and I would be glad if he would show to the House and to the country wherein those exhibits were submitted to the Court. My bank books, my private accounts, my cheques, my notes, my every transaction from the 1st of August to the 1st of March, were submitted to the severest criticism, and to the closest scrutiny of the counsel for the prosecution. They were nearly three days going into this evidence, and into the accounts of the companies that I am connected with. I desire to call the attention of the House and the country to the statement made by Mr. Gamey when in the witness box in regard to these matters. When asked by Mr. Johnston, my counsel, if he had his bank book, he replied that he had, and when asked to produce it he produced a book on the Gore Bay bank, which showed nothing, except from the 1st of March, 1903. When asked where was his bank book prior to that time he replied that he guessed it was at home or in the bank, adding, "This is the only one that they gave me." Fancy counsel of the ability of Mr. Blake and Mr. Ritchie allowing the prosecution to submit bank books from the first of March to prove transactions that were alleged to have occurred on the 9th, 10th or 11th of September last and on the 29th January last. (Hear hear.) Those things

WERE ABSOLUTELY USELESS.

They knew they were useless, and they have, so far as my knowledge goes, up to this time not produced the books that might have given us additional information upon the important question as to where the money came from.

Mr. Gamey.—Just let me make one remark. The defence subpoenaed the bank from Gore Bay, and their books were brought down here and their books were left with the senior Counsel for the defence, Mr. Johnston, in his possession. They had every possible access to those books, examined every item in my account, and had every facility to put Mr. Hurst into the witness box if they wanted to; they had every knowledge of every amount and had knowledge of everything connected with my account at Gore Bay.

Hon. Mr. Stratton.—Mr. Speaker, the statement I made this morning I am ready to repeat, that was absolutely true and correct. (Ministerial applause.) If the member who makes these serious charges had not the fear of there being something in his Gore Bay bank account that was absolutely contradictory of his statement in the House and his statement in the witness box why didn't he put the bank manager in the witness box himself? (Hear, hear.) He could have there shown by the bank books, if I am informed since correctly, that the statement of Mr. Gamey would be entirely contradicted by the evidence produced by the account as it was shown on that particular occasion. Now, Mr. Speaker, I shewed yesterday, in dealing with the correspondence that when the correspondence was handed to Mr. Gamey in the witness box, and when he was asked by the counsel for the defence, to point out one improper syllable in the whole correspondence from the various members of the Government, his answer was that he could not do so; and I repeat that he cannot, and that no one else who desires to sonstrue those letters on the merits of the letters, can show that there was any improper or underlying impression that could be gathered from those letters in regard to my own or any other member of the Government.

LETTERS OF MINISTERS NOT IMPROPER.

I say without fear of contradiction that for anyone expecting even to play the role that Mr. Gamey says he was playing in this case, it is perhaps a miracle that where there was such an effort to extract letters from the various Ministers, that some references, some loose sentences, were not contained in some of the letters, that might be misconstrued to the disadvantage of myself or the Government in this particular instance. (Hear, hear.) I say, sir, that the correspondence produced will show the absolute propriety of the correspondence between the members of the Government and the member who corresponds with them; and that if it is blameworthy at all it is on the part of the Government in dealing as generously and as pleasantly and as promptly as was done with the correspondence of the member for Manitoulin. Now, Mr. Speaker, I desire to refer to the Piano Factory incident. What occurred at the Crossin Piano Factory was not vidence that might be admitted under any court of law, but it was evidence that might be admitted in this particular case, and it was admitted to have whatever doubtful effect it might have against myself or the Government, because if Mr. Gamey chooses to traffic in his own honour, if he attempts to purloin public property of this province, and if he desires to discuss his turpitude with Frank Sullivan in a piano factory, in a dark room, on a wet and rainy night, how is that going to affect me, or how is it going to affect the members of this Government? (Ministerial applause.)

MINISTER NOT COMPROMISED.

I say, Mr. Speaker, without fear of contradiction, that what occurred in the piano factory in no way compromises me in connection with the charges made. I am not responsible, and will not be responsible, for Mr. Gamey's and Mr. Sullivan's discussion in a dark room on a rainy night. I am under no obligation to Frank Sullivan; he is under no obligation to me. I neither fear him, nor I suppose does he fear me. I had never had a transaction with him either good, bad or indifferent. I never asked him to do anything for me in any manner shape or form; and if, he tells the truth he will say nothing to the contrary. (Applause.) Then why should I ask him to do something for me of a character which has been attributed to me by the member for Manitoulin? The only thing that was pretended by the evidence in the piano factory was that Mr. Sullivan compromised himself there, that his veracity was broken down by the evidence of the young men that were placed behind the pianos that evening. If that is so, then the statements have no weight against me; and if the statements made by Mr. Sullivan in the witness box are truthful, then they exonerate me entirely, and they are more likely to be true under oath than they are to be when they are planning and concocting their scheme in the piano factory. If he tells the truth anywhere he is more likely to tell it under oath in the witness box than in any other place. Then if his evidence is untruthful, if his evidence is to be considered as unreliable, his statements cannot hurt me, nor they cannot hurt the Government. I think that is absolutely sound reasoning. (Hear, hear.) If his statements made in one place are to be used against me, then they cannot be used in the witness box in the way in which they desire to use them.

SULLIVAN HAD NO AUTHORITY.

I deny most positively that Mr. Sullivan had any authority to act for me with Mr. Gamey; that he had any intimacy with me at any time or on any occasion with regard to that; and I say that his oath is as likely to be true as to what occurred in the piano factory, as is the story that was alleged to have been made up on that particular night. Why did Mr. Gamey say in the piano factory that it was important that the stories must be right in case of future trouble? Why was that, Mr. Speaker? Why was Mr Sullivan offered $2000 to hold up the Government? Mr. Sullivan stated in the witness box that he had been offered that by Mr. Gamey, and had been told by Mr. Gamey that Mr. McPherson would provide the money. Mr. McPherson was not put in the box to deny or to discredit Mr. Sullivan's oath in that regard; and Mr. Gamey did not feel warranted in denying the statement when he was recalled to the box by the Commission—when he was asked if he had anything to say, if he had any statement to make. Was the object of Mr. Sullivan being enticed to the piano factory for the purpose of making his evidence useful? Was it for evidential purposes that he was asked to go there on that particular night? Or was it to agree upon a story to hold up the Government? If it was the former, if he was asked to go to the Piano Factory for evidential purposes, for the purpose of identifying the Government or myself with this money, then I say that the questions that were asked by Mr. Gamey on that occasion were simple and foolish questions; but the questions that might be asked him, that might have been of some use and of some importance to him in this important case were not asked.

SCHEME TO CONCOCT A STORY.

They were there for the purpose of concocting a story, as I will be able to show. Now, Mr. Gamey leads the country and this Legislature to believe that he had Sullivan there that night for the purpose of getting corroborative evidence of his connection with the Government. If that be so, why did he not ask Mr. Sullivan something about the money? The money is the whole crux of this charge. (Hear, hear.) Outside of the money transaction, as the late lamented Mr. Pope once said, "There's nothin' to it;" and if their desire was to get some evidence in regard to the matter, why didn't he ask Mr. Sullivan, "What about the money?" "What did you do with your $1,500?" "Where did you deposit it?" "What monetary institution did you put it in?" If those questions had been asked they might have got some valuable information, if their story was true, as to what Mr. Sullivan had done with his money. If he had not the money, and Mr. Gamey's second statement in the box was true that he had borrowed $1,200 from Sullivan on an I. O.U., then I say why didn't he ask him what he did with the I.O.U.? He could have given him a handsome surprise if his story was true, by asking him to bring the I. O. U. up to the Parliament Buildings to-morrow evening at five o'clock, and there and then he would give him the money and take over the I. O. U. after he had made his "explosion," after he had made his speech in the Legislature. But I say, sir, and it must be satisfactory and clear to every hon. member in this House that Mr. Gamey and Mr. Sullivan were not at the Piano Factory for the purpose of obtaining evidence against the Government or against myself, but they were there for the purpose of concocting a story that would perhaps crush the Minister and necessitate the overthrow and fall of the Government. That was the sole intention and desire of those men on that particular day, because the answer to any of those questions that I have put, by Mr. Sullivan would have been fatal to the Government it those statements had been true.

MINISTER OF MINES.

Then, Sir, why did they discuss on that occasion what Mr. Gamey could get when he became Minister of Mines? Mr. Gamey stated in the witness box that he never mentioned Minister of Mines. He stated that distinctly and positively. Now, sir, I desire to point out that in that he was contradicted absolutely by two of his own witnesses. Mr. W. H. Price, when asked about the interview, said that Gamey said, "You see Frank, if I was made Minister of Mines on the Tory side you could give me a lot of information," and Frank said, "Yes, I could." (Hear, hear.) Mr. Percy Price said that Gamey said, "If I became Minister of Mines we could arrange things all right." He says, "You could get evidence for me"—at least I am not quite sure about this point anyway, but "you could get evidence for me, we would be able to despoil the Province. we would have the timber limits and the mines in New Ontario when I became Minister of Mines." And Mr. Sullivan was willing to go in with him, to unite his efforts to destroy the Government to accomplish this position which Mr. Gamey himself denies, but which two of his own witnesses say that he did say. I can produce the evidence of Mr. Sullivan. I will not produce the evidence of Mr. Sullivan. I will leave it to the House and the country on the evidence of the two witnesses that Mr. Gamey placed behind the piano boxes in the factory. But, why must these stories agree? If the statement be true, there was no trouble in having the stories agree. But the real story sworn to by Mr. Gamey was not mentioned on that particular reasoning, and that related to the money, one of the most important things that could have been mentioned on that occasion.

LOOKING OUT FOR NUMBER ONE.

Now, sir, Mr. Gamey and Mr. Sullivan, I have no doubt, were determined to utilize the knowledge that they had obtained of politicians and public affairs, and to use Mr. Gamey's position as the member for Manitoulin to advance their own interests as best they could, to traffic for Gamey in the public property of the province. That was their desire. And that is what Mr. Sullivan candidly and frankly stated in the witness box, and if it was not for that I hardly think that they would have stated that. I don't think that either of those parties cared whether Mr. Whitney was premier or Mr. Ross was premier. (Hear, hear.) Whether the Conservative party were in power or whether the Liberal party was in power. Their desire was to make money, and when Mr. Gamey became Minister of Mines on the downfall of the Ministry and the Government, then the patronage and the franchises would go to the gentlemen who hoped and were expecting to have the opportunity of going after these very important matters, to them. And Mr. Kenny, who was another piano factory artist, says that he gave them to understand that if things did not go their way on Wednesday, they could get it from the other side. If Gamey was not getting from one Government, Gamey could get from another Government, in other words. And, sir, the ambition of this gentleman with Mr. Sullivan as his confederate against the Government, shows the motive they had in view in connection with the interview, and discussion, that took place on that particular night. They do not deny that it was that they could hold me up, on a proper story, for $100,000; that is what Mr. Kenny stated in the box. But I guess they would find when they commenced on an expedition of that kind that they would realize that it was not as easy obtaining the $100,000 as it was to speak of it on the day referred to.

EVIDENCE OF FABRICATION.

Then, sir, Mr. Sullivan denies that the discussion that took place there on that evening was anything but a fabricating discussion; that these gentlemen were concocting their stories—were reciting their stories for the purpose of Mr. Gamey being able to make his statement in the Legislature. (Hear, hear.) And I am inclined to believe that that statement is absolutely true and correct. He says that he was at the Minister's office every day. Everybody knows that that is not true, who knows anything about the department. He says that he saw all the correspondence. He never saw any of the correspondence in my office, to my knowledge, and my private secretary says that he never showed him any of the correspondence, but that the information he obtained with regard to certain patronage in Manitoulin was obtained by his father at the Walker House, from the men who had been down and discussing these matters with members of the Government. If the piano factory interview was real and truthful, why did Mr. Gamey say to this Legislature that he had three shorthand writers there taking question and answer, and that when the proper time arrived he would be able to show to this House and to the country the evidence of the truthfulfulness of those statements that were made? On every particular statement that has been made to this legislature by the member for Manitoulin, on every statement that he has made in this House, he has deceived his own friends on the opposite side of the House—(Hear, hear, and loud applause from the Government benches)—the men whom he expects to stand by him on this occasion.

AN ALL-ROUND DECEIVER.

And he knows that what I am saying is absolutely true and correct, that he has deceived every hon. gentleman on the opposite side of the House, and not satisfied with that he has deceived the counsel that were protecting him in the Courts. Then he expects the people of this Province to believe the statements that he has made with regard to the shorthand writers and their notes. We remember the spectacular display that took place with respect to those mythical notes. They were put into a packet, it was sealed up, and we had to take proceedings in the Courts, or were about to take proceedings before the packet was opened and we were given an opportunity of seeing what it contained. And what did it contain? It contained a recital of three young men who nev-

Obituary.

The sad death of Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Middleton occurred at 12.30 o'clock at the family residence, 343 Water street. The deceased was 57 years of age and leaves seven children, four of whom are boys. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the family residence to Little Lake Cemetery.

FLORAL TRIBUTES TO INNES HAMILTON.

A Very Large Funeral Yesterday Afternoon.

The funeral of the late Robert Innes Hamilton took place yesterday afternoon at four o'clock, from the family residence, Water street, to the Little Lake Cemetery. The cortege was a very long one, showing the extreme popularity of the deceased.

The pall bearers were Messrs. James and Milne Hamilton, brothers of the deceased; Ernie Hamilton, John Cameron and Hamilton and Reid Munro, cousins.

Among the very large number of mourners were the office staff and employees of the Peter Hamilton Company; officers and men of No. 4 Company, 57 Regiment, and members of the Peterborough Hockey Club. Rev. J. A. Wilson, of St. Paul's church, officiated in the service at the house as well as at the graveside.

Notwithstanding the request that no flowers be sent, there were many friends who felt that they could not but express in a measure their esteem for the one who endeared himself to them, and the floral offerings of these were numerous.

Amongst the many beautiful floral evidences of esteem which were placed about the casket were tributes from the following:—The boys of the Bank of Montreal, friends in the Ontario Bank, office men of the Peter Hamilton Company, employees of the Peter Hamilton Company, officers and men of No. 4 Company, 57th Regiment, Trent Valley Canoe Club, Young Men's Guild, of St. Paul's church, the C. D. A. Club, Messrs. J. J Turner & Sons, and a great many handsome floral remembrances from personal friends.

The death of the young man will be very deeply felt in town, as the deceased was extremely popular and was well known. He was an exemplary character and gave promise of leading an exceptionally successful life.

The young men who have been associated with him feel very deeply the loss to the organizations with which he was identified.

At nearly all of the churches last night feeling references were made to the loss which Mr. Peter Hamilton and the family have sustained in the death of a son and brother. Few young men in Peterborough were as highly respected, his attractive qualities making him a general favourite.

MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

To the singers of Peterborough and vicinity:—

Your co-operation is solicited in the carrying out of a musical festival in Peterborough, to be held about the first week in September. It is proposed to give two evening concerts of high-class choral music (possibly with orchestral accompaniment) under the conductorship of Mr. F. W. Wodell, of Boston, Mass., who is widely known in the United States and Canada as a conductor of large experience and proved skill. It is possible that an afternoon recital will also be arranged. The works chosen are:

Oratorio — The Creation, by Jos. Haydn, Part I. and II.

Cantata — The Rose-Maden, by Frederick Cowen.

As Mr. Wodell is one of the very few in the front rank of the teaching profession, the instruction gained from the rehearsal of the above works will be of secial benefit to singers. There will be no membership fee. Singers will be furnished with copies of the works at wholesale prices.

Mr. Wodell is endorsed by all the local teaching staff. He will be in Peterborough on July 5th, and rehersales will begin at once thereafter. Due note of evening and place will be given through the press.

Intending members of the Festival Chorus should notify Mr. G. W. Mulligan at once, as arrangements for music and the accommodation of the chorus, must be attended to at once. A post card to his address is all that is necessary; state what voice. Mr. Mulligan is in charge of the management. It is hoped to have a chorus of over 100 voices and to give performances which will be a credit to the vocal talent of the city and vicinity.

Mr. Wodell is at once the most enthusiastic and inspiring conductor it has been my privilege to sing under. He is not coming here of his own accord, and but for the earnest efforts of the promoters we would not have such an opportunity, as he is coming on a vacation. His private tuition and voice culture will come as a special benefit to those who have been studying and wish to complete with a master. G.W.M.

Killin Keough students' recital Tuesday evening, June 23rd, at Y. M. C.A. Hall. Tickets 25 cents. Plan at Madill's. Choice programme by Peterborough singers and talk on "The Singing Tone" by Mr. Keough. Do not fail to attend.

4. We recommend that the Street Commissioner be authorized to build a concrete crossing at the corner of Sherbrooke and Park streets.

5. We recommend that the sidewalk on the south side of Homewood Avenue be extended to Wm. Stockdale's.

6. We recommend that the Street Commissioner be instructed to have the culvert at the intersection of Park and Parnell Streets cleaned out.

7. We recommend that the Town Engineer be instructed to issue a certificate to T. J. Moore for 40 per cent. of the cost of the sidewalk built by him in front of his house on Homewood Avenue, the cost to be based on 13c per square foot.

8. We recommend that the Town Solicitor be instructed to take the necessary steps to have the survey and plan made by Mr. F. Cameron of the River Front Reserve confirmed by the Commissioner of Crown Lands.

9. We recommend that the time for the completion of the sewers in Letellier and Mahony's contract be extended to September 1st next.

10. We recommend that S. Belcher be appointed inspector of sewers at $3.00 a day to be paid on the certificate of the Town Engineer.

11. We recommend that the Chairman of this Board and the Engineer be authorized to employ inspectors for the construction of sidewalks and that they be paid $2.00 a day on the certificate of the Town Engineer.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Clause 8 of this report elicited considerable discussion. It was thought by the Mayor that before this survey was confirmed it would be advisable to ascertain whether it was satisfactory to the town officials, and suggested that the Engineer should first inspect the portion referred to before the survey had been ratified by the Crown Lands Department.

Finally, upon motion of Aldermen Morrison and Rush, clause 8 of this report was allowed to stand at present and the rest of the report was adopted.

MR. W. A. SANDERSON'S BODY WAS RECOVERED.

Found on Sunday by Mr. Jas. Little and Mr. Clark Bronson.

Dynamite was Used to Bring Body to Surface—Esteem in Which Deceased was Held by all.

The body of the late Mr. W. A. Sanderson, who was drowned on Monday, May 25th, was recovered on Sunday afternoon, after nearly four weeks of diligent search. The friends of the deceased have been persistently pursuing every known means of recovering the body of Mr. Sanderson, and it was no doubt due to the great depth of water in which the body was, that the means employed were not successful earlier in the search.

On Sunday morning about nine o'clock, Messrs. Adam Hall, W. H. Meldrum, W. G. Ferguson, E. Wason, L. Hall, W. Lannin and J. Sullivan, the two latter gentlemen being experts in the use of dynamite, arrived at the lake to prosecute the search further, with the aid of this powerful explosive, with which it was hoped to so disturb the waters as to cause the body to rise to the surface. Discharging at intervals, after their arrival at the scene of the accident, about fifty pounds of dynamite, in some ten charges, grappling hooks were lowered, and in about twenty minutes the body was found by Messrs. Jas. Little and Clark Bronson. It is stated by those who were present that the body had already commenced to rise as a result of the dynamite charges being exploded.

Great credit is due Messrs. Lannen and Sullivan for the willingness with which their services were given and the skilful manner in which the work was performed.

Mr. D. Breeze very kindly offered the use of his yacht to convey the remains to Lakefield, and they were there taken charge of by Mr. D. Belleghem, and brought to town, arriving here this Monday morning.

The facts in connection with this distressing accident are so well known that only a brief recital of them is necessary. On the afternoon of May 25th, Mr Sanderson, who was spending the holiday at his summer cottage, "Boschink," Stony Lake, with his family, as has been his custom for years, went in the afternoon in his canoe to paddle towards Crowe's Landing, and never returned. His canoe was afterwards found. In some accidental manner, which perhaps will never be exactly known, his canoe capsized, and although a fair swimmer, he was drowned. The sad accident has cast a gloom over the whole community, for Mr.Sanderson was,it was fel', one of the last men which the town could afford to lose — a prominent and successful business man, beloved by all who knew him, and taking a most active interest in everything which had for its object the advance of the town, and betterment of its citizens. He was an attendant at and one of the best supporters of St. Paul's Presbyterian church. He was also a member of Peterborough Lodge, A. F. and A. M., and of the A. O. U. W., the members of which sociatjes always found in him a brother worthy of the esteem in which he was held by all. In sports he will be particularly missed because he had for years been one of the leaders in amateur sport in the town and it is no doubt very largely due to his clean influence that Peterborough has attained such an enviable reputation for the encouragement to legitimont sport, which it gives. Until his death he was Honourary President of the Athletic Lacrosse Club attending all the meetings and for many years was goal-keeper of the old Peterborough Lacrosse team.

Always an enthusiastic champion of sport he became identified with hockey immediately on its introduction here, and was one of the principle promoters of the rink which was recently built, and during its erection gave the work his personal supervision, so interested was he that he often remained for hours at a time directing the work. In Mr. Sanderson, the different athletic organizations always found a staunch champion, and it came to be considered that if any help were needed Mr. Sanderson was the one who could always be depended upon to give it.

Mr. Sanderson was one of the first to appreciate the beauties of Stony Lake and erected a handsome cottage, where he spent the time he could spare from his business during the summer. His hospitable cottage was always open to visitors and many enjoyed very pleasant associations with the host and hostess of "Boschink."

The late Mr. Sanderson was 47 years old and only son of the late Alexander Sanderson, of Peterborough, being born in July 1855. He has lived here continuously and for about 30 years has conducted a successful jewellery business.

During the years in which Mr. Sanderson has been in business, he has been universally respected, and everyone who knew him was his friend.

In 1885 he married Miss Wasson, of Warsaw, who with four daughters survives him. Mrs. Spence, of Chicago, is his only sister.

It is superfluous to state that the sympathy of the entire community is extended to the bereaved members of the family.

The funeral took place this afternoon from his late residence, Brock street, the services being conducted by Rev. J. A. Wilson. The pall bearers were Messrs. W. H. Meldrum, W. G. Ferguson, Adam Hall, John Crane, Fred Addison and B. Shortly.

Dr. Gray, Coroner, considered an inquest unnecessary.

THE PROPOSED BRIDGE AT GANNON'S NARROWS.

The County Council Makes a Visit of Inspection.

The Old Ferry Worn out—Necessity for a Substantial Bridge—$2,000 Granted.

On Friday morning according to arrangement the Warden and membes of the County Council drove out to Chemong, where the splendid steam yacht "Calumet" which had been placed at their service by Mr. Boyd, of Bobcaygeon, was in waiting at the Park wharf to take them to Gannon's Narrows. Mr. Belcher, County Engineer, Mr. Watt, County Clerk, and several other interested gentlemen accompanied the party. The object of the visit was to inspect the Ferry at Gannon's Narrows, which is about worn out, and to consider the advisability of replacing the old ferry with a floating bridge.

The party decided to first visit Buckhorn where, after dinner, they inspected the bridge at that point. After spending an hour and a half there they proceeded to the Narrows, arriving at the Ennismore side about 3 o'clock.

GANNON'S NARROWS FERRY.

What is known as "Gannon's Narrows" is situated at a point where the waters of Buckhorn Lake and Pigeon Lake converge into a narrow channel of about 1,400 feet wide between the north shore of the Township of Ennismore and the south shore of the Township of Harvey. Mr. Wm. Gannon's farm runs down to the lake from the Ennismore shore at this point, which is a sufficient reason for the name "Gannon's Narrows" having been given to this particular stretch of water. The ferry which has been used for crossing the narrows has been in use for years and in it's time has proved a very great convenience to the settlers of Harvey and Ennismore especially, as well as to the travelling public to and from that portion of the northern section of the county. But the life of the ferry is nearly ended—after years of service it has become so old, worn and out of repair,—that the county Council must now face the question of a new structure.

Mr. Robt. Shaw, one of the oldest and most energetic of the councillors from this division of the county, has for years been urging upon the council the practicability of constructing a permanent floating bridge, to take the place of this ferry. Year after year Mr. Shaw has renewed his efforts on behalf of this bridge, and this year the indications are most encouraging that his long sought for object will be attained. Through the united efforts of Hon. J. R. Stratton, and John Lang, M. P., a grant of $1,000 has been secured from the Ontario Legislature and another sum of $1,000 has been placed in the supplimentary estimates of the Dominion Parliament towards the construction of this bridge. The Township of Harvey has already voted $300, and the County Council is now almost certain to vote an appropriation thereto. A personal survey of the situation by the members of the council on Friday afternoon afforded the best evidence of the necessity and practicability of Mr. Shaw's scheme. The distance to Peterborough, after crossing the Narrows into Ennismore, is 16 miles, while if the farmer had to go round the northern road, the distance would be doubled. There are at least two school sections of Harvey which will be specially served by the new bridge, estimated at about 100 resident farmers and their families, without counting the transient travel through Ennismore and Harvey.

The new bridge will be 1,375 feet long and 16 feet wide. The depth of water where two or three piers will have to be built in connection with the bridge is about 18 feet. It is calculated that a large amount of timber and planking saved from the Chemong Lake floating bridge can be utilized in the construction of this bridge. The approximated cost of the bridge is $3,000 dollars.

After a careful inspection and discussion of the undertaking, the party again boarded the yacht and reached Chemong about 5 o'clock, where busses were in waiting to carry them to Peterborough, where they arrived about 7 o'clock.

CONCLUSION OF THE BAPTIST CONVENTION.

Closing Exercises in Murray Street Church Well Attended.

Addresses by Prominent Laymen of the Church—Business Men's Conference.

Friday was the closing day of the Peterborough Baptist Association's Convention, and in some respects it was the most enjoyable day of the three during which the sessions were held. In the morning meeting, two addresses were given, one by Mr. W. J. Huston, of Cobourg, on the subject "If I were a Minister," and the other "If I were a Layman," by Rev. J. Bastow, of the Murray Street Church here.

The afternoon session opened with devotional exercises which were conducted by Rev. W. E. Orton, of Campbellford, following this was the presentation of Sunday School statistics and a conference on Sunday School work, led by Mrs. J. T. Marshall, B. A., of Cobourg, and the discussion which this exercise provoked was both lively and suggestive, and resulted in considerable benefit being derived by those participating in it. Rev. A. H. Brace was the leader of a conference on Young Peoples' Work, in which the possible evil of the separation of young people from the church was recognized and urged to be avoided. The imperative need of young peoples' organizations was felt and their value warmly commended.

An interesting feature of this service was a business men's conference led by Mr. T. F. Matthews. He emphasized the importance of transacting church affairs on business principles and the need of the most absolute integrity in that department. The discussion which followed was heartily entered into and many questions were asked and answered which vitally effect this department of church life.

The evening service opened at 7.30 o'clock with devotional exercises led by Mr. W. J. Huston, of Cobourg. At 8 o'clock the regular session opened. Rev. J. Bastow read the 27th Psalm and offered prayer. The following resolution was heartily passed:—Moved by Major Caswell, seconded by Rev. J. E. Trotter, "That the delegates and visitors now assembled at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Association have great pleasure in tendering the pastor, officers and members of Murray Street Church, their hearty thanks for the cordial welcome and generous hospitality extended to them as messengers of the churches and would especially express their appreciation of the delightful repast prepared by the young people of the church on Thursday evening, which was greatly enjoyed by all. We are also grateful for the cheerful aid given, for the excellent music rendered by the choir at the evening services and especially to the organist who has kindly attended all the services." Rev. J. E. Trotter, as Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, laid special stress on the services of the choir and organist.

Rev. E. Bosworth, Secretary of the Grand-Ligne Mission was the first speaker of the evening. He told in a very vivid and pathetic manner, the story of the founding of this mission, some 75 years ago, and compared the feeble Feller institute of the earlier years, with the magnificent institution of to-day, with its 300 pupils, which is not only a fine school of learning, but a great evangelizing institution. He spoke of the difficulties that have attended the work throughout its entire history. In the early years there were no Protestants in uQebec, now there are 20,000 and 6,000 of these are the fruit of the Grand-Ligne Mission.

The next speaker was Mrs. J. T. Marshall, who spoke of the Moalton College for young ladies in Toronto. She claimed that there is no young young ladies' college in Canada superior to it for the training of the minds of young women and the development of the higher character. The principal, Mrs. Wells, is a first scholar, teacher and manager, but pre-eminently a Christian mother, who knows how to make the school a literal home for the young ladies in attendance. She urged very earnestly that all who had daughters to educate would send them to Moalton College.

Prof. Geo. Cross, L.L.D., of McMaster University, Toronto, was the next speaker. He spoke in behalf of that University, and said that all the churches of all denominations now recognize the need of schools for the training of the young men connected with the church, especially for the training of those who expect to enter into the ministry. The need of such schools was recognized in the New Testament times, and hence there sprung up the schools of the prophets. All great religious movements have been followed by an enlargement of Christian education. Christianity is designed not only to save the soul, but to develop the whole man, so as to make the most of each person that is possible to be made. There are no means of developing manhood to so high a point as those which Christianity combines. McMaster University has every facility for developing the intellectual faculties, but also lays great stress upon the development of Christian manhood. It makes them intelligent, broad in their sympathies and fits them for the largest possible service.

The new Moderator, Rev. J. E. Trotter, who for six years was the highly esteemed and successful pastor of Murray Street Church here, was then introduced in a genial speech by Rev. J. T. Marshall, the retiring Moderator. He accepted the position in a graceful manner, soliciting the co-operation of all in the work of the entire year.

The Convention was brought to a close about 10 o'clock.

All the services have been characterized by a spirit of unity and thoughtful consideration of the work of the church.

The evidences are that the meetings of the Association were the best that have ever been held. The Association has left a favourable impression upon the people who have attended the services and will, undoubtedly, stimulate the life of the church.

FORESTERS ATTEND ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

Eloquent Sermon Preached by Rev. J. C. Davidson Last Night.

Last evening the members of Court Chemong 530, Independent Order of Foresters attended divine service in St. John's Church, it being the occasion of the annual church service of Court Chemong.

Rev. J. C. Davidson, who conducted the service, preached the sermon, the text for which he took from 12 Romans, verse 17:—"Provide things honest in sight of all men" or "Take thought of things honourable in the sight of all men" as it reads in the revised version of the Bible.

Mr. Davidson commenced his sermon by saying that our lives should be used in working forward to the future, which, he said, was the equivalent to the word "provide" which St. Paul Paul used. However, this future which we are all to look forward to must be honest, straight forward and noble, so that the provision which we prepare shall be worthy of those for whom it is prepared. He stated that if any person does not provide for his own, he has own, he has denied the faith and is an infidel, for we are commanded to provide for what we know will come to pass. He then went into a few particulars of the I.O.F., which, he stated, ed, had been born in the United States, but had been so enthusiastically taken up by Canadians, that now its head court was on Canadian soil and it was governed entirely by Canadian brains and enterprise.

The preacher then struck a different chord and exorted those to whom he was speaking more directly, not only to attend to the duties of their Order, but also to fulfil the duties of the Church of God. He said that instead of uniting, religion nowadays tended to divide, which state of things should not exist, and which he trusted would not exist in the future.

In conclusion the rector stated that the religion of Jesus Christ was not a religion of the future, but a thing of the present, therefore its duties should be fulfilled now and not in the future.

At the close of the cervice the members returned to their hall, and a cordial vote of thanks was tendered the Rev. Brother Davidson, and the officials and choir of St. John's and also the visiting brethren. Rev. Davidson and representatives from Lakefield and Keene made suitable replies.

The turn out of Court Chemong was perhaps the most creditable in its history in Peterborough, and one of which the members may be justly proud.

BASEBALL.

At the Murray street grounds on Saturday a game was played in the City League between the Pullmans and the Auburns. The score, 18—8 in favour of the Auburns, will tell the story of the game. The Pullmans scored in the first and ninth innings on some loose plays by the Auburns. McCorry, for the Auburns, pitched a good game throughout striking out nine men, while McCabe made four opposing batters fan the air and gave two bases on balls. The Auburns had their batting eye and seventeen safe hits was the result, Casson carrying off the honours with 4 hits in 5 times at bat, one home run, a three-bagger and two singles. The Pullmans were not as fortunate in this respect, being only able to touch McCorry for 7 hits.

Irish Land Bill.

London, June 22.—Chief Irish Secretary Wyndham Saturday submitted a new clause to the Irish land bill, the effect of which will be to bring about 130,000 non-judicial and future tenants within the scope of the act. It is believed that this concession will form a basis of compromise between the Nationalist party and the Government.

CURED HIS BRIGHT'S DISEASE

Former President of Bricklayer's Union Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Andrew McCormick, of Toronto, Tells of a Cure for the Most Dreaded of all Diseases.

Toronto, June 15th, (Special)—In these days when the dreaded Bright's Disease seems to be selcting its victims at will, the report of an authenticated cure is received with relief by all classes of the community. And such a report comes from Andrew McCormack, of 243 Spadina avenue, this city.

That Mr. McCormack is well known and highly respected is evidenced by the fact that he has held several high offices in a number of fraternal societies, and was for several years President of the Bricklayers' Union. Interviewed regarding the cure, Mr. McCormack says:

"I suffered with an attack of Bright's Disease and naturally was much troubled concerning it. I heard of the wonderful cures effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills and concluded to try them. The result was so satisfactory that it gives me pleasure to recommend them."

Make and keep the kidneys sound using Dodd's Kidney Pills and there can be no Bright's Disease.

MINISTER RECALLED

Britain Breaks Diplomatic Relations With Servia.

SIMILAR ATTITUDE BY OTHERS

The Dutch Representative at Belgrade Instructed to Retire Also—The United States Minister Will Likewise Fail to Present His Credentials to King Peter at Present—What the King Must Do.

Belgrade, June 22.—Great Britain has practically broken off diplomatic relations with Servia. The British Minister, Sir G. F. Bonham, leaves here to-day for England. The Consul of Great Britain, W. G. Thesiger, will take charge of British interests.

U.S. Follows Britain.

Washington, June 22.—The United States Government has adopted an attitude similar to that of Great Great Britain toward the new Servian dynasty. It will be in no haste to recognize a Government created by assassination in the absence of some exhibition of a disposition to punish the guilty, therefore Minister Jackson will not present his credentials to the Government of King Peter at present.

The Dutch Also.

The Hague, June 22.—The Dutch representative at Belgrade has been instructed to assume the same attitude as Great Britain towards the provisional Government of Servia.

What Peter Must Do.

Belgrade, June 22.— Unless King Peter is prepared to altogether ignore the foreign demands for the punishment of the assassins of King Alexander and Queen Draga, his only means of satisfying any requirements appears to be to persuade the criminals to absent themselves until quiet is restored, when they will be permitted to resume their places in the army. The provisional Government holds office solely at the will of the army, and should King Peter promise to punish the officers implicated, it is as likely as not that the army will force the withdrawal of the invitation to occupy the throne. It is suggested in official quarters that Russia may possibly advise the officers concerned to absent themselves.

King Peter's Going.

Vienna, June 22.—King Peter will arrive here at 10 o'clock Tuesday evening. At the railroad station he will receive the homage of the Servian colony, and will continue his journey by way of Buda-Pest, arriving at Belgrade Wednesday morning.

NO USE EATING

Unless you Digest Your Food—Winnipeg Man Proves That Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Digest It.

It is necessary to eat to live, but it is yet more necessary that the food should be properly digested. If the food is not properly digested the different organs and muscles do not receive the sustenance they require, and they become starved and weak. This is the experience of Mr. H. Bailey, 256 Patrick street, Winnipeg. In a statement to the public he says:

"Although my appetite seemed to be good, I never seemed to gain much strength or weight, till I started using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. Then I think my food was properly digested and turned to flesh and to strength. I gained eight pounds in weight and received so much benefit otherwise that I can heartily recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to anyone suffering from dyspepsia."

The moral is that you must digest your food as well as eat it. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest it.

Entertained 800 Guests.

London, June 20.—The King and Queen entertained 800 persons at a ball in Windsor Castle last night. The dancing took place in Waterloo Chamber, the crack band of the Scotch Guards contributing the music. Supper was served in St. St. George's Hall. All the members of the royal family were present at the function.

A Trust Goes Down.

Trenton, N.J., June 22.—Application was made in the Court of Chancery Saturday by Andrew H. McNeal of Burlington, N.J., for the appointment of a receiver for the United States Cast Iron Pipe and Foundry Company, which has fourteen plants throughout the country. The company was incorporated about three years ago, with a capital of $30,000,000. Mr. McNeal, in his bill of complaint, charges extravagance and mismanagement.

New Alaska Cable.

Washington, June 22. — General Greely has been informed that 580 miles of the sub-marine cable to be laid between Puget Sound and Alaska has been shipped from New York to Seattle. The remaining 750 miles will be shipped from New York in August. This is the first long cable ever made in the United States. It is of the seamless rubber type.

Toronto, June 22.—Rev. Dr. Caven still continues in a very precarious condition. He took nourishment well yesterday, but the distinguished patient is very weak, and no general improvement was noted.

Ten Killed in Railway Wreck.

Mr. Hepburn Left Money With Manager Rowley But There Is No Trace of It on the Books.

St. Thomas, June 22.—The latest developments in regard to the Elgin Loan matters were discovered Saturday morning, when Mr. Mitchell Hepburn of Yarmouth, one of Elgin's wealthiest farmers, came to town to inquire into his deposits in the company. Three months ago he made a special deposit of $7,000 with Manager Geo. Rowley, to bear 4½ per cent. interest. There is no trace whatever of it in the books of the company.

RACE WAR AT MONTREAL.

Battle on the Road Between White and Colored Men.

Montreal, June 22.—As the result of a fierce fight between a crowd of white and colored men on the road about half way between Montreal and Back River Saturday, several of the combatants are now in a critical condition, and two or three of them may die.

The fight lasted for fully half an hour, and knives and bludgeons were freely used.

The white men seem to have got the worst of the battle, as two of them had to be taken to the hospital, and two others to their homes on St. Denis street. William Dilaire of Park avenue, was taken to the Royal Victoria Hospital, where no fewer than eighteen stitches had to be put in one of the most severe of the cuts. The other white man, Lazone Poulin, who was also taken to the hospital, has a serious cut on the head, inflicted probably with a bludgeon or a piece of a fence rail.

In the battle on the road, knives, bludgeons in the shape of fence rails; in fact, everything the combatants could lay their hands on were used. None of the colored men were seriously injured.

17,000 GO TO WORK.

After Losing $1,300,000 in Wages Since the 30th March.

Lowell, Mass., June 22.—The textile council yesterday afternoon declared the great strike in the Lowell mills at an end. Every union affiliated with the council was represented and the vote was unanimous.

Mule spinners and loom fixers were included in the vote, despite statements that they would oppose a return to work.

The strike began on March 30 and involved about 17,000 operatives. The mills were shut down until June 1, when the agents opened the gates and the mafority of the operatives went back to work.

The strike has cost in wages about $1,300,000.

Both Sides Complain.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 22.—When the Conciliation Board meets in this city on Thursday the operators will have grievances to be adjusted, as well as the miners and this will be a surprise to many of the latter, who believed that the coal companies had nothing to complain of.

Salmon Fishers on Strike.

Vancouver, B.C., June 22.—Fishermen held a meeting at New Westminster Saturday and decided not to fish unless canners concede to their demands.

THE CREW SAVED.

St. Joseph, From Toronto, Hard on Rocks Near Oswego.

Oswego, N.Y., June 22.—During a dense fog yesterday the steamer St. Joseph of Oswego, Captain Michael Holland, bound from Toronto to Oswego, for coal, ran ashore on Ford shoals, three miles west of this port. The St. Joseph is hard on the rocks in five feet of water, half a mile from shore.

Two tugs worked all day in a fruitless effort to release the vessel. Her crew of nine is safe. The St. Joseph is owned by the Ontario and Western Railway Company.

Fire at Arthur.

Arthur, June 22.—A serious fire broke out about 10 o'clock yesterday morning in Scott's Block, which was occupied by J. Skerrits & Co.'s bank, Mitchell & Co.'s large general store, F. S. Mitchell and William Peterkin's dwelling above, also C. Jerome's new photograph gallery, which was just fitted up. The building was entirely destroyed. Mitchell & Co.'s had $7,000 insurance on stock, but there will be a heavy loss, as there was over $5,000 worth of stock which was not removed. William Peterkin, F. S. Mitchell and C. Jerome saved nearly everything. J. Skerrits' insurance on contents is unknown; $2,400 insurance on building.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists, price 75c per bottle. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Honor Your Sex.

"It should be the first care of every mother," says the Health Journal, "as soon as her girls reach the age of twelve years to teach them to cook. It does not matter if they may count on an income of $2,500 or $250 each per annum, whether they are fine ladies or poor working girls, they should know that the woman who cannot cook and serve up an appetizing meal without wasting good food is a disgrace to her sex. It is true that the rich woman need not go into her kitchen and soil her fingers in doing what she can pay servants to do for her. None the less she should be able to criticise their efforts and supervise the household expenditure, so that a perfect knowledge of the art of cookery is as necessary to her as it is to the laborer's wife who has to make one shilling do the work of two and yet feed the family well"

THE SOLAR PLEXUS AND INDIGESTION

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

The solar plexus is the largest nerve centre of the sympathetic nervous system, and may be described as a storehouse of nervous energy. It is situated just back of the stomach and supplies the motive power which runs the machinery of the digestive system.

If an excessive amount of nerve force is consumed in the brain by worry, anxiety, mental strain or disease the quantity supplied to the solar plexus is correspondingly deficient, and hence lacking nerve force the vital organs only feebly perform their functions. The digestive fluid flows slowly, the stomach loses its contracting power, the liver and kidneys grow torpid and sluggish, and indigestion soon develops into what is known as nervous dyspepsia.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new red corpuscles in the blood, creates new nerve force, and so affords lasting cure for dyspepsia, indigestion and resulting headaches, dizzy spells and irritability by supplying the necessary energy of the solar plexus. By noting your increase of weight from week to week while using this great food cure, you can prove that your system is being built up and new flesh and tissue being added to the body. Fifty cents a box; six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co, Toronto. To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 11

THE FRENCH BRITON

LATE MAX O'RELL THE APOSTLE OF CHEERFUL THINGS.

Three Nations Deplore the Death of Paul Blouet—Left France and Became a Schoolmaster in "Perfidious Albion"—Well Known to Canada and Canadians—"John Bull and His Island."

Three nations deplore the death of the one living humorist known and esteemed by them all. Max O'Rell, the good-natured satirist, the cheerful philosopher, has made his last jest. He understood the English better than any living Frenchman, the French better than an Englishman, and the Americans better than themselves. In London and New York he was equally at home, and equally welcome. In Paris he was esteemed as the most worthy of Englishmen. His books found a ready sale on both continents; his views were listened to with respect when he was serious, and laughed at when his intention was humorous. In fact, M. O'Rell was well treated. He can make no insolent demands on posterity, for he was never neglected or misunderstood. "John Bull and His Island" found instant appreciation, and made the fortune of its author. Since then his reign has been steady and secure. In his own field he stood alone, and must have been unusually free from those pangs of jealousy which have tortured greater men. Max O'Rell's was a happy life. This perhaps is the reason he became one of the chief apostles of cheerfulness. Or was his life the result of his philosophy?

Blouet as a Soldier.

The world cannot complain that it didn't know much about the real Max O'Rell, for he took everyone into his confidence. His sketches tell his story. They are in the highest degree expository. The facts about his career which find a place in biographical literature are few. Born in Brittany in 1848, Paul Blouet was educated in Paris, where he received the degrees of B.A. and B.Sc. He fought against the Germans, and, like all Frenchmen, was wounded in battle. Like most of them, also, he was captured at Sedan. In Paris, later, he was in arms against the Commune, and then bade farewell to his native land, and crossed the channel to "perfidious Albion." He was correspondent for the Journal des Debats, but later on secured a more profitable position as French master at St. Paul's School. The boys, it is said, fairly idolized the gentle, courteaous and witty Frenchman, but as one of them remarked, "that fellow knows too much about us." While master at St. James', M. Blouet collected the material for his first book. "John Bull and His Island," which was written in French and well received by the public for whom it was intended. On being translated into English, it was greeted with enthusiasm, and the French master's future was assured. Its success was repeated in the several volumes of sketches and observations which succeeded it, and of which "John Bull and Co.," "Jonathan and His Continent," and "Jacques Bonhomme" are the best known. Besides these there were "The Dear Neighbors," "Drat the Boys," "John Bull's Daughter," "Friend MacDonald," and "A Frenchman in America." M. Blouet also published a few more serious volumes, notably, a study of French oratory. His wife was his translater.

A Lecture on Waterloo.

In 1884, O'Rell resigned from St. Paul's to travel and lecture, and ever since has been a bird of passage, Zanzibar, New Zealand, Quebec, Chicago, Toronto and Montreal, Paris and Edinburgh all knew him. He passed with his message of cheerfulness, his good-natured raillery at humbug and sometimes his fiery denunciation of cruelty and injustice. In 1891, on a trip round the world, he delivered no fewer than 446 lectures. He relates an amusing incident which happened while he was addressing an audience in Bendigo. He had been talking about some of John Bull's peculiarities, and observed, among the laughing audience one rather intoxicated listener, who struggled for some time with his growing exasperation. Finally he got on his feet and shouted: "Leave John Bull alone, you beggar, and give us a lecture on Waterloo!" This supplied the alert M. Max with the generality that, in their cups, Englishmen are pugnacious and conservative, whereas the French are socialistic and emotional. Visiting America he discovered that the population of the United States was sixty millions—mostly colonels. He observed, also, that though the American forgives the Englishman for the tyranny which led to the War of Independence, he will not forgive him for coming to the American's dinner table in a tweed suit. Professing the greatest admiration and respect for all Americans, he declares that the American does not yet exist. The type is not fixed.

Toronto's Pretty Girls.

During his tour the French humorist visited Canada, and was charmed with the French-Canadian. He found Toronto very American as regards its downtown appearance, but English in its residential district, where flowers and shrubs formed a pleasing barrenness of United States cities in this respect. He says: "Toronto swarms with churches and pretty women. I never, in any town, saw quite so many of either." Thenceforward people began to ask for his books at the Public Library, and his fame was declared to be deserved. He found our women "English in coloring and simplicity of dress, American in natural bearing and frankness of speech." He did not approve of our carless Sabbath, and said that here Scotland was outdone completely. Nor did he fail to notice the incongruity between sensational theatrical posters and the quiet Sunday streets on which they flaunted themselves. However, before this he had discovered that the Anglo-Saxon is the only race which produces men capable of both singing hymns and swearing.

Give Every Boy a Chance.

It was an inspection of our Public schools which prompted a remark which is quoted to show that Max O'Rell was receptive to serious thoughts and anything but the buffoon some have considered him: "Society in the Old World will not stand long on its present basis. There will always be rich and poor, but every child that is born will require to be given a chance, and according as he avails himself of it or not, will be successful or a failure. But give him a chance and the greatest and most real grievance of mankind in the present day will be removed. Every child that is born in America, whether in the United States or in Canada, has that chance."

Succeeds Through Tact.

It was his tact not less than his wit which made Max O'Rell the successful writer he was. A score of living men could be mentioned who with twice his humor will not have half his friends. He did not appear to be afraid to speak his mind, and on occasion he did enunciate some unpalatable truths, with much spirit; but he had exquisite delicacy, and rarely gave a blow that was not followed by a caress. He was, in fact, a great "jollier." He told the Englishman his faults, but was careful that they were the faults the Englighman was rather proud of, as being his exclusively. So with the Frenchman, and so with the American. There can be no doubt, however, that when he praised Toronto's handsome women he was in deadly earnest.—Mail and Empire.

Good Subject.

A little newsboy who had been in an accident came into his Sunday school class with one of his ears bandaged to his head and said to the preacher, "I'm a good one to preach to today, for it goes in one ear and can't get out the other."

A Handy Question.

Joseph Chamberlain was delivering a political speech in Birmingham, England. The hall was so packed that not another human being could have crowded in. The enthusiasm was tremendous, but suddenly a scowling man arose in the middle of the crowd.

"What did Mr. Gladstone say in 1872?" he howled.

"Shame!" "Put him out!" yelled the crowd.

Three sturdy men hurled the interrupter a few yards, and others helped hustle him to the street.

As he was picking himself up and brushing off the dust he grinned pleasantly at a man who had followed him from the hall and who asked, "What did Mr. Gladstone say in 1872?"

"I don't know," replied, "and I don't care. I had a terrible toothache, and I couldn't butt my way through that crowd, and the only thing to do was to get thrown out."

She Failed to Take the Compliment.

Lord Lytton was seated one day at dinner next to a lady whose name was Birch and who, tradition says, was beautiful if not overintelligent. She said to his excellency, "Are you acquainted with any of the Birches?" Replied his excellency, "Oh, yes; I knew some of them most intimately while at Eton—indeed, more intimately than I cared to." "Sir," replied the lady, "you forget that the Birches are relatives of mine." "And yet they cut me," said the viceroy. "But," and he smiled his wonted smile, "I have never felt more inclined to kiss the rod than I do now." Mrs. Birch, sad to say, did not see the point and, so the gossips have it, told her husband that his excellency had insulted her.

Blood Disorders

are simply kidney disorders. The kidneys filter the blood of all that shouldn't be there. The blood passes through the kidneys every three minutes. If the kidneys do their work no impurity or cause of disorder can remain in the circulation longer than that time. Therefore if your blood is out of order your kidneys have failed in their work. The first necessity of athletics is a sound stomach. Food is the source of all physical strength, but to extract and assimilate the strength from food requires that the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition should be in a condition of good health. What is true of the athlete is true of every man and woman; physical health and vigor depend upon the digestion and assimilation of food.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and by enabling the perfect digestion and assimilation of food, builds the body up with solid flesh and muscle.

"I used ten bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and several vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets' a year ago this spring, and have had no trouble with indigestion since," writes Mr. W. T. Thompson, of Townsend, Broadwater County, Montana. "Words fail to tell how thankful I am for the relief, as I had suffered so much and it seemed that the doctors could do me no good. I got down in weight to 125 pounds, and was not able to work at all. Now I weigh nearly 160 and can do a day's work on the farm. I have recommended your medicine to several, and shall always have a good word to say for Dr. Pierce and his medicines."

"PEACE OVER AFRICA."

A New Poem by Edwin Markham on the Boer War.

At a meeting held to celebrate the anniversary of the declaration at The Hague for an international court of peace recently held in New York Edwin Markham read an original poem for the occasion. It was as follows:

"Peace Over Africa."

O bugles, ripple and shine,
Ripple and rapture down the wavering line!
Praise, praise, praise,
For the last of the desperate days!
Shake out the lyrical notes
From your cavernous silvern throats;
Burst into joy mad carols once again
To herald the booking men.
O bugles, tell it to the opening sky
And go the roads of men with joyous cry!
Peace on the wreathed and wreathless head;
Peace over England, over Africa;
Peace on the living, quiet on the dead;
Peace on the souls buried downward from the day,
Buried down with hated breath,
To join the old democracy of death.

The challenge of the bugle and the glum
Rejoinder of the drum,
The neigh of startled stallions,
The hurried rhythm of the hot battalions,
The brown wild scent of crushed geranium,
The parley of the howitzers, the shrill
Grim colloquy of hill with hill—
These had their fateful hour. But now, even now,
A bird sings on a cannon-broken bough—
Sings all the afternoon,
And when the dark falls on the shot-torn walls
Frail wings will come to wander in the moon—
Wander in long delight
Through Africa's star-filled delicious night.

War's bitter root, and yet so fair a flower!
Sing and be glad, O England, in this hour!
But not as one who has no grief to bear,
No memories, no burden, no despair.
Be glad, but not as one who has no grief;
The victor's laured wears a wintry leaf.
The clarions revel and the joy bells rave,
But what is all the glory and the gain
To those wet eyes behind the misty pane,
Whose Africa is crumpled to one grave,
A lone grave at the mercy of the rain?
Not all our odes nor all our orisons
Can sweeten these intolerable tears,
These silences that fall between the cheers.
In all the joy a memory cries and dwells,
A heart break, heroical farewells.
Let there be no more battles; field and flood
Are sick of bright-eyed blood.
Lay the sad swords asleep;
They have their fearful memories to keep.
These swords that in the dark battle burned—
Burned upward with inefferable light—
And in their sheep will be a kinglier might
Than ever flowered upon the front of fight.
And fold the flags; they weary of the day,
Worn by their wild climb in the wind's wild way—
Quiet the dauntless flags,
Grown strangely old upon the smoky crags.
Look where they startle and leap!
Look where they hollow and heap!
Tremulous, undulent banners, flared and thinned,
Living and dying momentarily in the wind!
And war's imperious bugles, let them rest—
Bugles that cried through whirlwind their behest—
Wild bugles that held council in the sky—
They are aweary of the curdling cry
That tells men how to die,
And cannons worn out with their work of hell,
That brief, abrupt persuasion of the shell—
Let the shrewd spider lock them one by one,
With filmy cables glancing in the sun,
And let the throstle in their empty throats
Build his safe nest and spill his rippling notes.

Tuscan Straws For Practical Purposes—A Great Deal of Red Used.

Tuscan straws for practical purposes still continue the rage. Some of the French sailors are bound with green and trimmed with fruit or flowers and a simple bow to form the bandeau of green velvet ribbon. These are worn tilted to one side, with a small sugar loaf crown.

A great deal of red is used, and white straw spotted with red is pretty with a red gown. White spotted with black, navy blue with white and tan and black are favorite mixtures, but the better style of hats, such as the picture shapes, are chiefly kept to one color, all black bravely holding its own, all white, all red and various shades of green also being in demand.

There is a new pale shade of apple green which is wonderfully becoming in millinery. A mixture of parma violet and pale green is always artistic.

Some of the French hats in rough straws are simply trimmed with wreaths of foliage.

For embroidery on linen a special cotton is sold in skeins, the same as is used for the popular white muslin cushion covers. The work, indeed, throughout strongly resembles that Swiss fancy, though it is more generally declared Irish embroidery when applied to linen. The chief motifs are carried out in a long, close stitch, which is repeated at the back with a little swiss openwork to lighten the effect. Sometimes the embroidery is arranged in stripes, alternating with lines of drawn thread work.

The hat in the picture is of yellow straw trimmed with black and yellow daisies. JUDIC CHOLLET.

DOMINION DAY CELEBRATION.

Arrangements Have Been Made for Greatest Day's Sport in Peterborough—Special Features of Programme.

Matters in connection with the Dominion Day celebration are assuming definite shape and the success of the day is now an assured fact. The different committees are working industriously and citizens generally are becoming interested in the demonstration.

Negotiations are being concluded to secure the services of a family of dancers, who are spoken of very highly, and whose presence would very materially add to the enjoyment of the day.

The parade will be the greatest ever seen in Peterborough, and will be worth coming miles to see. In fact, the whole day's programme will be one of exceptional merit and anyone will be quite safe in inviting friends from a distance to visit the town on July 1st.

The performance of a company of trick acrobats will be an especially attractive feature of the day's proceedings.

THE WEATHER MAN.

METHODS OF THE DOMINION METEOROLOGICAL BUREAU.

Chief, Mr. R. A. Stupart, Is the Most Eminent Authority in the Country—Outposts of the Weather Man—Distributing the News—The Cones and the Drums—History of the Bureau—Two Kinds of Weather Talk.

Talking about the weather has long been considered one of the most commonplace, puerile of occupations. For generations the fatuity of remarks such as "Hot enough for you?" or "See affy mosquitoes out to-day?" has maddened highly-strung people, and goaded them into profane wishes to the effect that the weather as a topic of conversation should be prohibited by law. All the same, the weather persists, and it is safe to prophesy that for all time it will be the hub in the wheel of oral intercourse. Taken altogether, there are two kinds of weather talk—the common or garden variety, a sample of which has been given, and the scientific or advanced. Everyone is an exponent of the former, but on the latter Mr. R. A. Stupart, chief of the Dominion Meteorological Bureau, is the most eminent authority in the country. His views on the shifting conditions which combine to give us our weather are published in every daily paper in Canada, and a few remarks on the manner in which these opinions are formed and how disseminated cannot fail to be of interest.

Outposts of the Weather Man.

From Dawson City to Cape Breton Canada is dotted with meteorological stations, established, as nearly as possible, at regular intervals. Of these there are five kinds, classified according to the importance of the work they do. Altogether there are 323 of these weather watch-towers, whence scientific soldiers, armed with weapons of precision, send in reports of the movements of the enemy, the weather. In 244 of these stations the observers are volunteers, most of whom are gentlemen of scientific proclivities. The Government, through the Central Bureau at Toronto, provides them with the necessary instruments, and in return they forward to Mr. Stupart the information he needs. In a few lighthouses and ports in the far north, small sums are paid for the reports, and in the other stations trained weather men are employed. From 36 stations in Canada and 60 in the United States despatches are sent to the quaint old building in Queen's Park twice every day. These give the barometrical pressure, readings of wet and dry thermometers, velocity and direction of the wind, the rain precipitation, and the maximum and minimum temperatures for the past twelve hours. At about 8.30 a.m. and 8.30 p.m. the telegraph instrument begins to tick, and for an hour the messages from Canadian points between Lake Superior and Cape Breton continue to arrive. They are at once forwarded to the United States Bureau at Washington. Then the American bulletins are received, and afterwards the Canadian reports from Manitoba West, which are filed at the United States Weather Bureau in St. Paul, Minn.

Distributing the News.

Having gathered its news, the great object of the central office is to distribute it as quickly as possible. Fifteen minutes after the last telegram has been received the working chart for the weather map is ready. By ten o'clock the isobars have been drawn, and some of the forecasts sent out. (The isobars, it may be explained for the benefit of those who have never noticed them on clear, starlight nights, are the lines on the weather map drawn through points where the atmospheric pressure is equal at given periods.) Ninety copies of these maps are issued daily, and are forwarded to newspaper offices, the Board of Trade, and any places of business where their regular posting will be guaranteed. The evening report furnished for the morning papers contains a synopsis of the day's weather at the chief stations throughout the Dominion, a description of the meteorological conditions prevailing generally, with representative temperatures, and forecasts for the 24 hours beginning at 8 o'clock the following morning. This, the chief report of the day, is sent to every telegraphic station of any importance in the country, and is there bulletined. It is the first message over the wires in the morning. The morning forecast was issued to supplement it when Mr. Stupart took charge of the department in 1894, and is published in the evening papers.

The Cones and the Drums.

As far as the average conversationist is concerned this is the weather. It comprises, however, a small part of the bureau's work. Of the other branches, the most important, perhaps, is the storm-warning service supplied to 73 stations. The signals for which the mariner turns an anxious eye are in two shapes—cones and drums. When moderate gales are expected the cone is displayed, and when heavy storms are feared both cones and drums are shown. When the apex of the cone points downward, the storm is coming from the south or east, and when upward, from the west or north. It is noted in Mr. Stupart's report to the Government in 1901 that the bureau's warnings were verified in 86.4 per cent. of the cases in which they were issued. When not engaged in preparing either forecasts or warnings, the staff of 20 at the observatory works are compiling statistical information regarding the climate, or in advancing the monthly weather chart. For some years bulletins were supplied trains at different points, and travelers appreciated this convenience. The practice was discontinued, however, because of the train hands' failure to regularly post them. Within the past few days an important improvement in the daily bulletin has been made by adding St. Catharines to the list of points which receive complete daily bulletins. This enables every captain of a boat, as he passes through lock three at Welland, to receive a weather report. The other cities in receipt of this morning service are, besides Toronto, Halifax, St. John, Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, London, and Hamilton.

History of the Bureau.

Like the universe as a whole, and like many of its most important institutions, the Canadian weather bureau evolved itself from nebulae. Its beginnings were very modest, indeed. Founded originally more than half a century ago, it continued for some years as evidence of the insatiable curiosity of some of Toronto's early scientists. Since 1841, indeed, observations have been made in the worm-eaten old building, and for thirty years afterward learned gentlemen continued to make observations of sun, moon and stars without the aid of the Government. In 1871 a grant of $5,000 was made to Prof. Kingston, then in charge, the Government being anxious to give vessels warning of approaching storms. By 1880 the observatory had become a regular Governmental bureau, with Mr. Charles Carpmael, an English scientist, in charge. For fourteen years he continued in this position, to be succeeded by Mr. R. A. Stupart, the present chief, whose special qualifications for the post have been widely acknowledged. The expenditure has increased to $80,000 a year, and more money is needed to properly equip the present observatory and pay the salaries of the little army engaged in the work. As to the importance of the results achieved by the bureau it is superfluous to speak. Merchants, farmers, mariners and picnickers will vouch for it. Timely prognostications may have saved millions of dollars' worth of property, and hundreds of lives. Untimely prognostications, scarcely less valuable, have given us something to talk about. For all of which we should be grateful to Old Probs, says the Toronto Mail and Empire.

EQUINE JEALOUSY.

How a Trainer Was Led to Develop a Pair of Boxing Horses.

A. B. Powell, the veteran trainer of horses, who after two patient years actually taught two horses to stand up on their hind legs and box with the gloves on, declares that not only are horses jealous, but that it was the outcome of an incident arising from the feelings which the green eyed monster is reputed to inspire which led him to believe he had found a pair of boxing horses.

One of the horses was a thoroughbred Arab, known as Cigarette, and the other a dim horse of Turkish breed called Charley, and a writer in the Windsor Magazine thus describes the incident:

"In the earlier days of Charley's connection with circus life he was presented with a very handsome saddle for use in a certain act. Now, it happened on one occasion that it was found necessary to remove this saddle from the back of the Turkish bred animal and place it upon the jet black Cigarette.

"Later on in the evening a tremendous row was heard in the neighborhood of the stalls where the two animals had been stabled side by side. Some of the attendants ran to see what was up. They found that Cigarette and Charley had broken loose and were practically 'in grips'—kicking, plunging and stamping upon each other.

"When Mr. Powell arrived on the scene the two animals were standing on their hind legs in the regular pugilistic attitude and endeavoring to exchange terrific blows on head and body. They were quickly separated, but the astute trainer had taken his cue, and next day he began to give the horses their first real lessons in boxing." — London Express.

London.

There are many Londons known to the statistician, but that known as the metropolitan police district is the most comprehensive and complete. It comprehends an area within a radius of fifteen miles of Charing Cross, but it does not include the city of London. Much of this area is densely populated and thickly covered with streets and houses. Much of it is now every year being so conditioned, and much of it, again, is still rural and beautiful.

Since 1870 the population of this large London has grown from 3,618,000 to 6,678,000 at the end of 1901. It is thus hardly using the language of exaggeration to say that the population has doubled in thirty years. Since 1870 over 500,000 new houses have been built, and of these over 200,000 were built after 1890. Since 1870 8,000 new streets have been formed, and these new streets measure over 1,800 miles, 531 of these miles having been added since 1890.

A hundred thousand people are being added to it every year and 20,000 houses. It shows no signs of stopping in its growth and in a very few years promises to convert what is now an outer circle of townships into an inner circle, welded into the compact mass indistinguishable save as London.—Westminster Review.

Why They Knelt.

Charles II. of England was noted for his good nature, and, although he was sometimes called "Unthinking Charles," yet this heedlessness was more an apparent than a real characteristic. The extravagance of his reign went hand in hand with his poverty, and on some occasions even the royal table was but poorly served.

There is a story told of Grammont, who one day dined in state with the king.

Charles bade the count to notice that he was served upon the knee, a mark of respect to guests of the king not common at other courts.

"I thank your majesty for the explanation," answered Grammont, "I thought they were begging pardon for giving you so bad a dinner."

Grandpa Was Asleep.

"Paul," said his mother, "will you go softly into the parlor and see if grandpa is asleep?" "Yes, mamma," whispered Paul on his return, "he is all asleep but his nose."—Sydney Town and Country Journal.

Unique School For Brides.

Philadelphia enjoys the reputation of maintaining a school for brides. It is conducted in connection with the People's church, and its students consist almost exclusively of brides or prospective brides. Old married couples are admitted on certain evenings, but it is with the newly married that the school has to do. Cooking, dressmaking, house cleaning and home furnishing are the subjects taught, and every evening during which the school is in session a large number of young men, evidently matrimonially inclined, are to be found among the interested spectators who watch the young ladies at their work.

Real Usefulness.

It is, or should be, every girl's desire, even ambition, to be as useful as she can to her mother in the household affairs. Real usefulness does not consist in doing only what one is asked, but in anticipating things to be done and relieving mother of the necessity of asking for help, says the American Queen. But the most important part of the service is willingness and cheerfulness. One would much rather do a thing oneself than beg or make some one else do it or even ask any one who is uncheerful. Be real helpers and try to make mother wonder what she would do without your assistance.

G.T. PACIFIC R. BILL

Capital Stock of the Company Fixed at Seventy-five Millions.

OPPOSITION TO THE MEASURE

Mr. Blair Tells When to Dictate Terms—Notices of Amendment Placed on the Order Paper—Maritime Province Men at Odds—St. John and Halifax Harbors Have Their Drawbacks Exaggerated.

Ottawa, June 23.—The attention of the House, to the exclusion of other private bills, was engrossed yesterday with the consideration of the Grand Trunk Pacific bill in the committee stage.

Many of the clauses met with determined opposition, but in the absence of notice suggested amendments were ruled out of order, with the result that the number of notices placed upon the order paper last night indicate that even after the bill passes the committee stage it will be fought strenuously on the motion for the third reading, when the members can be placed upon record on each amendment.

The Capital Clause.

A protracted debate took place upon the clause fixing the capital stock at $75,000,000, and Mr. Bourassa endeavored to have it reduced to $65,000,000. Sir Wilfrid Laurier doubted whether the company would be able to build the road with the resources placed at its command by the bill. He admitted the probability that the company will apply to the Government for aid.

Time to Dictate Terms.

Hon. A. G. Blair emphasized the point that if aid were granted by the Government they would then be in a position to dictate the terms upon which that assistance would be granted. Another clause which was productive of a long discussion was that authrolizing the company to issue paid-up stock in payment for plant, rolling stock, vessels, and other equipment, also for the bona fide claims of contractors for property or services rendered, but not for promotion services.

Stock For Services Rendered.

Exception was taken to the issue of stock for services rendered, and also that it was not clear the clause as drafted might not be construed as authorizing the issue of preference stock for that purpose.

The Minister of Railways intimated he would not object to the words "or services rendered" being struck out, but Mr. McCarthy was not prepared to agree to this, and asked that the clause stand for consultation with the incorporators. Last evening was enlivened by a spirited debate upon the respective merits of Halifax and St. John as winter ports, during which the spirit of rivalry which exists between these ports found vent in the characterization of the port of St. John by the representative of Halifax as a mud-hole. The representative of St. John retorted that captains declared Halifax was a good harbor when they succeeded in getting into it. After eight hours' debate the committee reported progress, two clauses of the bill being held over for further consideration.

The Treadgold Commission.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier announced that Judge Britton would conduct the Treadgold enquiry. Chief Justice Killom of Manitoba has been asked to be associate commissioner with Judge Britton, but his acceptance has not yet been received.

Body Washed Ashore.

St. Catharines, June 23.—Charles Brooker of Grantham found a body which had washed ashore on the beach of Lake Ontario, northeast of the city, Sunday. The body is that of a man 5 feet 11 inches in height, weighing about 160 pounds. It had the appearance of being in the water for about three weeks, and looked as if it had been over Niagara Falls. A very striking mark of identification is a tatooed design on the right forearm, in the form of an angel and harp, in four colors—black, red, yellow and green, the work being very artistic.

Knows No Effective Step.

ARRESTED FOR ARSON.

Another Fire at the Mohawk Institute Leads to the Detection of the Perpetrators of the Crimes.

Brantford, June 23.—A third fire occurred at the Mohawk Institute Sunday night, thus destroying the few buildings not destroyed in the fires of April 19 and June 6. The loss is estimated at $1,500. The result of the fire is that four inmates of the institution, namely, Roy Wilson, Jesse Debo, Isiah Antoine and Alexander Maracle are under arrest, charged with causing all three fires.

At the court yesterday morning Roy Wilson, aged 12, the youngest of the boys, confessed to striking the match and collecting the material which caused the fires of April 19 and June 21.

Jesse Debo, when examined by the magistrate, corroborated the statement of Wilson, but denied knowing that Wilson intended to burn the institute.

The other two boys corroborated Debo, all claiming that when they assisted Wilson they knew nothing of his intentions. Wilson was also charged with setting fire to the barns on June 6. He pleaded not guilty, but said that Frank Winnie, who slept with Maracle, had stated that he was going to do the deed.

The arrest of Winnie was ordered. The other four were committed for trial.

THE MURDER WAS PLANNED.

German Paper Says King Peter's Agents Assassinated King Alexander Without Giving Him a Chance to Abdicate.

Berlin, June 23.—The Allegemeine correspondent learns that the new King of Servia was not only fully informed of the military conspiracy at Belgrade, but that it was actually carried out by his agents. The officers broke into the Konak with the fixed determination of killing the royal couple. The question of demanding the abdication of King Alexander was not mentioned. On the contrary, the late King, perceiving his peril, spontaneously offered to renounce the crown, but the officers ignored this and proceeded to the murder.

King Peter Leaves Geneva.

Geneva, Switzerland, June 23.—King Peter I., of Servia, left Geneva, on his way to Belgrade, at 8.43 o'clock p.m. yesterday Swiss time. He was loudly cheered, and was presented with many bouquets of flowers. In response to the cheering, King Peter cried: "Vive la Suisse."

Douglas Plumb Drowned.

Toronto, June 23.—W. H. Beatty, Queen's Park, received the following telegram from Wallace Nesbitt, dated from Romaine, Quebec:

"Douglas Plumb drowned. Fell overboard. Waiting to recover body. Will be some days away."

This is the sad climax to a fishing expedition taken three or four days ago into Quebec interior by Hon. Mr. Nesbitt and Sir Charles Rose, accompanied by Douglas Plumb, son of the late Thomas Plumb, late of McCarthy, Osler and Hoskin of Toronto. The drowned lad was only 18 years of age.

Might Have Been Much Worse.

Tweed, June 23.—The local C.P.R. train, west, leaving here at 5.40 yesterday morning, took chances to run to Tweed against orders, and when within a mile of the station met the local. Engineer Watson and the fireman jumped and were not hurt. The driver of the local stuck to his engine and probably prevented many lives being sacrificed by reversing his engine.

Ottawa, June 23.—The French citizens of Hull have determined for the present not to yield to the wishes of the clergy, and substitute a clerical flag for the tricolor in national celebration.

SIR WILFRID HAS HOPES.

That Sir Wm. Van Horne Will Yet Act on Transportation Commission.

Ottawa, June 23.—Sir William Van Horne has declined to act on the Transportation Commission. This intimation received by the Government following the refusal of Harold Kennedy of Quebec to act, has very materially changed the make-up of the Commission. Sir Wilfrid Laurier stated yesterday that John Bertram of Toronto had accepted. William Fry of Quebec has been appointed instead of Mr. Kennedy. Though Sir William Van Horne urges that he has too many other duties to take a place on the Commission, Sir Wilfrid expressed the hope that Canada's great railway magnate might finally be induced to accept.

Postal Scandal Indictments.

Washington, June 23.—The Grand Jury, investigating the postal affairs, have indicted August W. Machen, Diller B. Groff, Samuel A. Groff, George E. Lorenz, and Martha J. Lorenz, the two latter being residents of Toledo, Ohio. The specific charges is conspiracy to defraud the Government. The penalty is a fine of $10,000, or two years' imprisonment or both.

30,000 Men Strike.

London, June 23.—A strike at Barcelona for an advance in wages, involving 30,000 men, has been declared. The trades affected include stone cutters, butchers and shoemakers.

St. Louis Suicide Identified.

Toronto, June 23.—The young man, John Flett, who shot himself in St. Louis Saturday, was a son of the late Adam Flett of Chicago, and nephew of John Flett of Toronto.

A Handy Question.

Joseph Chamberlain was delivering a political speech in Birmingham, England. The hall was so packed that not another human being could have crowded in. The enthusiasm was tremendous, but suddenly a scowling man arose in the middle of the crowd.

"What did Mr. Gladstone say in 1872?" he howled.

"Shame!" "Put him out!" yelled the crowd.

Three sturdy men hurled the interrupter a few yards, and others helped hustle him to the street.

As he was picking himself up and brushing off the dust he grinned pleasantly at a man who had followed him from the hall and who asked, "What did Mr. Gladstone say in 1872?"

"I don't know," replied, "and I don't care. I had a terrible toothache, and I couldn't butt my way through that crowd, and the only thing to do was to get thrown out."

"Pure soap!" You've heard the words. In Sunlight Soap you have the fact.

SUGAR BEET BUILDING INSPECTED ON SATURDAY.

County Commissioners Surprised at the Extent of Work Going on—Field of Sugar Beets Growing.

The members of the County Council were driven down on Saturday afternoon to witness the progress of the work in the construction of the new sugar beet factory in the south end of the town. An invitation had been officially extended by Dr. Jeffs, on behalf of the company, during the session of the council, to afford the members an opportunity of seeing how these extensive works were progressing.

The factory is being built adjacent to the River Otonabee, on an eligible site, comprising 34 acres, formerly known as the Howden property. The main building is to be a substantial solid concrete structure, 228 feet long by 60 feet wide. The walls and floors are also to be of solid concrete. The building will be five stories high in some parts and three in others.

The foundation of the warehouse is already completed. It is to be 100 feet by 55 feet. The foundation walls are five feet in thickness. Beneath the warehouse provision is made for enormous cement tanks for the residus molasses, capable of holding 184,000 gallons.

Two commodious beet sheds, each 400 feet by 25 feet, are to be erected on the eastern portion of the property, through which a flowing stream of water will pass, conveying the beets into the factory.

There will also be built a. limehouse, 50 feet by 46 feet; a machine shop, 55 by 35 feet; laboratory, 66 by 60 feet; boiler house, 160 feet by 50 feet; and office building, 55 feet by 30 feet.

The machinery is to be imported from France and will be first class in every particular.

The National Construction Company of the United States, has the contract and at present a large number of men are employed. A stone crusher driven by steam power is at work breaking up the stone for the concrete, and hundreds of cords of stone have already been crushed.

The members of the council were then taken in hand by Dr. Jeffs, the agricultural superintendent, J. W. Garvin, the managing director, and Captain Bennet, assistant agriculturist, who conducted them over the works, and explained the details of the building in an intelligent and interesting manner.

In the field alongside the building, there are twenty-four acres of sugar beets sown, and are well advanced. Captain Bennet gave a practical lesson to the councillors of how the thinning and scuffling of the plants should be done. The operation was witnessed with special interest. The councillors were pleased and edified by their trip and expressed surprise at the extent of the undertaking.

The cost of the buildings and machinery is estimated at $425,000.

VICTORIA CHEESE BOARD MEETING AT LINDSAY

Entire Amount Boarded Sold to Mr. Flavelle—An Address.

Victoria Cheese Board's regular fortnightly meeting was held Monday at Lindsay. About 2,000 boxes were boarded, and the buyers present were Messrs. Flavelle, Fitzgerald, Cooke, Whitten, Bowes and Gillespie.

Mr. Cooke started the bidding at 10c, which Whitten raised to 10 1-8, Fitzgerald bid 10 1-4, and Flavelle immediately raised to 10 1-2 and called all the factories boarded. They accepted. The following factories were boarded:—

Star	128
Cameron	130
Duneford	140
Mariposa	130
Cambray	60
Janetville	116
Omemee	164
North Verulam	130
North Ops	87
Pine Grove	55
Reaboro	160
Bobcaygeon	256
Maple Leaf	136
Palestine	100
Red Rock	136

Mr. Pubalow, Chief Instructor for Eastern Ontario of the Dairymen's Association, was at the Board and gave an address which was of considerable interest to cheesemakers and patrons of cheese factories. He congratulated the Board on the business-like manner in which the meeting was conducted. He spoke on the attitude of the Department of Agriculture towards dairymen. As an evidence of the interest this Department takes in the cheese-making industry, he mentioned that he had been appointed by it to supervise the work of the instructors to cheese-makers. The duty of these is to see that the patrons are getting the best results from the factories.

The question of drawing the whey back in the same cans as the milk was brought to the factory in, was discussed and Mr. Pubalow said that unless the vats in which the whey was put, were kept as clean as those for the milk, the practice would work to the detriment of the condition of the cheese. He urged the great importance of exercising every precaution to make the best grade of cheese, as only by doing this could the patrons hope to make cheese-making pay. He gave instructions as to how cans should be cleaned after whey had been in them. A solution of soda and warm water should be used first, followed by a thorough scalding.

Mr. Pubalow's advice to the Board and cheese-makers will no doubt result in an improved quality of cheese being manufactured.

ENNISMORE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The picnic here on June 15th was a huge success and Rev. Father Fitzpatrick desires to thank all those who in any way contributed towards that success.

On Saturday, June 20th, the various prizes contested for by the young ladies were draw for, and resulted as follows:—The pulper, valued at $14.00, presented by W. P. Hamilton, of Peterborough, was won by Master Kenneth O'Donojhue, of Peterborough. The silk jacket, presented by Mr. Richard Hall & Son, was won by Mr. Michael Ross, of Ennismore. The picture of His Lordship, Bishop O'Connor, presented by Mr. G. E. Whiten, was won by Mr. William Perdue, of Peterborough. The valuable scales are now in possession of Mr. Jas. Lynch, while the doll, the gift of Miss Annie Simons was won by Miss Vernie Galvin. The prizes were all very valuable and the sincere thanks of St Martin's T.A.S. are tendered to the generous donors.

Miss Annie Kearney stood first in the ticket contest, Miss Loretta Guiry second, and Miss Maud McAuliffe third, all three of whom worked hard, and contributed in no small degree to the financial success of the picnic.

At a recent shooting contest engagin by all the crack shots of Ennismore, Mr. Peter Flood, the popular president of the T.A.S. was an easy winner, Peter says that nothing steadies the nerves or levels the brain like good cold water.

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick is spending this week among his parishioneers in Harvey, where he is holding a station.

The Junior Choir will hold their annual excursion next week to Burleigh Falls, per steamer Ogemah.

The members of the Township Council are to be congratulated on the strenuous efforts they are making to put our roads in good repair. To this end they have purchased a new grader, and already very beneficial results may be noticed on all sides.

Mrs. John Sullivan and two children, of Ottawa, are spending their summer vacation here, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. David Guiry. Mr. Sullivan is a native of Ennismore, but at present, engaged on the staff of the Ottawa Normal School.

Some ten or twelve children from the different schools of the township, will write on the Entrance examination, which begins on Wednesday, June 24th.

Look on the Bright Side.

The sufferer from nervous exhaustion is generally blue and discouraged. He looks on the dark side of things and fears paralysis, locomotor ataxia or insanity. All this is changed by the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which gradually and naturally rekindles and revitalizes the wasted nerve cells and instils new vigour and energy into the whole system.

A GOVERNMENT LINE

Strong Feeling in Its Favor in Inner Official Circles.

FROM QUEBEC TO WINNIPEG.

Lease to the Grand Trunk Pacific, With Running Rights to Other Companies Desirous of an Outlet From the West—But Greater Number of Government Followers Favor Guarantee of Bonds.

Ottawa, June 23.—Conferences are still taking place between the Grand Trunk officials and the Government, and there is as yet no decision as to whether and in what form aid shall be given to the proposed transcontinental line. Messrs. Hays and Wainwright were early callers at the office of the Minister of Justice yesterday morning, and they remained until 11 o'clock, when Mr. Fitzpatrick had to leave to attend a Cabinet Council. In the afternoon there was another conference in the Premier's room at the House of Commons. The parties to the conference were Messrs. Hays and Wainwright and Senator Cox on the one hand, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Wm. Mulock, Hon. W. S. Fielding, Hon. James Sutherland and Hon. Chas. Fitzpatrick on the other.

Proposed Government Line.

The report was current during the day that there was a strong feeling in inner official circles in favor of the Government building a line from Quebec to Winnipeg, and then leasing it to the Grand Trunk, with provision for running rights to other companies desirous of an outlet from the west. It was even said that this policy was under discussion between the Cabinet and the representatives of the Grand Trunk. Members of the Government who were spoken to, however, would not confirm the report, nor in fact impart any information at all.

A Diversity of Opinion.

Sir Wm. Mulock is known to be taking an active part in the negotiations, and he remained behind with Messrs. Hays and Wainwright in the Premier's room yesterday afternoon for some time after the other Ministers had left. When he came out Sir William was willing to talk upon every subject but Grand Trunk Pacific. There is a diversity of opinion among the Government's following as to what ought to be the proper policy to be pursued. The greatest number appear to favor a guarantee of bonds up to a reasonable amount, the Government taking as security a first lien on the line when built.

30 Persons Drown.

Belgrade, June 23.—A cloudburst occurred yesterday at the village of Zenom, and fifty-four houses were demolished. Thirty persons were drowned.

Killed Three Persons.

GIVE MARVELLOUS RESULTS TO SUFFERERS.

Kidney trouble when neglected and allowed to take its course, is Bright's disease, nothing less than a consumption of the kidneys—then death.

When you know that kidney disease has fastened its iron grip on you, avoid the use of wines and spirits, and carefully shun the liquid medicines of the day which are largely composed of alcohol.

You are safe and act wisely when you call Kidney-Wort Tablets to your aid. They are purely vegetable, and contain nothing that can interfere with rapid improvement and complete banishment of the disease. Thousands of men and women who felt the effects of slowly weakening kidneys have saved themselves from Bright's disease and Diabetes by the prompt use of Kidney-Wort Tablets. The packet is so convenient that it can be carried in the dress or vest pocket and used at any time. They are strictly pure and non-alcoholic, and cannot injure the youngest child. These never failing Tablets can be bought at your drug store; price 50 cents per bottle or six bottles for $2.50.

STILL DEBATING.

Mr. St. John Continues the Debate on the Royal Commission Report.

Toronto, June 23.—In the Legislature yesterday Mr. St. John rose to continue the debate for the Opposition. He reminded the House that there was "an awful cloud hanging over us," by reason of revelation after revelation of misdeeds and neglect brought home to the Government. The patent inaccuracies in the commissioners' report, he said, were, to say the least, significant. The report was unasked for. There must be some reason for it. He submitted that it was to be found in the extreme prejudice in the minds of the commissioners, and many people would have difficulty in distinguishing between that extreme prejudice and political inclinations. That extreme prejudice was in favor of the Government.

Mr. St. John then quoted largely from the evidence to show that Chancellor Boyd had a bias against Mr. Gamey, a member of the Legislature, and at the same time was treating Frank Sullivan, a friend of the Provincial Secretary, with the greatest consideration. He argued at length that the Commissioners were merely appointed to take evidence.

Empty Benches.

Mr. St. John, continuing in the evening, quoted from the evidence at several points passages which he contended showed the partiality of the Chancellor for the defence. He glanced at the Government benches, where there were only three Ministers and three private members in attendance, and demanded if that meant innocence.

"It's the fault of your oratory," returned Col. Gibson.

The Provincial Secretary, Mr. St. John said, was absent, believing he was safe by what was contained between the covers of that report; but he was not. It would be for the people to say whether he was innocent or guilty.

Mr. St. John said the finding of the Commissioners amounted to: First, congratulations to the Provincial Secretary and the Government; second, a condemnation of the accuser, the member for Manitoulin; third, a soporific on moral ethics, in its relation to Ontario politics.

The Commissioners found that the payment of the money was the core of the whole matter. He held that it was the signing of the contract prepared by the Crown minister that was the core, and the majority of people in the Province thought the same.

Mr. St. John moved the adjournment of the debate at 10 o'clock, and the House adjourned.

Coup D'etat in Malta.

London, June 23.—According to a despatch from Valletta, Malta, a minor coup d'etat, has been effected there by the abrogation of the constitution of 1887 and the re-establishment of the constitution of 1849. By this step the Legislative Council, hereafter, will be composed of eight elected members and nine Government members, instead of fourteen and six, respectively, as heretofore. Under the new conditions, the Government will control the Legislative Council.

One of the Little Wars.

London, June 23.—The former Sultan of Sokoto is causing the British considerable trouble in Nigeria. A force of 180 West African troops, in the middle of May, unsuccessfully attacked the former Sultan, who was in command of a large force in the walled town of Durmi, about 200 miles from Kano. The British were obliged to retire, after losing four men killed and 60 wounded. Reinforcements are being sent to the British.

Pope Created New Dignitaries.

Rome, June 23.—The Pope yesterday held the long-delayed consistory. The ceremony lasted 35 minutes, after which the Pope received the homage of the new Archbishops and Bishops. The ancient ceremonies were observed, each of the prelates kissing the Pontiff's foot and receiving the apostolic blessing.

On Verge of Collapse.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 23.—John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, is on the verge of a physical collapse. The National Executive Board of the United Mine Workers has asked Mr. Mitchell to take the complete rest he so sorely needs.

Some Improvement.

Toronto, June 23.—There was some improvement in the condition of Rev. Dr. Caven yesterday. He took nourishment and rested well, and his relatives are again feeling encouraged.

Nothing Like Experience.

"One truth learned by actual experience does more good than ten experiences one hears about." Tell a man that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy will cure cholera morbus, and he will most likely forget it before the end of the day. Let him have a severe attack of that disease, feel that he is about to die, use this remedy, and learn from his own experience how quickly it gives relief, and he will remember it all his life. For sale by all druggists.

SNAKE HYPNOTISM.

Expert Says the Power of Fascinating Prey Undoubtedly Exists.

Graham Peck, a well known authority on snakes, was asked his opinion regarding a snake's hypnotic powers. His reply was as follows:

"There is a certain power to fascinate in a snake's eyes and movements. I saw only the other day a typical illustration of the power of a snake to fascinate.

"Over in the pine woods I saw a ground squirrel fascinated by a black gopher snake. The forked tongue darted out of the snake's mouth almost as regularly and rapidly as the needle of a sewing machine rises and falls. The squirrel seemed to watch it spellbound. The snake crept slowly nearer. When the gopher snake was within two or three inches of the squirrel it gave a leap and threw three coils about the squirrel. Instantly the spell was gone. The fascination or charm there had been over the little animal was no doubt broken the very moment the serpent's coils were about the squirrel, for the animal gave three convulsive, terrified chirps and realized that its death moment had come.

"I believe implicitly that all snakes have a certain degree of power to fascinate their victims to death. Blacksnakes, gopher snakes and racers have the power to a large degree. Rattlesnakes have the most fascinating power among all the poisonous serpents in the southwest. The indications of charming among poisonous snakes are deceiving sometimes. Poisonous snakes fang their prey once only. The poison does not kill at once. The victim flutters to a branch, it may be, or runs a short distance and stops. The snake watches it. The poison does its deadly work and the bird falls. Any one who comes up, not having seen the attack, might be readily deceived into imagining that it was the glance of the snake and not the poison that caused the victim to fall."

Second Marriages.

Statistics gathered by the New York board of health show that widowers of all races, colors and creeds take less kindly to a second dose of single blessedness than do widows. Of the total number of persons seeking the marital state in the standard year the bereaved ones of both sexes made up one-tenth of the list, and the widowers outdid the widows to the number of 556. Since the reports of the board deal solely with indisputable facts and leave debatable theories to the speculative mind the inquirer has to look elsewhere for an explanation of the disparity in figures. He finds it in various sources, but the authorities consulted disagree. However, the preponderance of testimony indicates that woman by the sweetness of her disposition contributes more materially to a man's happiness than he does to hers and that, having lost one spouse, he is never satisfied until he finds somebody else like her.

Men Do Women's Work.

One of the most interesting features of census records of the number of persons above ten years of age occupied in gainful pursuits is the revelation of the number of men who are doing work that properly is within woman's province. For instance, it is the natural and inalienable right of the women to teach school. But there are 11,986 male teachers. So, too, nursing ought to be peculiarly the task of women, yet there are 12,291 male nurses. It is indisputable that women of more or less tender age ought to monopolize stenography and typewriting, yet there are men bold enough to intrude upon 23,553 positions of the first kind and 2,753 of the second. Moreover, such is the fancy or the fate of some males that 1,718 of them are milliners, 2,116 are dressmakers and 4,837 are seamstresses.

Street Dust.

There can be no doubt that the filling the air with clouds of fine street dust is in more ways than one injurious to the health. This dust cloud is especially harmful to persons with delicate throats and lungs, and it must be no inconsiderable factor in aggravating the all prevalent catarrhal affections with which so many people are afflicted. Communities which permit this disgrace lack something of complete enlightenment and progressiveness. There ought to be genius to devise a remedy, and there ought to be public spirit and intelligence to carry it into operation.

A Curious Effect.

A curious effect is noted in the Andes. There is an inn halfway up the direct route where ascenders and descenders frequently meet, the former half perished with increasing cold, the latter overwhelmed with increasing heat.

The Maltese Goat.

The height of a Maltese goat is about 2 feet 6 inches, its weight nearly 100 pounds, and the cost of a good milk animal is from $50 to $125.

The Game of Checkers.

The game of checkers was first played in Egypt, so far as we know, about 4,000 years ago; it is older than chess. The name checkers was given to the game because the board is "checky," a heraldic term. The old English name is draughts.

Medicinal Remedies.

There are nearly 20,000 known medicinal remedies.

Carlyle Was a Great Pedestrian.

Carlyle invariably covered several miles before beginning work and enjoyed riding inside an omnibus, while Victor Hugo preferred the outside.

Doing Men's Work.

There are three women station agents in Indiana, all of them sole telegraph operators, freight and express agents and baggage masters at their own stations. The superintendent of the division says that the women keep the cleanest and best stations on the line and that their books are as well kept as their offices. The superintendent believes that women agents are possible in large towns and cities as well as in small places.

Why, since I have been eating it I feel like a rejuvenated being. MISS JANE EVANS."

Sunshine Furnace

PROPRIETOR—"Well Tom, how did that new furnace work this winter—save any coal?"

JANITOR—"Yes, sir! put in two tons less than last winter and have about half a ton left—guess it paid you to throw out that old coal-eater and put in this up-to-date SUNSHINE."

PROPRIETOR—"Yes, I think so; and I noticed the house was comfortable in all kinds of weather. Easy to take care of?"

JANITOR—"Yes, sir! just had to attend it twice a day—never had any trouble with the fire going out, and didn't have to spend half my time sweeping, cleaning, shaking, dumping ashes, and all that sort of thing—wish all my customers had SUNSHINES."

In the end you pay more for fuel than the furnace in which you burn it—a furnace that saves fuel saves it's cost.

DR. JEFFS' LECTURE ON SUGAR BEETS.

Interesting Facts Given Regarding This Important Industry.

Speaker Reviewed the History, Noting the Progress it has Made.

That the sugar beet industry is one that will have considerable influence upon the future prosperity of Canada was amply proven last night by the lecture which Dr. Jeffs, Chief Chemist of the Peterborough Sugar Beet Company, gave at a joint meeting of the Guild and Epworth League of Charlotte street church. The speaker handled this subject in a very interesting manner and the large number present thoroughly enjoyed Dr. Jeffs' address.

Speaking of the history of the industry he said that in 1899 the hundredth anniversary of its establishment was celebrated. It was first started in Germany, but its history has been characterized by considerable opposition even from its inception. This opposition is gradually being overcome, although even yet there are some who are skeptical as to its success.

In a most interesting way he explained the different processes through which the beet goes during the manufacture into sugar.

As an evidence that the industry would prove successful he mentioned that in the State of Michigan six years ago there was one factory, while there are now 17. In Canada there are four in operation, at Berlin, Wiarton, Dresden and Wallaceburg, with two under construction, one at Peterborough and the other at Raymond, N.W.T. The last mentioned has an interesting history. It is the result of the energy of one man, a Mormon, from Utah. A general emigration of adherents of this religious belief has taken place to this part of the N.W.T., and what was a few years ago, but an uncultivated pararie, is now a prosperous farming community. There the sugar beets are grown by the aid of irrigation, on which $500,000 has been spent.

Dr. Jeffs is most enthusiastic in his belief that the industry has a wonderful future in store for it in Canada. Capital is becoming interested and a general belief in its success is being manifested. The work in Peterborough is progressing at a satisfactory rate and it is confidently expected that ere long the sugar beet industry will be one of the mainstays of the town.

AT THE POLICE COURT THIS MORNING.

Wm. Ross was Sentenced at Cobourg to Seven Years Imprisonment.

At the police court this morning, before Jas. Stevenson, J. P., two boys were charged with stealing rubbers. One was remanded, while the case of the other was enlarged, both for to-morrow.

Chief Roszel has received a communication from the Cobourg Crown Attorney stating that William Ross had been given seven years in the Provincial Penitentiary, Arthur Penrose 18 months at the Central at Toronto, and Henry Raymond, 6 months at the Central at Toronto.

Ross was caught at Port Hope, and had several charges of forgery proven against him, while the two others were horse thieves. Penrose was caught in town and was sentenced for stealing a horse and buggy at both Campbellford and Lindsay, while Raymond, who was in partnership with Penrose, was caught at Campbellford.

ON THE ALERT.

Meeting of Board of Trade for Benefit of Peterborough.

Mr. Hughes-Charles, President of the Board of Trade, is calling a meeting on Friday night, of that body and all others who are interested in securing manufactories for Peterborough, for the purpose of considering the decision of the Singer Manufacturing Company, of Montreal, to remove to some locality affording better facilities in the way of cheap land, etc.

It seems also that the rate of taxation in the east interferes with the prosperity of companies operating there and they are beginning to look for better conditions.

In response to a wire from Mr. Hughes-Charles, the agent of the Singer Company replied:—"Judging from your telegram, the requirements of the Singer Company would probably be met in Peterborough. We should be pleased to get full information as regards site, waterpower, railway facilities and taxation. A plan of Peterborough showing proposed sites would be of assistance to us."

As the request of the Singer Company has a business-like look to it, it is hoped that every assistance will be given to the Board of Trade in their efforts to set forth the superior advantages of Peterborough.

It is unnecessary to urge the members to attend in large numbers.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

A Blow Adder Encountered Near Oak Orchard Lodge.

Mr. Paul Costello, of Ennismore, figured in an incident this week which, but for his presence of mind might have terminated with serious results. Mr. Costello's only motive in giving the facts to the public is that they may be warned by the narrow escape which he experienced. He was walking along a trail near Oak Orchard Lodge, when he heard a dull sound as though something were falling and, upon looking ahead, saw a large blow-adder on the trail immediately in front of him. The snake, which was about three feet long, had his head erect in a position to strike. Mr. Costello supposes that the adder had seen his approach from the branches of a tree and had dropped to the ground in preparation for battle.

Not wishing to meet such a deadly reptile, without a weapon of defence, he took a circuitous route out of the vicinity.

The scene of this incident is just about 300 yards from the Lodge and the facts are published in order that campers and those in that vicinity may not be met unprepared as Mr. Costello was.

MR. JOHN SMITH HAS PASSED AWAY.

Died at His Residence, Corner of Charlotte and Park Streets Yesterday Afternoon.

The death of a staunch Conservative occurred at two o'clock yesterday afternoon, when Mr. John Smith, residing at the corner of Charlotte and Park streets, passed peacefully away. The deceased, who was aged 70 years, has been ailing since Easter Monday, and died from heart failure. He leaves a family of seven children, three of whom, Michael, Thomas and Nellie, reside in town. The remainder are, John, living in British Columbia; Henry, of Washington; Mrs. Moffatt, of Johnston, Pa., and Mary, of Toronto.

The deceased was a popular old gentleman, and his death will be greatly felt.

The funeral will take place to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock, from the family residence to St. Peter's Cathedral; thence to the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

OBITUARY.

The death of Mrs. Jas. Middleton, which was recorded in yesterday's Examiner, occurred at the family residence, 663 Water street, on Sunday at 12 a.m. She was taken ill some three weeks ago, and a complication of diseases was more than her already weak frame could stand. The family had recently settled in town, coming from Smith, where the deceased had many warm friends. The fact of her having gotten away from the harder tasks, and being in a position to enjoy life, seemed to lend the greater sadness.

She leaves to mourn her loss, besides her sorrowing husband, to whom she always lent her deepest sympathies throughout his municipal career, three daughters and four sons, all of whom were with her at her last moments.

An ardent Christian, and a warm adherent of the Methodistchurch, her unselfish life was only surpassed by her dear Master, in whom she took such delight in serving.

"Through all pain at times she'd smile,
A smile of heavenly birth;
And when the angels called her home
She smiled farewell to earth.
Heaven retaineth now our treasure,
Earth the lonely casket keeps,
And the sunbeams long to linger
Where our sainted mother sleeps."

The funeral took place from her late residence this afternoon at 2.30, the ceremony being performed by Rev J. P. Wilson. A large number of friends followed the remains to the Little Lake Cemetery.

57th Regiment Colour Fund.

The treasurer of the 57th Regimental Colours Fund, Mr. T. A. S. Hay, has received $8.67 from the Wardens of St. John's church, being the collection at the military services held May 31st. This fund, it may be interesting to mention, was originally formed from the proceeds of military sports held on Queen Victoria's Jubilee Day, 1897, amounting to $45,54. Since then the fund has been lying at interest and has been augmented by gifts at different times. The Royal Chorus contributed $21.25, the proceeds of a concert, and military services of 1902 and 1903, in St. John's church, have been added to it. From all sources and accumulated interest the fund has now reached $80.00. Suggestions have been frequently made as to the desirability of this matter being actively taken up and pushed forward to completion, and there is no doubt that a general support will be given now that the project is brought definitely before the citizens. The present colours of the 57th were presented to the regiment by the ladies of Peterborough in June, 1868. The flags are now so frail, after 35 years use, that they can very seldom be displayed on parade.

THE PETERBOROUGH S. S. CONVENTION.

Successful Opening Meeting Last Night in Y. M. C. A. Hall.

Address Given by Mr. J. A Jackson, B. A., and Rev. W. R. Hassard of Toronto.

The Annual Sunday School Convention for Peterborough County was opened last night in the Y.M.C.A. Hall. Mr. R. J. Kidd presided at the meeting which was opened by devotional exercises conducted by Rev. A. H. Brace, pastor of Park street Baptist church.

Mr. A. J. Johnston, secretary of the Association here gave a report of the year's work which showed a very satisfactory year's work.

The President then referred to the pleasuire it had given him in attending to the duties of his office, which, though of a light character, had been a source of delight to him, as he had been ably assisted by the members of the Executive.

The Nominating Committee, with Mr. J. A. Fife, B.A., was chosen, and permission given them to retire.

Mr. J. A. Jackson, B. A., General Secretary of the Provincial S. S. Association was then called upon, and gave an exceedingly instructive and helpful address on the work of organization. He referred to the work done in the single school, then in the township, county, provincial and international organizations. He emphasized, among other things, the great work of Christian unity, the good work done in New Ontario, the very important work of travelling secretaries. His entire address was listened to with great interest.

The Rev. W. E. Hassard, B.D., of Crawford Street Methodist Church, held the closest attention of the convention. His great enthusiasm, intense zeal, and his complete mastery of the various departments of the magnificent work being done by the up-to-date Sunday school, was clearly manifested. He referred to the great results arising from the house to house visitation, the rich benediction to many a home as a result of the cradle roll, the important and saving influence of the home department, and the great boon to busy and devoted teachers of the normal training classes.

Dr. W. T. Harrison, of Keene, County Secretary, urged the attention of the convention to the need of a more practical interest in the visitation of brethren to the more needy sections of the county, and secured the hearty support of all by his strong appeal, for as a result the convention most enthusiastically voted its loyal support to this work.

A vote of thanks was most heartily given for the very interesting addresses of the evening.

At the close of Mr. Jackson's address the Nominating Committee reported as follows:

President—Rev. J. A. Wilson, B. A.,

Vice-Presidents — Mr. T. W. Robinson and Rev. A. H. Brace.

Secretary-Treasurer — A. J. Johnston.

Executive Committee — To be composed of the superintendents of the town schools.

The meeting was one of the most interesting held for many years.

Meetings will be held throughout the county during the week, and next Sunday afternoon a grand rally will be held in the George street church.

DRAGOONS AT CAMP.

C. Squadron Left by Special Train This Morning.

"C." Squadron, of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, left this morning by special train for Kingston, where they will go into camp for 12 days. The Squadron, which was a full one, was in command of Capt. W. H. Bradburn, with Lieutenants Geo. Hall and Percy R Price, Sergt-Major Young, Major W. D. Johnson, Capt. J. W. Garvin, Quartermaster, and Veterinary Lieut. Poole, also Capt. W. T. Hall, of "B." Squadron, accompaning the contingent. Notwithstanding the disagreeable climatic conditions the boys were all in good spirits and are prepared to put in some good hard work in camp.

WEDDED IN ST. LUKE'S.

Mr. Thos. Vaughan Married to Miss Emma Lillian Randall.

A very interesting wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon at St. Luke's church, by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt. Thomas Henry Vaughan was married to Miss Emma Lillian Randall. Miss Randall arrived in Montreal on Saturday from England, and was met there by Mr. Vaughan.

The wedding was witnessed to by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Maughan.

The bride was becomingly attired in a white silk dress with a flowing veil, and carried a handsome bouquet of white roses. After the ceremony the happy couple left for a short trip to Chemong and the back lakes.

Mr. Vaughan is employed with the Canadian General Electric Company as brass finisher, and they will on their return take up residence here.

FIRE IN BARBER SHOP.

Mr. W. Morgan's Shop Damaged by a Gasoline Stove Explosion.

Yesterday morning about seven o'clock, a fire which might have assumed serious proportions, occurred in W. Morgan's barbershop on George street. Mr. Morgan uses a gasoline stove to heat water, and after coming to work, lit the stove as usual, when in some mysterious manner, an explosion took place, the force of which demolished windows, mirrors and show cases. The fire rapidly spread, as is usual with a gasoline explosion, and the floor and walls, with the furniture, were damaged to a considerable extent. Mr. Morgan himself had a narrow escape as he received several painful burns about the head.

Although an alarm was rung in the services of the brigade were not required, as Mr. Morgan and others had extinguished the flames. The shop and fixtures were insured, but the loss will exceed the amount of insurance carried. Mr. Morgan declares he wants no more gasoline stoves.

LATE MR. SANDERSON'S FUNERAL YESTERDAY

Was Conducted by Rev. J. A. Wilson, of St. Paul's.

The funeral of the late W. A. Sanderson, which took place yesterday afternoon, at four o'clock, from the family residence, Brock street, to the Little Lake Cemetery, was a most impressive one, and was very largely attended.

Rev. J. A. Wilson conducted the burial service. The pall bearers were Messrs. W. H. Meldrum, W. G. Ferguson, Adam Hall, John Crane, Fred Addison and B. Shortly.

The deceased, who was 47 years of age, was generally beloved in town. His death will be greatly felt, and deeply mourned. He leaves behind him a wife and a family of four daughters, with whom all will sympathise.

As the cortege passed down George street most of the stores were closed out of respect for one who was so highly respected.

MR. JOHN BABB BROKE HIS LEG.

A Painful Accident to an Elderly Gentleman.

Mr. John Babb, an old gentleman of some 76 years of age, had the misfortune to break his leg at the hip joint, about a quarter past two yesterday afternoon. Mr. Babb lives on Babb's Lane, which runs between Gilmour street and Homewood avenue. It transpires that Mr. Babb went to bring his cow from the pasture field at the head of Gilmour street, and was leading her home, when in some manner he got entangled with the leading rope, and was thrown heavily to the ground with the above mentioned result.

Drs. Scott and Halliday were at once summoned and the injured man taken to the Nicholls Hospital, where he is progressing as well as can be expected under the circumstances.

THE MARCH OUT HAS BEEN POSTPONED

Owing to the Bad Condition of the Roads.

The march out of the 57th Regiment which was to have been tonight has been postponed, owing to the extremely bad condition of the roads. It is felt that Thursday night would be a very good one for the postponed event, as the Regiment will be leaving for Picton on Tuesday and an extra drill would do no harm.

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH.

A very delightful service was held Sunday night—the annual Flower Service of the Sunday School children, who walked in procession through the church carrying bouquets of flowers, which were sent the following morning to the Hospital for Sick Children, in Toronto. Rev. E. A. Langfeldt preached a sermon on character building. Preceding his sermon he expressed words of sympathy on behalf of St. Luke's congregation with Mr. Peter Hamilton in his sad bereavement. He urged upon the young people to take warning from these sudden deaths and to consecrate themselves to the Lord Jesus. If this sad ending of a young life would be the means of leading some young people to Christ, the speaker said, the dear young man had not died in vain. The congregation was very large.

The members of the W. A. attended church and Holy Communion in a body, the Rector preaching to them a sermon on "The Life Purpose of Missions."

The annual Sunday School excursion per steamer "City of Peterborough," will take place on Monday, July 6th to Idyl Wyld.

The 27th anniversary of St. Luke's will be celebrated on Sunday, July 5th, with special services, at which Rev. Dr. Symonds will be the preacher. This will be his last appearance in Peterborough previous to leaving for Montreal.

The Confirmation Class will meet Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. All candidates are requested to be present.

On Friday evening, at her residence, Cedar street, Miss Addie Dorris entertained her friends and the parents of about twenty-five of her pupils to a highly successful piano recital. The programme arranged for the evening was a delightful one, representing every grade from the rudimentary to Beethoven and Rubenstien, and afforded the parents and friends of the pupils an opportunity to see with gratification the noticeable advancement being made under the direction of Miss Dorris.

Variety was given the programme by a sweetly sung vocal solo, by Miss Nettie Lewis, who was heard to good advantage in "Oro Pro Nobis," by Piccolomini.

SUCCESSFUL PICNIC

Held at Bobcaygeon on Tuesday, June 9th.

The Roman Catholic picnic held at Bobcaygeon on June 9th, proved a great success. There have been occasions when the number was greater but never were the receipts better in proportion. A strong feature of all picnics held at Bobcaygeon is the many attractions which they afford.

Much credit is due to the good ladies for the manner in which they furnished and waited upon the picnickers.

The three ladies contesting for the $20.00 showed perseverance from the beginning and all deserve special mention. They showed by their act in returning the prize money that it was the cause, more than money, which urged them on.

Miss Maggie Conway, Bobcaygeon, procured $117.70; Miss Maggie O'Leary, Indian River, $93.60; Miss Ermine Doherty, Galway, $90.20.

The drawing took place on the grounds in the presence of all. Mr. T. Brady presided, and picked a little girl, Miss Wright, to draw.

The following are the lucky names:
1st draw—ticket R. 366, Miss Ida Redrick, 46 Elizabeth street Rochester, $5.00.
2nd draw—ticket O. 41, J. Cornell, Lindsay, $3.00.
3rd draw—ticket L. 127, A. W. Deacon, Stratford, $2.00.
The net receipts were $520.00.

BASEBALL.

A royal battle is in prospect for next Saturday, when the Excelsior and Auburn teams meet in a City League Championship game.

• • • •

This evening at 6.30 a picked team from the Intermediate League will play the Auburns at Murray street grounds.

• • • •

A "slaughter of the innocents" occurred at the McDonel street grounds last night in the Guild League. The George street Guild, with a crippled team, went up against the St. Andrew's Stalwarts and the result — 39-15 — the latter number representing George street's run-getting. The pitcher for St. Andrew's had the batters guessing all the time. Kelly in right field for St. Andrew's, made a brilliant double play, assisted by Elliott. The teams lined up as follows:—

St. Andrew's — W. Peace ss; H. Wilkie 3b; J. Cox 2b; R. Elliott 1b; C. Anderson p; L. Thornton c; C. Kelly rf; Mr. Cowan lf; W. Garrow cf.

George street — Dobbin c; Gray p; Henderson ss; Skitch 2b; Warne 1b; Dredge, 3b; Boomer rf; Turner lf; Hutchinson cf.

Two games were pulled off in the Intermediate League on Saturday and the first one proved a decided surprise. The Victorias outplayed the Y's and now stand tied with the Shamrocks for first place. Miller for the Y. team had an off day, and his support was not gilt-edged, while Mulhern, of the Vics, pitched steadily, and every man behind him, and every man behind him played to the very best of his ability.

O'Brien's and Robinson's running and catches of flies in centre were features.

The second game was a fizzle. The Quakers felt that they had no chance and consequently made little effort. They finally quit at the end of the fourth. The Shamrocks played an errorless game.

EXCELSIORS vs. LINDSAY.

The Excelsiors have at last arranged for a game with Lindsay. They come here to-morrow and the game will be pulled off in the Murray street grounds at 6.15 p.m. Manager Whitcroft will play Flaherty in the box and Belleghem will take his old position behind the bat. The game will be one of the best played on the local grounds this season, as the Excelsiors are rounding into splendid condition, and are bound to turn the tables on the Lindsay aggregation.

The boys deserve to be encouraged and as a good game is in prospect the spectators should be numerous.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mr. M. Tooley has been corresponding with one of the Scotch curlers who visited Peterborough last winter. The letter which follows is a compliment to Canadian hospitality:

"Dear Mr. Tooley,—Need I say how pleased I was to receive your kind letter of 28th ult., it brings back such pleasant memories; all the same my skip has never forgiven me for deserting him on that afternoon, but never mind we had a very good time of it. Remember me kindly to Mr. Blade. Glad Mr. Townsend sent you the knives; I hope you paid a cent a piece for them, for you know "knives cut friendship," well if you have not I will collect these three cents myself, as I intend coming out to see you all again soon, likely sailing three weeks hence. I saw the newspaper you speak of, "Daily Examiner," a friend here sent me one and I was very pleased to see such a full report of Duddingston dinner. Kerr's book will not be published until about the end of the year, but I have you "booked," and Blade too, whenever they make their appearance. I am glad to hear you are having some good sport in racing and fishing, and that you are enjoying the best of health. Notwithstanding all the hard work we had with your Canadian boys I arrived home 6 lbs. heavier than I have been any time during the last 30 years, so something had agreed well with me, I think it was the climate and the meals I had at Snowden's. Hoping then to see you soon, I am,

Yours, very truly,
M. SANDERSON.

NEWARK OR NIAGARA.

Mr. C. C. James Makes Correction of Paragraph in The Globe.

Mr. C. C. James writes:— In The Globe of June 1st appears this editorial note:—

"It has not been generally noticed that the name 'Newark' was not given officially to Niagara immediately after it became the capital of Upper Canada. It continued to be called 'Niagara' during the first two sessions of the first Parliament, as shown by its records, and the name 'Newark' was substituted during the last three sessions. Fortunately after York became the capital the newer name fell into disuse."

The writer of this note is, I think, in error, and I beg to give my reasons.

There are in the Legislative Library typewritten copies of the journals of the first and second sessions of the first Parliament. They are headed "Newark, 17th September, 1792" and "Newark, 31st May, 1793." The name "Niagara" does not appear. There are no records of the 3rd, 4th and 5th sessions known to be in existence. They may be found some day, and I have no doubt that they also will be found as of Newark. The writer of your note probably drew his conclusions from the volume entitled "The Provincial Statutes, Revised, Corrected and Reprinted by Authority, York, 1818." In this volume the names are given as in your note; but it should be remembered that it was a compilation made at York a quarter of a century after the sessions, and is not an original record. The original record distinctly gives Newark, and is, I presume, the authority in the matter. But even apart from that, the York, 1818, volume could not be accepted as authoritative on this point, seeing that it makes a mistake in numbering the sessions running over a period of eight years. In the volume there is no fifth session to the first Parliament, it being numbered by mistake the first of the second. The mistake is continued until, strange to say, we find the fourth session of the third Parliament in 1803, and again the fourth session of the third Parliament in 1804. In this year (1804) the compilers rectified the matter, but why they did not retrace their steps and correct the previous errors is somewhat strange. The error, doubtless, arose through thinking that only four sessions must have been the limit.

These mistakes in numbering the sessions were corrected in the statutes issued at Kingston in 1831 by Thompson and Macfarlane, but the old error of Niagara and Newark was perpetuated, and, stranger still, the 1799 session held at York is credited to Newark.

One further comment may be added: The statement might be made that the Legislature did not meet at either Newark or Niagara. All of Governor Simcoe's proclamations and orders were issued simply from "Navy Hall." The sessions were held in "The Council Room, Navy Hall." In all the official reports as to the Governor's comings and goings Navy Hall is mentioned, not Niagara or Newark. Therefore we conclude that the Governor located his Government at Navy Hall, the official journals were dated at Newark, and the settlers used the names Newark and Niagara without any apparent distinction.—The Globe.

HE'S AT WORK ONCE MORE.

Simon V. Landry Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Had Lame Back, Weak Legs, and was a Total Wreck Before he was Induced to try the Great Kidney Remedy.

River Bourgeois, Richmond Co., C. B., June 22.—(Special.)—One more remarkable cure has been credited to Dodd's Kidney Pills in this neighbourhood, and the story is best told in the words of Simon V. Landry, the man cured. Mr. Landry says:

"I was bothered for over a year with Lame Back, Weak Legs, and Palpitation of the Heart and general weakness and shortness of breath. In fact I was a total wreck. I could not work as I got tired and weak so easy.

"I also had a weakness in my stomach, and it was so bad that I could not bend down to do anything. I tried many medicines without getting any relief till I was induced to try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"After I had used three boxes of them I was able to start work again. I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to everybody."

It is cures like this that give Dodd's kidney Pills their popularity. They not only relieve but make people able and willing to work.

Wouldn't Lie Twice.

Nora had been told to say at the door that her mistress was not at home when certain callers appeared upon the scene.

It evidently went much against the grain for her to make herself responsible for even so small a white lie, but she promised to do so, and, with certain modifications, she kept her word.

"Is Mrs. Blank at home?" queried the caller.

"For this wan toime, Mrs. Smithers, she ain't," said the maid, "but hivin help her if yon ashk me again. I'll not lole twoice for anybody livin'!".

The Tired Ones.

An aged Scotch minister, who was very boastful, once said to his good friend:

"Think of it! I preached two hours and 'twenty minutes last Sunday!"

"Didn't it weary you very much?" inquired the other solicitously.

"Oh, no," said the minister. "But you should have seen the congregation!"

Business vs. Biliousness.

The man who is subject to biliousness cannot attend to business—biliousness demands all his attention. Biliousness arises from the retention of waste and foreign matter in the system, natures drainage being clogged.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt

goes to the root of the trouble and eradicates the cause—persuades the stomach and bowels, in a gentle but insistent manner, into healthy action, Abbey's clears the bile from the system in nature's own way, bringing health, a clear head, a clean stomach and energy for work.

THE HOTTENTOT.

This poor unfortunate Hottentot
He was not content with his lottentot;
Quoth he, "For my dinner,
As I am a sinner,
There's nothing to put in the pottentot!"

This poor unfortunate Hottentot
Cried: "Yield to starvation I'll nottentot.
I'll get me a cantaloupe
Or else a young antelope,
One who'll enjoy being shottentot."

This poor unfortunate Hottentot
His bow and his arrows he gottentot,
And, being stout hearted,
At once he departed
And struck through the bush at a trottentot.

This poor unfortunate Hottentot,
When several miles from his cottentot,
He chanced to set eyes on
A snake that was p'ison
A-tying itself in a knottentot.

Then this poor unfortunate Hottentot
Remarked: "This for me is no spottentot!
I'd better be going;
There's really no knowing
If he's trying to charm me or whattentot!"

This poor unfortunate Hottentot
Was turning to flee to his grottentot
When a lioness met him
And suddenly "et" him,
As a penny's engulfed by the slottentot.

MORAL.

This poor unfortunate Hottentot
Had better have borne with his lottentot
And grown even thinner
For lack of a dinner,
But I should have had, then, no plottentot!

HUMOR

A GENIUS OF PEACE.

How a Family Squabble Over a Vacation Was Settled.

"Do you see that seedy looking chap sitting on that bench over there?"

"You mean the one with fringe on his trousers, tassels on his elbows and openwork shoes?"

"That's the one. Well, sir, he is the most ingenious man in this big city."

"It doesn't seem to do him much good."

"Don't, eh? Why, sir, it's preserved his happy home to him even if he does owe the butcher and the landlord and the grocer and everybody else. He alone has succeeded in doing what every man in this town, not to speak about the country at large, would give most anything to do. If true merit and ability cut any ice with our beloved government he'd be at the head of affairs this minute. Why, with his marvelous sagacity and miraculous success as a compromiser we'd never hear of any friction between this country and every other. Never, sir, and with no loss of dignity, either. Why, sir, I believe that man could keep peace in an old ladies' home."

"What's he done that's so wonderful?"

"Why, he and his wife had the usual argument this spring that disrupts every family in the land. She was bound and determined to spend his vacation at the seaside, and he gently but firmly insisted upon going to the mountains. You know the rest. They argued the matter, they disputed about it, they squabbled over it, and they quarreled. Neither would give in. The breach between them grew wider and wider. It became a point of honor with each to prevail. They became more and more bitter. Reconciliation seemed out of the question. And then, sir, when that chasm seemed unbridgeable, that man's superhuman ingenuity came to the rescue. Profound peace fell upon the battlefield, ecstatic bliss succeeded strife, and delirious happiness reigned again in that home, and the children could eat their meals without spending half the time dodging dishes."

"Huh! I suppose he gave in to her. That's no trick. Every man does that."

"No, sir. That would have left rankling wounds, festering bitterness and horrid memories to the defeated. But he arranged it all so that neither was defeated, neither was victorious."

"Impossible. But how?"

"He went, sir, deliberately to work and lost his position, so they couldn't afford to go to any place. Now, wasn't he a wizard to think of that?"—Alex. Ricketts in New York Times.

A Tough Proposition.

"I have now come to the parting of the ways," said the legislator thoughtfully.

"How so?"

"I must now decide whether I am here to represent the bosses or the people. If I offend the one I never can be nominated again; if I offend the other I never can be elected. I tell you, the public does not realize the great problems of statesmanship that confront a man in public life."—Brooklyn Eagle.

He Certainly Is.

"Yes," said the party who occasionally thinks out loud, "he is certainly entitled to a seat in the front row of the heavenly orchestra."

"Who is entitled to the aforesaid seat?" asked the human interrogation point.

Cautious.

"You are absolutely certain about your statement?" asked the lawyer.

The chauffeur had driven his automobile over a little baby.

The chauffeur smiled through his tears with renewed hope and silently pressed in gratitude the hand of his kind comforter.—Baltimore News.

THE SOLAR PLEXUS AND INDIGESTION

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

The solar plexus is the largest nerve centre of the sympathetic nervous system, and may be described as a storehouse of nervous energy. It is situated just back of the stomach and supplies the motive power which runs the machinery of the digestive system.

If an excessive amount of nerve force is consumed in the brain by worry, anxiety, mental strain or disease the quantity supplied to the solar plexus is correspondingly deficient, and hence lacking nerve force the vital organs only feebly perform their functions. The digestive fluid flows slowly, the stomach loses its contracting power, the liver and kidneys grow torpid and sluggish, and indigestion soon develops into what is known as nervous dyspepsia.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new red corpuscles in the blood, creates new nerve force, and so affords lasting cure for dyspepsia, indigestion and resulting headaches, dizzy spells and irritability by supplying the necessary energy of the solar plexus. By noting your increase of weight from week to week while using this great food cure, you can prove that your system is being built up and new flesh and tissue being added to the body. Fifty cents a box; six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co, Toronto. To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Six Doctors Failed to Cure Him.

ERYSIPELAS AND SALT RHEUM WAS THE TROUBLE.

Burdock Blood Bitters

DID MORE THAN SIX DOCTORS COULD DO.

Mrs. Theo. Newell, Argyle Sound, N.S., expresses her opinion of this wonderful blood remedy in the following letter:

"It is with the greatest gratitude that I can testify to the wonderful curative powers of Burdock Blood Bitters. For years my husband suffered terribly with Erysipelas and Salt Rheum. He was so bad at times that he could no sleep on account of the itching and burning. He had been under the care of six different doctors, but they failed to do him any good. I had read different times of the wonderful cures being made by Burdock Blood Bitters, so advised him to give it a trial. He did so, and after taking five bottles was cured without a doubt. I would strongly advise any person troubled with blood disorders to give B.B.B. a fair trial for I am sure it will cure them."

SADDEST SPOT IN LONDON.

St. Peter's Chapel the Tomb of Many Historical Characters—Why Macaulay Expressed Disgust in This Connection.

St. Peter's Chapel, at the Tower of London, has probably more sad memories than any place in London, according to The Sphere. It was there that the head and body of the Duke of Monmouth were placed under the communion table after his execution. Within four years the pavement of the chancel was again disturbed and hard by the remains of Monmouth were laid the remains of Jeffreys. Macaulay, in recording the fact, wrote an eloquent description of the chapel. In truth, there is no sadder spot on earth than that little cemetery.

"Thither have been carried through successive ages by the rude hands of jailers, without one mourner following, the bleeding relics of men who had been captains of armies, and leaders of parties, the oracles of senates and the ornaments of courts. Thither was borne before the window where Jane Grey was praying, the mangled body of Gilford Dudley. Edward Seymour, duke of Somerset and protector of the realm, reposes there by the brother whom he murdered. There has moldered away the headless trunk of John Fisher, Bishop of Rochester and Cardinal of St. Vitalis, a man worthy to have lived in a better age and to have died in a better cause. There are laid John Dudley, Duke of Northumberland, Lord High Admiral; Thomas Cromwell and Earl of Essex, Lord High Treasurer. There, too, is another Essex, on whom nature and fortune had lavished all their bounties in vain and whom valor, grace, genius, royal favor, popular applause conducted to an early and ignominious doom. Not far off sleep two chiefs of the great house of Howard—Thomas, fourth Duke of Norfolk, and Philip, eleventh Earl of Arundel.

"Here and there among the thick graves of unquiet and aspiring statemen lie more delicate sufferers—Margaret of Salisbury, the last of the proud name of Plantagenet, and those two fair queens who perished by the jealous rage of Henry. Such was the dust with which the dust of Monmouth mingled."

In a note Macaulay adds: "I cannot refrain from expressing my disgust at the barbarous stupidity which has transformed this most interesting little church into the likeness of a meeting-house in a manufacturing town."

Sir Edwin Arnold and Miss Clerke.

Writing of lady astronomers in The Daily Telegraph, Sir Edwin Arnold thus refers to the election of Miss Agnes Clerke to an honorary fellowship of the Royal Astronomical Society: I do not know whether the honor thus bestowed upon women at large by such an appointment, or that derived by this society from the acquisition of such scientific comrades, should be thought greater. The step thus taken by male astronomers was not exactly novel, because during last century the same society recognized in the same way the irresistible merits of Mrs. Somerville, Miss Caroline Herschel and Miss Anne Sheepshanks. Equally irresistible were the claims of the two ladies who have now been admitted within the sacred circle. Lady Huggins is well known by all those who follow this highest of all sciences to have been for many years the "right-hand man" of her renowned husband in his spectroscopic researches: while as for the other new "fellow," no one can talk about modern astronomy without deriving facts from the splendid work done in that sphere by the authoress of the "Problems in Astrophysics." Such is the title of the last great work of Miss Agnes Clerke, and it follows upon many a fine contribution to the study of the stars, and crowns them all with a noble labor at once profound and popular, and registers for the present generation the latest and largest discoveries of stellar research in a style as lucid as the learning underneath it is wide, accurate, and comprehensive. If it were the custom of our Royal Astronomers to confer fresh names upon new members, Miss Clerke ought to be rechristened Urania, so faithfully has she given all the best years of her life to heavenly studies. If a new planet were discovered it would be an act of common justice, rather than a compliment, to christen it after her, for few of now living masculine astronomers could better find their road up and down the Milky Way, and in and out of the constellations. . . . Very few, of course, could ever climb as far into starry heights as Miss Clerke, and to gain even a tenth part of her acquaintance with the heavenly scheme would ask the devotion of years."

The Height of the Clouds.

The highest clouds, cirrus and cirro stratus, rise on an average to a height of nearly 30,000 feet. The middle clouds keep at from about 10,000 to 23,0000 feet above the surface of the earth, the lower clouds seldom lower than 3,000 or higher than 7,000 feet. The cumulus clouds float with their lower surface at a height of from 4,000 to 5,000 feet, while their summits frequently extend upward to a height of 16,000. The tops of the Alps are often completely hidden by clouds of the third class, while those of the other classes are frequently seen shooting up the ravines like sheets of smoke.

The Great Apiarist.

The man whom Darwin referred to as "the great apiarist," Dr. Johann Dzierzon, is still living at the age of ninety-two. During a recent exhibition in Vienna he attracted much attention. He was born in Silesia and already as a boy was greatly interested in bees. In 1835 he became a pastor, but abdicated in 1858 in order to devote himself entirely to bees. Many important discoveries have been made by him, and it was he who acclimated the industrious Italian bees in Germany and made it possible for every farmer to have his bee-hive.

Could Not Lie On Her Left Side.

WAS TROUBLED WITH PAIN IN HER HEART FOR SIX YEARS.

Expected Her Friends Would Find Her Dead.

Mrs. C. Bondreau, Campbellton, N.B., was completely cured by

MILBURN'S Heart and Nerve Pills.

She tells of her experience in the following letter: "I was troubled with a pain in my heart and weakness for six years. Most of the time I could not lie on my left side. I consulted a doctor but got no relief and was completely discouraged. I did not think I would live long and expected my friends would find me dead. A friend brought me a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and I took them to please her, not thinking they would do me any good. I had not used half the box when I commenced to feel myself getting better and by the time I had taken two boxes I was completely cured and can recommend them to all sufferers from heart trouble."

VAGARIES OF THE YAK.

A Clumsy Beast of Burden, but Sure Footed and Faithful.

"The yak goes much his own way, no matter how strongly his rider may twitch the cord drawn through the cartilage of his nose. It is his wont to march doggedly on with his muzzle close to the ground, breathing so hard that you can almost imagine your ears are bussing with the sharp drone of a steam saw some distance away tearing its way through timber."

So writes the great Swedish explorer, Dr. Sven Hedin, who has traveled over a great part of the Asiatic continent on yak back, and therefore knows whereof he speaks.

One day while Dr. Hedin was exploring a glacier the good and bad points of his yak steed were brought plainly out. The heavy creature picked his way through the rugged moraine, avoiding all holes and balancing himself in a marvelous manner on the sharp edges of rocks. When a steep slope was to be descended, he would draw his four feet rigidly under him and coast to the bottom. He stopped short when he chose, and neither blows nor coaxing had the slightest effect, but after a time he would grunt cheerfully and proceed on the interrupted journey. A snowstorm overtook the party later in the day, and, though the explorer feared that his steed might balk again, he showed excellent sense by making as rapidly for the camp as his legs could carry him.

"He flung himself down declivities and dived like an otter through the snow," says Dr. Hedin; "but, alas, sitting in the saddle was like riding a high sea in a rocking, pitching skiff. Often I was obliged to fling myself backward till my back touched the back of the yak, and I had to adjust my balance to all his unexpected movements."

One day he witnessed an amusing race between yaks and camels in a camp at the Pamir mountains. The long haired camels, with their rocking humps, burst at once into a wild gallop and deafened the bystanders with their screams as they dashed along, regardless of the course laid down for them. The yaks were, as usual, both self possessed and obstinate. Two of them declined to budge an inch. Another walked quite away from the course. Some made an attempt to move sidewise, while one philosophic pair slowly and solemnly stalked around the course and came in as prize winners.—New York Tribune.

"I wrote to Dr. Pierce for his advice."

The lady, from whose letter we quote, got what she wrote for, and is a well woman to-day as a result of following Dr. Pierce's advice and using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the medicine which makes weak women strong and sick women well. "Favorite Prescription" establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women, especially those suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I can truthfully say that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a wonderful medicine and deserves the praise given it," writes Mrs. Emma Spooner, of Lakeview, Montcalm Co., Mich., Box 288. "I was sick four months, and the medicine prescribed by the doctors did me no good. Finally I wrote to Dr. Pierce for his advice. He answered in a very kind letter instructing me what to do. I followed his advice and to-day am a well woman, thanks to Dr. Pierce."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

WHAT BRANDING MEANS.

How the Horse Feels During the Maddening Process.

Now, most steers and all horses object to the branding process, says Bewell Ford in "Horses Nine." Even the spiritless little Indian ponies, accustomed to many ingenious kinds of abuse, rebel at this. A meek eyed mule, on whom humility rests as an all covering robe, must be properly roped before submitting.

In branding they first get a rope over your neck and shut off your wind. Then they trip your feet by roping your fore legs while you are on the jump. This brings you down hard and with much abruptness. A cowboy sits on your head while others pin you to the ground from various vantage points. Next some one holds a redhot iron on your rump until it has sunk deep into your skin. That is branding.

The burn of a branding iron is supposed to heal almost immediately. Cowboys will tell you that a horse is always more frightened than hurt during the operation and that the day after he feels none the worse. All this you need not credit. A burn is a burn, whether made purposely with a branding iron or by accident in any other way. The scorched flesh puckers and smarts. It hurts every time a leg is moved. It seems as if a thousand needles were playing a tattoo on the exposed surface.

Neither is this the worst of the business. To a high strung animal the roping, throwing and burning are a tremendous nervous shock. For days after branding a horse will jump and start, quivering with expectant agony, at the slightest cause.

A Life Saving Order.

Many years ago the American warship Delaware came near foundering off the coast of Sardinia while luffing through a heavy squall during a morning watch. The "unauthorized letting go of the fore sheet" alone saved the ship from going down with 1,100 souls on board. The first lieutenant, afterward Commodore Thomas W. Wyman, with difficult climbing succeeded in reaching the quarter deck, where, snatching the trumpet from the officer in charge, his first order, given in a voice heard distinctly fore and aft, was "Keep clear of the paint work!" This command to hundreds of human beings packed in the lee scuppers like sardines in a box instantly restored them to order and prevented a panic, they naturally feeling that if at such a time, with a line of battle ship on her beam ends, clean paint work was of paramount importance their condition could not be a serious one.

Origin of "Canard."

Here is a newspaper derivation of the word "canard." A canard means, in French, a duck; in English it has come to mean a hoax or fabricated newspaper story. Its origin is amusing. Many years ago a French journalist contributed to the French press an experiment of which he declared himself to have been the author. Twenty ducks were placed together, and one of them, having been cut up into very small pieces, was gluttonously gobbled up by the other nineteen. Another bird was then sacrificed for the remainder and so on until one duck was left, which thus contained in its inside the other nineteen! This the journalist ate. The story caught on and was copied into all the newspapers of Europe. And thus the "canard" became immortalized.

Very Pleasant.

Because it makes the digestion of good nourishing food easy, Angier's Petroleum Emulsion is prescribed by physicians for wasting diseases. It cleanses the blood and system of impurities and creates firm flesh. It is pleasant to take and agreeable to weak stomachs. 11a

He Had Eight Reasons.

A writer in The Clinton New Era can vouch for the truth of the following: A western ex-member of Parliament, whose expensive family kept him, while a member of the House, in an almost "chronic state of impecuniosity," was approached by a delegation, with a view of again entering the political arena. He refused, and for eight reasons. When asked what they were he replied, "The first is my wife, and the other seven are my seven children."

WHEN SHE GRADUATES.

When Gladys Gadder graduates,
It's billed to happen in the June,
The happy time the world awaits
With budding boughs and birds a-tune,
And all the Gadders will be there,
Their collar bones they'll dislocate
To listen to the essay rare
And see Gladyssa graduate.

That essay is a wondrous thing;
The Gadders know it word for word,
For Gladys has been practicing
On them and all its points they've heard.
And when she says, "The past's behind,
The present here, the future there,"
They gaze upon her stricken blind
By genius blossomed unaware!

Her gown's a fluffy chiffon dream,
With sash of satin, fan of pearl,
A symphony in palest cream,
All for the little Gadder girl,
Now Miss Gladdyssa, if you please,
And if you want to see her mad
Gaze in her eyes when, just to tease,
Her little brother calls her "Glad!"

The cab will call for her at four,
And ma will cry and look at dad,
As though it were a wedding or
A funeral or something sad.
The angels on their harps will play
The grand event to celebrate,
And Gadder will stay home that day
To see his Gladdy graduate!

QUOTATIONS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET

The Quotations of the Leading Stocks —Market Letters.

The Wall street market was dull and uninteresting this morning, the total sales to noon being only 115,100 shares. C.F.I. was certainly the feature of the market. It jumped from 61 1-2, its opening quotation, to 65 7-8, and there appeared to be considerable trading in this issue. Towards the close of the market in the afternoon traders on Wall street got busy and there was a slight upward movement in prices. C.F.I. was particularly strong and touched 69 3-4, but closed 3-8 lower.

The following despatches have been received by F. M. Poussett & Co.:—

New York, June 23rd, 9.45 a.m.—General sentiment continues rather blue this a.m., because weather continues very bad and has a depressing influence and also because London comes weak, and is 1-4 to 1-2 below our closing prices. The market acted fairly well yesterday considering all the bad news and held up pretty good until the last hour when there was general selling by traders and bear element. It was this selling which made low prices at close and hammered down B. R. T., C. F. I. Penna., R.G., and M.R., and the selling by traders who had worked for a rally early in day in an effort to scalp the market followed this selling pressure. The outlook is for a further decline this a.m.

JUNE SESSION OF THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

Concluded its Business on Saturday Afternoon.

The Different Committees Present Their Reports.

The Council was early at work Saturday morning—the members getting down to business as early as 8.30 Friday having been taken up visiting Gannon's Narrows left a considerable arrearage of business to be wiped off the slate.

The council went into regular session at 11 o'clock with the Warden in the chair. All the members being present.

The Clerk read the minutes of Thursday's proceedings, which were on motion confirmed.

The following reports were then submitted:—

APPOINTMENTS TO OFFICE.

Councillor Shaw read the report of the Committee on Appointments to Office as follows:—

The Committee on Appointments to Office beg leave to report as follows:—

1. Your committee recommends that Mr. Hill, Principal of the Lakefield Public School, be appointed to fill the vacancy on the County Board of Examiners, to examine teachers, etc., caused by the retirement from said Board of Mr. Evans who has recently removed from Lakefield.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

R. SHAW,
Chairman.

County Council Chamber, Peterborough, June 20th, 1903.

On motion of Mr. Shaw the report was adopted.

ROADS AND BRIDGES.

Councillor Fitzgerald read the report of the Committee of Roads and Bridges as follows:—

The Committee on Roads and Bridges begs leave to report, recommending as follows:—

1. Your committee recommends that the communication from the Trent Valley Waterway Association, be referred to the Finance Committee.

2. Your committee recommends that no action be taken upon the communications from the Eastern Ontario and Western Ontario Good Roads Associations.

3. Your committee recommends that this council visit the site of the proposed new bridge at Gannon's Narrows on Friday, June 19th, 1903, and that the matter of making the necessary arrangements for the visit be left in the hands of the Chairman of this committee, and Mr. Shaw and the County Clerk.

4. Your committee recommends that the grant of $75.00 made by this council in January last to Galway and Cavendish for repairs to roads and bridges therein, be paid to the Township of Galway and that power be given the Township to expend the same in assisting in the erection of the new Kinmount bridge.

5. Your committee recommends that the matter of the repairs to the bridges on the boundary line between the Townships of Emily and Ennismore, be left in the hands of the Chairman of this Committee, with power to meet with the Commissioner from the County of Victoria, and have the necessary repairs made to the bridges.

6. Your committee recommends that no further action be taken by this council in reference to making a grant to the Kinmount bridge.

7. Your committee recommends that the matter of repairs to the locks bridge be left in the hands of Mr. Johnston with power to act.

8. Your committee recommends that the matter of repairs to the Ashburnham bridge be left in the hands of Mr. Pack, with power to act.

9. Your committee recommends that that part of clause 17 of the report of this committee adopted in January last, granting $75.00 to Burleigh and Anstruther for repairs to roads and bridges therein, be rescinded.

10. Your committee recommends that a grant of $150.00 be made to Burleigh and Anstruther to assist in erecting a bridge over Eel's Creek, on the Burleigh road, on condition that the Ontario Government grant $300.00 for the same purpose, and the Municipality of Burleigh and Anstruther grant a sum sufficient to complete the same.

11. Your committee recommends that the account of Thomas Flood of $85.00, for repairs to Pigeon Creek bridge be paid.

12. Your committee recommends that the matter of the repairs to the Burleigh bridge, be left in the hands of Mr. Mengue, with power to act.

13. Your committee recommends that the report of the County Engineer be adopted and printed with the minutes of this council.

14. Your committee recommends that the matter of the flooding of the road in Methune caused by the raising of the water by the Cordova Mining Company's dam, be left in the hands of Mr. Curtis.

15. Your committee recommends that the accounts for repairs to the Indian River bridge be paid when certified to by Mr. Moloney.

16. Your committee recommends that in the event of the Ontario Government not making the grant referred to in clause 10 of this report, then clause 9 of this report shall not take effect.

17. Your committee recommends that the building of the proposed bridge at Gannon's Narrows be left in the hands of the Warden, the Chairman of this committee and Messrs. Shaw and Jackson, to proceed with the work forthwith, and with power to vary the proposed plans by substituting a floating swing instead of a ferry over the part intended to be left open for navigation; the work to be done by Mr. Wm. O'Leary, who will prepare a fortnightly pay list, wages to be paid on the certificate of the Chairman.

18. Your committee recommends that a special grant of $150.00 towards building bridges on the 13th concession line of North Monaghan, provided the Ontario Government grant $300.00 for the same purpose, and the Township of North Monaghan complete the work.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

G. W. FITZGERALD,
Chairman.

Councillor Shaw moved the adoption of the report, seconded by Councillor Menogue.

In amendment Councillor Fitzgerald moved, that the report be referred back to the committee, with instructions to add a grant of $300 for road improvements in the Township of Smith.

This motion was the signal for considerable "sparring" for grants among the councillors from other divisions. Councillor Peck rose and moved for a grant for the Township of Otonabee, and Councillor Buck followed with a motion for a grant for Asphodel. At this juncture, Councillor Shaw withdrew his motion for the adoption of the report.

Councillor Bennet appealed for fair play. The grant of $150, recommended in the report, for the repair of the North Monaghan bridges, and which, apparently, gave rise to all the trouble—was a conditional one, depending upon the Ontario Government granting $300 for the same purpose. Mr. Bennet, felt that for this reason the council should not endeavour to block the much-needed assistance when there was a fair prospect for government supplementing the grant.

Councillor Johnston thought that North Monaghan had no cause to complain, as the township received a fair share of everything that was going.

Councillor Moloney then moved, seconded by Councillor Hunter, that all the grants, except the North Monaghan grant, be struck out of the report.

The yeas and nays was called for with the following result:—

Yeas—Councillors Moloney, Hunter and Curtis.—3.

Nays.—Councillors Fitzgerald, Shaw, Monogue, Johnston, Peck and Buck.—6.

The Warden declared the motion lost.

Councillor Shaw moved, seconded by Councillor Monogue, that the report be referred back to the committee with instructions to strike out clauses 9, 10, 16 and 18.

This motion was carried on the following division:—Yeas. — Councillors Shaw, Monogue, Johnston, Peck and Buck.—5 Nays.—Councillors Moloney, Hunter, Fitzgerald and Curtis.—4.

The clauses referred to were struck out and the report as amended was then read by Councillor Fitzgerald and adopted.

PRINTING REPORT.

Councillor Buck read the report of the Committee on Printing as follows:—

The Committee on Printing begs leave to report and recommend as follows:—

1. Your committee recommends that the price of printing for the County be increased fifteen per cent. and that the Clerk be instructed to obtain from the printers a schedule showing the rates for the county printing to be submitted to the Chairman of the committee for appoval.

2. Your committee recommends that in future the Clerk order one hundred and fifty copies of the minutes of this council to be printed instead of three hundred as at present.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

W. J. BUCK,
Chairman.

County Council Chamber, Peterborough, June 20th, 1903.

On motion of Councillor Buck the report was adopted.

SCHOOL REPORT.

Councillor Curtis submitted the report of the Committee on Schools as follows:—

The Committee on Schools begs leave to report as follows:—

1. Your committee recommends that the County Judge, the County School Inspector, and Mr. Robt. Shaw be appointed Arbitrators, pursuant to Section 42 of the Public Schools Act, to deal with the matters complained of in the appeal of certain ratepayers of School Section number eleven, of the Township of Otonabee, but in order that the parties concerned may have time to try to adjust their difficulties amicably, we would recommend that the Arbitrators do not take action in the matter before September, 1903.

2. Your committee recommends that the report of the County Council Inspector be received, and that the Clerk be instructed to have the same printed in the minutes of the proceedings of the council.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

W. J. CURTIS,
Chairman.

County Council Chamber, Peterborough, June 20th, 1903.

On motion of Councillor Curtis the report was adopted.

The council adjourned until 3 o'clock, to allow time for the members to inspect the work going on in connection with the erection of the new sugar beet factory.

The return of the members from their visit the council resumed at 3.40 o'clock.

EQUALIZATION AND ASSESSMENT.

Council Moloney read the report of the Committee on Equalization and Assessment as follows:—

The Committee on Equalization and Assessment begs leave to report as follows:—

1. Your committee recommends that all the municipalities comprising the County of Peterborough, be assessed for the purpose of County Rates at the value set forth in the schedule hereto annexed and that such valuation shall be the equalized assessment for county purposes, for the year 1903.

2. Your committee recommends that this council determine that this council is willing to have the final equalization of the assessment, in case of appeal, made by the County Judge.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

D. MOLONEY,
Chairman.

HALL'S GLEN.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mr. F. W. Payne returned home last week, from attending the annual Grand Lodge of the I.O.G.T.

The erection of Mr. E Bickel's new frame barn on Saturday last, was the scene of a little excitement. The success was largely due to the skilful management of the expert framer, Mr. W. J. Little.

A number of young men left this neighbourhood during the week for the militia camp at Kingston, where they will spent twelve days drilling.

Mr. George Gaul of Keene, made a general tour through this vicinity last week.

The annual excursion of the Zion and Bethel Sunday school, which was run on the 11th inst. on Stony Lake, was a fair success, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather. The boat was comfortably filled and all enjoyed themselves very much.

The Good Templars of Zion Lodge, No. 96, and a number of invited friends, participated in a very pleasant evening at the home of Mr. L. Payne, on the 19th inst. After refreshments, which consisted of strawberries, etc., some time was spent in vocal and instrumental music, games, etc, after which Mr. A. Nelson, acting as chairman, delivered an eloquent address, which was followed by a brief account of the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of the I.O.G.T. Bro. F. H. Payne and Miss Matthew on request, made a few remarks.

One in Four Persons.

One person in every four suffers more or less from itching piles. Some do not know the nature of their ailment and others have not heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment as the only absolute and guaranteed cure for this distressing disease. If you are a sufferer ask your neighbours about this great preparatio. It has grown popular as a result of the news of its merits being passed from friend to friend.

OUR NEW LIQUOR STORE.

The workmen are putting the finishing touches on our new liquor store, which has been separated from our grocery store and fitted up according to law. The public can now be specially served with the choicest brands of pure liquors, wines and ales, all in good condition. Orders will receive careful attention. PETERBOROUGH RANGERS TO HAVE NEW COLOURS.

Large Meeting of Ladies Yesterday Afternoon.

Mayor Roger in the Chair—Election of Officers and the Work Done.

The meeting of the ladies of the town, who are interested in the presentation of a new stand of colours to the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, which was called by Mayor Roger, held in the Y.M.C.A. parlours at four o'clock yesterday afternoon, was fairly largely attended. Besides His Worship Mayor Roger, who acted as chairman, there were two other gentlemen present: Rev. J. C. Davidson, chaplain, and Mr. T. A. S. Hay, while the ladies present were Mrs. J. F. Dennistoun, Mrs. (Hon.) J. R. Stratton, Mrs. Boucher, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Rubidge, Mrs. Collins, Miss Collins, Mrs. Eastwood, Miss A. Dennistoun, Miss Barlee and Miss Lundy.

Mayor Roger formally opened the meeting by stating its object, and concluded by asking the Chaplain, Rev. J. C. Davidson, to address the ladies present.

In the course of his remarks, Rev. Mr. Davidson referred to Mr. T. A. S. Hay as being the father of the movement for new colours, which project he had been furthering for some years, and towards which he had accumulated a public fund.

He went on to explain that his own position was simply that of an intermediary as he had learnt of the desire of many individual ladies to do something towards this end, and stated that at their request he had communicated with the Mayor, with the result that the meeting had been called. The speaker said that the notice given of the meeting had been necessarily a short one owing to the approaching holiday season. He said he felt that it was for this reason that some ladies, whom he personally knew to be interested, had not put in an appearance, or perhaps they might not have heard of the meeting. Pointing to the present flags, patched and rent, after 35 years wear, Rev. J. C. Davidson said, "There are the colours and here are the ladies, with others to support them—what more need be said?"

Before closing the Chaplain called upon Mr. Hay to speak. In commencing, the Town Engineer, said he was not exactly the father of this movement, but remarked that he was present when the colours were presented to the regiment in 1868. He said that some eight or ten years ago, a special kind of silk, said to stand all climates, had been woven, and suggested that the colours be made in England, where all such orders were fulfilled for the Imperial Army including the Regulars, Militia and Volunteers. He stated that Peterborough had every reason to be proud of the 57th, which had always distinguished itself in active warfare. The speaker said that at the Diamond Jubilee of the late Queen Victoria, military sports had been held and some $45 raised thereby. On other similar occasions money for new colours had been raised until the account now stands at $80. The speaker said that on making enquiries he had found that the prices of a stand of colours ranged from $200 to $300, but that the ordinary price paid was about $230 to $250. With this Mr. Hay concluded.

Mrs. Dennistoun asked if it would be better to send to England for the colours or to leave the order with a Toronto firm.

Mr. Hay answered by saying that by sending to England they would probably be better suited in the end as the military tailors of that country are more experienced and would make the colours according to regulations, where a Canadian firm might vary in that respect.

On motion of Mrs. Dennistoun, seconded by Miss Lundy, it was resolved that the ladies of the town undertake the project. The motion, it might be stated was carried unanimously.

Miss Barlee proposed forming a committee and appointing Mr. Hay Secretary.

After some discussion Mr. Hay consented to writing to London, Eng., and getting designs and prices and then handing over the duties of the office to a secretary to be appointed.

The election of officers which then took place resulted as follows:—

President—Mrs. J. F. Dennistoun.

Vice-President—Mrs. (Hon.) J. R. Stratton.

Treasurer—Miss Barlee.

Secretary—Mrs. Campbell.

Managing Committee — Mrs. Collins, Miss Collins, Mrs. R. E. Wood, Miss Lundy, Mrs. Boucher, Mrs. Eastwood, Mrs. Rubidge, Miss A. Dennistoun, Miss Roger, Mrs. McAllister, Mrs. O'Sullivan and Mrs. LeBrun.

It was resolved that a subscription list be opened by means of the local press. This will be seen in another column of this issue.

On motion of Miss Lundy, seconded by Mrs. Boucher, it was decided that the meeting resolve into a committee with the power to add to its numbers. This was done as will be seen above.

After some further discussion the meeting adjourned.

A PRETTY WEDDING.

Mr. R. P. Davidson of Lakefield, Married in Windsor.

The Toronto Globe publishes the following report of the wedding of Mr. R. P. Davidson, Manager of the Traders' Bank, Lakefield:—

"Several Toronto people went to Windsor for the wedding there on Thursday of Mr. Robert Peddis Davidson, of Lakefield, son of Mr. R. S. T. Davidson, Toronto, to Miss Mabel Agnes Beasley. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Margaret Beasley, Rev. Canon Hincks officiating. The house had been most artistically decorated by Mrs. S. S. Simonds, sister of the bride. The bride's gown was of silk net, embroidered with chiffon roses, mounted on whole white taffeta silk. She wore a white tulle veil and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid was Miss Florence F. Meisner of Buffalo, cousin of the bride, who wore pink silk mulle over taffeta silk and carried pink roses. Miss Florence Bartlet, in white and Master Jack Simonds, were ring bearers. The bride was given away by her brother-in-law, Mr. S. S. Simonds. Leslie A. Davidson of Toronto, was best man, and Wylie Davidson and W. C. Kennedy were ushers. The Groom's present to the bride was a solitaire diamond ring, to the bridesmaid a handsome sunburst of pearls, to the ring-bearers signet rings, to the best man a fob and locket, and to the ushers, cuff-links. Mr. and Mrs. Davidson left for a trip to Atlantic City and Bar Harbour, returning by the St. Lawrence to their home at Lakefield. Among the guests were Miss Jean and Miss Tess Davidson, the groom's sisters, his father, Mr. R. S. T. Davidson, and Miss Clara McColl of Toronto."

A prominent club woman, Mrs. Danforth, of St. Joseph, Mich., tells how she was cured of falling of the womb and its accompanying pains.

"Life looks dark indeed when a woman feels that her strength is sapping away and she has no hopes of ever being restored. Such was my feeling a few months ago when I was advised that my poor health was caused by prolapsus or falling of the womb. The words sounded like a knell to me, I felt that my sun had set; but Lydia E. For four months I took the medicine daily and each dose added health and strength. I am so thankful for the help I obtained through its use."—MRS. MR. STRATTON'S COURAGE

The article below was taken from Events, (Independent):—

"There is one very noticeable thing about the Gamey case. Those who took it up did so not as a means of upsetting Mr. Stratton personally but as giving promise of something which would upset the Government as a whole. This may account in some measure for the coolness and courage with which Mr. Stratton has endured the ordeal. A consciousness of innocence may have contributed materially to his equanimity. In any event it is certain that Mr. Stratton has come through a very trying time with a greater number of friends than he had when the session opened. He must now continue to keep his head cool and not let the exuberance of victory alter his demeanour or change his much to be desired reticence of speech. On the cover of this issue we present a half-tone portrait of the Provincial Secretary, who doesn't look such a bad fellow after all."

MR. GAMEY'S SPEECH.

Toronto News.

Mr. Gamey's speech leaves an unfavourable impression of bitterness and savagery that has to wear off before it is possible to estimate the real force of what he had to say. He brought into the open debate of the Parliamentary Chamber many things which are much better left to the lower class of the party press. He scores his game in a way that is recognized in backwoods journalism and on the stump, buf that should not be recognized in Queen's Park. There are points for the try as well as for the goal. If it is worth four points to prove a man guilty, he argues, it is worth at least one to insinuate him so. And he proceeds to do it in very unclassical language. There is just one excuse to be made for him. Finding that having said what he believes he can prove he is not permitted to prove it, he may reasonably argue that it does not matter whether he can prove what he says or not.

Mr. Gamey's signal mistake seems to have been that he failed to recognize the necessity for absolute frankness. That necessity has evidently been borne in upon him by subsequent developments. Whether he will obey it to the full remains to be seen. One of the most insistent demands for explanation has been that which called for a statement concerning the mutilation of the Crossin piano company account books. That demand has been considerably modified by the point made by Mr. Lucas that the books were last seen before mutilation by counsel for the defence. Without making any inuendoes at all, one can readily admit that Mr. Gamey has a right to repudiate the mutilation, and a much more positive right to claim that the books contained nothing damaging to his case. Neither of these considerations applies to the matter of the substituted deposit slips. Of that matter Mr. Gamey owes the public an explanation, and he now has the opportunity to make it. He has, he tells us, no desire to pose as a hero or a model of excellence. He certainly cannot do either while that transaction remains a mystery, and whatever be the explanation his claim to ordinary decency will be greatly strengthened by making it public.

THE SAPPHIRE CORUNDUM CO.

Trying to Collect $60,000 From Mrs. Ernest Terch Hooley.

The application to wind up the Sapphire Corundum Company, of London, England, was postponed to-day for one week at the request of the solicitors for the company. In support of their request for an adjournment, the company showed that the Canadian creditors' claims only amounted to $4,000, and that the plant and other property of the company at their mines in Methuen Township, Peterborough County, was worth a great deal more than this, so the Canadian creditors are amply secured.

The object of the adjournment was to get news from England of the proceedings there by the company to collect the $60,000 which Mrs. Ernest Terch Hooley owes on account of her subscription, and the further proceedings by English creditors to get a winding up order there.—Toronto News.

BLAIRTON.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

On Saturday at the foot of "Jerry Falls, Deer River, on the Gilmour drive, on which some 75 men are employed, a sad drowning accident occurred. James Witemen, aged 19 years, fell off the logs into a strong eddy, and being unable to swim, he went down twice in about ten feet of water, after which two men, impelled by nothing else than manly daring, went to his rescue. On reaching the drowning man, amid the impetuous water and its foam, the whirling of the logs, the turmoil of the falls and the incoming timber, their strenuous efforts to save him bore the impress of heroism in its brightest form. Obtaining hold of Witemen, they found that at the peril of their own lives, and in order to reach shore, they must have freedom of every limb, hence they instructed Witemen to hold on to them. Owing to his much exhausted state Witemen failed to hold on, and his would be rescurers, after a desperate struggle reached shore, only to find that the poor fellow had gone down to death. The body was recovered on Sunday morning, next day, at about where it sank. The Gilmour Company sent the remains to the village of Marmora, where the sorrowing father, a much respected farmer of Soline, came to take it in charge for burial at home. Thanks are due to Mr. A. Patterson of this place, for the above reliable information.

AFTER OTHER HELP FAILED.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Restore a Young Lady to Full Health and Strength.

Doctors and nurses recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills because they have seen their wonderful power to make new, rich, red blood, and to cure all diseases due to poor blood or weak nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are not a common medicine. They do not purge and weaken. They contain no poisonous drugs. They are safe, sure, simple, stimulating and scientific. That is why these pills should be taken by all who are weak, bloodless, nerveless and sickly. Here is a bit of very positive proof of the wonderful power to conquer disease which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills possess; Miss Esther E. Lewis, Lynn, N.S., says: "At the age of sixteen my health failed me completely. At that time I was attacked by la grippe, which was followed by measles, from the after effects of which I was left in a deplorable condition. I became very pale, suffered from headaches, dizziness and want of appetite. I tried several medicines, but they did me no good; on the contrary I was growing weaker and finally became so bad that I would take spells of unconsciousness lasting from fifteen minutes to an hour at a time, and I had become so weak that I could hardly move about. At this stage I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I have good reason to bless the day I began their use. I had only taken them a few weeks when I began to recover and under their continued use for some time longer I fully regained my former good health. I will be glad if my experience will be of benefit to some other poor sufferer."

When buying the pills see that the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" is printed on the wrapper around each box. Sold by all dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE PROPER MANNER OF CURING HAY.

Bulletin Issued by the Agriculture Department Giving Valuable Suggestions.

Since the hay crop is likely to be light this year, it is doubly important that it be handled to the best possible advantage and cut and cured in such a way as to secure the largest amount of nutrients in the most digestible and palatable form.

To this end it is well at this season to bear the following facts in mind:—Early cut hay is relatively richer in flesh-forming elements; it is more palatable and digestible; it has a sweeter aroma; but it has the disadvantage of being much more difficult to cure. Grass, as it approaches maturity, gains considerably in weight; part of the increase consists of starch and sugar, which is valuable to the feeder; and part consists of crude fibre which decreases digestibility, and renders the hay less palatable. Early cut hay is more valuable per ton than late cut; but a larger amount of digestible nutrients per acre is obtained by later cutting. Late cut hay has also the advantage of being more easily and rapidly cured, thus diminishing not only the labour but also the risk of loss in harvesting.

Early cut hay is especially valuable for sheep, calves, colts and dairy cattle; while for fattening cattle, late cut hay will give as good results. In experiments conducted by Prof. Sanborn, of New Hampshire, and Prof Henry, of Wisconsin, to determine the relative value of early and late cut hay for fattening steers, the advantage was a little in favour of the late cut hay.

Whether hay should be cut early or late will depend, therefore, on the following conditions: — (1) The stock to be kept; at least enough hay should be cut early to supply the dairy cows and young stock. (2) The season; if the weather be "catchy" it is generally wiser to defer the cutting until somewhat later. (3) The acreage to be handled; if the crop be large, it will be necessary to begin cutting earlier.

By earlier cutting is meant cutting at or before the time of full bloom. By late cutting is meant cutting between the time of full bloom and ripening. In any case, however, hay should be cut before it is ripe enough for the seed to shell readily. A crop of mixed clover and timothy hay is at its best if both quality and quantity is to be considered, when from one-third to one-half of the clover blossoms have turned over.

Hay should be cured and stored as rapidly as possible after cutting. With this end in view it is better to defer cutting in the morning until most of the dew is off. If thirty tons or more of hay is to be handled in a season a tedder will be found a good instrument. Care must be exercised to avoid storing hay while at all damp from rain, dew or absorption from the ground. Moisture of this kind will spoil hay much quicker than the water contained in its own sap.

Last year attention was called to the method of curing clover hay practiced successfully by Mr. Henry Glendenning and a number of other prominent and reliable farmers. Mr. Glendenning thus outlines his method:

Cut when in full bloom, or when the blossom contains the most honey.

Cut in the morning after the dew has dried off. That cut in the morning may be cocked up in the afternoon. The mower should not be run later than four p.m., and all cut that day should be put into cock before the dew falls. This hay should be put into the barn next day and well tramped into the mows.

He especially emphasizes the following conditions:

1. Do not cut in the morning until the grass is dry.
2. Do not allow fresh cut hay to lie on the ground over night, exposed to dew or rain.
3. If any hay should get wet with rain let it stand in the cocks until thoroughly dry before taking it to the barn.

Mr. Glendenning states that his hay came out as green as when it was put in, with the blossoms a beautiful pink colour, which would indicate that it had not heated as much as one would naturally expect.

The advantages of this method are:

1. The saving of time between cutting and storing, lessening the risk of damage from rain.
2. All leaves and blossoms, the most valuable parts of the plant are saved.
3. The hay is cleaner and brighter than that cured in the old way.

Of course hay cannot be cured by rule, conditions vary. A good way of curing on a gravelly upland farm would be quite unsuitable to the flatter clay and humus soil.

The length of time for which hay should be exposed in the swath will be dermined by its ripeness, by the humidity of the atmosphere, the temperature and moisture of the soil the presence or absence of wind, etc. So that every man must be in a large measure a law unto himself, and his practice must be governed by personal experience.

It appears to be a fact, however, that when the conditions are favourable and the necessary skill and judgment exercised, clover can be stored much greener than was formerly thought possible, and that the very best quality of hay may be secured in this way.

Live Stock Commissioner.

TO CENSURE GAMEY.

Amendment Moved by Mr. Rickard in the Legislature.

LIBERALS HAVE THE FLOOR

"Stripes" Instead of Stars For Certain Men—Mr. Pettypiece Puts Up Some Strong Points—Mr. Andrew Pattullo Delivers an Eloquent and Forceful Speech—Inconsistencies of the Opposition Shown Up.

Toronto, June 24. — In the Legislature yesterday the debate on the Commissioners' report was continued.

Mr. Wm. Rickard (West Durham) followed Mr. St. John, speaking until the noon adjournment. He said that instead of being decorated with a star, Mr. Gamey should have a stripe. He then went into the incident of the bank deposit slip, referring each time to Mr. Gamey's action as being done in "a plain and simple way." He concluded by moving the following amendment to the amendment:

That all the words after the first word "that" in the amendment be struck out and that the following words be added to the original motion: "And this House regrets that it has become its duty to place on record an expression of censure of the conduct of the member for Manitoulin in connection with the matters forming the subject of investigation."

Mr. Pettypiece.

After recess, Mr. Pettypiece said that unless the paying of the money was proven all the charges fell to the ground and there was no reason to condemn the Government. Gamey had stood up in the House and told of what he was going to prove, but when his witnesses were called one after another they denied the truth of his story. It was charged that the Government gave patronage to the member for Manitoulin. What harm was there in giving patronage to a supporter of the Government, and was there anything wrong in the Government asking for the assurance of the member for Manitoulin that there was no corrupt bargain?

After stating the practice of sawing off election protests was an old one, Mr. Pettypiece referred to Dr. Nesbitt's statement that he would stand by Gamey. When the charges were made in the House Liberals were shocked, and calmly waited for the evidence. The evidence was brought out, and if there had been any leaves missing from the Provincial Secretary's cash book they would have been quick to condemn him. Mr. Gamey had promised that the piano factory evidence would have clinched the case for him, yet not a word was said there of the $3,000 which was the essence of the whole charges. He believed that the report would be sustained by the people, as it would be sustained by every member on the Government side, and he had reason to believe, by some on the opposite side of the House.

Mr. Pettypiece compared Gamey to Napoleon: each had come from their island home, the old Napoleon retiring to Elba and the young Napoleon to Buffalo. History did not tell us who went to bring the Napoleon from Elba, but it did tell us that the member for West Lambton (Mr. Hanna) went to bring the young Napoleon back from his retreat. The old Napoleon retired finally to St Helena, but the young Napoleon, after he had met his Waterloo, would retire to oblivion. (Applause.)

Quarantine the Church Also.

Mr. Milton Carr spent a few minutes answering the remarks of Rev. Dr. Carman, who wanted to quarantine the Legislature. How would Dr. Carman like it if someone would want to quarantine the whole Methodist Church because a couple of Methodist preachers went to Syracuse and disgraced themselves. Pick out ninety-eight men anywhere and there would be sure to be one Judas Iscariot among them, as there was one in the Legislature.

Mr. Pattullo's Review.

Mr. Andrew Pattullo, the next speaker, asked why all the long arguments of the Opposition now? They had said the Government were guilty in March, when they only had the statement of the member for Manitoulin. The members of the Opposition now found themselves, much against their will, compelled to stand by the member for Manitoulin. The question of submitting such cases as the present to a royal commission instead of to a committee of the House, Mr. Pattullo said, was as important to-day as it was before the reference, but surely after the long debate on that subject it was strange that the Opposition members would still want to bring up the subject, especially in view of the recent occurrences in the Public Accounts Committee.

Trial by Committee.

They said that Mr. Frank Sullivan had bossed that committee, and Ministers of the Crown, they said, had burked the presentation of evidence before the committee. If this were so, what sort of a committee would that be for the investigation of the Gamey charges? It was a libel upon the statute of 1884, approved of by both sides of the House, to say that the Judges had been asked to stop down into the political arena. This was practically a trial for a crime, and a State trial. Did the Opposition say that if he (Mr. Pattullo) should have an election trial it should not be tried before Judge Street or Judge Meredith, who had been keen politicians on the Conservative side? The remarks of the Opposition were an insult to every Judge in the country, and had been so received by them.

Guilt Inconceivable.

Mr. Pattullo, resuming in the evening, said it was absolutely inconceivable that the Provincial Secretary, after such an investigation, should be guuilty and not found out. (Applaus?) If the Conservatives believed the Provincial Secretary guilty, why didn't they go into the party funds? Because they were afraid to have their own party funds investigated. It was a fair inference that had the latter been investigated we would have found out where the money came from. (Hear, hear.) Mr. Gamey had deceived many people, his party, his lawyers and the country. He had been in a business that trained a man's wit, and had been experienced in politics. Instead of being a backwoodsman he was a man of ability and resource, an extremely fluent and forceful speaker. Therefore he was a man who, if the crime had been committed, would have succeeded in proving his case. (Applause.) The story, however, was so improbable as to be unbelievable. It assumed that the Provincial Secretary was a knave as well as a fool. If it had been true, the accused should first be sent to a lunatic asylum. (Hear, hear.) Gamey's confederate had never been called, and the inference was he could not corroborate the story.

Gamey's Bad Breaks.

The incident of the leaves in the Crossin book was one the common people would understand, and they would say the Judges were honest, and what they said about that matter the people would accept. If the member for Manitoulin went to Buffalo for rest, no fault could be found at the same time he said he was sorry he had gone. If the junior counsel knew where Gamey was the morning of the memorable conference at the trial, what did Mr. Blake and Mr. Ritchie think of them for not informing them. (Applause.) Mr. Pattullo denounced Mr. Lucas' charge that Mr. McEvoy took the leaves from the Crossin book as infamous, and without a shadow of evidence.

Col. Matheson—There is the same kind of evidence against McEvoy as against the member for Manitoulin.

Mr. Pattullo denied this, and gave Mr. McEvoy as his authority, and in response to the Opposition laughter invited any hon. gentleman opposite to go any place outside the privilege of the House and make the charge, and they would soon have the chance to prove it. The desertion of Gamey by his counsel indicated they had lost faith in the truth of his story. If they deserted him without cause they should be taken in hand by the Benchers of the Law Society. (Applause.)

"In the Main True."

The hon. member for South Lanark (Col. Matheson) had said that he believed the story of the member for Manitoulin was in the main true.

Col. Matheson interrupted to say he believed that the member for Manitoulin received the $3,000 and the $1,000. There might be other statements in which Mr. Gamey made errors in the same way as the Judges had made gross errors.

Mr. Pattullo—If they could not believe all Mr. Gamey said they could not believe any of it. If they were to accept the condemnations of the judiciary made by the member for Manitoulin they might as well abandon our civilization. There were many clever criminals in the penitentiaries who could, if given access to the press and the public platform, give plenty of entertainment by narrating the corruption of the Judges who had condemned them.

Defending the Judges.

Mr. Pattullo criticized the leader of the Opposition for applauding the member for Manitoulin when he accused Sir John Boyd—Boyd, as he was called—of being dishonest. Sir John Boyd was appointed by a Conservative Government, and was never a political partisan. He was then, and had always been, a man of stainless character. The legal fraternity, moreover, said of Chief Justice Falconbridge, upon whom vile epithets and obloquy had been heaped, that there was no more honorable or capable judge in the country. Of the charges of political corruption proved, it was a matter of history that those convicting Liberals were only half as numerous as those convicting Conservatives. It was a matter of history also that the Liberals when they made charges proved them in every instance. The reason the Liberal Government had been so long in power was because they had kept themselves pure. (Applause.)

Mr. Pattullo closed with an earnest protest against the deliberate policy of assassination of public honor, such as they had seen during the debate. He did not believe the people of this country would condone such outrages of the decencies of public life, such prostitution of privilege. In his concluding sentences he paid an eloquent tribute to the honor and ability of the Hon Geo. W. Ross.

Mr. W. H. Hoyle (North Ontario) moved the adjournment of the debate and the House adjourned at 10 p.m.

Wants Reward Offered.

Mr. W. R. Smyth gives notice of a motion as follows: "That this House recommend the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to offer a reward of ten thousand dollars ($10,000) for information leading to the discovery of the source from which R. R. Gamey, Esq., received $1,500 which he deposited in the Traders' Bank at Toronto on the 11th day of September last, and $900 which he deposited in the Ontario Bank in Toronto on the same date, also $500 which he alleges he received on the 20th of January last; and that the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council guarantee immunity from punishment to any person or persons giving such information."

FOR SYSTEMIC CATARRH

Peculiar to Summer Pe-ru-na Gives Prompt and Permanent Relief.

C. S. Rhoads, Indianapolis, Ind., writes:

"For the past two years I have hardly known what it was to have a sweet, restful night's sleep. Cares and overwork seemed to weigh me down more than it should or would had I been able to get my proper rest. My doctor was unable to help me and ordered me South for a complete rest and change. As this was simply out of the question, and as I had heard several of the men under me speak of how much Peruna had helped them, I decided to try it and am glad indeed that I did. Six bottles made a new man of me. I eat well, sleep well and get up feeling refreshed and rested.

"My official duties are not half so hard and I certainly have good reasons to heartily endorse Peruna."—C. S. Rhoads.

A Prominent Business Man of Indianapolis Restored to Health and Vigor by Pe-ru-na. He says: "Pe-ru-na made a New Man of Me."

Judge Wm. T. Zenor, of Washington, D. C., writes from 218 N. Capital street, Washington, D. C.:

"I take pleasure in saying that I can cheerfully recommend the use of Peruna as a remedy for catarrhal trouble and a most excellent tonic for general conditions."—Wm. T. Zenor.

Mrs. Amanda Morrill, 130 Reid street, Elizabeth, N. J., writes:

"I have been sick over two years with nervous prostration and general debility, and heart trouble. Have had four doctors; all said that I could not get well. I had not walked a step in nine months, suffering with partial paralysis and palpitation of the heart every other day, and had become so reduced in flesh as to be a mere skeleton, weighing only 85 pounds.

"Up to this date I have taken Peruna for seven months. It has saved my life as I can safely testify. I have not felt so well in five years, having walked over one mile without ill result, and have also gained thirty pounds since commencing to take Peruna. In fact, I cannot praise it too highly."—Mrs. Amanda Morrill.

Peruna never fails to prevent systemic catarrh or nervous prostration if taken in time. Peruna is the most prompt and permanent cure for all cases of nervous prostration caused by systemic catarrh known to the medical profession.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

WEDDING BELLS.

Nuptials of Mr. Geo. Evans and Miss Annie Carruthers.

A very pretty, if somewhat quiet wedding, took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Green, the contracting parties being Miss Annie Carruthers and Mr. George Evans, both of town.

Rev. J. G. Potter conducted the ceremony, after which a wedding dejeuner was served.

The bride was wedded in her travelling gown of grey trimmed with white applique. She wore a black chapeau.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans left by the 5.30 G.T.R. train this afternoon for Toronto and Stratford. They will on their return reside at 546 Downie street. The wedding was celebrated at the residence of the bride's sister.

A very large number of handsome presents, among which was a silver butter dish from St. Andrew's choir, evidenced the popularity of the contracting persons.

A CATHEDRAL WEDDING.

Mr. James Hickey Married to Miss Annie Quinn.

St. Peter's Cathedral was the scene of a pretty wedding yesterday morning, the contracting parties being Miss Annie L. Quinn, of Bridgenorth, and Mr. Jas. J. Hickey, of Peterborough. The bride was very prettily gowned in a white dress, and her bridesmaid, Miss Lizzie Quinn, also was dressed very becomingly. Mr. Fred McFadden supported the groom. Rev. Father O'Brien performed the ceremony in the presence of friends of the young couple. Mr. Hickey is a young man who has taken an active part in T.A.S. management, having served on different committees. A few days ago a number of his friends learning of his approaching marriage gathered in the T.A.S. rooms and presented him with a handsome mantle clock as an evidence of their esteem for him. The following address was read by Mr. Jos. Begley and Mr. Frank Pope gracefully made the presentation:—

Peterborough, June 20th, '03.

To James J. Hickey:—

Dear Sir and Brother,—We, your companions and members of the different committee connected with St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society, wish to convey to you our congratulations upon the occasion of your approaching marriage.

We feel it our duty that we should, in some manner show our appreciation of the good natured spirit that allowed us time and again to place the bulk of the work on your shoulders.

It may appear selfish, but it is true, nevertheless, that your bachelor companions look forward to the near future when you will cease to be numbered amongst them with that all-gone tired feeling; and it is whispered around, that some of them have come to the conclusion, that the only remedy is to go and do likewise.

It is with the greatest pleasure that those of us who have entered that partnership, which only death dissolves, will welcome you to our ranks, and we know that the deep interest you have taken to advance the welfare of others, and your obliging and whole-souled disposition will obtain for you domestic happiness, and tend to brighten your home.

In conclusion we wish you to accept this gift as a slight appreciation of our good feelings towards you and may it recall pleasant memories, and remind you of the fact, that you have greatly assisted in making our society what it is to-day—the pride of the people of Peterborough.

We hope and pray that God will extend to you and yours a long and happy life.

Signed on behalf of the different committees.

Mr. Hickey responded in a happy little speech, thanking his friends for the gift.

The members of the department in which Mr. Hickey is employed at the Canadian General Electric Company, also made him the recipient of a clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Hickey start on their married life with many wishes for a happy future. They will reside on Elm street.

57TH REGIMENT COLOURS' FUND.

A Resolution at the Meeting of Ladies.

Held in the Y. M. C. A. Parlours Yesterday—Contributions Should be Addressed to the Examiner.

A meeting of special moment was held yesterday afternoon in the Y. M.C.A. Parlours for the purpose of discussing the project of presenting the 57th Regiment with a new stand of colours. The ladies, to their credit, be it said, unanimously agreed to undertake to endeavour to raise the necessary funds. A full account of the meeting appears in another column of this issue. During the discussion it was resolved that a subscription list be opened in the local newspapers for this purpose. The regiment, of whom not only the town but the country is justly proud, is badly in need of new colours, and the ladies deserve great commendation for the activity which they have displayed. It might be mentioned that subscriptions are not limited as to amount, and the ladies will be very pleased to receive all contributions, no matter how minute and insignificant they appear to be, for every little helps. Contributions should be left at the Examiner office addressed to "Miss Barlee, treasurer 57th Regimental Colours Fund," when they will be acknowledged in these columns.

PRETTY HOME WEDDING.

Mr. James H. Chatten's Residence Scene of Interesting Event.

A most interesting wedding ceremony was performed at the residence of Mr. Jas. H. Chatten, 350 Smith street, this afternoon, when his youngest daughter, Alice Annie was united in marriage to Mr. John Robt. Coolige, Rev. J. G. Potter being the officiating clergyman.

The bride, who looked charming in a dress of white Victoria muslin, trimmed with lace and insertion, carrying a large bouquet of white roses, was attended by her sister, Miss Alberta May Chatten, dressed in green muslin, with white satin stripes, trimmed with lace, and carried pink roses. Mr. Frank Found supported the groom. Little Miss Winsome Collins, niece of the bride, was flower girl, and Misses Dolly and Rosie Chatten, also nieces, acted as ushers.

The drawing room was prettily decorated for the occasion with evergreens and flowers. After the ceremony the party sat down to a delightful dejeuner, following which the happy couple left immediately for their new home, 348 Smith street.

In addition to a large number of friends from town, Mrs. Clinton Van Valitz and Mr. Albert Spencely, of New York, witnessed the pleasing event.

The bride was the recipient of a handsome array of valuable presents testifying to the respect which her numerous friends have for her. The young couple enter married life under most pleasing auspices and their friends join in wishing them many years of happiness.

The team will have to be strengthened, and it is likely that several changes will be made before the match. The one place the team that needs looking after is the home. THE KILLIN-KEOUGH STUDENTS' RECITAL.

Music of a High Order Given by Singers of Promise.

A Talk on "The Singing Tone" Much Enjoyed—Series of Recitals to be Given During the Summer.

The Assembly Hall of the Y.M.C.A. last night was the scene of a Recital given by pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Killin-Keough, and it was a veritable musical feast. Some of those who sang had taken instruction only about 5 weeks and their work was of a high order. A feature of the programme which was of special interest to singers, was the talk given by Mr. Keough on the "Singing Tone." It showed that he had a thorough understanding of his subject, and the work of his pupils demonstrated that he is able to put his knowledge to practical use in instructing others. A portion of Mr. Keough's talk is given below:—

"THE SINGING TONE."

"Under this topic I wish to say a few words about the instrument we call the human voice, and about the proper way to play upon it. These ideas that I shall advance, and which are the basis of our work in voice culture, have the authority of the late Sir Morell Mackenzie, the world famous London throat specialist; Dr. Curtis, of New York City, to whom scores of speakers, singers and doctors pay fabulous prices to teach them how to use their voices without doing themselves harm; Dr. Frank Miller, also of New York, formerly a singing teacher, now a medical specialist in diseases of the vocal organs; Louis Arthur Russell, of Newark, N. J., formerly editor of the vocal department of Werner's Magazine, and now editing a department in the "Etude"; Herbert Wilson Greene, the editor of the vocal department of the "Etude"; The late Dr. Eben Tourjee, the founder of the New England Conservatory; Arthur W. Thayer, of Boston; Emilio Agramonte, the renowned teacher and operatic coacher; the late Salvatore Marchesi Boulay, of Paris; Vannuccini, of Florence, great teachers; and such singers as Melba, Sembrich, the de Reszkes, Victor Morel and many others of greater or less renown. From personal conversation, or through printed expressions, their conclusions have been obtained. Their own success, and that of the exponents of their teachings prove them to be correct.

"The instrument is wonderful in construction. The larynx is perhaps its chief part, the size and shape of which largely determines the range of voice. The tone is first caused by the delicate ligaments which are at the top of this resonant box, formed of rings of cartilage, which we commonly term the "Adam's Apple." These ligaments or strings in conjunction with the larynx act upon the same principle as the Aeolian harp, the violin, etc. Then there are other sounding boxes to which the vibrations are communicated. The breath which gently bows the delicate strings carries the sound waves into the mouth, and they should be carried without obstruction to the front of the mouth. Thus they are communicated to the natural sounding board, which is the floor of the nasal cavity, this latter cavity is another sounding box, is a resonance centre also. The cords passing over the larynx, making connection between the head and thorax, communicate the vibrations to the chest which is another resonating box. So we have the larynx, pharynx, mouth, nasal cavity, and chest, repeating the same vibrations in harmony with the little strings or ligaments of the larynx. The mouth is the place where the tones are moulded, stopped, interrupted, in the varied processes of articulation. The individual peculiarities in formation of these organs and cavities, and the tension of muscles, nerves and sinews, give character to the tones and vary them in accordance with the mood or artificial thought of the singer. The human organ is a wind instrument, and is controlled by the lungs, which act as the bellows. It may be also called a stringed instrument; it employs the principles of percussion."

The programme opened with a ladies' chorus, "A Creole Love Song," which was well chosen and splendidly rendered. Mr. George Hall, although not in the best condition by reason of a severe cold, sang very creditably, "The Violet." This was followed by "The Flower Girl," given by Mrs. Metheral, in a sweet voice, of which she has perfect control. A male quartette, "Annie Laurie," sung by Messrs. H. Morphet, A. L. Davis, Alex. Elliott, and J. P. Keough, was a pleasing feature of the programme, while Miss Isabell Best sang to the entire satisfaction of the audience, Arditi's "Magnetic" waltz song. This is a difficult composition, and Miss Best gave a very correct interpretation of it. Mr. Alex. Elliott followed with a Cavatina, "Even Bravest Hearts," sung in a rich bass voice. Mrs. Rehill sang very sweetly "To Sevilla," and Miss Clara Belleghem in "Roberto, o tu che adoro," simply captured her hearers. This production, which is a most difficult one, was rendered with considerable expression, and in a voice which gives great promise. Mr. W. A. Greenslade sang nicely, "The Song my Heart is Singing," followed by Miss Agnes Patterson in Gounod's "Flower Song." 'The Concert of the Nightingale" was sung by the ladies' chorus, Miss Belleghem again being heard in the solo and obligato parts. Miss Lily Hurley in her rendition of the sacred solo, "O Divine Redeemer," was well received and her singing was much enjoyed, as was also that of Mr. W. Stocker, whose selection was the "Bedouin Love Song," given in a full rich voice and with apparent ease. Mr. Bert J. Turner, a basso singer, who puts into his work a good expression, sang "Calm as the Night." Messrs. H. Morphet and A. Elliott, closed a most enjoyable programme with a duet, "Haste, Crimson Morning."

This recital is but the first of a series of four which these talented musicians will hold. The date of the second is July 14th, and it will be given in the opera house.

The accompanists for the evening were Mrs. Killen-Keough, Misses Maude Brown, Nettie Lewis, Lily and Kathleen Hurley.

AT THE POLICE COURT THIS MORNING.

Margaret Kennedy a Vagrant, got six Months.

At the police court this morning, Washington Cannon claimed $38.75 wages from his employer, Mr. Arnott. After the evidence had been taken he was allowed $35.75, but had to pay the costs of the court, amounting to $2.60, to be paid in ten days.

Margaret Kennedy, an old gray-haired woman of, she said, 64 years of age, was charged with vagrancy. She poured forth into the ear of the Magistrate, amidst weeps and wails, a tearful tale of how she was on her way to Buckhorn, where she had secured a situation as cook with Mr. Eastwood, and she "had good wages—so there!" However, the Magistrate said he was sure that Mr. Eastwood would not want a cook who habitually got drunk. So Maggie was sent down for six months to the place of durance, which is called vile.

The Court then adjourned.

THE RAILWAY BILL.

Amendment Concerning Routes of Electric Railways.

THE WEST LORNE ACCIDENT

Sir William Mulock's Postoffice Bill Introduced—Reduction in the Postage of Newspapers—Clerks to Have Annual Increases Until They Reach the Limit of Their Class—Process Butter Bill.

Ottawa, June 24.—In the House yesterday Mr. Fisher's bill prohibiting the sale and manufacture of process butter was read a first time.

A bill granting to His Majesty $1,384,016 was put through all its stages. This amount includes appropriations contained in the supplementary estimates and are urgently needed.

The bill to amend the Patent Act was read a third time.

Hon. James Sutherland in the absence of Sir William Mulock introduced a bill amending the Postoffice Act. By this act the radius of weekly newspapers is eplarged from 20 to 300 miles. This concession does not carry with it free delivery. Outside the free radius the rate has been half a cent a pound. The rate is now a quarter of a cent. The bill also provides for changes in the salaries of clerks. All will have annual increases until they reach the maximum. Before each increase the official must pass an examination. The maximum age for appointment is thirty years.

The Railway Bill.

Hon. Mr. Blair's bill amending and consolidating the Railway Act was again taken up in committee. Mr. Blair moved that section 184, which deals with the crossing of highways by railways, be amended by striking out the first three lines of the clause and inserting the words suggested by Mr. E. F. Clarke:

"The railway may be carried upon, along or across any existing highway upon leave therefore having been first obtained from the board as hereinafter provided, but the board shall not grant leave to any company to carry any street railway or tramway or any railway operated or to be operated as a street railway or tramway along any highway which is within the limits of any city or incorporated town until the company shall have first obtained consent therefor by a bylaw of the municipal authority of such city or incorporated town."

The report of J. E. Duval and Gerard Ruel, commissioners to inquire into the accident on the Lake Erie and Detroit Railway at West Lorne station April 29 last, whereby one passenger and two employes were killed, was tabled by the Minister of Railways. The commissioners find the crew of the gravel train, which ran into a standing passenger train, responsible for the accident in not having slowed down sooner when approaching the station. The gravel train had hand brakes only and the company had no standard rules.

HE'S AT WORK ONCE MORE.

Simon V. Landry Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Had Lame Back, Weak Legs, and was a Total Wreck Before he was Induced to try the Great Kidney Remedy.

River Bourgeois, Richmond Co., C. B., June 22.—(Special.)—One more remarkable cure has been credited to Dodd's Kidney Pills in this neighbourhood, and the story is best told in the words of Simon V. Landry, the man cured. Mr. Landry says:

"I was bothered for over a year with Lame Back, Weak Legs, and Palpitation of the Heart and general weakness and shortness of breath. In fact I was a total wreck. I could not work as I got tired and weak so easy.

"I also had a weakness in my stomach, and it was so bad that I could not bend down to do anything. I tried many medicines without getting any relief till I was induced to try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"After I had used three boxes of them I was able to start work again. I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to everybody."

It is cures like this that give Dodd's kidney Pills their popularity. They not only relieve but make people able and willing to work.

SHORTAGE MAY BE $100,000.

Elgin Loan Company Manager Dipped Deep Into Treasury.

St. Thomas, June 24.—It is expected that the defalcations of Manager Rowley of the Elgin Loan Company, will amount to $75,000 or $100,000. It is hinted that the amounts paid on mortgages may turn out to have been tampered with.

Depositors are selling the deposits at a discount. A director said yesterday morning that, even if Rowley's defalcations amounted to $250,000, the depositors would be safe.

The shareholders of the company, it is thought, will have to put up the unpaid balance on their stocks.

FARMERS' INTERESTS

Live Stock Men Asking for Grant for World's Fair, 1904.

HON. MR. DRYDEN'S SPEECH.

Canada Had Made a Good Impression at Chicago and Buffalo Which Should Not Be Allowed to Fade—Assistance Asked Is Absolutely Necessary —Hon. G. W. Ross Welcomes the International Institute.

Ottawa, June 24.—The live stock interests of Canada are thoroughly aroused over the desirability of having a thoroughly good representation from the Canadian herds at the St. Louis Exposition, and yesterday waited upon Ministers Fisher, Fielding and Paterson and asked for a Government grant towards this purpose. The associations represented on the deputation were:—Shorthorn Breeders, by Hon. John Dryden, Messrs. Henry Wade (Secretary), Arthur Johnson (Greenwood), J. W. Pettit (Freeman); Dominion Cattle Breeders' Association, by A. W. Smith (Maple Lodge), W. W. Ballantyne (St. Mary's), J. M. Gardhouse (Weston), A. P. Westervelt (Secretary); Sheep and Swine, by J. A. Brethour (Burford), J. H. Harding (Thorndale), Major Hood (Guelph), Lieut.-Col. McGillivray (Toronto); Horse Breeders, William Smith (Columbus), Peter Christie (Manchester); Poultry, William McNeil (London).

The deputation were introduced by Senator W. C. Edwards in a few words of warm endorsation.

Hon. John Dryden followed, and said it was important that the live stock interests should be represented at St. Louis. They had made a good impression at Chicago and Buffalo, and it was desirable that the good impression then created should be deepened rather than allowed to fade. Moreover, such an exhibit would have the effect of developing interprovincial trade and demonstrating that the best place to buy live stock was not in the United States but in Canada. That was especially desirable in view of the thousands of settlers that were flocking into our great northwest and the consequent large demand for live stock. They could not hold a satisfactory exhibit without assistance, and something must be done immediately as men from the other side were scouring this country for stock. If our people knew there was to be a Canadian exhibit at St. Louis they would hold on to their stock.

CONVENTION OF FARMERS.

Institute Workers in Toronto From All Over the Continent.

Toronto, June 24.—Ontario officially and formally struck hands last evening with the members of the American Association of Farmers' Institute Workers. Hon. G. W. Ross and Prof. J. C. Latter, president of the Association, then delivered the annual address, and it was followed by an informal discussion.

When the International Institute opened at the Parliament Buildings yesterday afternoon, Ontario was well represented and there were delegates and superintendents of institutes from all parts of the North American continent. After roll-call of states and provinces, the reports of work done in the various districts were put in. The institute continues to-day.

OPPOSITION WITHDRAWN.

Landlords Accept Enlargement of Tenants' Purchasing Rights.

London, June 24.—A compromise was reached yesterday between the Nationalist landlords and the Government, whereby serious opposition to the Irish land bill is withdrawn, and unless unexpected difficulties arise the measure, which comes up again in the House of Commons today, is likely to be speedily passed. The compromise consists in the landlords' acceptance to an amendment to clause 1, enlarging the purchasing rights of the tenants.

Nerve Sufferers Need Sympathy

And More Than That, the Nerve Cells Must be Restored and Revitalized by the Use of

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

Too many doctors have no sympathy with the sufferer from diseases of the nerves. They do not understand the nervous system, and when the victim of nervous prostration, or exhaustion appeals to them he is told to "brace up," forget his trouble, and he will soon be all right.

Anyone who has had nervous prostration, being scarcely able to drag about, felt energy and vitality growing less and being in constant dread of paralysis, or even insanity itself, knows how utterly useless and discouraging is such advice.

Nervous diseases cannot right themselves. Exhausted, shrivelled nerve cells can never revitalize themselves without assistance from outside. If the blood is weak and watery, and fails to afford proper nourishment, restoratives must be used. Recovery is bound to be slow but it is none the less certain, and there is no combination of ingredients which has proven so successful as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This famous food is not a stimulant to arouse false hopes, but a true restorative, reconstructing wasted cells and tissues, and instilling into the blood and nerves the essential principles of life and vigour.

Mrs. S. Derocher, 495 Bethune street, Peterborough, states: "I was troubled a great deal with nervousness and sleeplessness and began a treatment with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I can say for a certainty that it is a splendid medicine, for besides steadying my nerves, it built up my system wonderfully and enabled me to rest and sleep well. We have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Ointment in our family for years and consider them excellent. For skin diseases I think the Ointment cannot be equalled and the pills are a most satisfactory laxative."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food soon wins the confidence of all who are pale, thin, weak, or exhausted, for by noting your increase in weight while using it you can prove that new, firm, flesh and tissue are being added to the body, and realize that weakness and disease are fast giving way to strength and vigour. Fifty cents a box; or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

HIS RECREATIONS.

Sir William Van Horne One of the Most Enthusiastic Botanists and Admirers of Art

Few people outside of his own immediate circle know that Sir William Van Horne, Chairman of the Canadian Pacific, Director of the Postal Telegraph and Commercial Cable, and President of the Cuba Company, is one of the most enthusiastic botanists on the continent, and also one of the most ardent admirers of art

Sir William, though he wears with grace a British title, was born in the United States. He sold books on the Chicago and Alton Railway many years ago, rose in time to the dignity of selling oranges on the Illinois Central, and later in life assumed the many high positions he now holds. His title he won for eminent service to the British Empire in the building of the Canadian Pacific.

As a boy he worshiped nature. When on the Illinois Central Road he was the butt of his companions because he was always armed with a hammer for the breaking of any queer rocks that happened in his way, and carried a book for the discovery of the identity of those unknown rocks and flowers he encountered.

In later life he established at Montreal a splendid conservatory and an excellent art gallery. He is himself an artist with the brush and of no mean reputation. He has at all times three or four botanists in his employ in the far-off corners of the world, whose business it is to find and bring to his Montreal conservatory all the new flowers that they can find. He hears of a new orchid in South America. Immediately his men are sent in search of it. He hears of a new lily in Central Africa, and never rests easy until he has captured it.

These things are his dissipations. His offices are no mere honorary affairs. He is the practical working head of the Cuba Company, a very active participant in all the affairs of the Canadian Pacific—in fact, one of the most busy of the big men of the continent.—New York Times.

Love of the Home Town.

It is generally conceded that the children who entertain the deepest love for the home town grow up into the most useful members of society. But no child can have much love for "the old town" if he or she is unacquainted with its history. It has come to be accepted as a reproach that while the average bright child of a dozen years is able to reel off glibly everything worth knowing about every country under the sun he is apt to find himself beyond his depth when he is asked the simplest question about the history of his own township or village or city, as the case may be.

A plan which makes for familiarity with the history of one's home and which may be easily adapted with the necessary modifications to this or to any other progressive community is being tried with great success by The New York Times to commemorate the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of New York's incorporation as a city. The Times has offered a large number of prizes and medals to pupils of the public schools. The pupils are required to write essays based upon a series of seven articles printed by The Times from the pen of an authority on the subject treated. Teachers of the classes from which the successful pupils come are also to be awarded premiums.

It will be readily seen how easily this plan might be adapted to the schools of any locality. Public spirited citizens will certainly see that the rewards in any such competition inaugurated by the teachers shall be commensurate with the effort put forth.

A Put Up Job.

The story of how a well-known Toronto barrister lately rid himself of a troublesome life insurance agent contains a pointer worth bearing in mind. The lawyer, who has a reputation around town as an habitual joker, after being called upon for the seventh time, finally yielded to the agent's persuasions. He did it with a bad grace, but the insurance man hastily produced his paper and fountain pen to collar his man. His full name, his age, business, place of birth, the list of diseases that at any time had afflicted him, down to the very hairs in his head, were duly recorded, and then the scribe turned his guns on the relations. His father's name, age, sect, were written down, and then, "What did he die of?"

Oh! that was a family matter; the lawyer could not go into details of that kind.

The agent reasoned with his man, explained that it was the invariable custom to ask such questions, and that an answer was absolutely necessary before being insured.

"Well," said the legal man at last, "he committed suicide."

The mother's death caused the same trouble, but after a great deal of talking—"She died of a cancer." Then an uncle met a melancholy end in consumption, and an aunt threw off this mortal coil in a fit of raging insanity. One by one the lawyer killed off his nearest and dearest relations by violent deaths and horrible diseases.

The insurance man gathered up his papers with an apology and thoughtfully departed.

British Columbia's Prospects.

A fruit industry is becoming important in British Columbia. This spring about 220,000 young trees have been laid out, and a large trade with the prairie country is expected, in exchanged for wheat and dairy produce. The heavy exports of salmon and the growing lumber industry are helping to relieve the Province from its economic weakness of paucity of exports to balance its heavy purchases.

The man who is caged in or cooped up day after day without sufficient exercise is sure to suffer for it. Quite often the liver is the first organ which becomes disordered, and constipation, biliousness, sick headache and general physical torpor make life miserable. There's only one way to deal with liver "trouble" and that is to go to the root of the disease, and cure it once for all. Such cures of the disordered or diseased liver almost always follow the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It always helps. It almost always cures. It regulates the liver, strengthens the stomach, and purifies the blood.

"Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best medicine made," writes Michael Maher, of Littlefalls, N. Y. (68 Center St.) "I had yellow jaundice and liver trouble in November, 1900. Was almost dead, lost sixteen pounds in three weeks and my whole body was as yellow as gold, and I was sick at my stomach all the time. I tried three doctors and they gave me tablets and pills and another one some other stuff, but I went to Messrs. O'Rourke and Hurley's drug store and got your Golden Medical Discovery.' One bottle cured me and I thank it and God that I am a well man."

Accept no substitute for the "Discovery." There is nothing "just as good."

TWO BOXES OF

MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS

Cured Mrs. Edmond Brown, Inwood, Ont., when she had almost given up hope of ever getting well again.

She writes: "I was so run down that I was not able to do my work, was short of breath, had a sour stomach every night and could scarcely eat. My heart palpitated, I had faint and dizzy spells and felt weak and nervous all the time. My husband got me a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills but I told him it was no use, that I had given up hope of ever being cured. He however persuaded me to take them and before I had used half the box I began to feel better. Two boxes made a new woman of me and I have been well and have been able to do my work ever since."

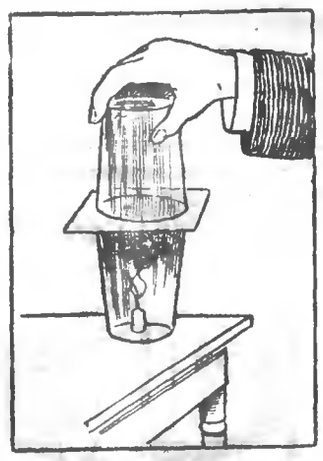
MYSTERIOUS TUMBLERS.

A Little Experiment For the Boys and Girls to Try.

Here is a pretty little experiment illustrating the principle of air pressure which may be tried by any boy or girl and which may be made quite entertaining at a gathering of little ones. It will interest even the older folks if any are present.

Take two tumblers of the same size. Be careful that they fit closely when one is placed on top of the other.



HOW TO FIX THE TUMBLERS.

Light a piece of wax candle and place it within the tumbler on the table. Place on top of it a piece of rather thick paper saturated with water. Then place upon it the other tumbler, as in the illustration. The tumblers will then be found to adhere closely. The candle will be extinguished, but while burning it has dilated the air contained in the lower tumbler, and the air has, therefore, become rarefied. The exterior pressure of the atmosphere will fix the tumblers as closely together as the classical Magdeburg hemispheres are united. It is possible to raise the undermost tumbler by picking up the upper one. The paper may be scorched on the underside, but the success of the experiment is not thereby imperiled.

Last Resort.

"I am sorry that none of my prescriptions has relieved your insomnia," said the eminent practitioner, "because that makes it necessary for us to try a heroic remedy, but it is one that has never been known to fail."

"What is it, doctor?" asked the sleepless one eagerly.

"Dress yourself up in a policeman's uniform."—Judge.

His Limit.

"Now, you know," she said, "father is a very busy man and hates affectation, so please don't stand on ceremony when you go to ask him for me."

"All right, darling, but I'll tell you right here I'm not going to sit on the arm of his chair while laying the matter before him."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Misunderstood.

"Yes," said the Georgia cracker, "Reth Billin's widder owns his ole still back yondah, but she's got a man to keep it for her."

"Remarkable!" exclaimed the other. "He's the first man I ever heard of that could keep a woman's still."—Philadelphia Press.

FOR THE YOUNG.

A Bunch of Laugh Loosenors From the Talk of Youngsters.

One day little Archie, three years of age, saw a railroad for the first time, and he did not know what to make of it. He ran to his mother and said:

"Oh, mamma, is that a steamboat looking for water?"—Washington Star.

Little Tommy when told he was growing too fast said:

"Yes. I think they water me too much. Why, I have to take a bath every morning."—Indianapolis Sun.

One day small Harry drew the pictures of a dog and a cat on his slate and handed them to his mother for criticism.

"How is this, Harry?" asked his mother. "The cat has six legs."

"Oh, that's all right," replied the embryo artist. "I gave her two extra so she could run away from the dog."—Chicago News.

"What are the holes for?" asked little Emilia, looking at the porous plaster that her mother was preparing to adjust on Willie's back.

"It's funny you don't know that," interposed Willie. "They are to let the pain out, of course."

Sadie was eleven, and Alice was seven. At lunch said Alice:

"I wonder what part of an animal's chop is? Is it a leg?"

"Of course not," answered Sadie. "It's the jawbone. Haven't you ever heard of animals licking their chops?"—Chicago Little Chronicle.

Mamma—Johnny, I left 10 cents on this shelf a little while ago. Did you take it?

Johnny—Yes'm. There's a poor old hunchback man that has a big family to support, and I gave it to him.

Mamma—Ah, and where did you see the poor man?

Johnny—He came to the door sellin' candles an' things.—Philadelphia Press.

Small Bobby, who had often expressed a desire for a goat, finally became the proud possessor of one. A short time afterward his grandfather asked, "Well, Bobby, how do you like your new pet?"

"Don't like him at all," replied the little fellow.

"Why not?" asked the old gentleman.

"'Cause he kicks with his head," answered Bobby.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Well, Maggie," asked a teacher of a little Scotch girl, "how is it you are so late in coming to school today?"

"Please, sir," was the reply, "there was a wee bairn cam' to oor house this mornin'."

"Ah," said the teacher, with a smile, "and wasn't your father very pleased with the new baby?"

"No, sir. My father is wa' in Edinburgh the noo an' disna ken about it yet. But it was a guid thing ma mither was at home, for gin she had been away' I wadna hae kent wat tae dae wilt."

Messrs. McMillan & Maguire, stock brokers, Hunter street, have received the following:—

The upturn in C.F.I. caused by running in the shorts gave shorts elsewhere in the list a scare and led to a closing strength. It was thought the buying was chiefly by the shorts. The weakness in Penna. was a disturbing feature and was variously explained as selling against rights and manipulation. The great bulge in cotton had no effect on stocks. The cotton shorts had to sell their stocks long ago. The Government report on cotton showed improvement There is talk of renewed gold exports but the receipts from the Klondike will make good the loss. We look for an irregular market with stocks a sale on the hard spots.

THE EXCITEMENT LESS.

Atlas Loan Company Makes a Report That Is Favorable to the Depositors—The Assets and Liabilities.

St. Thomas, June 24.—(Special.)—The statement of the Atlas Loan Co. was issued to-day and the figures are favorable. Excitement has simmered down very materially here. There is a much better feeling established. President Wallace has given out a statement in which he declares that if the assets are properly handled the loss of the depositors at least will be nominal. The stockholders of the Atlas, however, will probably lose their investment if not an extra assessment. The Elgin Co.'s affairs continue to look dark. It is now conceded that the shortage of the fugitive manager will run into the hundred thousand, in fact so many discrepancies have been found in the deposits that the officials are completely in the dark. Tho Rowley is supposed to be in Spanish Honduras the Attorney-General declares no officer has yet been sent after him. A meeting of the creditors will be held this evening to discuss the report.

The statement is as follows:

ASSETS

Mortgages	$64,380.00
Mortgages assigned to Metropolitan Bank, $63,930, less bank's claim of $28,600	35,330.00
Loans on personal security	45,275.00
Loans upon the security of stocks and bonds	12,080.00
Notes given by shareholders on account of reserve fund	10,402.00
Real estate, less incumbrance	13,500.00
Stocks, bonds, etc., not hypothecated, par value	207,820.00
Cash on hand	26,477.31
	$415,864.31

Realizations on unpaid shares to be added.

LIABILITIES.

Deposits	$474,747.86
Currency debentures.	280,600.00
Sterling debentures..	81,905.00	$837,252.86
Contingent liability:
Reserve fund payments		$101,370.80

The report declares that the mortgages have not been valued in detail, but that information is being sought to determine present worth of such securities. Some of the figures will be altered, too, by the claims of some of the debtors who are also depositors and insist on an offset. In debentures the explanation is made that comparatively small sums have been borrowed on these securities in some instances on their face value and the charges will be reduced considerably. Those shareholders who made payments on the increased reserve fund claim to rank as depositors, and as this is being contested it will constitute an uncertain element for the present. No effort has been made to estimate the amount due ordinary creditors. The hypothecated stocks and bonds in brokers' hands are expected to net considerable return, but that depends upon the state of the market. Securities found in the vaults, unlisted, have been accepted for the present at their face value and this adds to the uncertainty of the proposition.

KILLED BY RAILWAY.

Was Walking Tracks Near Thamesford—May Be From St. Catharines.

Thamesford, June 24.—After investigating the circumstances, Coroner Fraser decided that an inquest on the body of the unknown man killed on the railway tracks this morning.

The victim is a man about 40 years old, black hair and sandy moustache. He carried a Northumberland Life Association pass book with H. O'Loughlin, district agent, St. Catharines, stamped on face of the fly leaf of the book was written: "G. W., St. Catharines, Ont. In case of accident notify Mrs. — Box 766, St. C—" He also carried bunch of keys, on the tag accompanying was stamped. Diamond Hotel, No. 20, J. N. Brown. Unless identified he will be buried to-morrow.

Montreal Lost Its Case.

London, June 24.—The Privy Council gave their decision this morning in the case of the city of Montreal against the Montreal Street Railway, dismissing the action with costs.

Two years ago the city sought to compel the Street Railway Company to pay half the cost of removing the snow from the streets because the railway plow threw up high banks on either side of the tracks.

Fell to His Death.

Belleville, June 24—Robert Leslie, an unmarried farmer 30 years of age, who resided in the 6th concession of Thurlow, was in the Belleville market this morning with a load of hogs, and while in the act of driving into the market scales he fell off his seat to the ground. Medical aid was summoned, but when doctors arrived Mr. Leslie was dead. Heart disease was the cause.

Attempted Train Wrecking.

Midmay, June 24.—As John G. Weber was walking along the track between Hahn's crossing and Elora-road crossing, just after dark, he came across several pieces of oak wood along the ties, some of them being securely fastened.

They were evidently put there by some malicious person or persons for the purpose of derailing the evening train.

Mr. Weber removed the wood and reported at once to G.T.R. Agent O'Brien. An investigation will be made.

Russia Preparing For War.

London, June 25.—It is believed that the fast cruiser section of the Russian volunteer fleet, which is lying idle at Sebastopol and Odessa, is being held in the Black Sea for military exigencies, says the Odessa correspondent of The Times. He adds that it is reported that an intimation was given June 20 to the commanders of these vessels that there is a possibility of their being requisitioned to fly the naval flag before the present year is out.

The Rattle as a Decoy.

That the rattlesnake uses his tail to decoy birds has been observed a number of times by a correspondent of the Scientific American, who says: "The snake hides himself in the tall grass and imitates the buzzing of a bee. The insectivorous birds, such as the phœbe and kingbird, are attracted by the sound and become an easy prey for his snakeship. I have seen rattlesnakes concealed in the dense foliage of trees twenty feet from the ground practicing the same deception on the birds and getting the bird every time."

NARROW ESCAPE OF CANOEISTS

Three Young Men Upset in Sturgeon Lake Last Sunday.

Earl Dunham, Fergus McDonald and Harold Woods will not soon forget Sunday June 21st, 1903. It was the longest day in the year, and two hours of the afternoon seemed to stretch out into weeks. The boys paddled to Sturgeon Point in the morning in a canoe, and when they left in the afternoon the waves were running high, but they thought that by striking a diagonal course for the Pleasant Point shore they could make the passage safely. When a little more than half way across a big wave swamped the canoe and the boys were thrown into the water. Holding on to the sides of the boat they were swept by wind and wave down the lake and towards the south shore, but it was almost two hours before they reached the land. The boys were greatly exhausted, particularly young Woods, and the boys admit that he would have been unable to hang on for another ten minutes. Some farmers on shore saw the boys upset and watched them for a long time, but they made no attempt to proceed to their assistance, being evidently afraid to venture out in the rough sea.—Lindsay Post.

DOES SAWDUST CHOKE OR POISON FISH?

An Extract From the Toronto Mail and Empire.

Tuesday's Toronto News contains the following:—

"Sawdust and Fish Life" is the title of a brochure issued by the Murray Printing Company. A reprint from the Transactions of the Canadian Institute, it is the record of a series of experiments made by Professor A. P. Knight, of Queen's University. An ancient feud subsists between the angler and the sawmill owners, and Professor Knight's investigations will be watched with great interest by the parties thereto. His conclusions go to show that there are two sides to the question, and also that there is need of further investigation. Undoubtedly, strong solutions of sawdust are deadly to fish life. But the weakest of the solutions which he used was thirty or forty times as strong in sawdust extracts as the water immediately below a speciman mill on the Bonnechere River, and in this water chub and brook trout were found. "No stream," he says, "can be pronounced off hand as poisoned by sawdust. Each stream must be studied by itself, and the varying conditions must be thoroughly understood before a judgment can be pronounced. The chief things to be considered are (1) the quantity of sawdust, and (2) the volume of water into which the sawdust is discharged. Subordinate conditions are the rapidity or sluggishness of the stream, the amount of sunlight or shade, and the character of the water, whether from agricultural lands or from primitive forests."

The above article is interesting especially to Peterborough people as practical experience may be more conclusive than scientific deduction. Doubt occurrs as to whether fish are poisoned by sawdust or choked by it—if poisoned, what fish suffer most and how much sawdust it would to and how much sawdust it would take to poison them? It is known in the Trent River when the mill charged the river with vast quantities of sawdust the fish were exterminated. The process was never clearly ascertained, but it was ascertained that since the supply of logs ceased and the Government compelled the mill owners to restrain from depositing their sawdust into the water, that the river has provided first-class fishing.

HOUSES OF REFUGE.

At the recent annual meeting of the Ontario Medical Association, Dr. Mitchell, the President, in the course of his annual address referred to the matter of the relations of insane patients to jails as follows:—

The needless delay in getting cases of acute mania into asylums is to be noted. A great many senile cases that might be looked after at home are sent to asylums. It is also a matter of deep regret that so many insane people are sent to jail without first making application to asylums. A change also should be made in the law, so that two medical certificates would transfer a patient from the jail to the asylum, as it does from outside. In this way prompt action could be taken, as against the complex procedure which at present exists.

It is a well recognized fact that the capacity of the several asylums of the Province is severely taxed and that, notwithstanding the liberal provisions for accommodation made, many cases of insanity are unprovided for or placed in jails, manifestly improper places for their confinement. This leads Dr. Mitchell to say:—

"We are glad to note that the Provincial Secretary, Hon. J. R. Stratton, has introduced and passed an act the past session making it compulsory for all counties to erect and help to sustain county refuge homes, one in each county or united counties. If these homes were in every county our asylums could in time be unloaded of all the chronic, harmless dements, and leave space for those amenable to treatment, or who are a menace to the public or themselves. So much can be accomplished by proper treatment and so many apparently hopeless patients restored to normal or almost normal conditions, that it is certainly very sad that all the deranged cannot obtain a fair chance for recovery. If county homes would take harmless dements and the majority of the senile cases, it would leave room for the immediate admission of all acute cases, and give opportunity for the better classification and arranging of those under treatment. It would be well to see the name asylum done away with, and the term hospital substituted."

For many years almost every Grand Jury empannelled at the sittings of Assize and Quarter Session Courts has, in its presentment, called attention to the undesirability and injustice of making the abode set apart for criminals, answer the purpose of a refuge for honest poverty, or a place of detention for insane persons; and also demanded, or urged, the establishment of a suitable county House of Refuge. However, counties have been slow, or have absolutely declined to take action in this direction; hence the necessity for legislation making such action unavoidable. There seems to be no hardship in this matter — it is rather in the interests of counties to erect Houses of Refuge. The province contributes one-quarter of the necessary expenditure up to $16,000 — practically contributes $4,000. There is little doubt that municipal charity will be more cheaply and efficiently dispensed through the medium of a House of Refuge, than by the unsystematic way connected with the individual action of municipalities in dealing with destitutes.

At the same time there seems to be considerable force in what Dr. Mitchell points out. It is not to be denied that our asylums contain many persons who, while, in one sense, proper subjects of attention, are afflicted in a way that justifies their confinement in a House of Refuge. The general establishment of Houses of Refuge in counties, or groups of counties, will relieve the asylums of senile cases, and harmless dements, thus giving room for the admission and treatment of acute cases, whose condition, under proper treatment, gives hope of recovery — treatment that cannot obviously be given in a jail, which now too frequently receives such cases.

RECORD OF CASUALTIES.

Toronto Globe.

The casualty record of American railways for the year ending with June, 1902, shows the formidable total of 73,250, of which 8,589 were deaths, and 64,662 were injuries. Of railway employees 2,969 were killed and 50,524 were injured. These figures show a large increase in the record of injuries to employed, compared with the previous year. The Railway Age which summarizes the record, attributes the increase in part to the unusual increase in traffic and the subsequent use of all kinds of equipment, and the employment of untried men, and, in part, to the fact that since July 1st, 1901, the companies have been obliged by law to render monthly reports under oath, to the railway commission, detailing the causes and circumstances surrounding all accidents to employees, the reports being carefully scrutinized and frequently corrected. This results in the return of numerous accidents which, if they had occurred prior to that date, would not have been reported.

The passenger record shows 345 killed and 6,683 injured. The corresponding figures for the preceding year were 282 killed and 4,988 injured. As a result of collisions and derailments 170 passengers were killed, and 3,429 injured. The total number of persons other than employees and passengers killed was 5,274; injured 7,455. These figures include causualties to persons classed as trespassers, of whom 4,403 were killed and 4,854 were injured. The The summaries giving the ratio of casualties show that one out of every 401 employees was killed, and one out of every 24 employees was injured. With reference to trainmen, including enginemen, firemen and conductors, it is shown that one was killed for every 135 employed, and one was injured for every 10 employed. One passenger was killed for every 1,883,706 carried, and one injured for every 97,244 carried. Ratios based upon the number of miles travelled, however, show that 57,072,283 passenger miles were accomplished for each passenger killed, and 2,946,272 passenger miles accomplished for each passenger injured. If this record of casualties were the result of a military campaign it would be a shock to the nation, but its gradual and slow growth makes the public mind quite complacent. The great amount of travel must be taken into account, and also the great volume of freight transported over immense distances. There are good grounds for the belief that the same amount of travel by the antiquated stage coach would result in a more formidable list of casualties.

Dear, Mr. Whitney, please hearken to this parable. An Irishman walking through the woods had the misfortune to have a lynx drop on his back. The animal was clawing and scratching frightfully, while his victim was endeavouring to seize his paws. "Can't you hold him, Pat?" said his companion. "Be jabers, I can't let him go!" was the excited response.—Globe.

THE DOG THAT HOWLED.

A correspondent has supplied the following:—"Gamey and his compatriots blamed the Hon. J. R. Stratton for keeping silence so long. How much better is it to be silent and talk at the proper time than to be like the Manitoulin member and the howling gang who have been compared to a dog which was trespassing and became fast in a fence. The more he tried to extricate himself the louder he howled. It was said from the first that it was clouds without rain. Some dogs went away in shame, others stuck to the dog in the fence, knowing he had gone to steal a bone, and they were hungry too."

THE GAMEY DEBATE.

Optimistic Members Think the End Now in Sight.

MAY BE DIVISION TO-NIGHT.

Attorney-General Gibson's Speech—Attacks Upon the Judiciary Repudiated —Mr. Hoyle and Mr. Hanna Speak— Mr. Conmee Begins—House Resents a Breach of Privilege— Program of the Debate.

Toronto, June 25.—The end of the debate upon the report of the commissioners on the Gamey case is now well in sight, and the optimistic members of the Legislature are looking for a division to-night. The program for the rest of the debate is pretty well mapped out. Mr. James Conmee, who began shortly before adjournment last night, will have the floor when the House opens, and he will be followed by Mr. J. P. Downey (South Wellington). Mr. Geo. P. Graham (Brockville) will reply to Mr. Downey, and may be the last speaker on the Government side. Mr. Donald Sutherland (South Oxford), and Mr. F. G. Macdiarmid (West Elgin), who consider that they have personal reasons for speaking on account of references to them in the debate, will follow Mr. Graham. Mr. J. J. Foy (South Toronto) will follow, and may be the last speaker in the debate. The leader of the Opposition is not expected to speak unless the Premier should see fit to follow Mr. Foy. The Premier is undecided at present whether he will again address the House or not.

AT THE BAR OF THE HOUSE.

Mr. Hector Charlesworth Makes an Apology For Offensive Letter.

Hector Charlesworth, the legislative reporter of The Toronto News, appeared before the bar of the house yesterday. It was the first time in the history of the legislature that any one has been similarly situated, and quite a little interest attached to the incident. The offence was a note marked "personal" which Mr. Charlesworth directed to Mr. Pettypiece, the member for East Lambton, while the latter was on his feet making a speech on the Gamey resolutions.

Mr. Pettypiece had been criticizing the attitude of Mr. Willison, editor of The News, and former editor of The Globe, towards the government. His remarks provoked the reporter to write that he (Pettypiece) was attributing his own journalistic ideas to Mr. Willison. Accompanying the note was an offensive word. This was on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Charlesworth saw the member for East Lambton after the adjournment of the house, and it was thought that nothing more would be heard of it. Mr. Pettypiece, however, had other intentions, and placed the offensive communication in the hands of the Speaker, and on the opening of the house yesterday morning the Attorney-General brought the matter up. He said the usual practice in such cases was to ask the gentleman to appear before the bar of the house, but he hoped the gentleman would request the privilege of being allowed to apologize without a formal motion being made.

Mr. Whitney endorsed this position. It was necessary to hedge about carefully the privileges and rights of members of the house, but it might be necessary to take similar action in other cases.

This was all that was said at the time. When the Speaker took the chair in the afternoon the Attorney-General said he understood Mr. Charlesworth was prepared to make an explanation to the house.

Mr. Charlesworth's Statement.

Mr. Charlesworth was then ushered into the chamber by the sergeant-at-arms, and from his position before the "bar" made the following statement:

"Mr. Speaker—With reference to the letter addressed by me to the member for East Lambton, on which I appear in justification I can say that the communication was an attack on his ideals as a journalist and not upon his conduct as a member of the house; that it was a personal communication passing between old and intimate acquaintances containing but one offensive word, which I should not have used under any circumstances, and that it was written under what I deemed extreme provocation. Since I am advised that it was an offence to the general honor of the house, I desire to apologize for it and regret this occurrence."

Mr. Speaker replied: "On behalf of this house I accept the apology from the gentleman, and I hope that nothing of this kind will ever occur again."

Mr. Whitney said. "It may be well to understand that within the walls of this building every day there are outsiders, who seem to have liberty to roam over the premises, who use blasphemous language towards honorable gentlemen on this side of the House. We haven't paid any attention to it, whatever we may do in the future."

Mr. Ross—You ought to.

The Speaker said he would be glad to know of any such case.

The Premier agreed that any reflection on the conduct of members, either private or public, should be brought to the attention of the Speaker.

DEBATE IN THE HOUSE.

Mr. Hoyle Justifies Applauding Gamey on the 15th of March.

Toronto, June 25.—In the Legislature this morning Mr. W. H. Hoyle (North Ontario) commenced by stating that he thought the members were well justified for having applauded the member for Manitoulin on March 11 when making his charges before the House. The first time he saw Mr. Gamey was in the North Perth bye-election. Mr. Gamey there delivered a strong speech of an hour and a half, in which he criticized the Government's timber and mining policies and outlined a policy of his own, whereby individuals would be able to establish small mills and make them little centres of industry. He had said that the Opposition did not realize the necessity for a radical change in the mining policy. He was greatly surprised, therefore, when he saw in the Globe the interview recanting these views. When the House met in March and Mr. Gamey rose to speak he expected to hear his reasons for going over to the Government. When he heard that he had decided to continue with his old friends it was surely no evidence of "unholy joy" when he applauded the member for Manitoulin's statements.

Mr. Hoyle criticized the Provincial Secretary's reference to the treacherous independent press. He quoted from "A Bystander" in that morning's Weekly Sun, stating that it was clear that the member for Manitoulin had been bribed and asked whether The Sun was treacherous.

Mr. Stratton said that there was a difference between prejudging the case and offering comments after the investigation was over.

"Oh, that's your old friend, sub judice, again," said Mr. Hoyle.

Mr. Whitney said that the treachery probably consisted in not supporting the Government.

Mr. Hoyle quoted from speeches by Earl Grey and Lord Palmerston, pointing out that the only way to avoid the "miserable political scandals" arising out of the wrongful use of patronage was to make the giving of patronage the right of both sides of the House. Earl Grey also had said that long government by one party was one of the worst things for a country, when the patronage was in the hands of one party.

Mr. Hoyle concluded with an analogy between the present state of affairs and the old story of Augeus, who had a stable capable of holding 30,000 cattle, and which had not been cleaned for many years. At last he met Hercules, and asked him to clean it out in one day. "There sits the Hercules," said Mr. Hoyle, pointing to Mr. Whitney, who would turn in the great river of public opinion to clean out Ontario's Augean stables.

Mr. Ross—The river of Manitoulin.

Mr. Hoyle—Oh, no; that is only an inland lake, where you can't dive under the canoe and escape.

COL. GIBSON'S SPEECH.

Attorney-General Lets Some Light In on Commissioners' Appointment.

Attorney-General Gibson defended the appointment of the two chief justices. They could not have the chief justice of the Court of Appeal because he was at that time the administrator. The chief justice of the Court of Common Pleas (Sir W. R. Meredith) was not asked because it was presumed that he would not have been available, on account of his former connection with the opposition in the House. There were but two others, one of whom was on circuit in Belleville and the other was in Chatham. They were telegraphed to and accepted. What were the facts about the sons of Sir John Boyd? One of them was appointed to a position in the department of mines on the recommendation of the Speaker, who selected the young man from the School of Science. Two other sons were appointed to positions at Osgoode Hall on the recommendation of Chief Justice Meredith.

The Opposition had argued that the report was unfair, and the speaker almost felt ashamed to deal with the miserable, trifling objections to the report. Some of these were pointed out.

Wanted Gamey's Consent.

Mr. Gibson said there was nothing wrong in the Provincial Secretary's suggestion to Hammond to alter the Gamey interview, for after Hammond refused he wanted Gamey called back from another part of the building.

Would anyone believe that Gamey received money from the Provincial Secretary on the 11th of September when the papers of that morning contained a paragraph showing that Gamey was at a Conservative convention on the 10th?

Mr. Gamey had a protest hanging over his head and had attended a Conservative caucus on Sept. 10. The $1,500 could easily be put up by Conservatives. It was the last thing that he would do to put money in the bank and check it off for ordinary business purposes.

Where the Money Came From.

Mr. Gibson would not say that the money came from the Conservative party as a whole, but he did mean to say that he believed there would be found in the ranks of the members opposite those who might be trusted with seeing the gentleman through in the matter of the $1,500. Stress was laid by the Opposition speakers on the fact that the protest was dropped, but the dropping of the protest as a charge for a consideration of support was flimsy.

He concluded that the protest had gone out of existence as others had and the matter had nothing to do with the interview between Mr. Stratton and Aylesworth or any other gentleman. The protest had been dropped just because it was decided not to go on with it.

Cold Shoulder For Gamey.

Mr. Gibson went on to state that at the time of Mr. Gamey's journey to Buffalo, the bank slip episode, and the missing pages of the cash book, there had been a decided change in the attitude of the hon. gentlemen opposite to this enquiry. Mr. Gamey said he had received the cold shoulder when he came back to the House after the enquiry. Later symptoms of reconciliation appeared when Mr. Whitney interjected "conciliation". If it were true that the $1,500 came from the Conservatives that would indicate the change of attitude towards Gamey.

Mr. St. John—If the hon. gentleman is in earnest let him offer a reward to find out where the money came from.

Mr. Gibson—The testimony of the chief actor was not entitled to credibility and that was the kernal of the redort.

Case Not Established.

He regretted that so much time had been taken up by this investigation. It was necessary to arrive at the facts, but whatever facts were brought out, it was clear that the character of the Provincial Secretary was cleared of any suspicion of wrong-doing. He did not know where the money came from. Certainly there was money, but criminal use of money by the Government was not established and couldn't be established.

Why shouldn't Gamey be told that he would receive the same consideration as any other member? When he came to the Government and offered his support would the hon. gentlemen expect that he should not receive some consideration?

Mr. Gibson said the attitude of the Opposition towards the judges was not an honest one. The considered opinion of the Commissioners was just as valuable as if they had been sitting in court. Mr. Whitney was technically correct when he said that no judicial sanction was to be applied to the utterances of the Commissioners, but virtually speaking there was no difference.

His Object in Speaking.

It was his principal object in speaking not so much to discuss the evidence in the case as to repudiate the animus which hon. gentlemen had shown, the statements they had made and the unfounded abuse that they had showered upon the Judges. It was being said that the Government was responsible, as they had appointed the Judges. Hon. gentlemen opposite, however, and their press were responsible for the abuse of the Judges. He denied that the judiciary were being lowered. Their character stood too well, they stood on too firm a foundation in this country, for puerile and miserable attacks such as had been made to injure them, and if the Judges had arrived at conclusions unsatisfactory to hon. gentlemen opposite, political prejudice should not carry them to the extent that they had gone in a system of vilification and abuse.

Colonel Gibson resumed his seat at 5.35 o'clock.

Mr. Hanna.

Mr. Hanna followed. After a reference to the independent press, he contended that the House was the jury in the case, and the jury had the right to criticize the charge of the judges. Therefore, he, as one of the jurors, proposed to criticize the charge, and show where it did not agree with the evidence. In the first place there could be no doubt that Gamey was elected as a straight Conservative on the 29th of May. Then on the 6th of August Capt. Sullivan was found to have held over the head of Gamey the threat of protest. On the 21st of August Capt. Sullivan was at Gore Bay as the emissary of the Reform party, Gamey came to Toronto, and then a meeting was held in Cap Sullivan's room in the Walker House to talk of a stock deal or a timber deal, in which R. A. Grant was to get $5,000 for Gamey on a proposition of which he knew nothing or asked nothing. On Sept. 9 we find Frank Sullivan and Gamey going to the office of the Provincial Secretary, and Sullivan going in first to have a few minutes' talk before he introduced Gamey. What was talked about?

If the money came through a Conservative source from the Ontario Bank one-tenth of the effort that was put forward by the solicitor of the Ontario Bank to impede the investigation, if directed to assist the inquiry would have succeeded in tracing the moneys. Some day it would come out that the money did not come from a Conservative source, but that it came from some one with whom the Sullivans were on intimate terms.

The minute Gamey did anything wrong he proved himself a mere amateur. His whole conduct in connection with the deposit slip marked him as a novice. Was it possible that this man could have got down from the witness box after three days with his story unshaken, if he had not told the truth?

Mr. Hanna said he did go to Buffalo without consulting anyone and found that Gamey was ready to come back immediately. He did not go there to coach Mr. Gamey how to act, nor had he any conversation with him at any time unless it was in the presence of one whose word would not be doubted by anyone in the House.

Mr. Conmee Begins.

Mr. Conmee began his speech at 9.45, and moved the adjournment at 10 o'clock.

New Boot and Shoe Store.

Mr. J. B. Douglas, of Barrie, is preparing to open up a new boot and and shoe store in the Grand Central Block, next to the Singer Sewing Machine Company's store. His stock has already arrived and is being opened up and displayed. Mr. Douglas is a young man, with a practical knowledge of the business. He is accompanied by his father, Mr. Thos. Douglas, who was employed in Peterborough many years ago by the late Thos. White, who carried on an extensive shoe business where Gough Bros.' shoe store is now located. Mr. Douglas' wife and family are also in town.

A Successful Trip.

After a successful trip of eleven weeks through the province, selling manufactured furs for Thos. Barrie & Co., Mr. F. M. Vanderwater returned on Monday. He reports the condition of the crops in this section of the province, and the western portion in a much better condition than in the eastern section, or in what is known as the Ottawa Valley. Merchants in that section were in fact a little backward in placing orders owing to the bad outlook, whereas in the western and northern sections orders were given freely. The Examiner is pleased to know that the wholesale branch of the Barrie fur business has showed a very material increase over last year in the able hands of Mr. Vanderwater.

Campbellford Fire.

A small frame building situated near the corner of Bridge and Ranney streets, directly opposite the High School, became a prey to the flames on Wednesday morning. The alarm was given soon after four o'clock, and a few minutes later the hose of both carts was brought into play. There was no wind blowing and the flames were quenched in short order, not however until the whole interior of the building was consumed. The house was occupied by Mr. Thomas Martin, jr., and was the property of the Messrs. Stratton, of Peterborough. It was one of the old landmarks, having been built over 40 years ago. We learn some of Mr. Martin's household goods were consumed. If there was any insurance, it would be a small amount.—Campbellford Herald.

ST. PAUL'S CHOIR OUTING.

Pleasant Day Spent at Jubilee Point—Baseball Game Feature of the Outing.

Members and friends of St. Paul's choir enjoyed a pleasant outing yesterday to Jubilee Point. Taking the steamer, City of Peterborough, in the morning, the sail down the river was enlivened by the high spirit of the gay excursionists, and upon their arrival at the Point the whole company proceeded to spend the day in pleasure. The spacious pavillion was appropiated to their use, and games were played to the hearts content. The special feature of the day was a baseball game. The Examiner refrains from publishing the official score, as the batting and fielding averages were so high that the teams would find difficulty in arranging games in town, if the high quality of their playing were known.

Mr. Chas. Brown, who is a good friend to the choir bore the expense of the trip on the steamer, and as an expression of their appreciation of this kindness, those present enthusiastically supported a vote of thanks which was proposed to Mr. Brown.

The party arrived home about 8 o'clock, after having spent a most enjoyable day in spite of the somewhat unpleasant weather.

WEDDED IN TORONTO.

Nuptials of Miss Molley E. Tracey to Mr. Daniel Costello, Downeyville.

St. Paul's church, Power street, Toronto, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Monday, June 22nd, 1903, when Miss Molley E. Tracey, Toronto, was united in marriage to Mr. Daniel Costello, of Downeyville, son of the late Michael Costello. Rev. Father Hand celebrated the ceremony. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. W. Tracey, was tastefully attired in white organdie and carried white carnations. She was assisted by her sister, Miss Ida Tracey, who was dressed in blue and carried a bouquet of crimson roses. Mr. Frank Costello, of the Provincial Secretary's department, was best man. The bride was the recipient of many handsome presents. The wedding journey of the happy pair will include visits to Niagara Falls, Buffalo and Rochester. On their return they will take up residence at Downeyville.

A very pretty wedding was celebrated last evening at the George street Methodist parsonage by Rev. J. P. The First Home Coming Draws Near.

All Arrangements Have Been Completed—Citizens are Asked to Co-operate With Committee.

The first "Home Coming" of the Peterborough Old Boys Association will take place on July 25th to 27th. Circulars have been issued, and persons are requested to notify the Home Secretary, Mr. H. Rush, Water street, giving the names of their friends and acquaintances over the continent, both Canada and the United States, who were formerly residents of Peterborough, as the committee will promptly forward literature to them. It can be readily seen that no time should be lost in forwarding this information, so that all the time possible may be had for completing arrangements, which will of necessity involve the delay of correspondence, arrangements, etc.

A special excursion train will leave the Union Station, Toronto, at 7.40 a.m., on the 25th, via the Midland Division of the Grand Trunk Railway stopping at Markham, Stouffville, Blackwater and Lindsay, arriving at Peterborough at 11 a.m., where the greater number of the excursionists no doubt will leave the train to spend the interval until noon on Monday with friends in the town and over the county. The remainder may continue on to Lakefield where a steamer will be in readiness to convey them on an extended trip over the lakes, calling at Young's Point, Burleigh Falls, Viamede, Glenwood, etc. The steamer will return to Lakefield in the evening, but any of the visitors for whom arrangements are made, may remain over Sunday on Stony Lake, and come to Lakefield by the Monday morning boat.

The circular in question concludes as follows: "We are making history in many ways. If everyone enters heartily into this homereturning, it can be made an occasion of great pleasure and most grateful remembrance."

BOARD OF TRADE.

Special Meeting To-morrow Night an Important one.

Members of the Board of Trade and citizens who are interested in the building up of Peterborough, are reminded of the meeting called by Mr. Hughes-Charles, President of the Board of Trade, to-morrow night to consider the proposal of the Singer Manufacturing Company, of Montreal to remove their works.

This is a project in which the Board should have the co-operation of every citizen. The President, with commendable enterprise has interested the Singer Company in the claims of Peterborough as a town possessing superior advantages to offer manufacturing industries, and, as the Company mentioned above is one which any town would be glad to have locate because of the large business which it is doing, it is hoped that the efforts of the Board will meet with hearty support from the business men and citizens.

Peterborough has all the requisite for a manufacturing centre, cheap and abundant power, unexcelled railway facilities and low taxation, but it will be necessary to bring these advantages to the notice of manufacturers before they can be secured for the town. The Board of Trade is doing a splendid work in this direction and a large meeting is looked for to-morrow night.

THE LATEST NEWS OF LOCAL SPORT.

Y. M. C. A. I Play Bridgenorth on Saturday in Semi-Finals.

Batch of Interesting News in Lacrosse—English Team to Visit Canada Next Month.

GOLF.

On account of the wet weather, the tea which was announced to take place at the Club House, this afternoon, has been postponed until Friday.

LACROSSE.

Eugene Hurtubise is into the game, and for a new man is doing remarkably well.

• • • •

The game between T.A.S. and Oshawa on the Murray street grounds on July 1st promises to be a battle royal. Oshawa is bringing a very strong dozen and indications point to a large crowd witnessing the struggle. The spectators will not be allowed to encroach upon the playing space as entrance gate will be to the grand stand, where all will be obliged to witness the struggle.

• • • •

Fred Westbrook has consented to take charge of the Tecumsehs again, and will direct the team against Oshawa at the Island on Saturday, Bert Davis, the former field captain may figure on the defence, but the chances are that he will retire altogether from active participation in the game.

Greatrix and McWilliams will be let go, and Walter Cain, the Varsity player, will have charge of the home. Kyle will be moved closer in, and an effort will be made to break up the losing streak of the Indians.

Westbrook is known as "The Kitchener of Lacrosse," and the Tecumsehs need somebody like that.

• • • •

Information from Belleville states that the team in that city is working hard in preparation for their next game with the Athletics.

• • • •

The T.A.S. Lacrosse Club management desires to thank the Ladies' Reading Circle for the proceeds of a very successful ice cream social and concert.

• • • •

Tecumsehs were out again last night and got in some good work, while the home worked in a little systematic game that landed the ball in the net quite frequently. They are getting some of the practice they need so badly, and by Saturday should be in condition to stay the game out. If they do Oshawa will be reduced to the terrible necessity of figuring behind Port Hope in the list of won and lost.—Toronto Telegram.

• • • •

A report from Montreal says that "Happy" L'Hereux, who has been playing goal for Oshawa, has wandered back to Montreal, and will turn out with the Habitants' all-French aggregation on Saturday. Well, maybe! But it's better to wait and see. "Happy" has been doing pretty good work for the Oshawans, and if they want to keep him it is hardly likely such a dead and gone organization as the Nationals will have much say in the matter.—Telegram.

• • • •

Campbellford will send a team to Belleville to-morrow to play an exhibition game with the Belleville bunch.

• • • •

President Lennox of the O.L.A., has appointed Mr. F. C. Waghorne of Toronto, to referee the Brantford-Athletics game in St. Catharines on Saturday, and Mr. H. B. Clemes of Port Perry to officiate in the Oshawa-Tecumseh match at the Island.

• • • •

"There are more than a few local lacrosse enthusiasts who are willing to wager that the Oshawa team will not venture to return to St. Kitts to meet the Athletics on their own grounds."—St. Catharines Star.

• • • •

The St. Catharines Star, writing on the report that Mr. F. C. Waghorne had been appointed to referee the Brantford-St. Catharines game on Saturday, says:

"If this be true, the Athletics have a very blue prospect ahead. Waghorne's decisions were so notoriously unfair in Oshawa last week, he manifested such a desire to give the Athletics the worst of it, and his rulings were made so often without consideration that the Athletic players, one and all, were thoroughly disgusted and disheartened. If the home team has to go on the field with Waghorne as referee on Saturday, they will play under a heavy handicap, and their chances of winning will be materially decreased. There ought to be no more Waghorne for St. Kitts. The referee who will deliberately rule off a player who has just been struck a brutal blow by an opponent, and will afterwards acknowledge that he did not see the blow struck is not capable of doing fair work. And Waghorne admitted on Saturday last that he had not seen either of the assaults upon Lepard, though he penalized the St. Kitts player both times."

The St. Catharines have the old song, "Blame the referee when you lose the game."

ENGLISH PLAYERS COMING.

This morning's Mail and Empire has the following: — "An extensive tour has been arranged for the visit of the English lacrosse players to Canada. The team is composed of Oxford and Cambridge students. They will arrive in Ontario the last of this month, and the schedule is as follows:—

July 1—With Varsity at Toronto.
July 3—With a team chosen by Mr. Jack Cawthra, at Toronto.
July 4—The team will be the guests of the Toronto Lacrosse Club at the Cornwall-Toronto game at the Island.
July 6—With Orillia at Orillia.
July 7—With Gravenhurst at Gravenhurst.
July 9—With Bracebridge at Bracebridge.
July 11—With Huntsville at Huntsville.
July 13—With Parry Sound at Parry Sound.
July 14—With Midland.
July 15—With Barrie at Barrie.
July 16—With Brantford at Brantford.
July 18—With Torontos at the Island.

A game will be played at Hamilton either on June 29 or July 22.

The games for Eastern Ontario, with Cornwall, Capitals, Shamrocks and Montreal have not yet been arranged."

The Examiner sporting man suggests that the management of the local lacrosse teams try to arrange for a game with these English players.

BOYS ON THE FARM.

Hon. John Dryden Tells How They May Be Interested.

THE INSTITUTE AND GIRLS.

Benefits to Be Derived From Women's Institutes—The Beautification of the Home—Great Work For Women to Do—Addresses at the Morning Session—Institute Convention Best in Eight Years.

Toronto, June 25.

Some very interesting papers were read before the American Association of Farmers' Institute Workers at the Parliament Buildings last night.

Miss Blanche Maddock of Guelph took the subject "How the Institute Can Bring the Most Good to Our Girls." There were not enough girls attending the meetings of the institute and she had enquired why this was. The answer was: "Oh, I don't want to learn about house-keeping; I hat it."

Women, she thought, were perhaps reathr narrow in their views regarding house-keeping, and this was the reason girls were leaving the farm and taking positions in shops, factories, etc. The young women of the farm had not the chance to meet other women. She meant by that, women who could tell them something they did not know. They had their church societies, but these were in cliques generally.

Miss Maddock then outlined the proceedure followed by the Women's Institute toward beautifying the home. The members were working toward obtaining as many young girl members as possible. Concerts were being given thruout the country, and the young ones were being induced to join in the public meetings more and more.

The Boy on the Farm.

Hon. John Dryden on "How to Enlist the Interest of the Boys in Agriculture," was the principal speaker of the evening.

In agriculture, the speaker said, the best and most brilliant young men were needed, but not those who were unwilling. He would never press a young man to enter farming if he did not wish to do so. A boy whose tendencies were toward ships and the water should be sent to the sea, or to the boats. He would not make the best of farmer. The same argument applied to boys who loved tools or books. These would make good mechanics or lawyers. Then, again, boys were found who were fond of animals, of living in the open country, of the fresh air, and these boys were the kind of which to make farmers. The institute, he thought, had done much in the past ten years to overcome the prejudice against farming. There used to be a sentiment against putting a bright boy to the plow, but this was becoming rare. In the Old Country a man felt honored to be a successful farmer; even royalty were engaged in the pursuit.

The Morning Session.

Rain served only to increase the attendance at the American Association of Farmers' Institute Workers. True sons of the soil, they turned out in force yesterday morning to listen to addresses on methods of institute work.

This convention is said to be the best in the eight years of the life of the association.

LEARN FROM OTHERS

That Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are a Sure Cure for all Stomach Troubles—Henry A. Cole's Experience.

Do you know Dyspepsia? Have you felt those pains, aches and discomforts that make men and women feel that there is no sunshine in life? Do you know that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will take away all the troubles? If you do not, it is because you will not profit by the experience of others.

Listen to what Henry A. Coles, of St. Mary's River, Guysboro Co., N. S., has to tell:—

"I had stomach trouble more or less for about five years," writes Mr. Coles. "Finally I was forced to take to my bed. The doctor was called in but he did me no good. I was suffering very bad and did not know what to do.

"Then my wife suggested that I try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, so finally I got some and commenced to use them. I took seven boxes in all, and have not felt any trouble since.

"I can heartily recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to any sufferer from stomach troubles. And others in this neighbourhood who have used them speak just as highly of them as I do."

PASSING LAND BILL.

An Important Change Unanimously Approved

MINIMUM PURCHASING PRICE.

The Clause Amended in Such Fashion as to Be Hailed as a Great Concession—The Irish Leader Says the Bill Is Saved — The Liberal Leader Joined in the Conciliatory Congratulations.

London, June 24.—The resumption of the debate in the House of Commons to-day on the Irish Land Bill was marked by the introduction by Mr. Wyndham, Chief Secretary for Ireland, of an amendment designed to remove the difficulties in regard to the retention in clause one of a provision for a minimum price at which tenants may purchase their holdings and permitting bargains to be made outside of the judicial zones.

The amendment is hailed on all sides as being a great concession. John Redmond, the Irish leader, declared Mr. Wyndham had saved the bill, and the amendment was agreed to amid cheers of congratulations. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader, joined in the congratulations on the spirit of conciliation prevailing and the dangerous clause one of the bill was adopted without a division.

Later Mr. Wyndham agreed to an extension of the limit of the advances to be made to purchasers of agricultural farms from $25,000 to $35,000.

London, June 24.—The House this evening passed the third reading of the Finance bill without discussion.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Hon. Mr. Fisher Not Interested in the Montreal Herald—Speed of Railways Over Crossings Fixed.

Ottawa, June 25.—Mr. Cochrane, in the course of the discussion of the estimates Tuesday night, referred to Hon. Sydney Fisher as director of The Montreal Herald. Yesterday in the House Mr. Fisher rose to a question of privilege, and stated that he had sold his stock in The Herald when he became a Minister of the Crown.

Replying to Mr. Wilson, Mr. Sutherland stated that 15,708 immigrants landed at Quebec during May. Only six were rejected by the medical inspectors.

Sir Wilfrid supplied the information that Lawrence Herchmer, late of the mounted police, retired in 1900 on an allowance of $1,144 a year. Under the Pension Act passed last session he will receive a further annuity of $440. The act will not be made retractive.

Mr. Monk was informed that 38 officials employed by the customs department were transferred to the statistical staff at Ottawa between May 1st and Sept. 1st, 1900.

Speed of Railways.

Ottawa, June 24.—The House this afternoon went into committee on Mr. Blair's Railway Commission Bill. The clause requiring railways to limit their speed over unprotected highways in thickly-populated districts to six miles an hour was at the suggestion of the minister amended to restrict the speed to 10 miles an hour.

This provoked a long discussion.

Mr. Lancaster of Lincoln said greater precautions should be taken to prevent accidents on crossings in towns and villages.

Mr. Blair replied that the board could be depended upon to see that increased danger should be met with increased safeguards.

Mr. Fowler of King's said there was no effective protection to crossings, except gates and watchmen.

Dr. Kendall said he knew of a case where roads were blocked for 15 and 20 minutes by trains shunting.

Mr. Fowler of King's complained particularly of the I. C. R. in this respect.

W. F. Maclean told of a grievance at the Grand Trunk yards in East Toronto. There all the shunting is done on tracks that converge on the main line.

Mr. Blair inserted an amendment to the clause providing that in the shunting of cars public traffic should not be interrupted for more than three minutes at a time.

The following bills were read a third time and passed:

To incorporate the Home Bank of Canada.—Mr. Osler.

To incorporate the Algonquin Lumber & Power Company.—Mr. Gould.

KING PETER THRONED.

New Servian Monarch Was Crowned at a Cathedral Service—Cheered at a Torchlight Procession.

Belgrade, June 24.—King Peter arrived here at 10 o'clock this morning. He was received with great enthusiasm. The Russian and the Austrian ambassadors were alone at the reception tendered him.

The introduction of officers was followed by the traditional, picturesque ceremony of the offering of bread and salt by the Mayor of Belgrade.

He was crowned at a cathedral service.

A torchlight procession was held to-night, and the King was cheered.

Nerve Sufferers Need Sympathy

And More Than That, the Nerve Cells Must be Restored and Revitalized by the Use of

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

Too many doctors have no sympathy with the sufferer from diseases of the nerves. They do not understand the nervous system, and when the victim of nervous prostration or exhaustion appeals to them he is told to "brace up," forget his trouble, and he will soon be all right.

Anyone who has had nervous prostration, being scarcely able to drag about, felt energy and vitality growing less and being in constant dread of paralysis, or even insanity itself, knows how utterly useless and discouraging is such advice.

Nervous diseases cannot right themselves. Exhausted, shrivelled nerve cells can never revitalize themselves without assistance from outside. If the blood is weak and watery, and fails to afford proper nourishment, restoratives must be used. Recovery is bound to be slow but it is none the less certain, and there is no combination of ingredients which has proven so successful as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This famous food is not a stimulant to arouse false hopes, but a true restorative, reconstructing wasted cells and tissues, and instilling into the blood and nerves the essential principles of life and vigour.

Mrs. S. Derocher, 495 Bethune street, Peterborough, states: "I was troubled a great deal with nervousness and sleeplessness and began a treatment with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I can say for a certainty that it is a splendid medicine, for besides steadying my nerves, it built up my system wonderfully and enabled me to rest and sleep well. We have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Ointment in our family for years and consider them excellent. For skin diseases I think the Ointment cannot be equalled and the pills are a most satisfactory laxative."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food soon wins the confidence of all who are pale, thin, weak, or exhausted, for by noting your increase in weight while using it you can prove that new, firm, flesh and tissue are being added to the body, and realize that weakness and disease are fast giving way to strength and vigour. Fifty cents a box; or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

O SAYA SAN

By CURRAN
RICHARD GREENLEY

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

O Saya San sat contentedly upon her small heels and nodded in the sunshine beneath the fragrant cherry blossoms in the piled up masses of her jet black hair. Happy O Saya San, for the American lord had bidden her remain ruler of the small domain that he had taken over from young Burroughs. There had been some anxious moments for O Saya San before her fate was decided; then young Burroughs went his way after the manner of the English driftwood that goes up and down the China seas and— Welladay! O Saya San had sorrowed, but that was yesterday, and today was today, and, like a wise little woman, she rocked to and fro on her heels, clad in her best kimono and swaying the huge fan to and fro. From under her long lashes her bright eyes took stock of the six feet of sinuous flesh and blood that swayed and swung in the hammock as the breeze flung down a wonderful snow of pink and white from the cherry boughs.

Totally oblivious of her scrutiny, Royall lay and looked out over the eternal blue of the bay, the straw roofs and gilded kiosks of Yeddo town, cursing the gods with mighty curses for the sake of things existent and most of all for the sake of things that were—exactly like a scene on a Japanese fan. He had a dim, elusive memory of a prim old parlor in the far Kentucky valley, where had hung a silken banner covered with strange flights of bird and beast and a tea house, with an impossible geisha strumming upon some spurious form of guitar. It had been brought from somewhere overseas, and his mother had valued it highly. But there came a day when he could stand the simpering face no longer, and, with infinite trouble, he had mounted chair and table until he tore it down and rended the silk into ribbons, and then there was an afterward. Before him lay the same blue of bay and sky and the impossible little tea house, and, worst of all, he could not stamp out this picture. He turned to shut it from his aching eyes and beheld O Saya San peeping at him around her fan. There would be an afterward to this picture also, and again he cursed the god of folly and almost cursed the memory of Dorothy's face framed in the gold of the Kentucky sunset.

He had not deserved it. She had listened all too readily to the half lie, more deadly than the blackest truth, that Matthews had taken care she should overhear, and he—he had been too proud to defend himself.

The beat-beat of the "Doris" waltz came back to him. He could almost smell the perfume of her hair and see the lovely, laughing face as he had held it close to his heart that night—see it grow cold with scorn as she turned away on her father's arm. There had been a certain poor satisfaction the next day when he had forced Matthews, by the virtue of his strong right arm, to write the letter to her retracting the spoken lie. The savage had rioted within him as he saw Matthews prostrate with the mark of his hand across the abject face. But even that could not efface the fact that Dorothy had believed him guilty.

In his madness he had accepted his uncle's offer to go out to Yeddo as his representative and take charge of his immense interests there. Shrewd old Wallace Royall had a notion of the trouble through which the lad was passing and hurried him into it before Royall knew what he was about.

Royall & Co. were a power in a small way where the army of coolies went up and down from the great warehouses to the sea and the tea chests went in a constant stream from the gray fields, gathered in the gray dawns of orient skies, through the blare and light of Yeddo mart and out oversea to busy, practical America. It was a small kingdom, a mighty trust for the man that was yet a boy, but Jim Royall would have parted with the whole of his prospects, would have gone forth the veriest beggar, could he have undone the mad moment when he had returned a certain little blue envelope unopened and sent back her letters. He had kept her picture; why, he could not have told; but there it was, cased in the big silver heart that she had given him. He never opened it, but it lay close to his heart, insensate, yet pregnant of a thousand fancies.

As the last long finger of the sunset touched the gilded railing O Saya San crept timidly out. Royall looked at the little yellow hand, with its dyed finger tips, that rested upon it and drew a long breath. He looked at O Saya San, and he thought long thoughts as the soft velvet of the gray gloaming shut out the gold of the Asian sky and wrapped him into the arms of the old sweet mother, the witching, wonderful east. One by one the stars woke up and, answering the twinkling lights of Yeddo, threw long jeweled banners down the bay. Royall looked at O Saya San. The small ivory white face gleamed like a lotus flower, moon pale against the dusk. Up from the garden came the languor of lilies and the freshness of spring in the cherry blossoms, and a sound of music beat up in pulsing waves from the city. Royall looked at O Saya San, and the small figure swayed toward him. He had not deserved it then; he would deserve it now.

* * * * * * *

There was one mystery that O Saya San might not touch, a great silver heart that lay upon the breast of her lord. Once she clutched it in her pretty yellow fingers, but he had snatched it away with words that she could not understand. O Saya San never troubled the silver heart again.

Moons waxed and waned above the little house that looked over the bay, and when the feast of cherry blossoms came again there were three that dwelt there, and O Saya San hugged the small bundle of bright eyes and pink flesh, laughing her pretty silvery tinkle that was like the chime of little bells—lotus moons that carried a golden glamour, happiness stolen between the gates of sleep and death, where a child woman bent above her firstborn, laughing the long hours through, with the sheen of her butterfly wings scarce unfolded; moons of delight, where the only thing prohibited was thought.

The situation was a perfectly natural one to O Saya San. She knew that somewhere, some day, a voice would call and he would go, as the other did, but meanwhile, graceless little pagan, what cares the butterfly, so the present roses bloom, that other roses are faded, that these, too, will fade when her wings are crumpled and forlorn? Her lord was too great a personage to be troubled by small griefs, only there were hours when the black mood was upon him when she dared not approach. And then she went softly about the house, hushing the crowing and glad little noises of her small delight, and always he held the silver heart close to his own.

Then came a letter. An old college friend in a gossipy mood babbled of dead days and other friends whom Royall held as dead. And out of the past there arose a ghost, a mighty thing that clamored through the watches of the night when O Saya San and the baby slept—a thing that lifted self manacled hands and waved him back from the sacred things that were. Once again the silken banner lay in ribbons at his feet. Royall waited.

The California was in. Royall watched the crown come down the gang plank from mere force of habit. There would be no face among them that he knew. Long ago he had resolved, since the coming of Heart's Delight into the small house on the hill, that he would sever all ties and never return home. He was daily educating himself to forget; at least he honestly believed so. Out of the crowd walked one alone. He took a step toward her, and the sea and sky were a blur, melting into mere background. There was no mistaking the slim, erect young form, the glint of gold in the bronze hair and the upward flash of the bonny gray eyes. Naturally, as if their parting had been but yesterday, he went forward, not of his own volition, but drawn by an irresistible force. She held out her hands, and the painted picture garden with its geisha rolled away.

An hour later they were in the sitting room at the hotel, and she was telling him all in a breath how her people had died and drifted away until she was left alone and there was no one to check her mad project. Royall listened, not taking in the sense of what she was saying, only the fact that Dorothy, his Dorothy, was sitting there, the gray eyes shining into his with the old love strong and true. Dorothy babbled on, "And, Jim, here I am, and there is nothing left for you to do, you troublesome boy, but to marry me as soon as you possibly can, and"— Royall leaped to his feet as a voice called his name without the door. a pitiful little voice: "My lord, my lord! Heart's Delight is ill—so ill." And there in the doorway stood O Saya San, with the moaning baby against her bosom. Royall covered his eyes. The afterward had come.

SUFFERED FOR THREE YEARS.

HEADACHES AND RUSHING OF BLOOD TO THE HEAD.

APPETITE WAS GONE.

TRIED MANY DIFFERENT REMEDIES BUT

MRS. WALTER MARTHORNE, BROOKLYN, N.S.

She says: "I suffered for three years with terrible headaches and rushing of blood to my head. I lost my appetite and became very thin and weak. I tried many different remedies and consulted doctors, but all in vain until I started to use Burdock Blood Bitters. I had not taken more than two bottles when I began to feel better, my appetite improved wonderfully and I increased rapidly in weight. I took altogether four bottles and am now as well as can be, for which I owe my thanks to Burdock Blood Bitters. I can recommend it to all those suffering as I did."

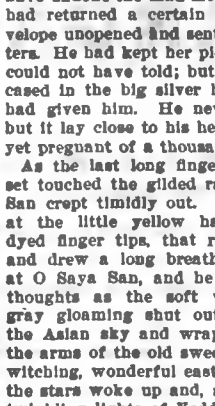
A PICTURE

Of health, we say of a perfectly healthful woman, and it is a picture everyone loves to look upon. All the pictures of all the artists who have ever painted the glory and beauty of womanhood, are only copies and imitations of this picture.



Never artist mixed a color on his palette that can vie with the hues which tint a healthful woman's cheek. Why should this charm be sacrificed to sickness? It need not be save in rare cases. The general health of woman is so linked with the local womanly health that wasted cheek and sunken eye are in general but evidences of womanly diseases. Cure the diseases and the physical health is restored.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the ills of women. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

Mrs. Mary E. Lewis, of Tanner, Gilmer Co., W. Va., writes: "I shall always recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets,' for they cured me when doctors and other medicines failed. For fifteen years I suffered untold misery. When I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicines, I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I could not lie down to sleep, and everything I ate would almost cramp me to death. Was very nervous and could hardly walk across the room. I only weighed ninety pounds when I commenced taking these medicines six years ago; now I weigh one hundred and forty pounds and am having better health than ever before. My friends all say they can hardly believe that I am the same person; after being sick so long I have changed to be robust and rosy cheeked."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

Why Water Quenches Thirst.

Thirst, a word of Anglo-Saxon origin and akin to the Latin torreo and our torrid or parched, describes a peculiar sensation of dryness and heat located in the tongue and throat. Artificial thirst may be produced by the passage of a current of air over the mucous membrane of these parts, but normal thirst is the consequence of a lack of liquid in the system. The agony of extreme thirst is due to the fact that all the tissues sympathize in this distress.

It is then as a refreshing relief that a supply of water comes to thirsting lips, replacing what has been lost, cooling the parched palate and rapidly removing the craving which has depressed the system. In short, water quenches thirst just because it supplies what at the moment is wanting and is most eagerly desired, so that Solomon could properly compare the gift of "cold waters to a thirsty soul" to the advent of good news.

Thirst is to some extent appeased by the injection of water into the blood or body, though no fluid touches the part to which the sensation is referred.

Suffered Ten Years.

"I suffered for ten years with bronchitis and was unable to work for months at a time, then I used Angier's Petroleum Emulsion and it made me feel like a new man."—Robert Weir, Toronto Canada. 12a

The First Law of Nature.

Two Irish soldiers stationed in the West Indies were accustomed to bathe daily in a little bay which was generally supposed to be free from sharks. Though on good terms with each other, they were not what might be called fast friends.

One day as they were swimming about 100 yards from the shore Pat observed Mike suddenly making for the land as hard as he could without saying a word. Wondering what was the matter, Pat struck out vigorously after him and landed at his companion's heels.

"Is there anything wrong wid ye?" inquired Pat feelingly.

"Nothin'—nothin' at all," replied the other.

"Thin what did you make such a suddint retrate for an' lave me?" continued Pat.

"Bedad," answered Mike coolly, "I spied the fin av a big shark about twenty feet ahead, an' I thought while he was playin' wid you it would give me time to reach the shore!"

The following despatches have been received by E. M. Poussett & Co.:—

New York, June 25th, 9.45 a. m. — The official announcement was made at 5 p. m. yesterday by the management of C.F.I., to the effect that Rockfeller and Gould interests have gained control of property. J. H. Clement, a member of the firm of Butler Bros., was made Chairman of Board. Mr. E. E. Gates and E. P. Prentice, were elected Directors. The stock market situation and outlook remains, unchanged, except Rockfeller interests in securing C.F.I., and arrival of Mr. Morgan who expesses confidence in future of the market. It is possible traders may start a movement to rally prices with resumption of business this morning, and that we may see some advance in C.F.I. and other securities influenced by clique manipulation and also in Morgan stocks especially as London is higher, It is doubtful, however, if the improvement will go far or prove more than a temporary rally, and we think market will continue narrow.

M. & M.

McMillan & Maguire this morning received the following:—

New York, June 25, 12.30 p. m. — Announcement of the control of the C. F. I. Co., by the Rockfellers gave the list a momentary strength. C. F. I. sold off on the theory, as control was now secured and the stock would now be left to take care of itself. Two disquieting features of the market are the weakness of Penna, and U.S. Steel 5 p.c. Bonds. No explanation for the selling of the latter has come to light which is not at all satisfactory unless it be forced liquidation by the syndicate or other large holders. The strength of grain and cotton was disquieting. Money is expected to be harder on account of the payment for Penna. stock and the July disbursements. Labour troubles are more serious and a great tie-up is threatened.

We advise the sale of stocks on all rallies.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS IN SUMMER CAMP.

Sixth Annual Camp Will be Held at Sandy Point in July.

Two Weeks Outing to be Enjoyed by the Boys—In Charge of Secretary and Leaders.

For the sixth time in as many years the Boys' Department of Peterborough Y.M.C.A. will take an outing of two weeks, the dates this year being from July 15th to the 28th. These two weeks will be spent camping at Sandy Point, Clear Lake, "the prettiest lake in the world." This outing is confined to the boys under 16th years old, and will be in charge of the General Secretary, Physical Director and the Leaders, and the object of it is to provide for the boys a pleasant outing under conditions which will not only be healthful, but will also be free from influences which would be detrimental to the moral development of the boys' characters. A clause in the phamplet giving information in reference to it says:—"Bring a two bushel bag, packed with two blankets, two heavy quilts, pillow, two suits, cup, straw hat, gym. shoes, sweater, tooth brush, towel, soap, enamel tin cup and plate, knife, fork and spoon, kerchiefs, string, needle and thread, and your best book—the Bible." Of course if you don't happen to have all the above, come with what you have.

Profiting by the experience of former years, an extra supply of cooking material is to be taken, for:

"Oh you should see usse eat—when we eat,
We must be hollow to our feet—to our feet.
Though mountains high the bill o' fare,
We always leave the table bare."

"Jimmy Flannigan" will bring the wherewithall, good, and plenty.

The cost for the two weeks' pleasure will be small, $5.00 paying for the entire outing, including board, railway and steamer fare. The party, which is limited to 30 will go by G.T.R. to Lakefield, and from there by steamer to the Point. A special feature will be the field day on July 24th. Last year this day was a howling success, and the enthusiasm which the boys are displaying in it already this year is a guarantee that it will be an even greater success.

The Y.M.C.A. is to be commended for the interest which it is manifesting in the boys, and that the boys themselves appreciate it is proven by the great number who are attaching themselves to the Association.

EQUALIZED VALUES.

One in Four Persons.

One person in every four suffers more or less from itching piles. Some do not know the nature of their ailment and others have not heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment as the only absolute and guaranteed cure for this distressing disease. If you are a sufferer ask your neighbours about this great preparatio. It has grown popular as a result of the news of its merits being passed from friend to friend.

Too Great a Risk.

In almost every neighbourhood someone has died from an attack of colic or cholera morbus, often before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. A reliable remedy for these diseases should be kept at hand. The risk is too great for anyone to take. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has undoubtedly saved the lives of more people and relieved more pain and suffering than any other medicine in use. It can always be depended upon. "It is needless to say that the Order should

THE MILITARY CAMP DOWN AT KINGSTON

Is now in Full Swing at Barriefield Commons—Different Regiments.

The camp is now in full swing and Barriefield commons has undergone a transformation from a green pasture into a tented village. Shortly before six o'clock several troops of the 3rd Regiment of Cavalry, the Prince of Wales Dragoons arrived at the inner station. They were about twenty cars in the train which brought the cavalry to the city. The train left Peterborough at 9 o'clock in the morning and picked up the troops at Millbrook, Cobourg and Brighton. Between embarking the soldiers and being side-tracked to allow the regular trains to pass which stretched the journey out to nine hours. Lt.-Col. Sutton, of Millbrook, is in command of the regiment. The 3rd Dragoons always present a smart and soldierly appearance. Their scarlet tunics and yellow trimmings give them a dashing appearance. Many of the horses were fitted out with new tan equipment. Shortly after six the men mounted their steeds and moved towards the camp ground.

The 45th Regiment, West Durham Infantry, Lt.-Col. Sam Hughes' old command, and the 49th Hastings Rifles were due at five o'clock, but did not reach the city till after six.

The 59th Stormont and Glengarry Infantry, the 56th Grenville Regiment Lisgar Rifles and the 40th Northumberland Infantry were expected at 6.15, but were also late.

The 4th Regiment of Cavalry were in the city the greater part of the day. The Windsor Hotel seemed to be their headquarters and on account of the rain the most of the men still wore civilian clothes. Notwithstanding the downpour the "Tommies" seemed good natured and consoled themselves in the belief that the weather would brighten up.

BUGLE CALLS.

Lieut. Shaw, of Peterborough, who has just finished a long course at the R.M.C., returned to the city with his troop. His friends congratulate him on his success in his examinations.

The genial face of Lt.-Col. Rogers, who commanded the 3rd Dragoons, is missed. He has been placed on the retired list.

Major Garvin, the quartermaster of the 3rd Dragoons is the man of letters of that Regiment. He is a writer of rare ability and has composed several patriotic poems which are highly praised by all who have read them. At one time Major Garvin was public school inspector at Peterborough.

The smiling face of Paymaster's Sergeant Clarry of Peterborough, is missing at this camp. Sergeant Clarry was on the editorial staff of the Peterborough Examiner and during his stay in camp was correspondent of the same paper. He is now running a financial agency.—Kingston News.

THE TRADERS' BANK.

The statement of the directors of the Traders' Bank discloses a gratifying condition of its affairs. It shows that the net profits for the year amounted to $167,340.87, which year totalled $167,340.87, which per- dividend of three per cent., and a half yearly dividend of three and a half per cent. The sum of $100,000 was placed to the credit of the rest account, making its present total $450,000.

The business of the Traders' Bank is so steadily increasing year by year that the board have felt warramted in placing the stock upon a seven per cent. basis. The increase in the deposits during the year has exceeded 22 per cent., or in round figures, $2,000,000, bringing the total deposits held by the bank for the year ending May 31, 1903, up to $10,881,652.06. Branch offices have been opened during the year at Bridgeburg, Lakefield, Owen Sound, Prescott, Schomberg, Stony Creek, Stratford, Winona, Woodstock, Otterville and Thamesford. Owing to increasing business the directors have purchased the adjoining property on the north of the present bank premises on Yonge street, Toronto. This will now be available for suitable bank premises whenever it is deemed advisable to erect them. The directors recommend that power be given them to increase the capital stock of the bank to the extent of $500,000, (making the bank's authorized capital $2,000,000.)

INFLUENCE OF ELECTRICITY.

With the aid of electricity, spectacular effect has made tremendous strides during the past few years, and Bolossi Kiralfy, ever to the front in devising and adopting novel methods, has always been in the van in the adaptation of electrical illumination for his entertainments. Mr. Kiralfy designs on a magnificent scale and costumes lavishly. There is no man in the world that has a better appreciation of harmonizing and massing colour, and it is to that fact that he largely owes his world-wide and unequalled fame. He has a perfect eye for the beautiful and for the rhythm of grace. Hence he commands the highest price for his services and hardly knows what a leisure day means. The Toronto Industrial Exhibition Association showed considerable pluck in engaging him last year, but this year they have gone further and given Mr. Kiralfy such terms that his Carnival of Venice will be produced nightly at the Toronto Exhibition from August 27th next to September 12th, he announces will be a veritable triumph of spectacular art. It will equal the best that he did during his ten years stay in London, and will be pronounced by press and public a marvel that in splendour, variety, ingenuity and arrangement will never have been surpassed, not alone on this continent but at any of the gay and wealthy capitals of Europe.

When the business was disposed off the congregation presented Rev. R. Taylor, the pastor, who is about to leave for his new field of labour, with a purse of gold and an address, to which he replied in a few well-chosen words, after which refreshments were served. SPRINGVILLE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The citizens are anxiously awaiting the summer time table of the C. P.R., which, according to promise of the Superintendent, makes Kendry a flag station.

The telephone line is also much enquired about. Mr. Stringer, accompanied by Mr. Doan, was here, having the contracts signed, and no doubt ere long this accommodation will be an accomplished fact.

The manse is nearing completion, and the painters are now at work.

The Ladies' Aid Society have announced a lawn social to be held at the residence of Mr. Jas. Baptie, on Monday evening, the 29th June. Tea will be served from 6 to 8 p.m. The programme is in the hands of an experienced committee, and will be first class. A most cordial invitation is extended to the public to be present on this occasion, as the evening will be one of pleasure and profit. Proceeds in aid of the manse fund.

A friendly game of football was played on Saturday evening in Councillor Smith's field, between the Excelsiors of the gravel road, North Monaghan, and the Yellow Jackets, of Centreville. After one hour's hard work the game was declared a draw, neither team scoring. Albert Reynolds, the veteran footballer of this district, acted as referee, and gave entire satisfaction to both teams, his decisions being given impartially. There was some very good individual playing by members of the graders, but they lack in combination, which however will by practice be developed. The defence of the Yellow Jackets was impregnable. Several League men played with each team. A return game at Centreville is being arranged for.

GREAT DEMAND FOR CHICKENS.

The present time is most favourable for the production, fattening and marketing of farm chickens. There has been such a substantial increase in the consumption of chickens and eggs within the last few years that it is not possible to rear a greater number of suitable market chickens than can be sold with profit. Last year there were not sufficient chickens sold in Canada to supply the home markets. As a result of the shortage of chickens the trade with Great Britain was lessened. This is unfortunate on account of the great demand for Canadian chickens in Great Britain and the good prices that are paid.

The Chief of the Poultry Division, Mr. F. C. Hare, states that numerous letters have been received from produce merchants, poulterers and commission merchants who desire to learn in what localities chickens can be bought in great numbers and at reasonable prices. From several Canadian cities, and especially from Montreal, produce firms have asked to be informed where market chickens suitable for shipping to Great Britain could be obtained in the greatest numbers. British poulterers and commission merchants have repeatedly asked for the same information. The letter of a well established produce house in London, England, was received last week. This firm wished to "start an undertaking for the purpose of importing Canadian poultry to Great Britain." They desired information as to the probable success of such a project and the possibility of obtaining poultry, (especially fowls,) in large quantities, and the best districts for the collection, etc., of them. Last fall a firm in Cape Colony wished a poultry trade developed with that Colony. One shipment of Canadian chickens was made to Cape Colony which arrived in a satisfactory condition and pleased the trade. A New York firm wrote that they desired to import Canadian chickens and were recommended by the Department to a firm in the Maritime Provinces, from whom they purchased chickens and were impressed favourably by them.

The above and similar requests are difficult of solution even by one in touch with the Canadian produce firms and packing houses that are buying and marketing chickens. The majority of our established firms are equipped with a complete plant for marketing in Canada or Great Britain several times more chickens than they can buy. Their profits are diminished through scarcity of chickens. Nevertheless merchants in Great Britain, Cape Colony, the United States and even in Australia are looking to a supply of Canadian chickens to satisfy their growing trade.

The problem of supplying this wonderfully increased demand for chickens can be solved by the farmers alone. Instead of the farmer rearing fifty or a hundred chickens that receive little attention or food, he should rear from 200 to 1,000 chickens annually. These should be of a utility type, such as can be found in the popular breeds, Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes. The chickens should be hatched and reared by incubators and brooders, and when ready for market the cockerels should be placed in fattening crates and fatted. The equipment required to do this work is not an expensive one; $200 to $250 is the cost of incubators, brooders, houses and fattening crates for finishing 1,000 chickens. It is as necessary for realizing the greatest profits from the poultry business as threshing and mowing machinery is for general farming. The work connected with finishing 1,000 chickens with the proper appliances is no more than is necessary for rearing 200 chickens by the natural means. Poultry farming is a business that requires to be developed in the same manner as the butter, cheese and fruit branches. A substantial profit can be made from the poultry business, when it is carried on as an adjunct to farming, and with the same careful attention and financing.

The Dominion Department of Agriculture is endeavouring to increase the poultry trade of Canada; to encourage the growing of the greatest number of high class chickens, and to assist in the marketing of them. A revised edition of the bulletin "Profitable Poultry Farming" has just been issued, and will be mailed without charge on application to the Commissioner of Agriculture and Dairying, Ottawa. The information it contains is of great value in the poultry work, and it should be in the hands of every interested poultryman in Canada.

ACCIDENT AT THE WM. HAMILTON WORKS,

Geo. Pogue and Fred Sandy Injured Yesterday.

At four o'clock yesterday afternoon a somewhat serious accident occurred in the boiler shop of the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Company, as a result of which two labourers were injured.

It transpires that George Pogue, residing on Park street, and Fred Gandy, residing at the corner of Aylmer and Antrim streets, were working near a punching machine, when an overhead crane, through accident, came crashing to the ground, hitting Pogue in the small of the back and injuring Gandy on the head, stunning him for a short time.

Drs. Boucher and Eastwood were immediately telephoned for and the injured men removed to their respective homes in the ambulance.

They are doing as well as can be expected. Their injuries are not of a very serious nature.

LUCKY ST. ANDREW'S!

Jupiter Pluvius Favours the Young Men's Guild Excursion.

It was with forebodings of a dismal failure that the anxious young men of St. Andrew's Guild awoke on Thursday morning, to find the same "continued wet weather" that had prevailed for the previous four days. That they were "up against it" was so apparent that those who started out for the railway station did so rather out of respect to the Guild than out of respect for their personal comfort. The faint hopes of the previous afternoon and evening, which decided the boys to go ahead with their trip, rain or shine, were dashed as the rain splashed on the coaches while the train drew out of the station.

However, no better indication of the popularity of St. Andrew's Y. M. C. excursion could have been given, than the fact that close on to two hundred excursionists boarded the train during a downpour of rain. Many of those who were going had attended these excursions before; there never had been a failure yet, and it seemed as if no one was afraid of rain or wanted to be the cause of a failure this time. The circumstance certainly reflected credit on the management.

At Lakefield the steamer Majestic was waiting for the party There were indications by this time of an improvement in the weather. In fact, before the excursionists again started, Jupiter Pluvius had captivated, the sky brightened, and so did the spirits of the merry young people. To get rid of their exuberance of mirth in some way, some one struck up a song, and the others soon followed the good example. The fascinating music of Marovana's harp band orchestra, which was on board, sounded sweetly over the water, and everybody was happy. The sail through the lakes, instead of being one of damp discomfort, was converted into one of great pleasure, and calculated to make one "taste life's glad moments."

Shortly after one o'clock the steamer reached Buckhorn, where dinner was enjoyed by all. Quite a number partook of a satisfying meal at the Buckhorn House, while others, with well filled hampers, sat around in romantic corners in family groups, enjoying their own bill of fare.

During the whole of the afternoon nothing occurred to mar the pleasure of the party. The weather continued fair, and the sun beamed brightly, while "The Old Folks at Home," and other popular songs that "never die" were supplemented by the delightful harmonious music of the harp band.

The steamer called at McCracken's about six o'clock, where the party took tea, after which the boat steamed across to Juniper Island, where a pleasant musical programme was given in the pavilion.

Lakefield was reached about nine and Peterborough at 9.30 o'clock, all congratulating themselves on the pleasant outing. Of the party none were more delighted than were the visiting members of the executive of the Woodmen of the World, who had been invited to join the excursion by Mr. A. A. Haskill, clerk of the local lodge.

APOSTOLIC RIGHT OF CONFIRMATION

Administered at St. John's Church.

His Lordship's Inspiring Words—46 Candidates Were Individually Presented.

Yesterday evening the Apostolic Right of Confirmation was administered by the Right Rev. Bishop Sweatman, Bishop of Toronto, to some 46 candidates at St. John's church. No general notice had been given of the service so that the congregation was not as large as would have been the case had the service been more widely known, however, the church was fairly well filled.

Punctually at 8 o'clock the choir entered with the visiting clergy and the Bishop. They were followed by a procession of the candidates, the women and girls attired in white, with white confirmation hats, and the men and boys in black wearing white rosettes. They occupied the front seats of the church. The visiting clergy were:—Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, St. Luke's, Ashburnham, who acted as Bishop's chaplain; Rev. W. Creswick, of Young's Point, and Rev. W. MacKenzie, Head Master of the Lakefield preparatory school. The service, which was the shortened evening prayer, was read by Rev. W. Creswick, while Rev. A. W. MacKenzie read the lesson, found in the Acts, Chapter 8, describing the confirmation at Samaria. Rev. J. C. Davidson then formally presented the candidates for confirmation and the Bishop asked them the solemn question as to their acknowledgment of the Baptismal vows provisionally made for them and their intention to carry them out. Instead of answering together, their individual names were read in alphabetical order, each candidate answering after his name had been read.

The Bishop then came forward and addressed the candidates from the chancel step, speaking in a direct, personal and conversational manner, with telling effect. His Lordship commenced by stating that he knew that they had been most carefully prepared and thoroughly examined, and had learned that their answers had been of a very satisfactory nature, and had shown every assurance of spiritual earnestness. He dwelt at some length on the sanctity of confirmation, and the necessity of approaching the altar in a right spirit, that of desiring to do good and lead more conscientious lives. He spoke of the necessity of fulfilling the duties of a disciple of the Lord, and attending with regularity the Holy Communion service. In conclusion, His Lordship expressed his sincere hope that they might leave the church inwardly better to fight manfully the battles of Christ.

The Bishop then offered the solemn prayer for the descent of the Holy Spirit, in accordance with the eighth chapter of the Acts.

Candidates then went forward in companies of six and were individually confirmed. Between the confirmation of each set of candidates a verse of the hymns, "Come Holy Spirit," and "Just as I am," was sung.

After the local candidates had been confirmed, Rev. A. W. Mackenzie brought forward for confirmation seven of the senior boys of his school. There were several well known citizens among those confirmed, and the class was noticeably largely of an adult nature.

GEORGE STREET CHOIR IN A NEW ROLE.

Entertainment Provided by the Leader Much Appreciated.

The members of George street choir were last night treated to a surprise. After the regular practice they were informed by the leader, Mr. Mulligan, that in addition to the work of the evening he had prepared a social evening's entertainment. Strawberries and cream and cake were then served to the surprised singers. But, rising to the demands of the occasion they proved themselves as capable of enjoying the latter part of the evening as the first. A most pleasant evening was spent in the church parlours and before dispersing a vote of thanks proposed by Mr. Moore and seconded by Mr. Miller, was enthusiastically carried. Mr. Mulligan is doing splendid work with his choir, the members of which appreciating the difficulties of his position, are in perfect sympathy with him, and the result is a harmonious choir.

Mr. Mulligan by his action in securing the services of Mr. Wodell, of Boston, to instruct the choir for ten weeks during this summer, has again proven his interest in their progress.

Lindsay Wedding.

A pretty wedding took place in Lindsay on Wednesday, when Miss Margaret Elaine Hartley was married to Mr. Harry Pepper, the ceremony being performed in St. Paul's church by Rev. Rural Dean Marsh. The bridesmaid was Miss Marie Hartley, and the groomsman, Mr. Wilfrid Pepper. After the wedding the bridal couple left for Toronto, from where they will go to Jersey Shore, Pa., to take up residence.

The Montreal Herald has the following:—

"The Nationals will not be able to play L'Heureux on their team against the Capitals on Saturday next. President Fitzgibbon was seen yesterday in reference to the statement that Nationals would play L'Heureux. He stated that the rule governing this matter was so explicit that he could not understand why a question should arise as to whether L'Heureux could be played or not on Saturday. He referred your correspondent to Rule 4, section 2, which distinctly states that all players must be residents of the district within a radius of twenty miles of the city or town to which the club belongs, and must have resided within a radius for a period of at least six months, consequently L'Heureux will be debarred.

"The general opinion in Cornwall seems to be that the sooner this thing is stopped the better, no matter what team suffers. There has been too much jumping from one team to another and from one association to another. If all the clubs interested would calmly consider the matter they would positively refuse to sanction any transfers back to the teams when the players have left or from one association to another, even if it did affect their own team."

The unsportsmanlike practice of importing players who are given figure-head jobs, it is a pleasure to know, finds no sympathy from sporting organizations in Peterborough. Youngsters are encouraged to play, knowing that after they have worked hard they will not be thrown aside for semi-professional players.

GOLF.

The draws will be made to-night for the competition for Haskell balls to be played to-morrow afternoon.

THE JOHN WESLEY BI-CENTENNIAL.

Anniversary Services Held the World Over Next Sunday.

Sketch of Wesley's Life—A Great Force in Religious Life of his Time.

On the 28th of June, Methodists the world over will celebrate the bi-centennial anniversary of the birth of John Wesley, the founder of their faith. Special services will be held in all churches and the theme of the discourses will relate to Wesley and his work.

In the Methodist churches here, in common with those throughout the world, sermons and addresses will be given on the subject of the Wesleyan movement. At George street church the beautiful flower service will be held as well as the Wesley anniversary. In the morning the Sunday school members will attend church each bearing a bouquet of flowers. Addresses will also be given on the Wesley anniversary. At the evening service the sermon will be on the "Life of Wesley."

At Charlotte street church the bi-centennial will also have a prominent place in the services.

John Wesley was born June 28, 1703. He was descended on both sides from earnestly religious ancestors, who were ready to labour and to suffer for what they regarded as the truth, some of them in the Established Church of England, some in the ranks of the dissenters.

The influence of such ancestors and especially of his parents reveals itself in the early piety of the boy. When eight years old, he was admitted to the communion by his father, the strict and conscientious rector of Epworth. He entered Oxford University in 1720 and six years later was made a fellow.

In 1735 the two Wesley brothers went to Georgia on a mission to the Indians. The mission proved unsuccessful except that it prepared them for a greater work to follow. They returned to England in 1737.

Down to this time John Wesley was an ascetic moralist and a punctilious ritualist. Shortly after he rediscovered the Lutheran, the Pauline doctrine of justification by faith.

It is a curious fact that the man who was destined to revolutionize the religious life of the English speaking world was a man of extremely conservative tempor. He cherished an intense affection for the great historic Church of England, in which he had been reared, and an almost superstitious veneration for all her forms and usages. It was only when the pulpits of the Established Church were closed against him and his fellow evangelists that they began to preach out of doors. Wesley preached his first sermon in the open on May 1, 1739, to an audience of three thousand people near Bristol. It was with great reluctance that he adopted the innovation of lay preaching, but at last yielded to the sagacious counsel of his mother who favoured it.

From the beginning of the great revival until the death of John Wesley was a period of rather more than half a century. The record of his evangelical labours during that time has no parallel since the time of St. Paul.

The closing years of that career were a genuine triumph. The churches of the establishment which had excluded him from their pulpits and sometimes even refused to receive him at the altar, were glad to welcome him.

The most obvious result of the work of Wesley and his associates, was the founding of those religious societies which developed into the Methodist churches of the English speaking world. At his death, the Methodist societies in Europe counted 294 preachers and 48,565 members. The Methodist churches now number nearly eight million members; and if, with actual members those who are, more or less definitely, adherents of Methodist churches, be included, the number of the people called "Methodist" may be estimated as not far from twenty-five million.

John Wesley himself was certainly not a great theologian. His tendency was practical rather than theoretical. Apart from the fervor of his Christian life and the intensity of his evangelistic zeal, the qualities that contributed most to the success and permanence of the Wesleyan movement were the qualities of the man of affairs rather than those of the thinker.

Macauley ascribes to John Wesley a "genius for government not inferior to that of Richelieu." Buckle characterizes him as "the first of theological statesmen." Leslie Stephen says of him, "No such leader of men appeared in the eighteenth century."

FINANCIAL REPORT OF ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL.

Extended Report of Patients Treate and How the Institution is Maintained.

The following is a statement of the number of patients received at St. Joseph's Hospital, in the Contagious Diseases Ward, the length of time they remained, and the amount received for their maintenance and attendance during above named period:

Contagious Disease Ward, from Oct. 1st, 1901, to May 1st, 1903:

Number of diphtheria patients received	188
Number of scarlet fever patients received	38
Total	226
Total number of days stay for diphtheria patients	3387
Total number of days' stay for scarlet fever patients	1135
Total	4522
Average days' stay per patient	20 2-226
Total amount received from patients	$894.00
Average days' pay from patients	19 3-4c
Government grant received for this ward was about	$390.00
Total receipts	$1274.00
Average per day about	33 1-6c

The usual charge for pay patients is $5 per week, or 71 3-7 cents per day. This is certainly not excessive. At this rate 4522 days would amount to $3230. Deduct from this the $1274 received from patients and the Government, leaves a balance of $1956, or about $2000, which has to be supplied from other sources. This applies to the Contagious Disease Ward only. In the other wards we also have many patients unable to pay the cost of their maintenance and attendance, which makes the burden of maintaining our hospital a very considerable one. The fact that we receive no grant from the town or the county of Peterborough, and at the same time are conferring such great benefits, not only upon our own people, but also upon the community at large, explains why we appeal yearly to the whole community, as well as to our own people, for assistance.

MOTION BY THE OPPOSITION

Texan Cattle the Subject of Criticism by the Opposition, But Their Amendment to Supply Is Voted Down—Pure Butter Bill—M. J. S. Schell Explains a Breach of Parliamentary Independence.

Ottawa, June 26.—In the House the other day, Mr. Fowler of Kings asked if J. T. Schell, M.P. for Glengarry, was a partner in the firm of McPherson & Schell, who supplied goods to the department of agriculture as published in the Auditor-General's report.

Mr. Fisher replied that the Government knew nothing of the personnel of the firm of McPherson & Schell, mentioned in the Auditor-General's report in connection with an item for five dollars and fifty cents.

Mr. Schell's Explanation.

Mr. J. F. Schell (Glengarry), on a question of privilege, made a personal explanation in reference to a payment of $5.50 by the Agricultural Department to the firm of MacPherson & Schell, of which he is a member, for cheese box material. Mr. Schell stated that the order for the material, written on letter paper bearing the heading "Glasgow International Exhibition," and signed W. D. Scott, commissioner, was received by his firm in his absence at Ottawa. There was nothing to indicate that Mr. Scott was an officer of the Canadian Government, in fact the terms of the order rather favored the idea that Mr. Scott was a commissioner from the old country, as a request was made that a memo of the amount be sent to Mr. Scott personally, and not as commissioner or officer of the Government, and he would send cheque for the same. The cost of the material was $4, and the packing and freight $1.50. The order was filled in the usual way during Mr. Schell's absence in Ottawa. The entry was carried through the firm's books as a charge against Mr. Scott, and was not paid until a year after. Mr. Schell said he was in entire ignorance of the transaction from first to last, and in the absence of any intention to infringe the law regarding the independence of Parliament he placed himself in the hands of the House.

Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick moved that the statement of Mr. Schell be referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections, which was agreed to unanimously without discussion.

Butter Weighing Enquiry.

Mr. Monk asked what was the report of the investigation held by the Deputy Minister of Trade and Commerce into the weighing of butter and cheese.

Mr. Fisher replied that the commissioners had not yet made out their report. Complaints had been made by many salesmen and others interested in dairying, but it would be premature to speak of the justice of these complaints. The cost of the investigation so far is $428.95.

Buying Texan Cattle.

Mr. R. L. Borden read a paragraph published in The Montreal Gazette stating that the steamer Atlantean, loading 2,000 tons of hay in Montreal as export cargo, would proceed to Galveston, Texas, to take on board between 2,000 and 2,500 dairy cattle. These cattle, it was explained, are for the Orange River Colony and are purchased by the British Government to replace Boer cattle commandered during the war. Mr. Borden suggested that the cattle should be purchased in Canada. He wanted to know if representation had been made to the British Government with this object in view.

Mr. Fisher replied that he could not vouch for the truth of the statements as to the shipment of Texas cattle. Representations had, however, been made to Lord Strathcona pointing out that cattle for the re-stocking of Boer farms should be purchased in Canada. This communication was referred to the Imperial officers in charge of the work. Representations had since been made to the Imperial Government, but no attention had been paid to them.

Pure Butter Bill.

Mr. Fisher's bill prohibiting the manufacture of process butter was taken up in committee of the House.

The clause enacting that only butter manufactured from the cream of fifty cows or more should be marked "creamery" led to a long discussion.

Mr. Henderson moved that the clause should be amended to read 25 cows instead of 50.

Dr. Sproule moved an amendment providing that butter manufactured by the creamery process and with the aid of separators should be entitled to rank as creamery butter.

Mr. Henderson's amendment, providing that a creamery shall be a place where the milk of not less than twenty-five cows is manufactured was declared lost. A similar fate befel Dr. Sproule's amendment, declaring creamery butter to mean butter manufactured by the ordinary creamery process, and with the aid of separators.

Texan Cattle Again.

Mr. Rufus Pope brought up the matter of the sale of Texan cattle again at the evening session, and there ensued a long discussion on the following amendment to the motion to go into supply:

"This House regrets that the Government has not taken more active measures for the protection of the interests of the people of Canada, and dealers, in connection with the supply of cattle for the re-stocking of South African farms."

The amendment was defeated on a straight party division by a vote of 73 to 39.

Nerve Sufferers Need Sympathy

And More Than That, the Nerve Cells Must be Restored and Revitalized by the Use of

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

Too many doctors have no sympathy with the sufferer from diseases of the nerves. They do not understand the nervous system, and when the victim of nervous prostration or exhaustion appeals to them he is told to "brace up," forget his trouble, and he will soon be all right.

Anyone who has had nervous prostration, being scarcely able to drag about, felt energy and vitality growing less and being in constant dread of paralysis, or even insanity itself, knows how utterly useless and discouraging is such advice.

Nervous diseases cannot right themselves. Exhausted, shrivelled nerve cells can never revitalize themselves without assistance from outside. If the blood is weak and watery, and fails to afford proper nourishment, restoratives must be used. Recovery is bound to be slow but it is none the less certain, and there is no combination of ingredients which has proven so successful as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This famous food is not a stimulant to arouse false hopes, but a true restorative, reconstructing wasted cells and tissues, and instilling into the blood and nerves the essential principles of life and vigour.

Mrs. S. Derocher, 405 Bethune street, Peterborough, states: "I was troubled a great deal with nervousness, and sleeplessness and began a treatment with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I can say for a certainty that it is a splendid medicine, for besides steadying my nerves, it built up my system wonderfully and enabled me to rest and sleep well. We have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Ointment in our family for years and consider them excellent. For skin diseases I think the Ointment cannot be equalled and the pills are a most satisfactory laxative."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food soon wins the confidence of all who are pale, thin, weak, or exhausted, for by noting your increase in weight while using it you can prove that new, firm, flesh and tissue are being added to the body, and realize that weakness and disease are fast giving way to strength and vigour. Fifty cents a box; or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

OLDEST COIN IN THE WORLD.

Wonderful Shekel the Property of Herman Gottschalk.

What is said to be the oldest coin in the world is a shekel now in the possession of Herman Gottschalk of Chicago.

This coin, it is said, was used in the temple at Jerusalem, in the days of King Solomon, as a token. It is the only perfect one in existence. The characters inscribed thereon are as follows: On the first side, reading from right to left, is "Shekel Hakadoush," signifying holy shekel. Embiazoned in the center is the star Mogin David—or the shield of David—in modern times called the star of Bethlehem. On the other side, also reading from right to left, is "Jerusholajim," signifying Jerusalem.

The strangest thing in connection with the coin is that, while the body is of a bronze gold alloy about 70 per cent fine, the raised figures are pure gold. The assay of the coin was taken by Tiffany of New York, and even the clever goldsmiths there were unable to tell how the union of the letters and the coin was effected.

The history of how it came into Mr. Gottschalk's possession is interesting. From 1878 to 1882 he was interested in collecting money for the relief of the Jews persecuted in Roumania. His success was large, and while on the trip to Europe to deliver the funds he met Dr. Leopold Klein, chief rabbi of Berlin. It was in reward for his enthusiastic services in behalf of the Roumanian Jews that Rabbi Klein bequeathed to Mr. Gottschalk several cherished heirlooms, the gold holy shekel and a Bible among others. On the Bible, which is a rare illuminated copy of the Old Testament in Hebrew, are imprints of the holy shekel.

A Clock With a History.

Recently there was on sale in Edinburgh an old eight day clock which has a very interesting history. About a century ago there lived at Bannockburn Betty Wilcox, the widow of an English soldier who had fought at Culloden. Her only son, a sailor, lay in a Russian prison, the crew of his ship having been captured by a cruiser of Czar Alexander I. She knitted three pairs of fine stockings and sent them as a present to the czar along with a letter praying for her son's release. The parcel was intrusted to the captain of a ship sailing from Alloa to the Baltic, and the captain succeeded in getting it presented to the czar through a Scottish physician, Sir James Wylie, a favorite at court. The czar was greatly moved at the mother's petition and at once set the sailor free, dispatching to the widow a handsome sum of money. With part of the money she bought the clock and had painted on it scenes illustrating her son's captivity.

Modern Khartum.

Khartum is yielding to the touch of civilization. It is no longer a dust heap, says a correspondent; it is a riverside, European, half completed city on the Blue Nile. Gordon's college is nearly finished. At Omdurman, the Dervish rival of Khartum and only three miles distant, on the White Nile, schools are at work, and among the scholars are gray headed Sudanese. A capital club, a large post office, fine engineering works, many private houses of officers and officials, nearly all with gardens, a zoological garden and one fine hotel, the Grand, line the riverside for more than a mile already. The native tribesmen earn daily wages in Khartum as masons, bricklayers, carpenters, gardeners and laborers peaceably side by side, and in the twelve villages a few native policemen preserve order easily.

Uncrowded Professions.

At the convention of the American Medical association in New Orleans Dr. Billings drew attention to the fact that the medical colleges are graduating annually from 10,000 to 12,500 physicians, when the actual needs of this country call for only about 2,500. It seems a pity that some of these graduates have not entered other professions that are not so crowded and can offer better prospects of remuneration. Sanitary engineering, naval architecture and the comparatively new profession of forestry, for instance, are not overcrowded, and there will soon be a great demand for really competent automobile engineers, men who combine with mechanical ability a thorough knowledge of gas and other engines that are competing for the control of the field.—Scientific American.

That Gold Spoon.

There are some men who seem to be favorites of fortune. They are industrious, cheerful workers, full to overflowing of the energy of splendid health, and success seems fairly to drop into their hands. It is of such as these that the less hardy and less successful man says enviously, "That fellow was born with a gold spoon in his mouth." And yet on analysis it will be found that this success is largely due to splendid health, the endowment of a healthy mother.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives the mother health to give her child. It cures nervousness, nausea and sleeplessness. It makes the body comfortable and the mind content. It gives physical vigor and muscular elasticity so that the baby's advent is practically painless.

"I will endeavor to tell you of the many benefits I have derived from taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. B. R. Robertson, of Medicine Lodge, Barber Co., Kans. "In the fall of 1899 I was expecting to become a mother and suffered terribly with pains in the back of head; in fact I ached all over. Suffered with awful bearing-down pains; I was threatened for weeks with miahap. A lady friend told me to use Dr. Pierce's medicines. She had taken them and felt like a new woman. I began using the 'Favorite Prescription' and took four bottles before my baby came and two afterwards. I suffered almost death with my other two children, but hardly realised that I was sick when this baby was born and she weighed twelve and one-quarter pounds. She is now eleven months old and has never known an hour's sickness; at present she weighs thirty-seven pounds. I owe it all to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, and sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the most desirable laxative for delicate women.

Mrs. Wm. Bingley, Grand Tracadie, P.E.I., Has a Very Trying Experience, but Thanks to

She writes: "About seven months ago I was badly run down in health and became very weak. I was troubled with fluttering of the heart and shortness of breath. When lying down at night I was almost afraid to go to sleep for fear I would never wake up. When I arose in the morning I would feel a little better, but as soon as I started to work my heart would start fluttering, my head would become dizzy, faint weak spells would come over me and it seemed as if black objects were floating before my eyes. I was growing worse every day until I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. When the box was half gone I could feel that they had done me good and by the time it was finished I was in excellent health and would advise all sufferers from heart and nerve troubles to try them."

A Charming Little Cap For a Baby Made In Linen or Silk Thread.

This charming little cap may be made of No. 100 linen thread or sewing silk, as preferred, for a small baby while knitting silk made in the same pattern will make a cap large enough for a child a year old. The rosettes are made singly and joined in the making. A larger cap may be made by adding a row of rosettes around the front and sides. The strings should be of sheer mull, hemstitched at the edges and finished at the ends with a row of rosettes.

The Rosettes.—First row, ch 8, join; second row, ch 3, 2 tr. in ring, ch. 4, fasten with s. c. into first ch., 3 tr. in ring; repeat until there are 8 picots.

The wheels that form the centers of groups of 8 rosettes are made of 6 ch.; join s. c. in ring, ch. 6, fasten in picot of rosette, ch. 6, 2 s. c. in ring, repeat.

The Crown.—The crown is formed of a wheel of 8 rosettes. Fasten thread to top picot of rosette, ch. 6, tr. in next picot, ch. 3, dtr. in next picot, ch. 3, dtr. in next picot, ch. 3, repeat.

Around this fasten a row of 15 rosettes and crochet around the outer edge of this row as around the wheel, and outside of this fasten a row of 18 rosettes.

The Headpiece.—This is formed of two rows of wheels joined by wheels of 4 ch.; fasten with s. c. in ring, ch. 4, fasten in picot with s. c., ch. 4, fasten in ring with 2 s. c., repeat.

Around the outer edge is a row of ch. between picots, with 2 dtr. in the space between the wheels. A row of the rosettes finishes the outer edge of front and ends.

Sew the three rosettes at the back edge of the ends together and fasten the crown into place.

When crocheted of white silk a lining of chiffon or mousseline, with tie ends to match, would make the cap very dainty and pretty.—Delineator.

THE TOBACCO PLANT.

Its Origin, According to a Quaint Legend of the East.

The prophet was taking a stroll in the country when he saw a serpent, stiff with cold, lying on the ground. He compassionately took it up and warmed it in his bosom. When the serpent had recovered it said:

"Divine prophet, listen. I am now going to bite thee."

"Why, pray?" inquired Mohammed.

"Because thy race makes perpetual war on mine," said the serpent.

"But thy race, too, makes perpetual war against mine," was the prophet's rejoinder. "How canst thou, besides, be so ungrateful and so soon forget that I saved thy life?"

"There is no such thing as gratitude upon this earth," replied the serpent, "and if I were now to spare thee either thou or another of thy race would kill me. By Allah, I shall bite thee!"

"If thou hast sworn by Allah I will not cause thee to break thy vow," said the prophet, holding his hand to the serpent's mouth. The serpent bit him, but he sucked the wound with his lips and spat the venom on the ground. And on that very spot there sprung up a plant which combines within itself the venom of the serpent and the compassion of the prophet. Men call this plant by the name of tobacco.—"Tobacco In Song and Story."

Physicians and Hospitals.

During the past twenty years, millions of bottles of Angier's Petroleum Emulsion have been sold, and nearly all upon doctors' prescriptions. It is also extensively used in hospitals, especially for consumption, and wasting diseases of children. A good reason why you should use it.

Mr. W. (sadly)—No; I have no credit anywhere. We always paid cash.

Quite a Linguist.

Mr. S. had just welcomed his nephew home from school. "Now, then, Tommy," he said, "let us see what you have been learning all this time. What is the meaning of felo de se?" Instantly replied the lad, a little contemptuously: "Oh, that's only French for a sailor. Ask me something in Latin."

The pride that many unblemished persons affect in their ancestry is so melancholy that they might as well be dead themselves.—Schoolmaster.

It has a capable honest and reliable Management. The price of stock is very low for the present, virtually ground floor.

KING EDWARD'S BIRTHDAY

Celebrated in London With Brilliant Ceremonies.

London, June 26.—King Edward's birthday was celebrated to-day with the usual ceremonies. General celebrations occurred at garrisons, and the city is one array of flags. The principal event of the day was the ceremony of trooping the colours on the horse guard parade in which 1,900 troopers participated. The affair was brilliant.

QUOTATIONS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET

The Quotations of the Leading Stocks —Market Letters.

To-day was another slow day on Wall Street and the quotations were few and far between. There was little change in prices, about the only feature being the decline in C.F. I. Penna was again weak and it is hinted that there will be some developments in this stock, one way or the other next week.

Messrs. McMillan & Maguire at noon received the following dispatch:—

Toronto, June 26th, 12.30 p. m. — Comment on the market is needless as there is no market to speak of. The outsiders feel that there is a nigger in the wood pile as regards Penna. As the rites expire to-morrow there is an inclination to wait to see what the stock does next week. There is a triple short interest as stock has been sold against the rites but the stock for which the rites will be exchanged will not be delivered until until August 7th, 1903. The reports of the railways are generally good, and of some industriale like A.M. Car. & Fdy., remarkably so. The market will probably be dull over next week as Exchange will close Friday and Saturday. After that more activity is expected. Pending outlook for money and the crops. Stocks are a sale on all rallies.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE EIGHTEENTH ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING OF SHAREHOLDERS

Held at its Banking House in Toronto on Tuesday, the 16th June, 1903.

The chair was taken by the President, Mr. C. D. Warren, and the General Manager was requested to act as Secretary, when the following statement was read:—

The net profits for the year, after making provision for bad and doubtful debts, and reserving accrued interest amounted to	$187,340 78
Premium on new stock	30,000 00
Balance at credit of profit and loss last year	11,470 37
	$208,811 15

Appropriated as follows, viz—
Dividend No. 34, three per cent. payable 1st December, 1902	$ 41,226 16
Dividend No. 35, three and one-half per cent., payable 1st June, 1903	52,500 00
Transferred to rest account	100,000 00
Balance at credit of profit and loss, new account	14,974 99
	$208,811 15
Average paid up capital for the year	$1,462,500 00

Your Directors have pleasure in reporting continued prosperity and increasing business of the bank.

The increase in deposits during the year has exceeded 22 per cent., or, in round figures, $2,000,000, bringing the total deposits held by the Bank for year ending May 31st, 1903, up to $10,881,652.06.

Branch Offices have been opened during the past year at Bridgeburg, Lakefield, Owen Sound, Prescott, Schomberg, Stony Creek, Stratford, Winona, Woodstock, Otterville and Thamesford.

Owing to the steadily increasing business of the Bank, your Directors have thought it advisable to secure additional room, and have purchased, upon most favourable terms, the adjoining property on the north of the present Bank premises, on Yonge street. This property will now be available for suitable Bank premises whenever it is deemed advisable to erect the necessary building.

In order to strengthen the Bank's position, and enable it to take advantage of good business continually offering, your Directors recommend that power be given to increase the Capital Stock of the Bank to the extent of $500,000—making the Bank's authorized total Capital $2,000,000. A bylaw for this purpose will be submitted for your consideration.

The profits of the Bank have been satisfactory, and, in the opinion of your Directors, warranted the recent increase in dividend, and placing the stock upon a 7 per cent. basis.

Your Directors take pleasure in acknowledging the careful attention given the Bank's interests by the management and officers of the Bank during the past year.

C. D. WARREN,
President.

Mr. Farquharson's Death.

Feeling reference was made by Sir Wilfrid Laurier to the death of Donald Farquharson member for Queen's, P. E. I. Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that Mr. Farquharson came to the House while in poor health, and was therefore not able to take the place that his undoubted talents entitled him to. The deceased had, however, earned the respect and esteem of those members of Parliament to whom he was intimately known.

Mr. Borden joined in these expressions of regret. He spoke of the distinction Mr. Farquharson had achieved in his native province, and regretted that owing to ill-health the member for Queen's had not been able to display his ability in the Dominion Parliament.

Mr. Russell of Hants introduced a bill to incorporate the Reliance Bank of Halifax.

Mr. Galliher moved the first reading of the bill incorporating the Nikola, Kamloops and Similkameen Railway Company.

Maclean's 'Phone Amendment.

Mr. W. F. Maclean's amendment, requiring railways to give, subject to the approval of the board, equal facilities to telephone companies, and declaring existing contracts to the contrary null and void was again brought up in connection with clause 234 of the Railway Commission bill in committee of the House.

Mr. Maclean, in a long speech, pointed out the injustice of the existing agreement between the Bell Telephone Company and the railways, and strongly pleaded for the incorporation of his motion in the bill.

Mr. Jabel Robinson, Dr. Sproule, Mr. Cargill, Mr. Oliver (Alberta), Mr. Lennox and Mr. E. F. Clarke, spoke in favor of the amendment, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. Mr. Blair explained the position of the Government.

Finally, Mr. Clark was satisfied that if Mr. Maclean withdrew his amendment the Minister might prepare a clause which would give a reasonable amount of protection to the public interest. He appealed to Mr. Maclean to withdraw his amendment.

Mr. Maclean accepted the suggestion and withdrew the amendment, and the clause was adopted.

The section dealing with railway accidents obliging the company to give notice of casualties and empowering the commission to investigate, were passed with slight amendments.

Ontario Redistribution.

Ottawa, June 27.—The Redistribution Committee at its session yesterday took up the question of the redistribution of Ontario.

The unit of population as finally agreed upon gives one member to a population of 16,284, two members to 36,572, three members to 66,557, and four members to a population of 85,288.

Clarkson, assignee, that the ordinary creditors of the defunct Anderson Bank at Oakville will receive about two and one-half cents on the dollar. Yesterday afternoon the agreement between the Bank of Hamilton and the representatives appointed by the creditors was concluded on this basis.

INTEGRAL PORTIONS.

Such Are the Colonies, Says Premier of the British Empire.

THE COLONIAL SECRETARY.

His Part in the Imperial Unity Idea According to Prime Minister Balfour—Mr. Chamberlain Dined by The Constitutional Club and Presented With an Address Enclosed in a Casket.

London, June 26.—The Constitutional Club to-day entertained Colonial Secretary Chamberlain at luncheon and presented him with an address enclosed in a casket, in recognition of his services to the nation. Premier Balfour made the presentation speech. Referring to Mr. Chamberlain's fiscal proposals, he said it would be absolute folly for the Conservative-Unionist party to make opinions on economic questions a test of party loyalty. The present economic position of the country demanded the most careful consideration. It must not be supposed that, because self-government had been given to the colonies, these could be regarded as separate political entities. On the contrary, they were integral portions of the British empire. The question at issue was not new. But Mr. Chamberlain, more than any man, dead or living, had given life to the expression of the idea of imperial unity.

Mr. Chamberlain received a remarkable ovation when he rose to reply. The Colonial Secretary opened his remarks with repudiating the suggestions of personal competition between himself and Mr. Balfour, remarking that he could not conceive any occurrence that could shake the political association and friendship existing between them. He desired on the eve of a great controversy, to publicly state that he believed the leadership of Mr. Balfour was essential to success of the Unionist party. If the Unionist alliance was dissolved or weakened, the "Home Rule snake, which was only scotched, and not killed," would again come to the front.

Mr. Chamberlain declared that the commercial union of the colonies would be far more profitable than their political union. It was not true that he had raised the cry of preferential tariffs for the benefit of himself or of the party, but it was because there was no other alternative to a man holding his position, and he believed that only thereby could the empire be held together. A policy of retaliation could be better described as a policy of negotiation. The ministers would endeavor to break down the existing wall of hostile tariffs, and if they failed in these negotiations they would endeavor to retain for their own country the vast possibilities for promotion and opportunity for employment, the lack of which was now driving British subjects to foreign lands.

The time was surely drawing near when a decision must be reached on this question. But he was now speaking for himself alone, and he did not ask anyone to consult himself to the acceptance of his views.

Portions of the Empire.

London, June 26.—Hon. A. J. Balfour, the Premier, speaking at the Constitutional Club dinner, said it was not to be supposed that because we gave the colonies self-government therefore they were to be regarded as separate political entities. On the contrary, they were integral portions of the empire."

THE KING ON HORSEBACK.

His Majesty Attends the Trooping of the Horse Guard Colors.

London, June 26.—King Edward's birthday was officially celebrated to-day in London, and at all the home naval and military stations. All the government buildings were decorated with flags, salutes were fired, the warships at all the ports dressed ship, and the troops were reviewed. The main function was the trooping of the color on the Horse Guard parade, which the King attended on horseback. This was the first time he had ridden since his last illness.

The parade ground presented a highly picturesque scene. Queen Alexandra, the Princess of Wales, the Duchess of Albany, the Duke and Duchess of Fyfe, the Duchess of Connaught, Princess Henry of Battenburg and their children, and the Khedive of Egypt, occupied seats in the central window of the Horse Guards building, while all the other vantage points were occupied by smartly-dressed women, cabinet ministers, members of the House of Lords and House of Commons and others. Many Americans were present, including the staff of the United States Embassy and the American rifle team, who were under the guidance of Major-General Lord Cheylesmore.

The King, who wore the uniform of colonel of the Grenadier Guards, rode on the ground surrounded by a brilliant staff, including the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught, Field Marshal Lord Roberts and others of the headquarters staff, and an unusually large gathering of foreign military attaches. As His Majesty halted at the saluting base the massed bands played the National Anthem. After an inspection of the troops, the ceremony of trooping the color was carried out. Their Majesties returned to Buckingham Palace, heartily cheered by the crowds along the route.

Used Variety of Weapons.

Sherman, Conn., June 27.—Angered over her refusal to marry him, P. H. Worden of Carmel, N.Y., aged 40, went to the room occupied by Edith Roscoe, aged 20, and cut her throat with a razor. He then assaulted her sister-in-law with a hammer, nearly killing her, and finally shot himself in the temple and slashed his throat with a razor to finish himself. His condition is critical.

Strike in Wingham.

Wingham, June 26.—On the orders of Walking Delegate Kehoe, the moulders at the Western Foundry have gone out on strike for an all round advance of 5 per cent. The piece-work system is in vogue, and men make from $2.75 to $4 a day. Apprentices, from six months to a year at the trade, make from $1.25 to $1.50 a day. The firm claims it is unfair to call for wages the same as those obtaining at Troy, New York, or at Hamilton, as the cost of living was less and freight rates much greater.

D. Farquharson, M.P., Dead.

Halifax, N.S., June 26.—D. Farquharson, M.P., died at Charlottetown early this morning.

The late Donald Farquharson was the Liberal representative of West Queen's, Prince Edward Island, in the Dominion Parliament. He was a native of Prince Edward, having been born in Queen's County, July 27, 1834, thus being almost 69 years of age. In business he was a merchant and a banker.

TRAGEDY OF THE CONGO.

American and All His Escort Massacred by Natives.

London, June 26.—A despatch to the Central News from Brussels, says the Congo mail has brought news of the murder of an American named Thornton and his native escort.

Thornton was an employe of the Congo Free State. He was ascending a tributary of the Arruwimi River when his party was attacked by rebels, and, after a fierce fight, the American and all the members of his escort were killed.

A THRILLING THREE DAYS.

Crew of the Erie Stewart Had Terrible Experiences on Georgian Bay—Saved by the Tug Harrison.

Owen Sound, June 26.—(Special.)—In a waterlogged condition, with only her bulwarks above the waves, the schooner Erie Stewart was towed into Owen Sound harbor at 2 o'clock this afternoon by the big tug Harrison after one of the most thrilling experiences that ever fell to mariners' lot.

On Tuesday night about 10 o'clock the Erie Stewart was towed out of Byng Inlet with a heavy load of lumber piled eight feet above her decks, destined for Chatham. With sails set the trim vessel was scudding along before a stiff breeze, but Captain J. Grenville noticed a slight list which he ascribed partly to the arrangement of the cargo or the lean of the vessel caused by the winds.

By midnight the vessel had settled so far that water stood in the after cabin two feet deep, and only the lumber kept the Erie Stewart afloat. On Wednesday and Thursday the vessel encountered terrible seas. The crew held to the rigging while tier after tier of lumber was washed from under them, and the vessel sank lower and lower. Would the lumber in the hold keep the vessel afloat?

Capt. Grenville cheered his crew by the assurances that it would, and for two days and three nights the men in the schooner, soaked and chilled by every wave that washed over, watched anxiously for a passing vessel, subsisting only on scraps fished out of the cabin. On Wednesday the signal of distress was noticed by the steamer Atlantic of the Northern Navigation Co., bound for Owen Sound.

The seas were rolling too high to render assistance, but the condition of the schooner was reported at Owen Sound, and the tug Harrison at once cleared to search for her. Capt. Simpson sighted the waterlogged vessel off Cabot's Head this morning and towed her to port.

About one-half of her deck load was washed overboard.

The Erie Stewart is owned by John Piggot & Son of Chatham. She will go into dry dock for repairs. A sprung plank probably caused the vessel to fill.

MR. MACLEAN'S ATTACK.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Vigorously Defended His Colleague, Hon. Mr. Blair.

Ottawa, June 27. — While Mr. Blair's bill to consolidate the railway law was under discussion in committee yesterday afternoon Mr. W. F. Maclean made an attack upon Hon. Mr. Blair, who, he said, should resign his position because of the fact that he was President of the New Brunswick Telephone Co. and was connected with and interested in the Bell Telephone Co. The attack by Mr. Maclean elicited a vigorous defence of the Minister by the Premier, who declined to accept Mr. Maclean's advice to call for Mr. Blair's resignation. The Minister also explained that he had never had a dollar's interest in the Bell Telephone Company.

POLICE DREW THEIR SWORDS.

Unknown Persons Severely Handle Socialist Ollrich at Offenbach.

Berlin, June 26.—Dr. Booker, National Liberal, who defeated Herr Ollrich, Socialist, at Offenbach yesterday, was attacked by unknown persons last night and was severely handled. A manufacturer named Bohm, who accompanied him, was also wounded. Election fights between the police and the populace occurred at Dortmund yesterday evening. The police drew their swords, wounded several persons and arrested many others. Similar excesses are also reported from Hof, Bavaria.

Germany's Elections.

Berlin, June 27.—With four districts not yet heard from at about 3 p.m., yesterday and with two reballotings to-day, Thursday's voting resulted in the two Conservative parties electing thirty-two members of the Reichstag, the National Liberals forty-four, the Richter Radicals, twenty, the Barth Radicals nine, the South German Radicals six, the centre party twelve, and the Socialists twenty-five.

CLOSE OF LEGISLATURE.

House Prorogued at Noon To-day by Lieutenant-Governor.

Toronto, Ont., June 27th. — There were very few members present when Lieut.-Governor Mortimer Clark Prorogued the Legislature at noon to-day, and gave assent to six bills, making 131 in all passed this session out of the 205 introduced. The speech from the throne made no reference to the Gamey matter. The power bill was considered the chief legislation of the session.

GEORGE STREET CHURCH.

Beautiful Flower Service Combined With Wesley Day.

To-morrow in the George street Methodist church, as in all Methodist churches throughout the world, the Wesley Bi-Centennial Anniversary will be celebrated. This will be combined with the beautiful flower service, and the effect of the church arrangement will be most beautiful.

A "Wesley" arch has been erected, designed by Mr. J. S. Knapman, and it is a most beautiful piece of work. At the top of the arch is the word, "Wesley," the letters being formed of flowers, beneath this is hung an oil painting of John Wesley. The pillars of the arch are bordered with evergreens, and at the morning service the children of the school, who will each bear a bouquet of flowers, will completely cover the pillars, making them veritable gardens of flowers. Addresses will be given by Rev. J. P. Wilson and Messrs. J. J. Jeffries and D. W. Dumble, on "The Boyhood and Early Manhood of Wesley."

The choir under the leadership of Mulligan, and with a double orchestra, will render a special musical programme.

The following is the programme:

Miss Agnes Miller, of Chicago, speaks to young women about dangers of the Menstrual Period—how they can avoid pain, suffering and remove the cause.

"I suffered for six years with dysmenorrhea (painful periods), so much so that I dreaded every month, as I knew it meant three or four days of intense pain. The doctor said this was due to an inflamed condition of the uterine appendages caused by repeated and neglected colds and feet wetting.

"If young girls only realized how dangerous it is to take cold at this critical time, much suffering would be spared them. Thank God for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that was the only medicine which helped me any. Within three weeks after I started to take it, I noticed a marked improvement in my general health, and at the time of my next monthly period the pain had diminished considerably. I kept up the treatment and was cured a month later. I am like another person since I am in perfect health."—MISS AGNES MILLER, 25 Potomac Ave., Chicago, Ill.

The monthly sickness reflects the condition of woman's health. Fifty thousand letters from women prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regulates menstruation, and makes those periods painless.

OBSCURING THE ISSUE.

Toronto Globe.

Call a man a Judge, and he must be respected; call him a Commissioner, and abuse him. If a Judge wears his "judicial robes" his slightest observation commands consideration; otherwise his most deliberate judgment, based on the most careful sifting and weighing of all the evidence, almost too insignificant for ridicule. A Judge's "verdict" is an important pronouncement, but if that verdict is not technically a "judicial declaration" it is open to any irresponsible demagogue to sneer at the Judge's independence and to accuse him of serving for hire.

Such, it would seem, is accepted by Mr. Whitney and his editorial defenders as good sense and sound logic. It is all a matter of clothes, and names, and forms. If only it can be shown that the Royal Commission did not hold a court, even though clothed by act of Parliament with all the rights, powers and privileges of a High Court of Justice; if only their findings can be called a report and not a verdict, even although they pass judgment on men and on conduct; if only they can be called commissioners, even though the counsel for the prosecution addressed them as my Lords, and offenders against their dignity were summoned for contempt of court—if only the real point at issue can be obscured, then the people of Ontario may be misled as to the gravity of the Opposition's offence in insulting and vilifying Chancellor Boyd and Chief Justice Falconbridge.

All this is very senseless on the part of Mr. Whitney and his advocates. It is an attempt to undo the political damage of the Gamey debate, which is quite too puerile to deceive the public. It is altogether senseless and puerile, not to say misleading, to try to make it appear that Liberals in the House or out of it object to the consideration and criticism of the report presented by the Royal Commission. Call the tribunal what you please, describe their report by any convenient term, the Legislature and the public have the right to weigh and criticize their deliverance, whether it be a judical declaration or a report. No one denies that right, and to pretend that such right of criticism is denied is a useless obscuring of the issue.

Criticism of the report was never denied to the Opposition, but decency denies the right to insult the Judges. And it was an insult to declare that the report was "a deliberate attempt to deceive the people of this Dominion," that the service was rendered "for pay," that the Judges were "hirelings," "afraid to tell the truth," "absolutely false," "pensioners on the Government," "a disgrace to the Bench." It was an insult, not easily stoned for or soon forgiven, to have low and vile epithets applied to the Judges, their honour impeached, and their motives sneered at, and to have all this disgraceful and insolent language approved and applauded again and again by the leader of the Opposition and his dominant half-dozen. That making himself one in language and spirit with Mr. Gamey is the head and front of Mr. Whitney's offendings, and no poppy nor mandragora, nor all the drowsy syrups of the Opposition press, will dull the public sense of condemnation for such offending.

THE COMMISSION OF JUDGES.

(Catholic Register.)

The commission of Judges appointed by the Ontario Government to investigate the charges of bribery made in the Chamber at the opening of the Session by R. R. Gamey, member for Manitoulin reported against the accuser. Chancellor Boyd and Chief Justice Falconbridge opened wide the door of evidence, nor did they draw latitudinal lines in the way of cross-examination. Their report, accompanying the transcript of evidence, is, like their policy throughout the investigation, exhaustive. The charges are discredited positively. The sum of money surrendered by Mr. Gamey is held impounded until its ownership is proved. It falls short of the amount of the alleged bribe by $1,200, which latter portion of the spoils Gamey involved in a sort of a personal transaction with a confidante and which he retains upon that pretext.

The net result of the enquiry, therefore, apart from the bill which the public must pay, is this:—

That Mr. Gamey is just where he was before he made the charges—in the Legislature—from which the Government will make no attempt to expel him.

Mr. Stratton is cleared of complicity in the alleged trafficking for the transfer of Mr. Gamey's vote from the Opposition to the Government.

The political partisans are as much at sixes and sevens as they ever were; and, the Legislature will probably adjourn in a few days.

If nothing else has been accomplished, as between the opposing forces of Provincial politicians, it would seem at all events that Manitoulin is in danger of becoming an accepted political principal. The active political elements may resolve themselves into Manitoulinites and anti-Manitoulinites. The former will insist upon believing that Ontario is rotten from Dan to Bersheeba and that Gamey is a martyr—with $1,200 to be good. The discussion is likely to be dragged until the next general election, when the public mind will have become thoroughly befogged by it.

But the common sense of the people will experience no difficulty in conceding the real value of the Judges' opinion. Here is a member of the Legislature who professes to lay a trap for a weak government. He is ready to accept money for his vote, intending to use the conclusive evidence of his bribe as a weapon to destroy the administration. Still he is not desirous that his proof should be too conclusive, because he goes vainly looking for his money to an election lawyer acting only for the party organization. In fact he was more eager for the money than for the evidence, and when at last he, by his own story, got the cash, it was when his back was deliberately turned upon the bearer of the bribe. Then the money was made use of at once by this interesting circumventor of governments, and most of it was still in use when the disclosure was made in the House.

On its face the story was too thin, and the judges very properly emphasized every point of the evidence in defence that made its improbability the more apparent.

The public like the judges have not lost all faith in the inherent respect which responsible government commands in this country. If the costly machinery of our representative institutions be all devised and employed to sustain life and power in a government that can be undone by so ragged a conspiracy as the Gamey scandal it is about time for us to abandon the last shred of respect for our lawmakers and their laws for our citizenship and all its safeguards.

A LABOUR FAMINE.

Montreal Witness.

Already the cry is going up throughout the western and some of the south-western states of the scarcity of hands for saving the harvest. From Virginia comes the report that whole counties are remaining untilled this year because of the impossibility of obtaining men to work on the farm. Better paid occupations have drawn the labourers into the cities. Even the farmers themselves, in some parts, have found it more profitable to engage in railway construction and other public works than to till the soil, and it is stated that in many parts their wives and daughters may be seen toiling in the fields and doing work that should be performed by the men. In the west it is said that a hundred thousand men is not too large an estimate of the number required at present for agricultural operations and the coming harvest. Forty-two thousand harvesters are wanted for Kansas, and many other thousands for other wheat growing states, and they can get two dollars per day and the prospect of permanent employment. In California it is feared that there will be a loss of millions, through lack of labour to gather the wheat crop. Meantime new farm lands are being opened up in all directions by pioneer settlers, who cannot obtain the help they need on any consideration. While this dearth of agricultural labourers almost reaches the proportions of a calamity, in view of the tremendous losses that may result, the volume of immigration pouring into the country was never so large. But the great bulk of foreign arrivals doesn't go into the country, but remains in the cities, congesting the slums and creating unaccustomed problems in urban government. The state employment agent of Kansas, at Topeka, says that New York and Chicago alone could furnish all the labourers required, for more than that number are idle in those cities. But even if that is so the needlessly idle will not become an army of harvesters. The voice of the city is "in the ear's of the city's loungers and hangers on, and he who can drown it out with the song of the fields will solve one of the large social and industrial problems of the age." We see all around us the evidence that "in the Gospel of many it is better to hold down a park bench in privation, where millions are, rather than to live amid superabounding plenty where work is hard." These conditions have given rise to the suggestion for the introduction of Chinese agricultural labourers. Even on the Pacific coast, where objection to Chinese immigration has been most strenuous, it is admitted that it would be better to employ Chinamen under proper restrictions, than that women and girls should be compelled to take to the fields to till the soil and save the crops. Fortunately conditions in Canada have not reached this point, but the scarcity of farm hands, especially in the older provinces, is sufficiently pressing to require active efforts to find a remedy. The coming harvest, all over this continent, promises to be the greatest on record, and it would be a public misfortune if any considerable part of it should be lost through lack of hands to save it.

KEENE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The entrance examinations are being held here this week. A goodly number of candidates presented themselves in view of the convenience of the location. Mr. Somerville, of Havelock, is presiding.

Miss Vera Foley is visiting friends here.

Mr. Jas. Campbell attended the R. M. C. Ball at Kingston, on Monday evening.

Rev. Mr. McLennan, of Norwood, and Rev. Mr. Barclay, were the guests of Rev. D. D. McDonald, last week.

Miss Lillian Campbell left on Tuesday for an extended visit to Montreal.

Mr. Jas. Vance, and sister, Jennie, are visiting at present with Miss Jennie Humphries.

Miss Lizzie Kane is home this week.

Mrs. Wm. Campbell is slowly recovering from a severe attack of illness.

The country is safe! Half a dozen of our young men under Lieutenant Tom Johnson, C Squadron of the 3rd Prince of Wales R.C.D., left for Barriefield Commons, Kingston, on Monday. The following is a partial list: Troopers Fred Walsh, Tom Miller, Herb Quinn, Joe Quinn, Harry Drummond, Russell Goodfellow, Fred Goodfellow, Jack Henderson, McGregor Bros., Robert Stark, N. Stark, Fred Burnham, Will Stark, J. Kempt, Will Pue, J. Carey, Orderly Ormond Weir.

One of the best excursions of the season came in here on Monday afternoon, from Hastings, consisting of the pupils and their friends of the public and separate schools. The boat came to the dock about 12 noon, and the party betook themselves to the public school grounds, which was thrown open to them, and after luncheon a list of sports was run off. In a well contested football match between the pupils of Hastings and Keene schools, the latter defeated their opponents by a score of 2 to 0. The boys of both teams deported themselves manly in every particular. The senior team of Hastings could not all come so a scratch team was made up of those present and played the seniors. The score resulted in 4 to 1 in favour of our boys. The boys would have enjoyed the match much better had it been Hastings' best team.

When our boys indulge in sports they play to win. They are taught from babyhood up and in hockey or football they generally put up a gilt-edge variety of game. Our citizens greatly enjoyed the visit of those from our neighbouring burg and hope to return the compliment some time soon. Messrs. Madigan and Anderson, the genial teachers from Hastings, were quite prominent in all the sports.

IN MEMORIAM.

Lines written to Mr. and Mrs. John C. Kemp, on the death of their beloved daughter, Mrs. McMillan, who died in Otonabee on the 18th of April, 1903, aged 22 years.

Your Fanny shines in the light of God,
His likeness stamps her brow;
Through the shadows of death her feet have trod,
And she reigns in glory now.
No breaking heart is there,
No keen and thrilling pain;
No wasted cheek, where the frequent tear
Hath rolled and left its strain.

She has found the joy of Heaven,
She is one of the "Angel Band"
To her head a crown is given,
And a harp is in her hand;
She has learned the song they sing,
Whom Jesus hath made free,
And the glorious walls of Heaven still ring
With her new-born melody.

No sin, no grief, no pain,
Safe in her happy home,
Her fears all fled, her doubts all slain,
Her hour of triumph come.
Oh, friends of her mortal years,
The trusted and the true,
You're walking still in the valley of tears,
But she waits to welcome you.

And still another drops his head and and strives to hide the tear
Free bursting from his manly eyes,
he was her husband dear,
How transitory was their bliss, how short their married life.
But five short months was Fanny spared to be his loving wife.
Then why should tears roll down,
And your heart with grief be riven,
For another gem in the Saviour's crown,
And another soul in Heaven.

Does she forget? Oh, no.
For memory's golden chain,
Shall bind her heart to the hearts below
Till they meet and touch again.
Each link is strong and bright
And love's elastic flame
Flows freely down like a river of light
To the world from whence she came.

FREE PRESS SAYS MANITOBA BOODLES

Charge Against the Roblin Government.

The Free Press Says Tolls Were Levied on a Contract taken by Geo. H. Macdonell, ex-M. P.—Provincial Secretary McFadden Implicated.

A special despatch to the Globe says:

Winnipeg, June 24th. — The Free Press this morning makes charges against members of the Roblin Government in connection with the Boyne Marsh drainage works, during the time that Mr. George H. Macdonnell, former M.P., for Algoma, was the contractor. The specific charge is that in 1900 Mr. Macdonell had to pay $5,000 hard cash before he could secure the payment of his progress estimates. The demand was made, it is alleged, by D. M. McFadden, the present Provincial Secretary, who at that time was Minister of Public Works.

A year later Mr. Macdonell was refused payment on his estimates, while he was not told in so many words as in the previous year that he must pay more before getting his estimates, language was used on more than one occasion that was interpreted by Mr. Macdonell as a broad hint that the payment by him of a large sum of money would expedite matters. Hon. Robert Rogers was Minister of Public Works at that time.

The Free Press says editorially: "These are serious charges, not to be lightly made. The Free Press makes them in no rash spirit of bravado; it publishes them because after due consideration it is satisfied that, unfortunately for the good name of the province, they are true. The Free Press is prepared in any court of justice, or before any properly constituted tribunal or commission, to produce the evidence upon which it bases its belief that Mr. McDonell was held up and despoiled of money that belonged to him in the manner described."

SATISFIED MOTHERS.

When sales are large and increasing, when customers are satisfied to the extent of continuing to buy the same remedy, then it must be admitted that the remedy has real merit. Baby's Own Tablets occupy this enviable position. Mothers having once tried them seldom fail to duplicate the order—no other remedy for children can truly claim as much. Concerning the Tablets, Mr. C. W. Strader, general dealer, North Williamsburg, Ont., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets have a large sale and every purchaser is more than satisfied. We use them for our baby and have found them all that is claimed for them."

Baby's Own Tablets cure colic, indigestion, constipation, diarrhoea, simple fevers and all the minor ills of little ones. They make baby bright, active and happy and a joy to the home. Sold by druggists or will be sent by mail at 25 cents a box by writing to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Was All Run Down.

Had No Appetite.

FOOD WOULD NOT DIGEST.

Mrs. I. W. Warner, Riverdale, N.S., is glad there is such a remedy as

Burdock Blood Bitters.

IT CURED HER

AND WILL CURE YOU.

She says: "I wish to add my testimony to the many others who have spoken so highly as to the unfailing virtues of Burdock Blood Bitters. I was all run down, had no appetite, lost all ambition, could not sleep much and had terrible headache and backache, and my food did not digest properly. I saw B B B. advertised, so concluded to give it a trial, thinking if it did no good it could do no harm. But after using one bottle I began to feel better, and by the time I had used three bottles I was feeling like a new person. I am so glad there is such a remedy provided for suffering humanity, and cannot praise it enough for I think there is no medicine like it on the market."

True and Unfailing Help For Suffering Women.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

The World's Medicine for the Cure of Female Troubles.

A large share of the evils and sufferings which women are liable to, result from special female weaknesses and diseases. From the girl entering womanhood to the woman who arrives at the Grand Climacteric or "Change of Life," there are troubles, ailments and irregularities — too often borne in silence—which undermine the health and result in disease. Where such conditions exist, Heaven help the poor sufferers to fully realise their perils and dangers!

It is well known that ordinary medical treatment too often fails to build up the delicate nervous system of woman, and give necessary tone and strength to the important female organs. The experience of years, medical testimony and letters from tens of thousands of cured women, point to Paine's Celery Compound as woman's friend and life giver. Jessie M. Ross, Quyon, P.Q., says:—

"It affords me much pleasure to testify to the great good that Paine's Celery Compound has done for me. I was completely run down in health and a victim of female weakness, and after using three bottles of Paine's Celery Compound I was completely cured. It is the best blood purifier I know of, and I recommend it to all who are troubled as I was."

Scenes From Grand Opera.

An attractive feature of the next recital of the Killin-Keough vocal students will be the presentation of some scenes from Grand Opera in costume. This has been requested by many leading people. Operatic work is a specialty of these popular teachers, who have studied the standard works under Signor Agramonte, the greatest American operatic coacher, and with Wm. Perry, for many years stage director at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, and at Covent Garden. One scene will be given from Flotow's "Martha." There are in preparation also, choruses from "Lucrezia Borgia," "Lohengrin" and the oratorio of "Naaman." In order to properly prepare this work, the date of the recital has been changed to July 21st, at the Opera House.

MR. HORACE AYERS A POPULAR LEADER.

Appreciation of his Work Expressed in Tangible Form.

All Department of the Association Represented—A Most Efficient Member and Officer.

The popularity of the retiring Physical Director of the Y.M.C.A., Mr. Horace E. Ayers, was strongly evidenced last evening when the parlours of the Association Building were crowded with members representing almost every interest of the work, who had assembled to say goodbye to their late leader.

Mr. Ayers during his five years as a member and officer of the Association, and lately as Boys' Secretary and Physical Director, has endeared himself to all who have come in contact with him, and though removed to another sphere of activity his work will continue to go on here.

At the gathering last evening Ald. McWilliams was called to the chair and referred in feeling terms to Mr. Ayers' good work, and the relationship he bore to all organizations of young men in the town. He then called on Mr. J. H. Connal, chairman of the Physical Work Department, who in a well worded address, on behalf of the membership, presented Mr. Ayers with a handsome gold watch.

A number of short speeches were then made by members present, including Messrs. W. D. Campbell, R. Dobbin, R. S. Merrill and E. M. Best.

Mr. Robert Wilson, janitor, and Mr. Froude, formerly Boys' Secretary, spoke of the pleasant relationship with Mr. Ayers as associated in the work with him.

Mr. Williamson, General Secretary, followed in the same strain, and said that no man could have done more than Mr. Ayers in the service he had rendered the Association as an officer of it. It had been one of the greatest pleasures of his life to work with him.

Mr. J. S. Knapman, a director of the association, spoke of the high esteem in which he was held by the directors and business men.

Mr. M. A. Sorsoleil added a few strong words of appreciation.

Mr. Ayers made a reply which was characterized by a manful sincerity. He said he owed a lasting debt to the Association for the benefit it had been to him, and it would be impossible to express the pleasure he had experienced from his connection with the Y.M.C.A.

The gathering was brought to a close by the singing of the Association Hymn, "Blest be the Tie that Binds," and Mr. Sorsoleil offered a short prayer.

A DELIGHTFUL GARDEN PARTY

Given at Residence of Mr. Andrew MacFarlane.

An unusually delightful garden party was held last evening at the residence of Mr. Andrew MacFarlane, 29 Homewood avenue, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's church. The evening was a very pleasant one, and was well suited for the party, which had been postponed from Tuesday evening owing to the inclemency of the weather. Ice cream and strawberries were in great demand by the large number of persons who were present. A feature of the evening was the vocal and instrumental programme. The Maiorana Harp Band Orchestra, of Toronto, added greatly to the evening's pleasure with a number of pretty and popular pieces. Vocal solos from Mr. H. M. Lloyd, and Miss Florence Miller were highly appreciated, while Mr. Sorsoleil's reading evoked considerable applause.

The Ladies' Aid is to be highly complimented on the success which crowned their efforts.

Y. M. C. A.

At the Y.M.C.A. to-morrow afternoon, the topic is "A Young Christian's Amusements." The discussion will be led by Mr. E. Elcome. A song service will precede the discussion, which will be held from 4.15 to 5.

The Ice Cream Social to be given by George street Epworth League on Monday evening next promises to be a most enjoyable affair. An orchestra will be present and a pleasing programme of vocal and instrumental music, readings, etc., will be given. Refreshments of cake and ice cream served. Admission 15 cents.

MEMBERS OF CHOIR SHOW APPRECIATION

Of Services of Organist by Making a Handsome Presentation.

A more than usually large attendance of the choir greeted Miss Agar at the practice last night in the Murray street Baptist church, as it was well known that it would be the last time that she would be present on such an occasion.

Shortly after nine o'clock the members adjourned to the school room, where there was a large number of the members of the church and congregation already gathered.

After a very pleasant hour had been spent in the discussion of ice cream, strawberries, cake, etc., Mr. T. F. Matthews took the chair, and calling Miss Agar to the platform, presented her on behalf of the church, with a handsome set of sterling silverware, suitably engraved. In doing so he referred to the pleasant relations that had always characterized Miss Agar's connection with the church and its services, and expressed the warmest wishes for her future welfare and happiness.

Miss Agar having suitably responded in a neat little speech, eloquent expression was given to the general feeling of regret felt by all at Miss Agar's departure by Rev. J. Bastown, Messrs. C. B. Routley, George Cochrane, J. Cunningham, Dr. Scott and others.

A very pleasant gathering was brought to a close by a verse of "Blest be the Tie that Binds," after which the pastor pronounced the benediction!

Miss Agar has occupied the position of organist for five and a half years, and during the whole of that time has been unremitting in her attention to the onerous duties of her office, and became a general favourite, not only with those connected with the church, but with a large circle outside, with whom she has been brought into contact in musical and religious movements.

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH.

A large congregation was present last evening to witness the administration into the Church, by the apostolic rite of Confirmation, of 28 young men and women, who had been prepared by the Rector, for the last two months. The Lord Bishop of Toronto administered the rite. The visiting clergymen present were Rev. J. C. Davidson, M. A., Rector of St. John's; and Rev. W. L. Armitage, Rector of All Saints. The Bishop in addressing the candidates spoke earnest words of counsel and encouragement. He pointed out to them the great privilege of receiving from God His Holy Spirit, who would strengthen them in their warfare on earth, and he urged them to dedicate themselves to God's service, and accept Christ as their personal Saviour. The service was very solemn and impressive.

To-morrow morning the Rector will preach a special sermon suitable to the occasion of administering the Holy Communion to the newly confirmed. Their friends, relatives, and the communicants generally of the church, are cordially invited to partake with them of the Holy Communion.

In the evening the A. O. F. will attend divine service at St. Luke's. The centre seats will be reserved for the Order.

Farmers' Meeting.

A meeting was held this afternoon in the Market Hall for the purpose of presenting the claims of the Farmers' Co-operative Harvesting Machine Company before the farmers of this district. Addresses being delivered by Mr. Jno. A. McGillivray, ex-M.P., Mr. W. E. Wellington and Mr. Jos. Stratford, of Brantford.

A PLEASANT DRIVE AROUND THE TOWN.

Woodmen of the World Spend a Delightful Afternoon.

More than Surprised at the Lift-lock—Visit Other Places of Note.

Yesterday afternoon the Executive Committee of the Woodmen of the World were shown all around the town and many expressions of surprise concerning the evident prosperity were heard on all sides. After leaving the Oriental Hotel the Committee consisting of C. C. Hodgins, Lucan, Head Council Commander; C. Cinnamon, Lindsay, Head Adviser; T. H. Luscombe, London, Head Banker; W. C. Fitzgerald, London, Head Clerk; Dr. W. S. Harrison, Toronto, Head Physician; R. H. Blackmore, St. Thomas, Head Escort; D. W. D. Wiley, Dresden, Head Sentry; J. H. Saunders, London, Head Watchman; J. B. Hoover, Clinton, Chairman Board of Managers, L. H. Taylor, Brantford, and J. W. F. Bain, Woodstock, Board of Managers, was driven to the lift lock, which wonderful and gigantic piece of machinery they explored from top to bottom. Mr. R. B. Rogers, Superintending Engineer at the works, very kindly showed the delegation over the lock and volunteered information regarding it. To say that the committee was surprised at this marvellous structure would but weakly express the sentiments of those present. After viewing this the carriages drove to the Cereal Company's new dam. Despite the fact that they had just come from the lift lock, the gentlemen present were astonished at that piece of workmanship.

The delegates then drove to one of Peterborough's noted beauty spots—the Little Lake Cemetery, where more than one member of the Woodmen of the World has been placed in his last resting place beneath the green sod. Several members of the Committee remarked that should they ever have an opportunity to again visit Peterborough they would not leave without paying the Little Lake Cemetery another visit. The carriages then drove past the Canadian General Electrical Works, but as the hour of the afternoon was somewhat late they did not stop. They then drove back to the hotel via some of the pretty streets in the western quarter of the town.

After returning from the drive they once more went into a business session, the principal topic discussed being the striking of rates in the Sick Benefit Department, which is just being organized. It was found that to fully decide this would necessitate being here another day, and as this was impossible an adjournment was made to Tuesday, at London, the party leaving on the 5.10 C.P.R. train for the west.

A Cornwall special despatch says: President Fitzgibbon to-day announced that the objection which was supposed to be in the way of Hayes playing for the Shamrocks in the Minto Cup matches, if the Shamrock executive desires to play him, has been removed by the mutual consent of all the clubs in the senior league to allow him to play. It is stated here also that L'Hereux of the Nationals will in all probability return to Oshawa instead of playing in Montreal to-day.

* * * *

Belleville defeated Campbellford by 12 to 6 at Belleville yesterday.

* * * *

Word was received by telephone this morning that Port Hope II. had defaulted to-day to Oshawa II. in the scheduled C.L.A. game to be played in Oshawa this afternoon. Mr. J. McCabe was to officiate as referee.

* * * *

The T.A.S. team tried Eddie Mahoney in the jumps last evening and he did splendid work.

* * * *

Oshawa II. team will likely arrive on the midnight C.P.R. Tuesday evening and quite a few supporters will accompany them. There promises to be a great crowd at the T. A. S. grounds on Wednesday.

The regulations governing the Minto cup are as follows:—

His Excellency the Governor-General has decided to offer a perpetual challenge cup for competition in lacrosse to be emblemetic, if possible, of the championship of the Dominion. His Excellency named three trustees of the cup, representative as far as possible of the various parts of the Dominion, namely, His Honour Sir Henri Joly, lieutenant-governor of British Columbia, Mr. E. S. Clouston, of Montreal, and Mr. P. D. Ross, of Ottawa. Regarding the trustees, the Governor-General's wish is that they shall control contests for the cup, and that their decisions as to the cup and its custody shall be absolute. Should any trustee die or otherwise drop out, a successor shall be appointed by the Governor-General for the time being. At the request of Lord Minto, the trustees have made suggestions regarding the disposal of the cup, and contests for it, which His Excellency has approved as follows, with the reservation that the regulations must be considered subject at any time to the will of the trustees inasmuch as circumstances are always liable to arise which render a departure from any or all rules desirable.

1.—The club which has won the cup shall defend it on behalf of its own league, if such be received prior to the conclusion of the current championship season in its own league.

2.—Challenges shall be addressed to the trustees, and shall be given preference in the order received.

3.—The cup shall be open to challenge by only the leading or champion club of any recognized league or association, unless the trustees consider any special exception desirable.

4.—In any league or association in which the cup is held, the cup shall not be open to challenge by other clubs of the same league, inasmuch as each league has its own championship series, but at the end of the league's season, the possession of the cup, if still in that league, shall belong to the new championship club of the league without any special match, and that club, shall have the defence of it during the following year.

5.—A challenge for the cup may be decided by a single match or by the best two matches out of three, or by most goals in two matches, as the competing clubs themselves may agree.

6.—Matches shall be played on neutral grounds in the home city, if obtainable and convenient, otherwise on the ground of the holders of the cup, unless the trustees decide differently.

7.—Gate receipts shall be equally divided, after legitimate expenses are paid, but no charge shall be made for grounds if the match is played upon the grounds of either of the competing clubs.

8.—Officials must be agreed on by competing clubs at least a week before date of match, otherwise the trustees may appoint them. The expense, if any, shall be equally shared by the competing clubs.

9.—Any club receiving the cup shall give an acknowledgment to the trustees, stating that they hold it subject to the absolute decision of the trustees in all respects.

10.—Each club winning the cup may engrave its name on an attached shield with the date of the championship.

The finals in Class A., Captain's prize were played early in the week, the contestants being Miss Campbell, and Miss A. Dennistoun, who was successful.

RUGBY.

A despatch from Toronto to Montreal states that it can be announced with considerable certainty that the Rough Riders of Ottawa will get the cold shoulder from the Ontario Rugby Union as they have from the Quebec Union. In official football sources in Toronto it is practically understood that the Ontario Union are a unit in a proposition to give the Rough Riders a "bye," or group them with Kingston and Peterborough in an eastern series, provided these two places put in senior teams.

BASEBALL.

The prospects are that a great game will be played Monday night at the Murray street grounds. The Clippers of Lindsay will be the team against which the Excelsiors will play, and they will come here with a large following, an excursion from Lindsay will accompany the team.

The baseball match between the Guilds of St. Andrew's church and the Charlotte street church, after playing four innings, resulted in favour of the former by a score of 13 to 8.

CASES BEFORE POLICE MAGISTRATE DUMBLE.

Two Boys Were Charged With Stealing Rubbers—Other Cases.

The cases at the Police Court this morning were tried in the Council Chamber as the regular Court Room is being painted within.

John Smith was charged with vagrancy. Old John was told to "clear" out of town as fast as his two legs and walking stick could take him, and was warned that if his face was seen within the limits of the corporation, it would be instrumental to the hatching of trouble.

Bruce Kennedy aged 14 years, and Rolland Johnston, aged 12 years, were charged with stealing a quantity of old rubbers on Wednesday, June 17th. They pleaded guilty and chose to be tried by the Police Magistrate rather than before a jury. Crown Attorney Wood remarked that the Court had often seen Kennedy up on charges of stealing and that he was a source of great trouble to the police. He further stated that the offense was no ordinary one but that the boys had broken into Geo. Stevens' warehouse, Ashburnham and stolen the rubbers. On one occasion, he said, Kennedy stole the rubbers and sold them to Mr. Stevens the same day. He did not think Johnston appeared in Court before. The Magistrate dismissed Johnston on suspended sentence, but sent Kennedy to the reformatory for an indefinate period not to exceed five years.

Wm Jordan was charged with getting money for work which he promised to do and not fulfilling the contract. A woman stated that she paid him $2 some 6 months ago to clean out a closet, but that he had not done so. The case was enlarged for one week as the accused promised to clean up the closet. He had to pay the costs of the Court amounting to $9.75.

The Police Magistrate remarked that he was determined to protect the people from imposition by this class of persons who as a rule take any advantage particularly when dealing with women. He expressed regret that the town council had failed to give the scavenger business to responsible parties, and fix duties and charges by bylaw.

The Court then adjourned.

THE BOARD OF TRADE TALKED OF OPERA HOUSE

And Several Other Things at Last Night's Session.

Delegates Appointed to Attend Congress at Montreal—Postal Delivery Subject of Much Discussion.

A special meeting of the Board of Trade was held last night in the Council Chamber, with President D. Hughes-Charles in the chair and the following members present:—J. H. Burnham, R. M. Hamilton, Lt.-Col. Edwards, E. J. Toker, B. F. Ackerman, D. W. Dumble, W. H. Robertson, Robt. Fair, R. E. Wood, A. P. Poussette, C. Fessenden and E. S. Clarry.

The Secretary, Mr. T. Quartermaine, read the minutes of the previous meetings, which were on motion adopted.

The President speaking of the smallness of the number of members present, regretted that so little interest is displayed in the Board by its members and even by some of the officers who were not present. He said it was a shame that when a meeting of the Board is called to discuss important matters of interest to the town so few members attend.

At a previous meeting of the Board the question of reducing the membership fee from $2 to $1 was discussed and a committee was appointed to consider the matter and report to the Board. The committee did not report, but some of the members of it expressed their opinion and stated some facts which they had become possessed of.

Mr. Fair speaking on this matter thought it inadvisable to lower the present fee at present, even now it is below that collected by most Boards, and the opinion was expressed by him that the present fee should be maintained.

The Secretary read a number of letters received from Boards in various towns giving the amounts collected as fees by them, these ranged from $1 to $5.

The Committee on Insurance Rates was not prepared to report. The members had been gathering some facts, but the committee as a whole had no report to submit.

Some time ago the Board requested of the Controller of Customs that Peterborough be made a port of entry, so that baggage checked from United States points might be allowed to come here direct without being detained at the boundary to be examined. A communication was read from the Customs Department to the effect that the request of the Board had been acceded to.

A letter was received from the Town Clerk, enclosing a copy of a resolution introduced by Ald. Morrison, calling the attention of the Government to the fact that a postal delivery would be of great benefit to the town, and as it was understood that there would be an amount placed in the supplementary estimates to enlarge the post office, the resolution asked that instead of this being done, the town be given a free street delivery. A request was made of the Board that it pass a similar resolution, and forward it to the Government.

This request provoked considerable discussion in the course of which several motions and amendments were made, Mr. Toker set the pace by making a motion that the Board memorialize the Government asking it to inaugurate a postal delivery. This was seconded by Mr. Burnham.

Mr. Dumble thought that this was a matter calling for serious consideration. If a delivery were established, the drop rate on letters would be doubled. He was not in favour of the motion, and did not think the people of the town considered it a hardship to go to the office for their mail.

Mr. R. E. Wood speaking on the motion, said the town was not so large as to necessitate a delivery and thought that it would be no advantage, and might be considerable of a disadvantage. He moved an amendment that the Board considers the conditions do not call for the establishment of a postal delivery at the present time. Mr. Dumble seconded the amendment.

Mr. A. P. Poussette thought that although it might mean some additional expense the advantages of the delivery would more than compensate. The general benefit of the town should be considered.

The amendment was supported by Mr. Robert Fair, who said that the Retail Merchants Association thought a delivery would be no advantage over the present system.

If four deliveries a day were given he would support it, but the proposal, he understood, was to have but two. He thought that this was an important matter and that a special meeting of the Board should be called to discuss it.

Lieut.-Colonel Edwards, in moving an amendment to the amendment, that the matter be referred to the Council of the Board of Trade, said that it was a very large question, and one that affected all classes of citizens, and to which the Board, which was supposed to represent the whole community should give careful thought. Lt.-Col. Edwards' amendment was seconded by Mr. R. Fair, and carried unanimously, the proposers of previous motions withdrawing them.

A meeting, therefore, of the council of the Board will be held on Monday night, when this question will be dealt with.

The Sudbury Board of Trade sent a communication to the Peterborough Board asking that body to pass a resolution suggesting to the Government the advisability of abolishing the duty on bituminous coal, which was largely used by manufacturers, and could not be procured in Ontario from the Nova Scotia collieries. A motion that the Board accede to the request in the latter was lost.

Delegates to the Congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, which will be held in Montreal in August from 17th to 20th, were appointed, Messrs. D. Hughes-Charles and Mr. Dumble were unanimously chosen.

Mr. Might addressed the Board on the question of a new opera house. He could secure $25,000 to erect a building which would be a credit to the town, if a free site were to be granted.

It was thought by all present that such a building was a necessity but they did not see how a free site could be secured. The matter will be gone into more fully when additional information has been procured.

The question of endeavouring to secure the works of the Singer Manufacturing Company for the town was discussed at some length. The Board will deal with it in the prompt and effective manner which has characterized the efforts of the Board in the past.

Too Great a Risk.

In almost every neighbourhood someone has died from an attack of colic or cholera morbus, often before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. A reliable remedy for these diseases should be kept at hand. The risk is too great for anyone to take. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has undoubtedly saved the lives of more people and relieved more pain and suffering than any other medicine in use. It can always be depended upon. A GOOD MAN GONE.

C. W. Taylor, The Globe's Business Manager, Passes Away—Death Startlingly Sudden From Heart Failure.

Toronto, June 26.—Charles W. Taylor, business manager of The Globe for the past twenty-three years, died suddenly yesterday morning at the family residence, 42 Willcocks street. At 7.30 he got up as usual, and went to the wash-room. A few moments later Mrs. Taylor heard him groan, and then he came back into the bedroom suffering intense pain and lay down on the bed While Mrs. Taylor was seeking to supply restoratives he succumbed.

Dr. Milton Cotton, who was summoned, said death was due to a pressure of gases about the heart. Mr. Taylor had complained of pains in the region of the heart, but was otherwise in splendid health.

The deceased was born on May 22nd, 1851. He was a son of the late Captain John Taylor, a retired army officer. He leaves a widow and four children, Miss Laura, Frederick, Charles and William. Henry Taylor, Chatham, John Taylor, of Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic, Judge Taylor, White Horse, Yukon, and William Taylor, are brothers, and Mrs. George Bingham, Denver, Col., and Mrs. Rosebrugh, Rothwell, are sisters.

Thirty-six years ago Mr. Taylor entered the service of The Globe, as office boy, and at the death of Mr. Brown, in 1880, was appointed business manager. Mr. Jaffray, president of The Globe, speaking of his death, alluded to the late Mr. Taylor as one of the most generally liked men he had ever known, and that his only fault had been his extreme generosity and self-forgetfulness. His chief interest had been the welfare of The Globe, and he had ever taken an almost fatherly interest in members of the staff in time of sickness.

RETURN OF MANAGER ROWLEY.

Remanded For Trial on a Charge of Theft —Bail Accepted.

St. Thomas, June 26.—George Rowloy, the fugitive manager of the Elgin Loan Company, suddenly returned to St. Thomas Wednesday night, and at 6 o'clock yesterday morning he went to the city jail and surrendered. He was placed in the cells. At 10 o'clock the prisoner was arraigned before Police Magistrate Glenn. Crown Attorney Donahue prosecuted. W. L. Wickett represented the accused. The charge was theft of $4,000 from the company he managed for twenty years. He was not asked to plead to the complaints. The case was adjourned until July 2. The prisoner was released on bonds of $8,000. His sons-in-law, George R. McColl and John Christmas qualified in $2,000 each. Rowley's personal recognizance was accepted for $4,000. The amount he stole from the bank exceeds $100,000. The accused walked from the room, entered a cab and was driven to his home.

George Rowley, emaciated and trembling, presented a miserable spectacle, as he occupied the felon's box; 58 years old, he looked 75. Those who saw him ten days ago, when he fled on the eve of his impending exposure, would not have recognized him. Ten days as a fugitive from justice had added twenty years to his appearance. He had sacrificed his full beard and made other changes in his personal appearance. His daughter, Mrs. John Christmas, accompanied him to the jail yesterday. She remained with him during the arraignment. Rowley did no speaking during the painful ordeal in court. His counsel attended to that. He sat with eyes downcast.

Appoint Permanent Liquidator.

St. Thomas, June 26.—Two hundred of the Atlas Loan Co.'s creditors met here yesterday and appointed the National Trust Co. as permanent liquidator. Such a roar went up when it was mooted to appoint the president, A. E. Wallace, that the matter was not pressed.

Nothing Like Experience.

"One truth learned by actual experience does more good than ten experiences one hears about." Tell a man that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy will cure cholera morbus, and he will most likely forget it before the end of the day. Let him have a severe attack of that disease, feel that he is about to die, use this remedy, and learn from his own experience how quickly it gives relief, and he will remember it all his life. For sale by all druggists.

Under an Engine.

Cornwall, June 26.—An old man named Macdonald, whose home is supposed to be in Glen Robertson, Glengarry county, was killed by a freight train one mile east of Cornwall station Wednesday night about 10 o'clock. When the engine slowed up the unfortunate man's body was found underneath. Macdonald was about 70 years of age.

Asleep on the Track.

Regina, N.W.T., June 26.—There was another fatal railway accident here last night. A man was run over and cut in two about half a mile from the depot by the Moosejaw local from Winnipeg. On the man's collar was McKercher. The deceased was asleep between the metals.

Look on the Bright Side.

The sufferer from nervous exhaustion is generally blue and discouraged. He looks on the dark side of things and fears paralysis, locomotor ataxia or insanity. All this is changed by the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which gradually and naturally rekindles and revitalizes the wasted nerve cells and instils new vigour and energy into the whole system.

Genius Analyzed.

In the intellect constructive, which we popularly designate by the word genius, we observe the balance of two elements. The constructive intellect produces thoughts, sentences, poems, plans, designs, systems. It is the generation of the mind, the marriage of thought with nature. To genius must always go two gifts, the thought and the publication. The first is revelation, always a miracle, which no frequency of occurrence or incessant study can ever familiarize, but which must always leave the inquirer stupid with wonder.—Emerson.

CONDUCTOR KILLED

H., G. & B. Victim Jammed Tight in His Vestibule.

THE CARS MET ON A CURVE

Collision at the Bottom of a Hill of Electric Cars of the Hamilton, Grimsby and Beamsville Railway — Some Others of the Crew Hurt—Passengers Were Badly Shaken Up.

Hamilton, June 25.—As the result of a head-on collision between two cars on the Hamilton, Grimsby and Beamsville Electric Railway yesterday afternoon, one conductor was killed and another so badly injured that there is doubt of his recovery. Two more railway employes were rather seriously injured, several passengers received painful cuts and bruises, and everybody on both cars were more or less injured.

Dead and Injured.

The dead man is Conductor Robert Braidwood of this city.

The injured are Conductor Harry Brunton, who got a terrible scalp wound. His condition is regarded as serious.

Peter Gibson, motorman, crushed about the chest and ribs, and suffering, it is feared, from internal injuries

Harry Patience, conductor, left shoulder injured, and badly shaken up.

J. A. Doucette, 371 North Victoria avenue, an electrician for Cataract Power Co., sprained ankle.

Mrs. Ryckman, Grimsby Park, ankle sprained.

All the passengers are nursing bruises and cuts of a painful nature, but will all be around again in a few days.

Cars Met on a Curve.

The cars plunged into each other about 500 yards east of the Winona crossing at 3 o'clock. It would be difficult to imagine a worse place for such a mishap. Both cars were rushing down sharp inclines, and they met at the bottom of the hill. To make matters worse there is a curve in the road.

The dead conductor, Braidwood, was acting as motorman on it. The cars came together with such force that their front vestibules were jammed and wrecked. Poor Braidwood was wedged in so that it took fully ten minutes to release him. Both legs from the knees down were mangled, and one was broken above the knee. He died before he reached the city on a special car.

Braidwood had been with the company ever since it started to operate cars in 1894, and was one of the most popular men on the road. He was 31 years of age, and leaves a widow and a young son.

LEARN FROM OTHERS

That Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are a Sure Cure for all Stomach Troubles—Henry A. Cole's Experience.

Do you know Dyspepsia? Have you felt those pains, aches and discomforts that make men and women feel that there is no sunshine in life? Do you know that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will take away all the troubles? If you do not, it is because you will not profit by the experience of others.

Listen to what Henry A. Coles, of St. Mary's River, Guysboro Co., N. S., has to tell:—

"I had stomach trouble more or less for about five years," writes Mr. Coles. "Finally I was forced to take to my bed. The doctor was called in but he did me no good. I was suffering very bad and did not know what to do.

"Then my wife suggested that I try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, so finally I got some and commenced to use them. I took seven boxes in all, and have not felt any trouble since.

"I can heartily recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to any sufferer from stomach troubles. And others in this neighbourhood who have used them speak just as highly of them as I do."

STEAMER EUREKA SUNK.

Government Boat Took in Water at the Port Holes.

Montreal, June 26.—The steamer Eureka foundered at Sorel yesterday. She is a Government boat, which is fitted up with the Racoste brake, and has been giving demonstrations in Montreal in connection with the brake for some time. Yesterday she left for Quebec at 1 p.m., and stopped at Sorel to take on coal. By some mischance some of her portholes happened to be open, and the weight of the coal caused the vessel to take in water. Soon it was apparent that she would founder. She was moved across the Richelieu River to the Government dry dock, but a short time before she reached the shore she went down. All persons on board reached dry land in safety, but some clothes were lost. Sir Alex. Racoste and his secretary and a press repre[illegible] who were on board lost all their belongings. The Racoste brake was in no way responsible for the accident.

Killed by a Log.

Seaforth, June 26.—Wm Allan, a farmer aged 45 years, who lived three miles south of here, was accidentally killed yesterday. While he and his little boy were carrying a log for the well pump from an adjoining field to the house, Mr. Allan slipped and fell, the log striking him on the neck and killed him almost instantly.

ROMAN HOT BATHS.

They May Have Caused the Downfall of the Imperial City.

When Rome was in her glory and men were strong and women beautiful, they set first importance upon the bath. There were 800 public baths in imperial Rome.

Before taking a bath the Roman took a little exercise. In the later history of Rome the room in which he undressed was heated, and after undressing he was anointed with oil. Then came the scratching and rubbing of the skin with the strigil. Following this perspiration was promoted by heated air or a hot bath. The bath was completed with a cold douche or cold plunge. Finally the body was anointed again.

It is believed by many writers that the introduction of the hot bath in the place of the cold bath among the Romans was the principal cause of their downfall. The luxury of the hot bath was weakening and destroyed that personal valor and hardihood for which the Romans were notorious in their earlier history.

Little by little the enervating influence of the hot bath gradually sapped away the vitality of the Roman soldier until the more hardy men of the north found them very easy foes to conquer.

Passing of the Aristocrats.

The Revolution, in giving us a separate nationality, had not destroyed time honored traditions. Our manners and customs were English, bred in the bone; our point of view that of the mother country. Freedom and equality were political terms that no one dreamed of applying to social life. What gave position at that time was inherited distinction. Its possession was free from self consciousness—simply an advantage of birth, which that Providence who had always shown an affinity to hierarchies saw fit to bestow on a favored class. The community was divided by the grace of God into gentlemen—and others; perhaps it would be more exact to say gentlemen, their servants and others. The privacy of these gentlemen concerned themselves only. There were no "social happenings" heralded in their newspapers to force notoriety upon family life. How it would have astonished those early aristocrats if they could have anticipated the fictitious importance later days would attach to their privileges!—Elisabeth Duer in Smart Set.

Oriental Jugglery.

An eyewitness of a celebrated feat of oriental jugglery tells the following story of what he thought he saw a band of Indian fakirs accomplish: "They produced a chain seventy-five feet in length and in my presence threw one end of it toward the sky, where it remained as if fastened to something in the air. A dog was then brought forward and, being placed at the lower end of the chain, immediately ran up and, reaching the other end, disappeared in the air. In the same manner a hog, a panther, a lion and a tiger were successively sent up the chain, and all disappeared at the upper end. At last they pulled down the chain and put it in a bag, no one ever discovering in what manner the different animals were made to vanish."

Too Much Bile in the Blood.

Stomach Troubles, Biliousness and Headache the Result of Torpid Liver.

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

The action of the liver is important in two ways. It filters from the blood the poisonsous impurities which cause biliousness, headache and stomach troubles. These, in turn become bile in the liver, and are passed into the intestines as a cathartic to keep the bowels regular and active. By acting directly on the liver Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure torpid, sluggish liver and all ailments arising therefrom.

Mr. Rogers Clancy, farmer, Chepstowe, Bruce county, Ont., states: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and would say that there is no medicine that equals them as a cure for stomach troubles, biliousness, torpid liver and headache. I was troubled a great deal with these ailments before using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and they have proven wonderfully successful in my case.

"I would not think of being without a box of these pills in the house, and whenever I feel any symptoms of these disorders I take one of these pills, and they set me all right again. I can strongly recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the troubles mentioned above."

Mr. John Baker, Deseronto, Ont., states, "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills and can truthfully say that they are perfect in their work. I was subject to pains in my sides and back. At times I had to lay off work and feared that I would never get rid of the ailment, which was causing my sufferings. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills were recommended to me, and I found them to be exactly suited to my case. Since using them I have never had a return of my old troubles."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author are on every box. 2

THE ACHIEVEMENT OF ALEXANDER

By BENNET MUSSON

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

Success is said to come to any man who takes one thing seriously. The thing Wilfred Daly took seriously was burlesque. He wrote odd, fanciful little sketches for the newspapers and magazines, and he was so convinced of the sincerity of the characters he put in them that he felt rather hurt when an editor or critic referred to his stories as "charming nonsense" or "delightful foolishness."

After success another thing entered his life which he found necessary to take seriously. The last item had blond hair, blue eyes and a bewitching manner, and Wilfred's meeting with her was due to his spending the summer in the Catskills. He had decided to stay at a farmhouse on account of its privacy. When he found that this exclusiveness did not include Miss Dorothy Sibley, he had cause to bless the general fitness of things.

He was sitting on a fence one afternoon blessing the fitness and regarding a goat named Alexander which disported itself in an orchard with all the perky mannerisms of its breed.

A pair of lawn clad arms were presently placed on the fence, and two blue eyes looked laughingly into his.

"Are you seeking material for a story in Alexander?" asked Dorothy.

"Not at all. I was criticising his name." And Wilfred leaped to the ground.

"I suppose that it was given him by some facetious summer boarder," said Dorothy, regarding Alexander, who pirouetted toward them with a look in his eye that was half vicious, half humorous.

"I think Rip Van Winkle would be more in the way of a summer boarder's name," dissented Wilfred. "Anyway, I'm glad the fence is between us and that goat, for I suspect him of being a villain."

"How have you been spending the afternoon?" asked Miss Sibley.

"Reading a story."

"A good one?"

"One of my own."

"Then the question is answered," Dorothy said smilingly.

Wilfred drew a magazine from his pocket, and they strolled down the road to a little glen. They seated themselves in a nook which often had contained them during the summer.

"You know, I don't usually take real people for my characters," said Wilfred, "but I couldn't resist this one. He is a new member of our club. He is small, fat and fussy. A row he had with a waiter furnished the incident for this sketch, and my only fear about it is that when he reads the tale, as he may, he will recognize himself in it and ask the house committee to suspend me from the club."

A blond head and a curly black head were soon bending over the magazine, but Wilfred's story was unread.

"Don't ask me to go over it again," he said. "I've something to tell you this afternoon."

The "something" was told, and it was a story in which burlesque and the fantastic had no part—a story which often is called old, but which keeps the world going for all that.

When it was ended, Dorothy leaned back against the tree which supported her—leaned as near the tree as an encircling arm would allow. Wilfred gazed pensively at the green and brown side of a nearby mountain.

"The summer is almost over," he said softly, "and life is just begun."

"Or will be when you have spoken to Uncle Bryan," Dorothy said roguishly.

"And he is to come today!" Wilfred exclaimed.

"Yes. What time is it?"

"Half past 5."

Dorothy jumped to her feet. "I was to meet him at 5!" she cried.

Wilfred laughed, and they started toward the road. Around a bend in it came a small, stout man clad in a check suit. Dorothy ran to him and greeted him affectionately.

"It was good of you to come to find me, Uncle Bryan. I intended to meet you," she said as Wilfred approached, "but Wil—Mr. Daly has been telling me something"— She stopped and blushed. "Of course you haven't met him. This is Mr. Daly; my uncle, Mr. Bryan Ives," she continued formally.

"This is the Mr. Daly whom you have mentioned in your letters?" asked Mr. Ives.

"Yes," said Dorothy, and she looked at her uncle wonderingly, for he did not offer to shake hands with Wilfred. Then she glanced at Daly and was surprised to see him regarding the older man with a look of horror. Mr. Ives drew from one of his pockets a magazine and turned over some of its pages.

"I have had the pleasure of seeing Mr. Daly at the club, though I have not met him before," he said. "His acquaintance with me seems to be extensive, however." Then he read from the magazine: "'He is a type easily recognizable—red faced, rotund and choleric. As he sits at the club table one is vaguely reminded of truffles.'"

Dorothy turned with distress to Wilfred. "He is the hero of your story?" she gasped.

"He is," Wilfred said weakly.

The return toward the farmhouse was tempestuous. The points of Mr. Ives' personality on which Wilfred had touched in his sketch were, of course, those about which he was particularly sensitive. He was deaf to all appeals for forgiveness; he was bent on taking Dorothy back to New York the next day; he was determined that she never should see Wilfred again.

As they neared the orchard in which Alexander was peacefully browsing an idea occurred to Wilfred Daly.

"Let us cut through the orchard," he said, opening a gate.

Dorothy looked at him in surprise, but before she could stop her uncle he had walked into the inclosure, and the gate was closed behind him.

"Dorothy, as you love me go home and say nothing," Wilfred said earnestly.

Dorothy obediently started away. Her uncle had gone some distance before he noticed that the others were not with him.

"What's the matter?" he asked sharply, turning to look for them.

"Look out!" cried Wilfred.

Bryan Ives whirled around as Alexander, with repressed determination expressed in his lowered head and the light of exultation in his eyes, charged toward him.

Mr. Ives exhibited the unexpected agility of stout people. In ten seconds at the most he was seated among the lower branches of an apple tree, and Alexander was dancing around its trunk.

"Call that beast away!" yelled Ives.

"Come, Alexander," Wilfred said gently.

Alexander leered mockingly at the young man, who turned his attention to Mr. Ives.

"Sir," he said, "I have done you an injustice, and I regret it, but the happiness of two lives is too great a penalty to pay for such an offense. First I must make my most humble apologies for wounding your sensibilities. Then I must tell you that I shall wound them more, for if you do not withdraw your objection to my attentions to your niece I shall at once go to the farmhouse and call all its occupants to witness your present position."

At the end of this stilted speech Mr. Ives looked down at the capering Alexander and considered. Wilfred started away.

"Hold on!" cried Ives. "Let me think."

As he thought a dormant sense of humor asserted itself, and at the end of five minutes his features suggested this feeling.

"Get that infernal goat away," he said.

Wilfred opened the gate. Alexander charged madly and with such speed that he shot into the road. Wilfred stepped into the orchard, again closing the gate and leaving Alexander vainly butting the fence. Then he and Mr. Ives took the short cut to the farmhouse, and when they approached that building they were arm in arm.

HOPELESS CASES.

When the doctor leaves and says the case is hopeless, what remains to be done? Nothing, if the doctor's word is final. Much, if you will listen to the statements of men and women who were once "hopeless cases" given up by doctors, and who were perfectly and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Nothing is more sure than that thousands of men and women with diseased lungs, obstinate coughs, hemorrhage, emaciation and night-sweats, have been restored to perfect health by the use of the "Discovery." Will it cure you?

It has cured in ninety-eight cases out of every hundred where it was given a fair and faithful trial. By that record you have only two chances in a hundred of failure and ninety-eight chances of being restored to perfect health. It is worth trying.

Abram Freer, Esq., of Rockbridge, Greene Co., Ill., writes: "My wife had a severe attack of pleurisy and lung trouble; the doctors gave her up to die. She commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and she began to improve from the first dose. By the time she had taken eight or ten bottles she was cured, and it was the cause of a large amount being sold here. I think the 'Golden Medical Discovery' is the best medicine in the world for lung trouble."

FREE. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser containing over a thousand large pages is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 50 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

SI'S PLUNGE.

Si Baker, who lived in a hill town in Vermont, became fired with an ambition to emulate the men who make money in Wall street. He read the financial news in his paper with care and regularity, but it was some weeks before he made up his mind what his first move should be, says the New York Tribune.

One morning he came in from milking and sat down at the breakfast table with a manner as mysterious as that of an oriental diplomatist.

"For the land's sake, Si," said his wife after looking at his complacent expression for awhile in silence, "what be ye a-grinning at?"

"Maria, if I told ye," began Si coolly, "ye'd know as much 'bout it as I do. But," he added, "I'll let ye in on the ground floor when the right time comes."

After breakfast Si "hitched up" and drove to a neighbor's, three miles away, and dickered for a rooster, which he finally bought. Then he carried the rooster four miles to the next town and sold it within an hour. As he drove home another farmer met him and pulled up.

"Hello, Si!" he called. "Where ye been?"

"Oh, spec'lating a little," Si answered.

"What you been a-spec'lating of, Si?"

"Waal," returned Si, with the careless ease of a financier, "I bought me a rooster of Ben Jones for 48 cents and took it to Rochester and sold it for 58 cents. Just a little flier; that's all."

Spanish Brides.

There are no bridesmaids at a Spanish wedding, but instead a madrina (literally godmother) is present with the witnesses. There is no bride cake, but there is a reception and very often a feast after the ceremony. Before the wedding takes place the bride's new home is made ready for her reception, for the honeymooners do not start on their travels until the day after their marriage.

Before their departure they pay a polite visit to their respective parents. On their return dainty sweetmeats in pretty boxes are sent round to their friends. No visits are paid till little cards have been sent "offering their house."

A Lightning Change Artist.

The rapidity with which chameleons change their color is marvelous. You gather one from an outdoor shrub and it immediately becomes dark, almost black, hissing and with its mouth wide open, threatening to bite. Meanwhile it is never still, but continues to crawl upward whenever possible—up you, up your sleeve, always upward. By degrees the angry black changes into whatever color is nearest. If one's dress is of a brownish color so is the chameleon's.

Greed.

"Don't you think that people pay too much attention to money nowadays?"

"No, I don't," answered Senator Sorghum. "Time was when a five dollar bill looked as big as a farm to a member of the legislature. Now he won't pay any attention to it whatever."

Expert at It.

Townley—This paper says that one of those idiotic colleges is going to make Senator Boodler a "doctor of laws."

WILD ANIMALS.

The Dealers Get Most of Their Lions From Nubia.

Dealers in wild animals get most of their lions from Nubia. There the natives search for a lioness with newborn cubs, kill the mother and bring up the young beasts on goats' milk. When they are two months old they are taken to the coast on the backs of camels and shipped to Europe. Lions are also obtained from Abyssinia and Senegal. Formerly the Atlas mountains furnished the finest lions, but the species now no longer exists except a few specimens in menageries. Adult Nubian lions are worth $1,000 apiece, while Senegal lions range in price from $500 to $750.

Tigers vary in price from $375 to $1,500 apiece and more, according to the variety and rarity of the animal. Siberian tigers, for instance, sell at the latter figure. They are large, beautifully striped creatures. In the winter they grow a long, woolly winter coat. Some full grown tigers are captured in pitfalls, but most specimens of these animals are caught while small cubs and raised on milk.

The hippopotamus, the rhinoceros and the giraffe are difficult to secure. It is practically impossible to capture a full grown beast of these species, and the young ones are hard to rear. A baby hippopotamus will drink thirty pints of milk a day and a baby rhinoceros almost as much. Thus it requires the presence of a large herd of goats in the wilderness to supply milk for such creatures. A hippopotamus is worth from $2,500 to $3,000, a rhinoceros slightly more, while giraffes sell at $2,500 or more, according to size, age and condition.

Jamaica Crocodiles.

There are a good many crocodiles in the more distant reserves of Kingston harbor and at the mouths of the Jamaica rivers, but they are exceedingly wary, and a most cautious approach is necessary if one wishes to get close enough for an effective shot.

Just as the lion has his jackal and the shark his pilot fish so the crocodile is almost always accompanied by a small plover, which perches upon the scaly ridge of its back and is just visible above the filthy water in which its big patron loves to wallow.

On the approach of man or any other danger this tiny bird flutters into the air and utters a shrill cry to warn its "chum."

The crocodile dives, and you may sit in your canoe and nurse your rifle for an hour without a chance of a shot.

The Jamaican crocodile is shyer of man than most of its kind.

WHY The Standard Mines and Milling Company

Capital $1,000,000 Ten Cent Shares

Is the Best Mining Investment on the Market To-day.

It's mines are in three great mining camps in Idaho, Thunder Mountain and Trinity County, California. It has vast bodies of ore already above ground and extensive workings under ground, thus enough insight for its three plants for years. It has one-third of the stock in another company that has the biggest and richest reef of ore (all above ground) in the world. All it has to do is to wait for dividends on this stock. It has a capable honest and reliable Management. The price of stock is very low for the present, virtually ground floor.

Chonchilula Gold Reef Mining Co.
OWNS
THE MINER'S DREAM.

(A mine above ground in California) and is selling a limited number of shares at Ground Floor Price and is paying 12 per cent. dividends, and going to par.

MERCHANTS' & TRADERS' OIL CO.

OIL FIELDS in old tested territory, producing most of the high-grade petroleum of the world.

MARKET LETTER.

Messrs. E. M. Poussett & Co. have received the following:—

New York, June 27th, 1.00 p. m. — There was nothing doing in stock market to-day until bank statement was published shortly before 11.30 a. m. All prices which had gone up about half a point for the general list on higher London and bidding by bull traders had lost all improvement on approhansion that the statement would not make a good showing. However, it showed up much better than even the most sanguine expected. The banks now have $913,746,900 in total loans outstanding against total deposits of $903,710,300, which is a difference of only ten million, against over fifteen million last week. This statement was so much better than had been looked for that it started a buying movement, with good rains reported in spring wheat belt, relieving the drouth there. To further encourage it the market advanced sharply during the last half hour trading and closed with net gains in all the active stocks, ranging from one-half to one point, with B. O. and P.A. the leaders and each up about 1 1-2 points over yesterday's closing. Market sentiment has been disturbed and speculation held in check during the week by the very unsettled weather conditions in west and south-west, as affecting all crops and by the procurment of funds to float the new P.A. stock issue of $75,000,000. The first instalment of payment for these shares was completed to-day and aggregated in last two days sixty to seventy million dollars, including the subscriptions at London and Berlin as well as in this city and other points. We look for a quiet market, the ensuing week and do not expect to see much change in prices, as the change will in all probability be closed from Thursday night until the following Monday, over the 4th of July, and the general crop situation and outlook is still too uncertain to form any opinion of prospects of either corn or cotton.

MATTERS MILITARY

BY VEDETTE.

Officers, Non-Coms. and men of the 57th Regiment will be pleased to hear of the movement which won favour among the ladies of the town, of presenting the Rangers with a new stand of colours. The old flag after braving the battle and the breeze for the past 35 years, are, it must be confessed, in a very dilapidated condition and for some time past there has been considerable talk about them. At last, the ladies have undertaken the task of getting new colours, costing about $300, made in England. At a meeting, called by Mayor Roger and held in the Y. M.C.A. parlours on Tuesday afternoon the following officers were elected:—President, Mrs. J. F. Dennistoun; Vice-President, Mrs. (Hon.) J. R. Stratton; Treasurer, Miss Barlee; Secretary, Mrs. P. Campbell. To the "New Colours Fund" there stands to credit some $80 which has been raised through the proceeds of military sport and divine military service, which has been held from time to time. It was decided that the order be fulfilled in England at some military tailor's establishment. They will probably be made better there than in Canada, as the military tailors of that country have more experience in their line of work than do those of this country.

Mr. T.A.S. Hay has written for designs and estimates.

The 57th will spend July 1st in Picton, and it is expected will have a highly enjoyable time.

• • •

At 8.30 Tuesday evening the Regiment will parade with both bands at the drill shed and proceed thence to the G.T.R. station where they will entrain for Picton. At last Tuesday night's drill it was ordered that each N.C.O. and man provide himself with towels, soap, brushes, comb and necessaries for cleaning brasses, belts, helmets, etc., and that every man must appear on parade properly dressed, clothing, brasses, belts, etc. properly cleaned, hair properly cut, and boots properly blackened.

All extra baggage must be brought to the drill shed not later than 4 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon next.

On Thursday Lieut.-Col. Miller published an order recommending men to bring in great coats, etc., to be packed on Monday night.

The Regiment will hold a march-out on Monday night, accompanied by both bands. A large turnout of men is requested for the occasion.

It will be remembered that a march-out was to have been held on Tuesday evening last, but this was postponed owing to the extremely muddy condition of the roads. The route for Monday night's parade has not as yet been decided upon.

The Bisley team under the command of Lt.-Col. A. P. Sherwood, sailed per S. S. Ionian for England on Saturday last. Before leaving the Commandant was given a rousing send off. The 43rd Regimental Band playing "The Girl I Left Behind Me", followed by "Auld Lang Syne."

Sir Frederick Borde has received, through Lord Minto, from the 1st Battalion Gordon Highlanders, a memento of their service with the Royal Canadian Rifles in South Africa, a trophy for presentation to the Dominion Rifle Association. The trophy represents a Gordon Highlander giving a drink of water to a Canadian rifleman over the bivouac fire. It is silvery with ebony pedestal and the inscription reads as follows: "Presented to the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association by 1st Batt. Gordon Highlanders, in commemoration of their friendship and comradeship with the Royal Canadian Rifles and other Canadian contingents during their service together in the 19th Brigade, and on other occasions, in South Africa, 1899, 1900,, 1901 and 1902."

Col. MacBean of the 1st Batt. Gordon Highlanders, in his letter to the Minister, speaks of the comradeship that existed between them and the Canadians.—Ottawa Journal.

It is notified in militia orders that the Canadian Military Rifle League has been placed under the supervision and control of the general officer commanding the Canadian Militia.

• • •

A new arm and accoutrement rack for use in tents at camps of instruction has been adopted by the Military authorities.

It is understood that the headquarters of No. 2 Company 46th Regiment has been changed from Port Hope to Lakefield.

• • •

The name of the 96th Regiment has been changed to the 82nd Regiment Algonquin Rifles.

• • •

The status of the 41st Regiment, Brockville Rifles has been changed from a rural to a city corps, promotions of officers to be by seniority in the Regiment.

TRAGEDY AT CLOYNE

Woman's Brains Beaten Out by a Crazy Man.

HUSBAND KILLS HIS WIFE.

Victim Had Refused to Have the Man Removed to an Asylum — Murderer Says He Was Called by the Lord to Slay the Devil, and He Fancied His Wife Was That Personage—Reads the Bible.

Napanee, June 29.—A most brutal and cold-blooded murder occurred on Saturday morning at Cloyne, a village 15 miles from Kaladar, and about 50 from Napanee, in the rear of the County of Addington. The foul perpetrator of the deed was Gideon Butts, and the victim his wife. From the facts gathered it appears Butts committed the fearful deed about daybreak on Saturday morning, literally pounding his wife's head to an unrecognizable state against a stone in his own dooryard.

Butts, who is a man of between 55 and 60 years of age, has been a resident of Cloyne for the past two years, working as a laborer around the village and with the farmers in the vicinity. He appears to be insane, as he does not seem to realize the enormity of his crime. A religious mania has seized hold of him, and he says the Lord told him to commit the awful deed. He was brought to Napanee Saturday evening by Constable Samuel Cuddy of Cloyne, who arrested him, and he was taken before Magistrate John A. Carscallen of Northbrook, who committed him to Napanee jail.

It appears that Butts was laboring under an hallucination that he is a prophet, and that the Lord commanded him to slay the devil and he fancied his wife was that personage, and he was only carrying out the commands of the Lord. After committing the awful deed he walked about half a mile to Constable Cuddy's house and said to him: "Come and see the devil I have slain." When the constable went with him to his home the terrible sight that met his view was the almost unrecognizable form of Butts' wife lying in the yard with her head completely pounded off, and cold in death.

Butts tells how he committed the deed. He says he struck her in the house, then carried her out to the yard, and with a large stone beat her head against another large flat stone. From the appearance of the man, the murdered woman must have made some resistance, as he has several scratches on his face and his legs are black and bruised, as if from kicks. He covered the remains with a sheet before going to Constable Cuddy's house.

The day before (Friday), about 5 o'clock in the morning, he came to Constable Cuddy's house in his bare feet and only partially attired, and acted so strangely and erratically that the constable consulted with some others and they decided that he should be locked up, but his wife begged them not to do so, as he was quite harmless, and only through her intercession was the man allowed to be at large. The murderer is of English origin, and has been living in Prince Edward County and Tamworth, Harlowe and Cloyne for a number of years. He was married to the murdered woman about eighteen years. No family is left.

The Friday before he committed the deed he spent with his wife fishing, and he told Constable Cuddy that one of the fish he taught turned to a serpent and entered into his wife, and he had to slay her to kill the serpent. In bringing the murderer to Napanee, Constable Cuddy says he gave him no trouble until he got upon the train, and then he wanted to jump out of the window, and he had to use some force to compel him to sit still.

He asked the constable to allow him to bring along a Bible and that he has been reading and quoting from ever since. So far as can be learned, he has no relatives in this country, and his wife's relatives are also unknown to the constable who brought the man to Napanee. He spoke freely to the constable about the awful deed, and thinks he only carried out the command of the Lord, who told him to slay the devil.

He then walked to the dock and threw his weapon into the harbor. He went home and was at breakfast with his family, whom he had not appraised of the deed, when arrested.

GOOD SWIMMERS GO DOWN.

Two Brothers Running the Rapids Drown Near Montreal.

Montreal, June 29.—In sight of many people, two brothers, sons of ex-Mayor Michaud of Ste. Annes, were drowned in the rapids of the Ottawa, near the Canadian Pacific bridge, Friday night while trying to emulate others who had successfully gone through the foaming waters.

In company with an elder brother and a friend named Aubin of Pointe Claire they set out for a row shortly after the evening meal, and crossing the river, went up the still water of the creek until they got well above the railway bridge. The boat was then turned to the main water, and after rowing about for a few minutes it was decided to run the rapids, immediately below.

With a crash that was heard above the roar of the rapids and a shout for help from the unfortunate boys, the boat's side was smashed in and the elder Michaud and Aubin were thrown clear upon the breakwater of the pier. They succeeded in holding on, but could do nothing to help the two boys who were being swiftly carried to their death. Both victims were good swimmers, and they were seen to make a desperate effort to keep afloat, but the water was to violent for the puny efforts of boys, and in less time than it takes to write it they were gone from sight.

The deceased were 17 and 15 years of age respectively.

Deceased was about 50 years of age and leaves a widow and large family.

THE MULLAH FLIES.

Authoritative Denial of Story of British Disaster.

WHY GEN. MANNING REGRETS.

A Sensational Despatch From Paris Disproved by Official Message From Somaliland—Mullah's Flight Would Have Been Turned to a Rout If a Column From Bohotle Could Have Followed.

Paris, June 29.—A despatch from Jibutil, Abyssinia, says the Mad Mullah has destroyed five British posts between Burao and Bohotle, in Somaliland. Thirty-nine British officers out of forty-two white men were killed in the engagements. Two thousand native soldiers were made prisoners.

Report Not True.

London, June 29.—The War Office has received a telegram from Somaliland enabling it to contradict the French report of a British disaster.

The last news of the Mad Mullah was that he was hovering eastward of the British forces, threatening the lines between Burao and Bohotle, which were the only British means of communication with the coast. Gen. Manning was expected to reach Bohotle June 26 with reinforcements.

The War Office despatch received Saturday was sent by General Manning from Bohotle, June 26, and announced his arrival there unopposed. He captured a number of the Mullah's camels and sheep while on his way to Bohotle. The General said the Mullah with his fighting men had crossed the British line of communication half way between Damot and Bohotle. The Mullah's move was due to the British hold on the Mudug district, and to the pressure of the Abyssinians, who are advancing from the south.

Gen. Manning added:

"This flight of the Mullah would have been turned into a rout if it had been possible to send a column of sufficient strength from Bohotle. The prisoners captured say the tribesmen are disorganized."

London, June 29.—During the unveiling at Arklow, Ireland, yesterday of a monument to the rebels who fell in the battle of Arklow in 1798, at which ceremony 30,000 Nationalists were present, the latter collided with a band of street preachers, one of whom narrowly escaped death at the hands of the mob. The house in which he took refuge was wrecked. Several hundred policemen were obliged to charge the Nationalists and stones were thrown, batons freely used and many persons were injured before the mob was mastered.

TERRIBLE RAILWAY WRECK.

Ninety People Killed and Many Injured —Only Six Unhurt.

Madrid, June 29.—Fourteen bodies and 50 injured persons have been taken from the wreck of the Bilbao train which overturned at Nejerilla River Saturday night. According to information 80 persons were killed and 60 others seriously injured. Many of the latter will die. Of the three hundred passengers on the train it is stated that only six escaped unhurt. The train, which was composed of two engines and 16 coaches, was crossing the bridge when the couplings between the engines broke. The second engine left the track and fell, followed by the entire train, into the bed of the river. Fortunately the water was low.

Wife Sister Bill Killed.

London, June 29.—The opponents in the House of Commons of the deceased wife's sister's bill talked the measure to death Friday for this session. The bill was eighth on the order of the day, but, owing to the tactics of Lord Hugh Cecil and others, it was not reached until too late to proceed further. This disposes of the bill again, but it will likely appear again next session, as usual.

Boy Shot Dead.

Halifax, N. S., June 29.—John Hennessy, aged 16, was shot dead yesterday afternoon. He was in company with four other boys when a small rifle which they had with them and which was lying on the ground, was discharged. The bullet penetrated his heart, causing instant death. His four companions were arrested, and are charged jointly with causing his death. It is thought the shooting was accidental.

THE GREATEST SPOUT OF ALL.

(Toronto Globe.)

The statement of Mr. Alexander McFee, President of the Montreal Board of Trade, with reference to the St. Lawrence route will be matter for gratulation all over the Dominion. Mr. McFee is reported as saying that Boston, New York and other American ports are being eclipsed by the St. Lawrence route. "All the ships that have come to the port this season," Mr. McFee continued, "have left with full cargoes. The abolition of the canal tolls by the Government has made the St. Lawrence route the cheapest and most desirable route from the great lakes eastward. The American railways are not competing with the Canadian routes by lowering their rates. In other words, they are adhering to their agreements with respect to freight tariffs. They are charging the lowest rate at which the traffic can be made to pay. The wheat can be brought down cheaper by water, and still be made to pay. The port of Montreal is benefiting in this way, and for the first time in the history of the country practically the whole of the wheat grown in our own Northwest is coming down here. In addition to the abolition of the canal tolls, there is another important factor which is highly material to the development of the St. Lawrence route, and that is the increasing capacity of the vessels employed in the transportation of grain from the great lakes through the canal system. Vessels are being introduced on this route which can carry between 70,000 and 80,000 bushels of grain. The steamer Melville, now in port, brought down a cargo of 77,000 bushels."

All this will be heard with satisfaction by those of us who believe that the great lakes and the mighty river which bears their waters to the ocean are the natural summer channel for freights going east and west, from and to the heart of the North American continent. Mr. McFee's testimony is corroborated by facts, that are said to be such stubborn things. For almost the first time largely capitalized navigation companies are being formed to exploit the free highway to its fullest extent and from its most westerly limits to the ocean. The route has had a puzzling and disappointing history. An unkind fate seems to have emptied on it everything that could hinder it and prevent it fulfilling the uses which its continental capacity seemed to promise. The great gulf which the earlier explorers believed from its vast tide, to be the way to China, became in our hands the vehicle for a petty commerce. We were always doing something to it, but that something was always belated. Just as our improvements were finished land transportation methods had advanced so rapidly that the improvements were still more than matched, or, at least, held in equilibrium, by the modern locomotive, and roadbeds that approached the possible in grade and curvature. There was no hostile rivalry on our part. It was no desire to beat the railroad, but it was a resolution to afford a means of transportation that would make wheat-raising profitable in a much wider area than would be feasible if it had to be brought all the way from the wheat fields to the ocean by rail.

This was the problem which confronted the people when Sir Wilfred Laurier and his colleagues came into power. Among the first of their announcements, was that the St. Lawrence route should be made worthy and efficient. The necessary works were pushed rapidly and boldly and the Government's mental attitude has been that whatever was needed to command the confidence of navigators would be done. There were some drawbacks and perhaps some prejudices, and the Ministers have insisted on differentiating the one from the other. It appears as if the clouds were lifting. Once it is demonstrated that the channel is practically what it appears to be theoretically, all real impediments will have been passed. The Canadian people will go on with liberal hand and sure foot to make it throughout its length the unrivalled outlet for the products of a great part of the North American continent.

THE IMPORTANCE OF SPRAYING

Advice Given by Fruit Division of the Department of Agriculture.

The Fruit Division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, issues the following warning to fruit growers:—It is to be feared that the wet weather at present prevailing will lead a good many orchardists to neglect spraying. Last year the summer and autumn were wet and many growers of fruit failed to give their orchards more than two or three sprayings. As Mr. MacKinnon points out, the cool moist weather is peculiarly favourable to the development of fungous growths, and it is only by seizing every opportunity and spraying whenever a day or two of dry weather comes along that sound clean fruit can be secured. Wet weather should be an incentive to greater diligence in spraying, rather than an excuse for not spraying. Eternal vigilance is the price of safety in fruit growing, and it behooves everyone who desires a full crop of first-class fruit to spray early and often.

ORCHARD CULTIVATION.

There is a danger that on account of the wet weather, orchards will not receive their usual cultivation, which is urgently needed to destroy weeds, aerate the soil, and conserve soil moisture for future use. If the ground is not stirred, it bakes, cracks open and evaporation goes on rapidly. By stirring the soil through frequent cultivation, thus keeping a loose mulch on the surface, capillarity is broken up and moisture retained. As soon as it is possible, therefore, to get on the ground after a rain, the cultivator should be started in the orchard and kept going as steadily as time and weather will permit.

PEAR LEAF BLISTER MITE.

The Fruit Division Ottawa, sends the following information with reference to this insect to Mr. R. Bray, Walkerton, Ont.: The pear leaves shown at the Farmers' Institute meeting at Teeswater, are infected with the pearl leaf blister mite (phytoptus pyri.) This insect is sometimes quite prevalent, and although it spreads slowly from tree to tree, is likely to do much harm. Dr. Fletcher, Dominion entomologist, treats of this insect in his report for 1895, page 160. He recommends as the most practical remedy the use of the kerosene emulsion just as the leaf buds are opening.

Dr. Fletcher gives the following description: Reddish spots appear on the leaves, somewhat irregular in shape, about one-eighth of an inch in diameter, and frequently confluent. These appear on the young peach leaves early in spring, and as the summer advances they turn to corky, blister-like galls with a hole in the centre through which large numbers of minute elongated mites issue and attack the fresh parts of the leaf."

This insect attacks only pear leaves and is reported as having been discovered in nearly all pear-growing districts.

THE KING APPLE.

The "King" is one of the favourite varieties of apples in the market, but unfortunately it is so shy a bearer on its own roots, that it is not at all profitable, it has however frequently been noted that by top-grafting it on vigorous stock it becomes more prolific.

The Fruit Division, Ottawa, invites correspondence upon this subject, and has received some valuable information. Mr. C. L. Stephens, of Orillia, has the "King" topgrafted on 'Duchess," and finds that its bearing qualities are quite satisfactory. Mr. W. Read, of Jarrat's Corners, has twelve "King" trees grafted on "Duchess" and reports equally good results. Mr Judson Harris of Ingersoll, has an orchard of two and a half acres, the crop from which for the past eight years has never brought him less than $500. Many of these trees are "Kings" grafted on "Russets." Mr. Robert Murray of Avening, has a number of "King" trees on their own roots, and others grafted on "Tolman Sweets," and notes that the top-grafted trees are the only ones that give him paying crops.

The experience of these growers and many others goes to show that it would be a very profitable piece of business to top-graft at least some of the early apples to be found all over Ontario with "Kings." The "King" is an apple that exactly fills the bill as a fancy market variety, as it is of excellent quality, colour and size, and well known in the English market. If its only defect, want of productiveness, can be cured by the simple method of topgrafting, it should prove a boon to many people who have vigorous trees of undesirable varieties.

SPRINGVILLE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Three cheers for the C.P.R. We noticed Mr. F. E. Wilson at the C. P. R. crossing with a scarlet banner, which he proudly waved as the 7.20 local C.P.R. approached. The signal was sufficient to check the train, and allow Mr. Wilson to get on board, which was the formal announcement that Hendry is a flag station. The intimation is welcomed by hearty appreciation in anticipation of the conveniences to follow. We hope the benefits will be mutual. Mr. F. E. Wilson has provided a flag which can be had at his store anytime by any person wishing to stop the train. Further accommodation by the erection of a platform, etc., will follow.

Mr. T. A. Kelly, councillor for Cavan, found a waterproof coat, which is at Wilson's store awaiting an owner.

Mr. Albert Reynolds, the popular thresher of North Monaghan, is having a blower attached to his threshing machine. Judging by the reputation of this addition, where tried, it will add greatly to the demand for his services, it causing a saving of from two to four men. At this time of labour famine this is a most important improvement and one that will be highly appreciated by progressive farmers.

KINMOUNT.

A correspondent of the Lindsay Watchman-Warder says:

Our village will soon be an up-to-date town, if improvements still go on as in the past year. Last year the new agricultural hall and race track were built. This year the track is being lengthened to half a mile instead of a third of a mile. Mr. Jas. Wilson, reeve of Somerville, has the contract at $1100, and is hard at work with three teams and wheel scrapers. Our fall fair will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 29 and 30. This is not the only improvement. Our new steel bridge is complete and cost $4050. It is 16 feet wide in the roadway and has a four foot sidewalk on the east side. The local Court of Canadian Foresters have the stone basement built for a hall 32 x 70, to cost in the neighbourhood of $2000. This court also has a first class band, and will hold a grand picnic and garden party on Dominion Day in Mr. Hopkin's grove. Then several residents in the village headed by Mr. F. Dettman and Mr. A. Y. Hopkins have built and completed a waterworks system. The water is being brought from Mr. Wilson's farm, about a third of a mile from the main street. It is first class spring water and there is an abundant supply. The fountain is opposite Mr. Dettman's hotel.

Mr. Donald McDougall's house is nearing completion, as is also the new house of Mr. R. J. Mills.

The creamery is running steadily and making on an average about 700 pounds of butter per day. Graham Bros., the proprietors, are enterprising men, and have built a piggery, where they are feeding nearly 100 hogs with buttermilk. The floor of the piggery is of cement as is also the troughs. The building is 100 by 24 feet.

Mr. A. Y. Hopkins is making great improvements to his residence lately purchased from the Scott estate.

We are of the opinion that the G. T.R. have forgotten that the station was burned last fall, as they have made no move as yet to replace it, and travellers are kicking like bronchos. But then we all know that corporations have no souls.

Mr. John McGann passed away on Saturday last after a painful and lingering illness. We sympathize with the family in their bereavement.

OTONABEE COUNCIL.

The regular meeting of the Otonabee Council was held, all the members being present.

W. H. Borland applied for a grant for a wire fence along the road to prevent snow drifting in the winter. Granted 25 cents per rod.

W. A. Anderson applied to have a by-law passed to close the old road through his lot to the Campbellon Wharf. The Clerk was instructed to interview Mr. Dennistoun to see if it would be advisable to declare the old road closed before the new one was made fit for travel by taking Mr. Anderson's word that the old road would be left open until the new one was completed.

Jas. McNeil, W. Drummul, and A. Shearer were present on behalf of the Keene Street Improvement Committee, requesting the council to excavate for a ditch on the east side of High street, across two streets, and purchase sufficient tile for it. Request granted on condition that the township get the old culverts taken out, also the culverts taken out at Dr. Harrison's corner.

The committee appointed to enquire into Patrick Fitzgerald's regust for a ditch along the road opposite his place, reported and recommended that he be granted $7.00 towards the excavation of a ditch, close to his fence, on condition that he place the clay taken out on the side of the travelled road to widen it, as it is very narrow.

If no report is received the Health Inspectors will be instructed to visit the schools at the expense of the section, and to have the water pumped out of the wells at close of the holidays. Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists, price 75c per bottle. LATEST FASHION NOTES.

EVENING COSTUME OF LIBERTY SILK.

A charming evening costume is constructed of Liberty Silk. The bodice is supplied with both finish and style by a dainty corsage device of satin ribbon roses; while the further decoration of a graceful bertha of Luxenil lace inset with pink lace medallions lends itself admirably to the graceful stuff of which this gown is made. The accordian-plaited skirt is decorated with bands of the lace in a pointed effect, with a medallion appearing at each point. Gowns of this character are especially suited to take added beauty from hand embroidery or by using some of the many pretty lace stitches for the medallions. For this choose a hard-twisted silk like Cortilelli crochet or EE twisted embroidery silk.

Among the larger hats for summer weather is shown a shady garden hat of Tuscan straw, with a green velvet wreath on the back of its crown, and a large wreath of pink crush roses resting on the hair in front under the brim—a charming combination having both beauty and chic to commend it.

PROROGUED AT LAST

Longest Session in the History of Ontario Legislature.

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

Did Not Touch Upon the Gamey Matter in Any Way—Five Solid Weeks of Debate Upon Gamey Charges and Report Thereon—Royal Assent Given to Many Bills—An Exciting Session.

Toronto, June 29.—The ceremony of proroguing the Legislature, which took place at noon Saturday, was attended by but nineteen members, the week-end and the release from an arduous session causing them to leave for their homes as soon as the end of the work was reached. The speech of the Lieutenant-Governor, the first to be read since his appointment, was brief, and referred only to some of the outstanding features of legislation, not touching upon the Gamey matter in any way. During the session just closed 205 bills were introduced and 131 passed. This was the longest session in the history of the Ontario Legislature, covering a period of 109 days, from which a deduction of the three weeks' adjournment leaves 88 days, and during this time the House actually sat 62 days. Of this, slightly over five solid weeks were devoted to debating the Gamey charges and the report thereon. The next longest session in Ontario was in 1891, when the House met on February 11th, and was prorogued on May 4th, covering a period of 82 days.

The Lieutenant-Governor was escorted by Commander Law, Col. Otter and Capt. Elmsley, A.D.C. After giving assent to a number of bills he read the following:

Speech From the Throne.

In relieving you from the labors of the session, unusually prolonged, I desire to congratulate you upon the many measures of public importance to which you have given your attention.

The amendment and consolidation of the laws respecting municipal institutions will, I have no doubt, be a great convenience to municipal authorities and to the legal profession, and will contribute to the efficiency of municipal Government, intimately connected as it is with the prosperity of the province.

I cordially approve of the amendments made to the acts respecting Public, High and Separate Schools. By the establishment of one Board of Education for the City of Toronto, the course of study in the various subdivisions of our school system can be more readily adjusted to the interests of the different classes of pupils whose education it is the object of the school law to promote.

It gave me much pleasure to assent to the measure which you have passed enabling municipalities, either singly or in groups, to provide for the construction of municipal power works and the distribution and transmission of electrical energy. The adoption by the municipalities of the privileges conferred by this bill will, I have no doubt, promote the development of our industries and prove of great advantage to the manufacturing and artisan classes.

I am pleased to notice that you have amended the Industrial Schools' Act with the object of extending its usefulness to children more advanced in years than those at present coming under its operation; and in the same connection I desire to express my approval of the act respecting Municipal Houses of Refuge, whereby municipalities that have not already made provision for the aged and indigent shall be required to do so within a reasonable time.

The amendment of the Judicature Act, by which another division of the High Court is established, will, I trust, facilitate the administration of justice and enable all the Superior Courts to dispose more readily of the many cases that come before them from time to time.

I notice with pleasure the increased growth in the facilities for transportation as shown by the unusual number of charters granted for steam and electrical railways in different parts of the province. These facilities, together with the measures for the improvement of highways, will greatly add to the comfort and convenience of residents of the rural districts.

I thank you for the liberality which you have displayed in making the necessary appropriations for the current year, and I assure you that the supplies which you have voted will be expended as economically as is compatible with the efficiency of the public service.

Formal Prorogation.

The Provincial Secretary then said: "It is the desire and pleasure of the Honorable, the Lieutenant-Governor, that this Legislature be prorogued. The Legislature is therefore prorogued."

The Lieutenant-Governor bowed and beckoning to his aide walked out with the Premier, followed by the Speaker and the Sergeant-at-Arms, bearing the sacred mace, and the most exciting session ever held in the legislative halls of Ontario was over.

PAYING TELLERS' ERRORS.

Those Officials Are Usually Ready to Rectify Mistakes.

A bank officer, referring in a recent address to the responsibility of paying tellers, declares that the idea that such officials were rarely willing to rectify mistakes had little basis in fact. He added: "How is it that there exists in the minds of many the idea that paying tellers are inclined to resent even the suggestion that they make errors in counting money? I have never known one who made the slightest claim to infallibility. Who has not heard the ancient and oft told story of a teller who was asked by a person for whom he has cashed a check if he had not made a mistake? As the narrative usually runs the self satisfied money counter behind the desk is inclined to become indignant and replies in a pompous and abrupt manner that he never makes mistakes. The considerate party then states that the amount paid him exceeded that named in the check, but the teller still maintains that there can be no error either way, as he never makes mistakes.

"Where is the teller who upon being told he had made an error would fail to politely inquire as to the nature of the same? The inference is that tellers are possessed of so much vanity and conceit that they lose the amount said to be overpaid rather than acknowledge an error. How unlikely and ridiculous!"

Justus von Liebig.

Von Liebig was skillful in correcting popular delusions on scientific subjects. A notable example of this may be found in the overthrow of the once much discussed theory of "spontaneous combustion," a comparatively modern error, dating, it seems, only from the year 1725, but which persisted long after Lavoisier had explained the real nature of fire, which was from time to time put forward with success in the defense of persons on trial for murder and received its last support from Charles Dickens. His success in this direction throws a pleasant light on the progress of civilization. One wonders what would have been the fate of Von Liebig had he opposed himself to such an error in the sixteenth century when Kepler could only save his mother from going to the stake for witchcraft by satisfying her judges that she possessed none of the signs essential to a witch. In those days Kepler did not dare to say that there were no such things as witches.—W. A. Shenstone in Cornhill Magazine.

Phrenology.

Phrenology is usually thought to have been first expounded by Gall and Spurzheim and to be a comparatively modern so called "science." But it can be traced back to the sixteenth century at least, for in a book published at that time by "Mayster Jherome of Bruynswicke" is a profile of a head on which are most distinctly marked phrenological attributes. "Imaginativa" occupies the place now given on the charts to "ideality;" "fantasia" takes the place of the modern "marvelousness," "estimantia" of "constructiveness," while "cogitantia" is given instead of "hope." The author states that the brain hath cells or chambers, and each cell contains a part of the understanding, and that these parts may be expressly seen in the figure of the head. Phrenologists can at least disclaim against their beliefs being newfangled.—London Chronicle.

Hat Etiquette.

Tipping the hat is a rare thing among men when there are no women around. A few fine old fellows cherish the habit of tipping to each other and to strangers when introduced, but ordinarily the hand never touches the brim. In business offices there is no sort of etiquette. Men in the sweep and rush of business have no time to give thought to hats. But certain decencies should prevail. On entering a private office look at the head of the occupant. If he has his hat on, keep yours on; if his hat is off, remove yours. The removal of your hat is a compliment and a courtesy and does not indicate that you are inferior or subservient.

HISTORIC SODA WATER.

Bottle Recently Recovered From Wreck of the Royal George, 1782.

A bottle of soda water, recovered from the wreck of the Royal George, is to be submitted to public auction by Mr. J. C. Stevens. The relic is said to be well authenticated, and, as the Royal George was sunk on Aug. 29, 1782, it is over 120 years old. Some two-thirds of the contents, originally about half a pint, remain, the cork being still retained by wire partially displaced. Chemical changes corresponding to those produced by ullage in wine presumably account for a thin internal incrustation or discoloration of salts. The bottle, of the familiar soda water shape, incapable of standing up, is of green glass, but in capacity and also as to size of neck there are marked differences between the bottle of the eighteenth and the bottle of the twentieth centuries. No clue to the name of the maker of the soda water is given. Some light upon the evolution of artificial mineral waters has been thrown by Mr. William Kirkby, lecturer on pharmacognosy at the Owens College, Manchester. This investigator remarks: "The question of origin of soda water has from time to time received considerable attention. It would be a matter of some difficulty to ascertain with certainty who was the first to use the name, but the evidence of contemporary records clearly points to Mr. Richard Bewley of Great Massingham, who introduced his mephitic julep in 1767, as the one to whom is due the credit of first conceiving the idea of aerating a solution of soda with carbonic acid gas. The earliest mention of soda water appears about 1798, in which year Carallo refers to it as 'acidulous soda water, as it is commonly called,' and to 'the soda water which is now prepared and sold in London by a Mr. Schweppe contains an incomparably greater preparation of carbonic acid gas.' From the forthcoming testimony it may be safely concluded that soda water was invented in 1767, and it received its present name before 1798."

Soda seems to have preceded all other aerated waters, but seltzer was in existence in 1798, for a receipted billhead is still preserved, dated "London, Sept. 3, 1798. Mr. Yarwood dr. to J. Schweppe & Co., 11 Margaret Street, Cavendish Square, for one dozen half-pint seltzer, 4s." In 1802 Paul of Geneva, who had associated himself with Gosse, a pharmacist, and Schweppe in 1790, was making seltzer, spa, gaseous alkaline water, seidlitz, oxygenated water, hydrogenated water, Vichy water, Bassans, Vals, Contrexeville, Balarne, Plombieres, and Bareges waters. In each case the salts were put into the bottles, and the carbonated water was added afterward. Geneva was at this period exporting 40,000 to 80,000 bottles. There are no contemporary records, stating the method o aeration used by Paul. Ginger beer was once put up in bottles similar in form to the soda water pattern, but of stone, not glass. A glass soda water bottle closely resembling the Royal George specimen was dug up on the Crimean battlefield, showing that no alteration in the model had taken place for seventy-three years. Bottles more than eighty years old are still kept, but the Royal George souvenir is a veteran beside them.—London Telegraph.

Greatest Living All-Round Man.

Lord Kelvin, whose declaration in favor of creative design has come to stimulate waning faith among men of science, has felt a certain shyness in coming forward as an apologist, says The Chronicle. He is admittedly the greatest living all-round man of science. As a physicist and a mathematician he has dealt over a long course of years—he took his degree in his early teens, and he is now nearly eighty—with all problems and puzzles except those of life. His methods fail him when he faces the secrets that no physics or mathematics can solve. He estimated the age of the earth, rather to the confusion of geologists and many years ago he made the famous guess that the first life may have been brought to our earth by a meteorite. Fifty-four years of a professorship of natural philosophy in Glasgow have not supplied Lord Kelvin with a theory of life, such as Haeckel's exploded carbon theory, that dispenses with a first cause. Lord Kelvin, though soon to be four-score years of age, is generally recognized by scientists to be in his intellectual prime.

When the King Kissed Her.

King Edward IV. of England was always in need of money and was in the habit of personally appealing to his wealthiest subjects for contributions. An old chronicle relates this story: "King Edward had called before him a widow much abounding in substance and no less grown in years, of whom he merrily demanded that she gladly would give him toward his great charges. 'By my troth,' quoth she, 'for thy lovely countenance thou shalt have even £20.' The King, looking scarce for half that sum, thanked her and lovingly kissed her. Whether the flavor of his breath did so comfort her stomach or she esteemed the kiss of a King so precious a jewel, she swore incontinently that he should have £20 more, which she with the same will paid that she offered it."

Counsel for English Prisoners.

It is a curious fact that the laws of England make no provision for the defence of persons charged with criminal offences when they have not the means to employ their own lawyers. In very serious cases the bench usually takes it upon itself to provide counsel, but thousands of persons are prosecuted each year without any legal advice. A bill has lately been introduced into the House of Commons which seeks to remedy in part this state of affairs, but it does not go to the extent of having the state pay for the services of the counsel, as is the case in this country. It merely provides for voluntary service on the part of the lawyers.

Flowers and Scents.

Some flowers appear to change their scents at different times. The common jasmine flowers, when first opened have a delicate, fresh perfume which, after a time, becomes grosser and attracts bluebottle flies. Flowers of the orchid Odontoglossum hebraicum have a cinnamon fragrance and a hawthorn scent at different periods of their bloom.

JOHN WESLEY'S BI-CENTENNIAL

Celebrated in Town Churches Yesterday.

ALL DENOMINATIONS JOIN.

Flower Service in George Street Church—Children's Rally in Afternoon—Rev. J. C. Davidson Paid Tribute to Wesley's Memory.

Yesterday thirty millions of Methodists, in all parts of the world, celebrated the bi-centenary of the birth of John Wesley, the man to whom Methodism owes its birth. Born in England on the 28th of June, 1703, he during his lifetime was the means of inaugurating one of the greatest religious movements that the world has ever seen. At his death 50,000 persons were adherents of the church he founded, and this number has steadily grown until to-day the number of those who answer to the name of Methodist is about thirty millions.

In the George street church yesterday the annual flower Sunday services were combined with the Wesley celebration, the effect being one most beautiful. The music was a special feature of the services, the choir under the leadership of Mr. Mulligan, being assisted by Mr. Gliddon's orchestra.

A "Wesley" arch had been built on a platform at the front of the church, and was a mass of flowers, the offering of the members of the Sunday school.

The whole school, each member bearing a bouquet, marched through the church, depositing the flowers on the platform as they went. The bouquets were then placed on the pillars of the arch by Misses Whiten, Robinson, Faint and Warne. It was indeed a most beautiful tribute to the memory of the great founder of Methodism.

The arch is a great credit to Mr. J. S. Knapman, who designed it, and the floral decorations were superintended by Mr. J. J. Jeffries. Mr. Robinson, superintendent of the Sunday school, was chairman of the morning meeting, when three addresses were given, Mr. D. W. Dumble's subject being, "The Early Life of Wesley," in the talk on which he gave some very interesting information regarding the early training of the man who afterwards became the head of the church which now bears the name of Methodist.

Mr. Jeffries, who followed, described "Wesley's Manhood," speaking of the many difficulties he experienced in founding the church, and in preaching the Gospel to the masses of the people.

Master Herbert Mowat then sang a solo, "O Dark Winter Shadows," which was greatly appreciated.

Rev. J. P. Wilson, in a short address, dealt with the benefits which the world had derived from the life of Wesley.

The afternoon service, which was presided over by Rev. J. A. Wilson, was attended by the members of all the Protestant Sunday schools in town, who filled the church to overflowing. The combined orchestras of George and Charlotte streets gave an opening selection. Prayer was offered by Rev. A. H. Brace and the lesson read by Rev. J. Bastow. Revs. J. G. Potter and J. P. Wilson occupied seats on the platform.

The address of the afternoon was given by Rev. W. E. Hassard of Toronto, and was especially for children, the subject being, "Wanted—A Strong Boy," and the speaker was listened to with rapt attention by the hundreds of children present. Master Herbie Mowat again delighted the audience with a solo sung in a clear soprano voice.

At the evening service the pastor, Rev. J. P. Wilson, preached on the "Life and Work of Wesley." He paid a high tribute to the integrity of Wesley, and said that to-day throughout the world honour was being paid to the memory of the man of whom the London Spectator said, "He saved England from the throes of a French Revolution."

The anthems were: "Hosanna" by Granier, Mr. Bert Turner taking the solo, and "Sun of My Soul," in which Mr. Mulligan sang the solo.

The "Wesley" arch took on added beauty at night, being illuminated with electric lights, of red, white and blue. They were installed by Alexander & Miller.

CHARLOTTE STREET CHURCH.

At the evening service in the Charlotte street church, Rev. Mr. Jolliffe gave an interesting account of the life and labors of Wesley. He was the son of an English church clergyman, and twelfth in a family of nineteen. After telling of his birth, which occurred at Epworth, on June 28, 1703, the preacher gave some of the events of Wesley's youth and education. The wonderful influence of Wesley's mother, one of the most remarkable women of her times, was pointed out, and her advice to her son on the question of amusements is well worth quoting. She said: "Take this rule—whatever weakens your reason, impairs the tenderness of your conscience, obscures your sense of God, or takes off the relish for spiritual things—in short, whatever increases the strength and authority of your body over your mind, that thing is sin to you, however innocent it may be in itself."

At the age of twenty-five he was Fellow in Lincoln College and ordained, and for sometime served as a curate under his father. Continuing Mr. Jolliffe showed how the young curate became possessed with a desire to know more of Christ life, and how the term "Methodist," now the pride of millions, was applied in contempt to him and the few associates with him. His work in Georgia in America was taken up, and then the prodigious energy of the man fully illustrated. For fifty-four years he travelled in the saddle on an average of 5000 miles a year, preached not less than twenty sermons a week, and wrote over 200 volumes, covering a wide range of subjects. He attended to his work as a pastor, founded schools, raised funds, and looked after the poor and accomplished an almost incredible amount of work in the face of the most trying circumstances.

After speaking of Wesley's unfortunate marriage and the terrible persecution he endured from press, theatre and church officials, Rev. Mr. Jolliffe gave a beautiful description of the triumphant death of this noble man, firm in the fath he had lived, and so magnificently exemplified. Thus lived and thus died the man who saved England from horrible immorality.

The music at both services was exceptionally good.

AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

John Wesley's bi-centenary was duly observed yesterday at St. John's church, Rev. J. C. Davidson giving a sympathetic sketch of his life. John Wesley, he said, lived and died a loyal member and clergyman of the Church of England, and was one of the most devout, inspired men of his day. He was indeed richly deserving of all the honour they could give him.

His society, as he formed and intended it, was a guild within the church for the promotion of a regulated, godly life. Its members were required to visit the sick, to fast on all days of abstinence prescribed in the prayer book, to partake of the Holy Communion every Sunday, and on all Festivals of the Church, to practice self-examination, economy, simple living and liberal almsgiving. From the regulated methodical life thus enjoined, the members of this useful society were called Methodists.

After Wesley's return from America he began to organize Methodism on a large scale. Its readers were called "lay preachers," the place of assembly was to be known as a "preaching house," and the hours of meeting were not to clash with regular church services, at which all were enjoined to be present. In a word, Wesley designed the system to be supplementary to the ordinary church system, not to compete with it.

In his valedictory address, published shortly before his death, Wesley said, "I live and die a member of the Church of England, and none who regard my judgment will separate from it." No doubt Wesley in his day did not receive in the church the appreciation or support which he deserved, but on the other hand the church took no active steps against him. Whoever was to blame, and probably both were, the Methodists after their founder's death left the church, a fact now generally deplored.

In conclusion Mr. Davidson paid a tribute to the zeal and enterprise which had characterized Methodism to the present time. The feelings of churchmen to them were kindly, he could assure them, though they regretted the schism so unfortunately made. It must be remembered that present-day Methodists were not responsible for this however, and were worthy of brotherly regard. The speaker looked forward to the day when a way might be found whereby John Wesley's followers would on on broad and honourable terms reenter that branch of the Church Catholic to which he belonged, to the advantage of themselves, of the Church, and the glory of God, whose will, he prayed, might be done in whatever way His kingdom was advanced.

GONE BACK TO SCOTLAND.

Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart Return to the Land o' Cakes.

This morning Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart boarded the 11.35 C.P.R. express for Montreal, where they will embark on the steamer Sarmatian for Scotland. Mr. Stewart has imbibed the spirit of home coming so prevalent in Ontario at the present time, and has decided to return to end his days in dear auld Scotia. Mr. Stewart, though a wanderer for forty years in the wilderness of Canada, has lost none of his affection for his native heath, and believes, just now, at least, that he is returning to the promised Land. He seems to think that in dear old Scotland the hills are higher, the grass greener, the heather healthier, the water wetter, and the usquebaugh more untuous than anywhere else in the world, and he feels like returning to spend the autumn of his days in Caledonia, and having his banes laid in the hame kirk yaird. Mr. Stewart has tried several times to tear assunder the ties that forty years residence in Peterborough have woven, but he has come back again, and there is reason to hope that he may again listen to the speerin' of his many friends in town—"Will ye no come back again?"

Mr. Stewart has been forty years a most respected resident of Peterborough, lodging when he first came here in the stone cottage corner of Hunter and Rubidge streets. He has won by his uprightness and urbanity the respect and esteem of a large circle of friends. He was for seven years the capable accountant of the Peterborough Water Company. When you gang awa', Jamie, there's mony a one will miss you and none less than the auld wives that met you at mony a roupin' under Jack Haggart's hammer.

St. John's Church.

Those who attended St. John's church yesterday morning were delighted to hear a sermon by Rev. H. J. Sawyers, master in Trinity College School, who has recently been ordained to the ministry. Mr. Sawyers spent his early life in Peterborough and graduated from the Collegiate Institute here and Trinity College, Toronto. He entered St. John's choir when but a small boy and ever since has been greatly interested in church work. His many friends here are pleased to know of his successful career.

Miss Marion Sherwood sang last evening in St. John's the beautiful solo, "O Divine Redeemer," her singing being much appreciated.

ST. PAUL'S GUILD HONOURS MR. AYERS.

Banquet and Presentation on Eve of His Departure.

Members of Guild Express Appreciation of His Work—Refer to Him as "Father of the Guild."

The members of St. Paul's Young Men's Guild, of which Mr. Horace E. Ayers was the first President, and practically its founder, gave a banquet in his honour on Saturday night on the eve of his departure from the town where he has won so many friends. The event, which was entirely impromptu, was held in McCallum's Dining Hall, and participated in by about twenty members of the Guild. Mr. J. H. Connal, President, filled the office of chairman, and after the appetizing viands had been discussed, in a short speech spoke of the regret which the members of the Guild felt at the loss they were about to sustain in the removal of one of their most valued members. The Guild owed much to Mr. Ayers, and coupled with the regret at their own loss they experienced a feeling of pleasure at the promotion which had come to their friend.

Ald. McWilliams was then called upon and in a speech characterized by eloquence interspersed with humour told of the valued service the guest had rendered the Guild. They looked upon him as the "father" of the Guild, and in his new sphere they felt sure he would continue to display those admirable qualities which had made his work here such a marked success. After a few humourous remarks in reference to Mr. Ayers' popularity with the fair sex, Mr. McWilliams presented him with a pair of gold cuff links, as a mark of appreciation.

Amidst an outburst of applause Mr. Ayers rose to reply, and said that he felt he did not deserve such kindness as had been shown him. He expressed great confidence in the future of the Guild, and asked the members to continue their policy of looking after strange young men in town.

Rev. J. A. Wilson said he would like to add a few words regarding the real true worth of the man they were there to honour, not only was he "A Jolly, Good Fellow," but he was always ready to lend a hand in support of all the interests of the church.

Mr. Ayers, in a clever little speech then proposed the toast, "The Ladies," and coupled with it the name of Mr. Ross Cameron, who responded in a pleasing manner.

Mr. Percy McLean added a few words of commendation of Mr. Ayers and his work.

The gathering dispersed after singing heartily "Auld Lang Syne."

PARK STREET BAPTIST.

Interesting Services Were Held Yesterday.

Yesterday was Sunday School day at the Park street Baptist church, being the great children rally at the George street church. The services of the day were in keeping with the event. The services were unique. The children were seated on platform and took part in the singing all day. In the morning the pastor dealt with the subject of "What is a Boy Worth." From "All Thy Children shall be taught of the Lord" showing the Divine estimate of the child. Children were a choice possession and should be developed. There was a time in the world's history when a childless home was a calamity. The preacher wished modern society would say the same.

"The subject for the evening service was "Paying Old Debts," from the text "How Much Owest Thou." The preacher said "Honesty was the best policy." We owed a debt to the aged generally, and our aged parents in particular, also to the unevangelized. From the great debt of a life of transgression, when the Gospel story was told. Each point was illuminated with illustration. The congregations all day were large and full of inspiration. A special subject will be treated every Sunday in July.

The Japan "Gazette" gives an account of the recent visit to the Canadian buildings at the Osaka Exposition of the Crown Prince and Princess of Japan, who were received by representatives of the Canadian Government and Canadian Pacific Railway Company. The paper says: "The Prince entered personally and sat down in a section of a Canadian Pacific Railway sleeping car which is one of the features to the exhibit, and seemed agreeably struck by the convenience and luxuriousness of the appointments. The Imperial party looked at the Canadian Fruits and Cereals and paid special attention to the model of the C.P.R. "Empress" floating in the lake." Over half an hour was spent in viewing the exhibit with which their Royal Highnesses were greatly pleased and afterward they accepted samples of Canadian bread and fruit.

FORESTERS ATTEND ST. LUKE'S CHURCH.

Rev. E. A. Langfeldt Conducted the Service.

Yesterday evening some seventy members of the Ancient Order of Foresters, attended divine service at St. Luke's church, Ashburnham. Rev. E. A. Langfeldt conducted the service and preached an excellent and appropriate address. For his text the preacher took the words to be found in the 11th verse, 49th chapter of Jeremiah, "Leave thy fatherless children and widows; I will preserve them alive, and let they widows trust in Me."

The reverend gentleman commenced his address by stating that there is no subject more open to general observation than the affection of our Heavenly Father. Throughout the great expanse of the universe, continued Rev. Mr. Langfeldt, everything contributed to the welfare of the world, everything needed is abundantly provided for and it is worthy of particular notice that God often comes in some manner to the help of the distressed. God makes no distinctions, said Rev. Mr. Langfeldt, it came under his care, but perhaps, the widow and the fatherless receive a first place in His affections.

The preacher then dwelt at some length on the good work which the Order of Foresters was doing, stating that many widows through the assistance of the Order, had been able to train and educate their children. He hoped that the generation to follow would continue the work, and increase the membership of the Order. Speaking directly to the members of the Order present, the preacher remarked that in carrying out the aim of their Order they were fulfilling the word of the Bible and following the example of our Saviour. In conclusion he remarked that he hoped they would leave the church at the conclusion of the service with an even greater desire to help all those who were distressed in any manner.

ROYAL TEMPLARS OF TEMPERANCE

Met on Tuesday Evening Last—A Musical Programme.

A very interesting meeting of the Royal Templars of Temprance was held at their rooms over the bankrupt store on George street, on Tuesday evening, June 23rd. After the usual business of the Order was transacted and three new members received, the meeting was thrown open to the public. A short programme was given by the members, consisting of readings, recitations, music, vocal and instrumental. Mr. James Browne kindly sang two which was very much appreciated by all. It was decided at a srecent meeting of the Order to have open meetings at 8.30 in the future and all visitors will be cordially welcomed. This Lodge is in a prosperous condition, thirteen new members were received during the last month and there are several more who will be ready for the next meeting. The time of meeting is the 2nd and 4th Tuesday in the month. Next meeting July 7th.

Excelsiors Win Good Game From Auburns.

BASEBALL.

EXCELSIORS VS. AUBURNS.

The fans were treated to a game of championship ball in earnest on Saturday afternoon when the invincible Excelsiors took another fall out of the Auburn aggregation. Flaherty never pitched better ball and his support was of the best. The Auburns, who by the way, are no slouches, were shut out by a score of 9—0. Both teams played gilt edged ball until the sixth innings, not a player crossing the plate. After that the Excelsiors began to get their eye on McCorry's offerings, with the result that in the sixth 3 runs were scored. Two were added in the seventh, and four in the eighth. This finished the run getting. Some brilliant plays were made; Casson in centre field, secured a very difficult fly, which no one expected to see him catch. Simpson for the Excelsiors, also raked in a long fly to centre. A fast double play was made by the Auburns—Sheridan cracked out a fly to Foster in left field, who doubled to Renton on 2nd, catching Pilling.

It was only by the hardest kind of luck that the Auburns failed to score. A number of times with men on second and third the side was retired, because the batter failed to connect with Flaherty's offerings. Belleghem behind the bat played a star game, allowing no passed balls; he also placed some beautiful hits which helped to win the game for the champions.

The Excelsiors are in splendid condition for their struggle with Lindsay to-night. The score follows:

TO-NIGHT'S GAME.

At the Murray street grounds to-night the fast Excelsiors will play the Clippers of Lindsay. Flaherty and Belleghem will be the battery for the home team, and it will be the best game of ball seen on the local grounds this season. The Lindsay team has been strengthened since their last game with the Excelsiors and a close game is sure to result. The boys should be encouraged, and now that the grand stand has been erected a good crowd should attend.

* * * *

Mr. N. H. Simpson, manager, and Mr. R. J. Menzies, secretary, arrived in town this morning with their winning bunch of ball tossers from Lindsay, and will make a struggle at 6.15 this evening to maintain their high record and will make the Excelsiors play ball all the way to win out. The team is registered at the Oriental Hotel. The following is the line-up of the Lindsay team:—

W. Cinnamon, p; T. Miller, c; N. McGill, 1b; H. Workman, 2b; B. Menzies, 3b; T. Stinson, ss; A. McWilliams, lf; F. Brooks, cf; W. Stalker, rf. All home brews.

Two games were played by the Intermediates on Saturday, the games between the Ys. and the Orioles being an exhibition game. Both teams put up good ball but the battery work of the Orioles was steadier than that of the Y's. The game between the Victorias and the Shamrocks was a scheduled game, and placed the Shamrocks at the head of the League. The Victorias were handicapped by the loss of three of their senior men. Their presence might have changed the score, but in all probability the result would have been the same. Quinlan for the Shamrocks, as he always does, pitched good steady ball, mixing with a master hand his speedy shots and slowly floating curves. He fielded his position well, too, having a number of assists and outs to his credit. The team behind him all played good ball, Craig at short, particularly distinguishing himself. The "Kids" played fairly well; Mulhern was steady but the boys were a little afraid of their larger opponents. Mr Kenner umpired to the satisfaction of all, and the games were run off without a murmur.

FOOTBALL.

The Y.M.C.A. I. team went to Chemong on Saturday to play the return game in the semi-finals with Bridgenorth, and came back greatly elated at their success. The score, according to the statement of a local sport, who accompanied the winners, stood at the close, 8—1 in favour of the visitors. They were expecting a hard game, as rumours had reached them that the Bridgenorth team was practicing steadily and was bound to win. The visitors played all around them, however, and were never in better form. The result of the game was not in doubt after ten minutes play, the "Y" putting them in at will.

GOLF.

The competition for Haskell balls played on Saturday was won by Mr. R. M. Hamilton, who played scratch. He made the 18 hole round in 79; first nine holes in 40, and second nine holes in 39. This is the record for the links this year. Mr. S. Ray, H. D. Burnett and R. Neill all tied for second place with a score of 86.

* * * *

The second round of the Neill trophy must be finished by 4th July.

LACROSSE.

Fred Pope, of Campbellford will play with the Victorias of Port Hope against T.A.S. II team on Wednesday.

* * * *

Dogan, of the Oshawa team was not on the line-up Saturday. He is away on a two weeks' trip and will come back with a bride.

Port Hope's default to Oshawa in a junior C.L.A. game Saturday was caused by the failure of Port Hope to secure the certificates in time.

* * * *

Oshawa's defeat at the hands of the Tecumsehs on the Island Saturday came as a surprise to local lacrosse men. Oshawa is accused of roughing it, but a strict referee soon brought them to time.

* * * *

Oshawa will bring a strong team to town Wednesday to battle with the T.A.S. twelve, and a stiff game is likely to follow. The locals are in fine fettle, and to-night's practice on the Oval will be the last before the game.

* * * *

Admission to the Murray street grounds on Wednesday afternoon will be at the Murray street entrance, and all spectators must take the grand stand.

* * * *

The T.A.S. Lacrosse Club will run a Saturday afternoon excursion on July 18thth to Jubilee Point.

* * * *

Neither Port Hope nor Oshawa has a game scheduled for the holiday Now why don't those teams that love each other so dearly get together and play a "friendly" game!—Telegram.

* * * *

One thing Port Hope is going to do if it is within the range of human possibility is to beat Oshawa when the latter club visits Port Hope on July 15th. The latest man to sign an Ontario certificate is Walter Cain, of last year's Brantford team. Cain is a pretty fair home player, and with Roach, Kelly, McDonough and Pennock or Donaldson the Ontarios will have a pretty good home tacked on to their big, strong defence. It looks like Port Hope to beat Oshawa in the annual contest.—Telegram.

RUNNING.

The following letter has been received by the Examiner from D. Belland in reply to one signed "True Sport," which appeared in a local paper Saturday:—

Dear Sir,—Allow me, through your valuable paper, to inform the "True Sport", as he calls himself, that I am not here looking for any newspaper talk, and when he says some person imported me here to run, he is greatly mistaken, and it is not necessary to belittle me, as, if he wants to know, I came here last March, and thinking it a nice town and a good place to train, and also that my expenses would be less, as no person but myself has them to pay, that I located here, but the True Sport thinks I should not stop in this town. I do not know how much he owns of it, or I would have asked him if I might stay over night in it. I never knew of his friend Mr. McGrath and did not know of any sprinter so narrow minded until he approached me and asked me to put a challenge in the paper to run him for the Schneider Cup, which I did. Then he wanted to win it. He cannot run fast enough, if I can run in 9 4-5, which he says I can. I wish I could. I do not know why the "True Sport" and his friends, if he has any, should be jealous of me staying here, as any time I started in the athletic sports here, I ran to the front. So, therefore, if "True Sport" had an ounce of reason or horse sense, he could not think I was here looking for Fred's scalp, for I do not think there would be much in it, if I got it; and, as for a boy, I am only a boy myself, and will give ten yards for every month I am older than Fred., being only 18 years of age. So who is the boy? And, as for my amateur standing, I can prove it. If he wishes any more information regarding my finances and reputation, he may apply to me, or if I am an eyesore in this town, I can move as fast as any person they have here, not forgetting their man Corbett, the champion 1-3 mile.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space you have given me.

D. BELLAND.

ALBANY TO BE RAZED

FAMOUS LONDON BUILDING WILL BE BUT A MEMORY SOON.

It Was Been a Fashionable Apartment House For Bachelors a Hundred Years—Was Erected in the Middle of the Eighteenth Century—Byron, Lytton and Macaulay Lived in It—First Used Thus in 1804.

Many Canadians who have visited London, and who have been impressed by the old-world quiet, distinction, and picturesqueness of the Albany, off Piccadilly, must have experienced regret at learning, from a recent cable dispatch, that this historic building is to be sold. A few weeks ago the owners of the property decided to dispose of it. What will be done with the site is at present unknown, but it is said to be certain that the building will be torn down, and it is quite probable that a big hotel will take its place.

It is somewhat surprising to learn that it is the tenants themselves who have decided to sell the Albany. The system on which apartments are obtained in the building is altogether different from that which governs an apartment house in the new world. The present tenants are all freeholders, and it is at their instance that the building is placed in the market. The site is, of course, a very valuable one, and it is believed that $1,000,000 or even more may be obtained for it.

The Albany was erected in the middle of the eighteenth century on a site once occupied by Sutherland House. What is now the centre of the building was designed by the celebrated architect Sir William Chambers, and was built for Lord Holland. In 1770 Lord Melbourne purchased it, and changed its name from Piccadilly House to Melbourne House. Some years later Lord Melbourne made over the house to the Duke of York and Albany, second son of George III., receiving in exchange a mansion in Whitehall.

It was in 1804 that the Albany was first used for the purpose which has made it the most famous apartment house in the world. Perhaps it will continue to be occupied by bachelors for another year, when it will have existed for a century. In 1804 the building was much enlarged, the gardens behind being built over, the designation of the Albany was conferred upon it, and it became a home for bachelors, accommodation being provided for sixty tenants.

From the first the Albany proved a success, and apartments in it were eagerly sought. The proprietors carried exclusiveness to a point which could not be attempted in this country, and the traditions which they began have ruled ever since. They ordered that no person engaged in any commercial occupation was to be allowed to rent a suite, so that rich tradesmen anxious to live in such a fashionable house were disappointed. This regulation still obtains, and if one seeks to obtain an apartment in the Albany he has to prove his "gentility" according to old English standards.

George Canning was one of the first of the hundreds of well-known men who at one time or another lived in the Albany. In 1807 he took a lease of Suite No. 5 A. Almost next door to him was Lord Althorp, who afterward was Chancellor of the Exchequer. Lord Althorp's rooms were made over to Lord Byron in 1814. When Lord Althorp came back to them six years later they were frequently utilized as a meeting place for distinguished members of the Whig Party. Monk Lewis, who lived at 1 K, entertained Byron there on one or two occasions. The company invited to meet him does not seem to have pleased the author of "Don Juan," for he told Horace Smith (who was among the diners) that he would not go there again, or "dine with a middle-aged man who fills up his table with young Ensigns." Other early tenants were Robert Smirke, Lord Webb Seymour, Lord Valentia, Sir William Gell, and Bulwer Lytton.

Macaulay's connection with the Albany commenced in July, 1841, and expired in 1856. His set was 1 E on the second floor. He wrote the greater part of his "History of England" there. In a letter to a friend he refers to his tenancy as follows:

"I have taken a very comfortable set of chambers in the Albany, and I hope to lead during some years a sort of life peculiarly suited to my taste—a college life at the west end of London. I have an entrance hall, two sitting rooms, a bedroom, a kitchen, cellars, and two rooms for servants—all for 90 guineas a year, and this in a situation which no younger son of a Duke need be ashamed to put on his card."

Lord Glenelg took up his quarters in the Albany in 1845, and Mountstuart Elphinstone (who distinguished himself as Governor of Bombay) left in the following year. Among other famous residents in the building during its early days were Sir Charles Napier, Sir John Hobhouse, Lord Brougham, and Henry Cuttrell. It is often stated that the famous Daniel Lambert had rooms in the Albany. As a matter of fact, however, he lived in an adjoining house.

The Albany now has fifty-seven tenants. The approaching disappearance of the building has excited remarkably little comment in the London papers, few of them giving more than a few lines to an announcement which must have interested not only every student of history but a large proportion of novel readers, for there is hardly an English "society" novel of the last half century that has not contained some mention of the Albany. An article by Horace Wyndham in The Pall Mall Gazette is perhaps the most complete on the subject that has appeared, and from it most of the particulars contained in the foregoing are taken.

Her Ultimatum.

Railway Surveyor—We are going to run a railway line right through your barn.

Farmer's Wife—All right; I don't mind. But you remember that I will have no trains after 9 o'clock at night. I have no intention of getting up after that to open the door for the trains to go through.

THE SOUP PLATE.

A Seventeenth Century Cookbook Tells Why It Was Invented.

A valet of Louis XIV. published a cookbook in 1635 in which he gives as follows the reason for the invention of the hollow soup plate:

The plates of the guests will be hollow in order that they may help themselves to as much soup as they may want without being obliged to take it spoonful by spoonful, because of the disgust they may have for one another on seeing the spoon go from the mouth to the tureen.

Guests, it will be seen, used their own spoons to fill their plates, the large spoon to be used for serving the soup not being invented till some time later. Yet even a hundred years after the invention of the soup plate (1749) a work on civility advised that all the dishes should be so placed on the table that every one could reach them with his spoon and that if the soup was served in a dish (tureen) every one should help himself with his own spoon without seeming to be in a hurry. A work on manners that appeared just before the French revolution deemed it best to advise its readers that it was impolite to pass the spoon back and forth between the mouth and the tureen.

A Plea For Descriptive Titles.

Setting aside the flood not to be counted as literature, the naming of a book that is worthy of a name is a matter of real moment. Two methods seem to have been followed—that of using the name of a leading character, as "Jane Eyre" and "Rob Roy;" the other that of giving some hint of the nature of the book, as in "Vanity Fair" and "The Cloister and the Hearth." The first method has no justification. What we plead for is that a title shall contain the soul or the keynote of the book. Then the author and reader start on fair terms. Jane Austen, a consummate artist, understood this well, as in "Pride and Prejudice," but forsook her advantage in "Emma"—a better book and susceptible to as telling a title. It is difficult to estimate what would have been the loss to literature if "The Scarlet Letter" had been labeled "Hester Prynne" and "The House of Seven Gables"—a title that has worked its way into architecture—had been called "The Pyncheons."—Dr. Theodore T. Munger in Bookl'vers' Magazine.

LUMBERMAN TELLS HIS EXPERIENCE

How Dodd's Kidney Pills Quickly Cured His Lame Back.

William N. Baskin, of Norwood, Gives Good Advice and Others are Following it With Splendid Results.

Norwood, Ont., June 29. — (pSecial) —William N. Baskin, the well-known lumberman and railroad contractor of this place, tells of an experience with Dodd's Kidney Pills that is bound to be of interest to the public generally.

"For two years," says Mr. Baskin, "I was laid up with lame back and kidney disease. I would at times become weak and have to lay off work. People who knew me as lumberman and contractor on the C.P.R. and Parry Sound Railways knew how sick I was.

"Reading of wonderful cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills led me to try them. I used three boxes and am completely cured. I can say now I have not had any pains since I used Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Others who have followed Mr. Baskin's advice and tried Dodd's Kidney Pills, report similar results. No form of Kidney Disease can stand before them.

Weighing a Field of Turnips.

The English farmer makes use of mathematics in his work, says a London paper. Suppose, for example, that he wishes to know the weight of his turnip crop while it is still in the ground, which is sometimes a matter of importance, a simple calculation will give him the information.

It is the custom in England to plant turnips in ridges twenty-eight inches apart; this makes ninety ridges to the acre. The farmer selects a row where the crop seems about the average and pulls up all the turnips in a measured yard of the row and weighs them.

Assuming that they weigh ten pounds, a simple calculation shows that the crop averages a little more than twenty-eight tons to the acre. If they weigh eleven pounds, the average will be about thirty-one tons to the acre.

A Famous Emerald.

The emerald is mentioned by St. John in his Apocalypse. An emerald of inestimable value ornamented the bezel of the ring of Polycrates, king of Samos. That monarch, having been all his life favored by fortune, determined to put his luck to a severe test. He threw the ring into the sea. The next day he went fishing.

The record of that day's sport still remains unbroken. His majesty caught a fine fish, and in the inside of the fish he found his ring. That happened in the year 230 of the foundation of Rome, and the ring, considered as a talisman, was placed among the royal treasures of the Temple of Concord.

Her Age.

"Madam," replied the judge sternly, "you must answer the question. What is your age?"

"I was born the same year your honor was. That would make me about"—

"It isn't necessary to go into particulars," interposed the judge stiffly. "Gentlemen, have you any further use for the witness? You may stand aside, madam."

A Typographical Error.

"I've come," said the visitor, "to see why you called me a political jobber in your paper today."

"I regret that error of the types quite as much as you," replied the editor.

"Ah! Then you didn't mean to call me that?"

"No, sir. I wrote 'robber' very distinctly."

Munyon's Great Work.

Madame Gadbois a Martyr for Seventeen Years—Now Cured and Free of Pain.

'I have had Rheumatism for 17 years, and have been in bed for three months at a time from this terrible disease. I have tried many different doctors and medicines, but they did me no good at all. The pains affected the muscles in my shoulders and neck, and they were in such a chronic, painful condition that I despaired of ever getting well. At times I could not stand on my feet, the pains were so frightful. The first bottle of Munyon's Rheumatism Cure gave me great relief, and the second bottle cured me."—Madame E. Gadbois, 904 Berri street, Montreal.

TIMING EXPOSURES.

A Work in Which Photographers Become Remarkably Accurate.

The photographer was about to take a picture of a young woman. "It's so dark here," he said, "that I guess I'll give you about thirty seconds," and, drawing out the slide and removing the cap, he began to count in a measured and mechanical tone, "one, two, three, four, five," and so on. When the exposure was finished the sitter said: "You gave more than thirty seconds to that plate. You counted very slow—I'm sure it took you a full minute to count thirty."

The photographer handed his watch to the young woman. He said: "I'll count thirty again. Time me." And he made the count exactly as before and he was just twenty-nine seconds making it. "One second off—not so bad. Near my old record, in fact," said the photographer. "Ten years ago, when I made more pictures than I do today, I could by counting make exposures up to five minutes without being more than a second off. Usually I'd be a second under; but, over or under, it was only by one second that I'd be out of the way. But," he added, "this gift is not remarkable. Nearly every photographer has it. Nearly every one of us can guess spaces of time running from a half a second to five or six minutes with what is for all practical purposes perfect accuracy."

Nature the Only Healer.

Medicine never did any person a particle of good except by digestion, assimilation—going into circulation, etc. No salve contains any healing property except as a protection to keep away the effect of oxygen in the air, dirt or any foreign substance from coming in contact with the part affected. The natural powers of our being possess the only power to heal. Anything that may be done to assist in a natural way is good—contrary, bad. Give good food to make good blood. Breathe good air, rest and not overexercise to the extent of fatigue. Then the body will recuperate. Then the wound will be healed by healthy serum that is secreted to heal all wounds, not the salve. The salve protects from outside influence, while the machinery within goes on with its work. Nature does it all.

One Way to Keep Accounts.

In a book of accounts found on the premises of a bankrupt dealer in a city in the west of England were the following names of customers to whom credit had been given and which would have puzzled all the official receivers in the kingdom: Woman on the key, Jew woman, coal woman, old coal woman, fat coal woman, market woman, pale woman, a man, old woman, littel milk girl, candle man, stableman, coachman, big woman, lame woman, quiet woman, egg man, littel black girl, Jew man, Mrs. in a cart, old Irish woman, woman in Corn street, a lad, man in the country, long Sal, Mrs. Irish woman, Mrs. feather bonnett, blue bonnett, green bonnett, green coat, blue britches, big britches, the woman that was married and the woman that told me of the man.

In an Old Time House.

To go down into the low celled kitchen, with its heavy, rough hewn timbers and its great fireplace with the logs fast turning to coals; to look into the old brick oven, where bread for a regiment could easily have been baked, and, perchance, to be asked to sit down on the old wooden settee under the little window where the pot of flowers stands and drink tea from a quaint blue cup will complete the charm the place has thrown about you. Many fantasies will throng the mind, and the shadows cast upon the walls by the wavering light make this house their home—one booted and spurred and with a military step, the other a rustle of silk and a whiff of rare perfume.

America's Largest Snake.

The largest American serpent is the anaconda, which may attain a length of thirty feet. It inhabits tropical America and is a handsome animal, with dark round spots scattered over its whole body on a groundwork of rich brown. It is very fond of water and haunts the banks of rivers, lakes and streams, there lying in wait for any deer or peccary which may come to the margin of the water to drink.

New Toques.

Throughout the season there will be days and gowns with which the trim and fascinating toque will appear to much better advantage than the large shady hat. The sketch offers some of the newest examples of this useful and chic bit of headgear.

In the center appears a large toque of champagne rush straw, trimmed with champagne net, converted into a passementerie with an embroidery of fine straw and black sequins. It has a cachepeigne of black ostrich feathers, while a rosette of black velvet accentuates it on the left side.

A good seaside toque is the upper figure of dark blue straw with brim of frills of biscuit straw divided by rouleaux of white tulle. The trimming is a handsome quill thrust through a straw rosette.

Very popular and serviceable is the black toque of "drop" sequins, trimmed with folds of black chiffon and a black ostrich tip curling on the hair behind.

A Fleeting Joy.

"In spring we kin look de coal dealah in de eye wid disdain an' git ouah secon' wind befo' de iceman an' his grabhooks git holt ob us fo' de summah," says Judge Wooltop of Blackville. "Dis am what make hit er joyful season."

Too Much Bile in the Blood.

Stomach Troubles, Biliousness and Headache the Result of Torpid Liver.

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

The action of the liver is important in two ways. It filters from the blood the poisonsous impurities which cause biliousness, headache and stomach troubles. These, in turn become bile in the liver, and are passed into the intestines as a cathartic to keep the bowels regular and active. By acting directly on the liver Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure torpid, sluggish liver and all ailments arising therefrom.

Mr. Rogers Clancy, farmer, Chepstowe, Bruce county, Ont., states: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and would say that there is no medicine that equals them as a cure for stomach troubles, biliousness, torpid liver and headache. I was troubled a great deal with these ailments before using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and they have proven wonderfully successful in my case.

"I would not think of being without a box of these pills in the house, and whenever I feel any symptoms of these disorders I take one of these pills, and they set me all right again. I can strongly recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the troubles mentioned above."

Mr. John Baker, Deseronto, Ont., states, "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills and can truthfully say that they are perfect in their work. I was subject to pains in my sides and back. At times I had to lay off work and feared that I would never get rid of the ailment, which was causing my sufferings. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills were recommended to me, and I found them to be exactly suited to my case. Since using them I have never had a return of my old troubles."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author are on every box. 2

BASIN MILLS' ERUPTION

By James Edmund Dunning

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClu[illegible]

A ruddy lad came into Dildoc's office and spread himself before the stove.

"Cold mornin', doc!" he said.

Dildoc, in whom the pains of deep dejection were added to those of intense cold, said nothing.

"Twenty below," went on the boy, unabashed. "Twenty below at Treworgy's this mornin'; 'most as cold in here; don't seem to git much good out 'r this stove, do you?"

"William," replied Dildoc, "there has been no fire in that stove for three days."

William did not conceal his chagrin. He peeped behind the stove into the empty wood box, then grinned in a way intended to express keen sagacity.

"Say, doc," he remarked confidentially, "I sh'd think doctorin' at Basin Mills 'd be pretty mean pickin'."

Dildoc shivered. He wondered if William knew that only lack of funds prevented his leaving Basin Mills to its fate. Twelve months at the Mills had established it as the sanitary center of the known world.

"Ain't much sickness, I guess," continued the cheerful William.

Dildoc wanted to move that very day, but of the $20 necessary he possessed not so many cents.

"Hod Owen's cookee come down from th' woods las' night, though," rambled William, "an' down to Treworgy's they said jus' now he was real sickly; spoke about callin' you in"—William's eyes flashed—"but only thought 'twas a pity to interrupt a doctor for such a small case."

Dildoc was too weary to be cross. "What woods?" he asked.

"Wes' Branch. They's been smallpox up there."

Dildoc's heart leaped, chilled though it was. William seemed safe, so he said:

"Smallpox, eh?"

"Yeh."

"Seen him?"

"No."

"Anybody seen him?"

"He was at Treworgy's, a-settin' on th' cracker bar'l las' night when he took sick, but held out till he'd called to th' Free Will Babtist sociable an' took Miss Owen home."

Dildoc couldn't sit still.

"William," he said, striving to be professionally nonchalant, "smallpox is a very terrible disease."

William's eyes waxed.

"Nineteen hundred people died of smallpox one year out west."

William edged toward the door, affecting indifference.

"It is communicated to large numbers of people in public places," continued Dildoc, "and is"—

"Gotter be a-goin'," explained William, nearer the door, "dinner time to my house, an' I"—

The door shut on him. Dildoc saw him pound rather obviously down the stairs, then, with one hurried backward glance, begin running.

"To Treworgy's store!" cried Dildoc. "I have them at last!"

Three minutes later he was at the drug store, soon returning to his office with all the vaccine points in town.

"Only twenty," he murmured regretfully; "must use 'em double, or something."

He split up the wood box and a small chair, and made a fire. Then he got out a last summer's sample copy of the International Journal of Medical Jurisprudence, and sat down behind it. In precisely thirty-five minutes the expected happened. William entered.

"Say, doc," he cried, "Owen's cookee's worse. They want you quick!"

"Very busy, William," responded Dildoc from behind his imposing barricade. "Tell 'em I can't come just now."

Another wait. Then the first selectman arrived.

"Doctor," he said uneasily, "we've got a sort of peculiar kind of a case of sickness up to Hod Owen's. Won't you come up and look at him?"

Dildoc condescended to drop his magazine. "What is it like?" he asked.

"Queer—sort of fever, they say."

"U-m-m-m! Pains in back and head?"

"Yes—some."

"Appetite?"

"Not a mite."

"Dry tongue?"

"Awful dry!"

"Eruptions?"

The first selectman tiptoed to the door and peeped out cautiously. Evidently satisfied that the secret was secure, he returned, and, leaning over, whispered:

"He's broke out like he'd been hit by a shotgun!"

Dildoc leaped to the door and turned the key with a dramatic flourish.

"Quarantine him," he whispered, "and don't tell a soul. I'll be up soon."

"Smallpox!" gasped the first selectman.

Dildoc held up a warning finger. Then he opened the door and motioned the other out. "Not a word to a soul, but do your duty like a man—your official duty without fear," he whispered.

The first selectman turned with a heavy, mysterious nod and crept away.

Dildoc's watch had counted off ten minutes when a white faced individual knocked at the office door. He spoke in the prevailing whisper.

"Just come up to be vaccinated," he rasped.

"How did you know?" Dildoc found it convenient to simulate profound surprise.

"First selectman told me—very private. He's a friend o' mine. Saw him just now."

Dildoc charged him a dollar and judged by the triumphant relief in the man's face that that might safely stand as the regulation price for future cash orders in Basin Mills. In the middle of the transaction another chalky citizen came sneaking in. He also was a particular friend of the first selectman, and his dollar joined the other in Dildoc's pocket. Just then four women and two boys came cautiously up the stairs. As he admitted them Dildoc counted eight others approaching from down the street. It flashed upon him that the night express stopped at the local water tank during the three minutes following 9:27 p. m.

* * * * * * * *

Up at Hod Owen's the patient was restless. The eruptions on his forehead were growing in number, and more were coming on his neck. He had also somewhat violently declined the doubled and trebled potions of pennyroyal tea brought him by Mrs. Owen's own hand. The lady grew restive too. When restive, she was vocal.

"Hod Owen!" she called over the frail banisters. "You run down an' call the doctor. It's time he come."

"Is he worse?"

"Must be—gone back on best pennyroyal from the lower medder farm. Now, you hurry."

Mr. Owen found an astounding number of people before his gate in clusters on the other side of the street. As he came down his steps the first selectman stepped from the crowd and said:

"Hold on, there, Hod. Don't you come another step."

Mr. Owen halted from sheer surprise. Then his indignation rose to the occasion.

"What's up?" he said, intending to be insolent as sounding brass.

"You're quarantined," replied the first selectman, standing very straight and important.

"You're a liar!" retorted Mr. Owen. "I hain't no such a— Say, what's that you said?"

"Quarantined! Quarantined for smallpox. The cookee's got it bad. You an' the whole Owen caboodle's under arrest—o-ficially under arrest!"

"Hod Owen," came a shrill call from the rear, "quit yer gallivantin' an' go for that doctor!"

Mrs. Owen prevailed. The first selectman, uttering sundry horrible threats, fell back in good order. Mr. Owen proceeded.

His appearance in the highway caused an amazing sensation. The crowd, which had halted at a small distance, bound to remain within earshot, yelled some more and began an active retreat up side paths. His progress was accompanied by an off stage chorus of slammed doors. In front of the grocery eight men and a boy engaged in earnest discussion of the day's news caught sight of him simultaneously and vanished in a cloud of heels and blue overalls. He heard the bolt slide as he passed. He was very angry.

Dildoc had twenty-three persons on the waiting list when Mr. Owen arrived, walking resolutely in. A hush of horror fell. One man began trying the back windows. Dildoc's face gleamed with inspiration.

"Owen," he cried, "you stand perfectly still. There's smallpox at your house. Yes there is. I know it. Now, all here are safe. You'll be vaccinated in twenty minutes. But did you meet anybody coming down?"

"'Bout a quorum of th' total population, I guess," was the reply.

"Vaccinated, do you think?"

"Not in the runnin' gear—by the way they legged it when they see me. Such a pa'cel o' "—

Dildoc enjoyed a Napoleonic half minute, while Mr. Owen freed his mind. Then he peeped out. The first selectman had his ear to the keyhole, somewhat sheepish.

"Go up street instantly," commanded Dildoc, "and have every one of those who met Mr. Owen brought down for vaccination. They're all exposed, and we must check the epidemic and save the town. It's all on you, I know, but you must do your duty without fear and save the place. They object now, but some day they'll make you a monument for this. Do your duty like a man."

Dildoc sent Mr. Owen home in a most terrifying rubber coat, promising to come up and see the cookee in half an hour. Before the man was downstairs the procession resumed its march. The first selectman was plainly doing his duty without fear. Dildoc blessed him and kept on working. The dollars exceeded his pockets. Soon he had to use one of the many empty drawers in his desk. His vaccine points had given out long before, but he halved toothpicks dipped in salted water and met with no complaints. A message of peremptory terms came from Mrs. Owen, followed by another and a third, but Dildoc kept on vaccinating, and the line did not thin out.

"Must have about all of 'em!" he whispered to the first selectman an hour after sunset.

"No," was the reply; "they're drivin' in from the west part o' th' town now, an' some have come from down river."

Dildoc wondered how Basin Mills had kept this man so long.

The train left at 9:30. At 9:25 Dildoc finished the last one. His meager belongings were in a bag behind the door, quite ready. A boy entered with a note:

Doctor you come up this minit or wel come down an' fix yer. MIS OWEN.

He sat at that empty desk and wrote on the same paper:

Dear Mrs. Owen—On second thought, I find your patient has only the measles. Keep him quiet, in a dark room, and give him plenty of cool water. Don't worry him with pennyroyal and other useless infusions. Don't try to drive them out. There is no danger. Goodby.

J. P. DILDOC, M. D.

The contents of Dildoc's bag clinked gleefully as he ran down the stairs to catch the train.

The Dinner Hour.

The hour for dinner has undergone several changes. About 1400 it was 10 a. m. Henry VIII. dined at this time and supped at 4. In the sixteenth century dinner was at 11, breakfast at 7 and supper at 5 or 6. In the following century meals were an hour later.

Disraeli tells us that in the reign of Francis I. of France folks rose at 5, dined at 9, supped at 5 and went to bed at 9, which, according to a popular saying, made them live to the age of ninety-nine. Louis XII., it is said, hastened his death by altering his hours to please his young wife. Instead of dining at 8 a. m and going to bed at 6 p. m., he took to dining at noon and often sat up till midnight.

The Ladder Dwarf.

"Among the strange and weird demons and bogies which are believed by miners to haunt the workings underground not the least horrible is the 'Ladder Dwarf,'" said a former prospector. "I never saw the creature myself, but he is described as hunchbacked, with a short body, large head and enormously long and powerful arms. In fact, he resembles an exaggerated gorilla. His favorite trick is climbing the ladders by means of which the miners leave the mines, raising himself with his long arms, and as he passes the rungs kicking them out one by one. He is supposed to always do this just before an accident of some kind in the mine."

Folly Explained.

"Yes, she has a case of 'nerves.'"

"What's that?"

"Well, to be frank, it's the name we use when a wealthy patient is just plain cranky."

People who grumble in cloudy weather usually wear veils when the sun shines.

Antiquity of Nicknames.

The origin of the word as well as the exact date of appearance of the custom of "nicknaming" is unknown. Such names are as old at least as the most venerable chronicles, for upon diving into ancient history we have no trouble at all in proving that Plato was called the "Attic Bee" and Socrates "Old Flat Nose." There isn't the least doubt but that many of our surnames come from nicknames applied to our ancestors, such, for instance, as "Dollarhide," "Oxenrider," "Bright," "Lightfoot," "Walkingshaw," "Redhead," "Longman," "Longfellow," etc.

Julius Cæsar was popularly styled "Baldhead," and even the third Rameses is said to have been known by an Egyptian word which signifies "limpy." No one has been able to escape the blighting or benign influence of the nickname. Kings, queens, philosophers, divines, statesmen, as well as many other eminent persons, have been made to prosper or suffer by having some appropriate or ridiculous sobriquet added after the lawful bestowal of the "Christian" name.

Chance of a Lifetime Came at Last

"Stop, you scoundrel! Stand where you are! Move a muscle and I'll put a hole through you!"

The burglar, surprised in the act, stood still.

"Hold up your hands!" further commanded the stern voice that spoke to him out of the darkness.

He complied.

"Now I am going to disarm you. Remember, I've got you covered with a 44 caliber revolver, and I know how to shoot."

In a few moments the intruder, relieved of a pair of shooting irons, a knife and a slungshot, was permitted to lower his hands.

"Do as I tell you, now, no more and no less," was the next command. "Reach your hand out for that watch on the bureau, as you were doing when I caught you at it. But don't you touch it. There! Stand perfectly still till I tell you to move. * * * That will do, and I have secured an excellent flash light picture of a burglar in action—something I have been trying to get for the last ten years. I'll not detain you any longer. You can go out the way you came. Goodby."—Chicago Tribune.

Not Up to the Predictions.

"Well, is married life all that it is painted?" asked the girl.

"Not quite," replied the bride, with what her friend later declared she was almost sure was a sigh. "We've been married three months now, and during that time Jack has spent but four evenings at the club."

Of Real Interest.

"Yes; I explained the whole theory of the new discovery to my wife."

"And what did she say?"

"She said: 'George, can you remember whom the Sourfield girl married? I've been trying all day to think of his name.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

MARKET LETTER.

The following despatches have been received by E. M. Poussett & Co.:—

New York, June 29th, 9.45 a. m. — Liverpool wheat, 3-8 to 5-8 lower; corn, 1-4 to 3-8 lower.

Chances are we will have somewhat further rally to-day under bullish influence of much better bank statement than had been expected and success of new P.A. stock issue and some relief to drought situation and decided improvement in new cotton crop. London comes strong and this should also help our market. We do not look for any extensive improvement in prices and would secure profits on rallies as nothing better than trader market is in sight for the present.

M. & M.

New York, June 29th, 12.25 p. m. — Traders' clique has been very active in bidding up prices, particularly Coalers, U.P., B.O. and Atchison. There has been some good buying for London. Commission houses business a little better, and there has been more disposition among some of the larger houses to buy for a turn. The selling is scattered. We are bullish on Erie for a long term because we know that company is now earning more than ever, and it was never in so good a condition. B.O. and U.P. are also good stocks to watch.

M. & M.

New York, June 29th, 12.00 noon, — Buy Sept. wheat and corn on breaks. It is going higher eventually.

CANBY.

Messrs. McMillan & Maguire have received the following:—

New York, June 29th, 9.30 a. m. — In my judgment stocks are surely a purchase around present levels for profits in the near future. Any of the active leaders are good. Copper, S. Pacific, St. Paul, U. Pacific, Atchison, T. Coal and Iron, Penna., B. O. Towards the close prices show quite a tendency to improvement and in my judgment will be materially higher before Tuesday night.

RIDGELY.

Toronto, June 29th, '03, 1.00 p. m. — The influence of the successful Penna. stock issue and good bank statement gave list a much more cheerful appearance in London, and at opening here. The decline in grain also had a beneficial influence. It is now believed that there will be no money flurry on account of July disbursements. The coalers are strong on the impossibility of poor statements for the coming six months. Lyle of the New York Produce Exchange had a long article in the Sunday Herald on corn crop, and thinks there will be at least two billion bushels. On the other hand labour troubles in New York are worse and the generally low temperature throughout the country is bad for business for summer goods. On good rallies take profits. We look for a good trading market.

THE PETERBOROUGH BOARD OF HEALTH

Held a Meeting This Morning in the Town Clerk's Office.

Communications Received and Accounts Presented—Business Transacted.

A meeting of the local Board of Health was held this morning at 11 o'clock in the Town Clerk's office.

There were present Mr. R. Neill, Chairman, and Messrs. H. Snyder, A. Parker, Mayor Rogers, Wm. Eyres and Drs. Burnham, McNulty, and Bingham, besides Chief Roszel, Sanitary Inspector.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

The following communication was then read:—

From Dr. Bingham, stating that he had visited Mrs. Mulligan's residence, at No. 100 London street, where there are three children all cared for by their mother. One child, 7 years of age, has had scarlet fever, but is now well. The other two children he found in good health and the card has been up for two weeks. Mrs. Mulligan, he stated, said that if kept in for six weeks she will need help from the town.

The Chairman asked Dr. Bingham for his advice. The Medical Health Officer answered that he advised that the child be removed to the hospital at once.

The following accounts were then presented:—

W. Madill, ...	$6 35
J. D. Tully	3 00

The Chairman remarked that the Secretary, Mr. S. R. Armstrong, had received word from Dr. Bryce, stating that he would be in town this morning and suggested the matter re Mrs. Mulligan's house be referred to him.

At this juncture Dr. Bryce entered and this matter was laid before him. He stated that it would be the same old story over again and that in about another week the mother would imagine the children quite well and there would be another outbreak of contagious disease. He recommended that the child be taken to the hospital and that the house be cleaned up.

The case of Mr. Batten's well then came up, and during the lengthy discussion which ensued, Dr. Bryce remarked that in his mind, the Magistrate had no legitimate right to touch on the matter, when the Board had ordered the well to be closed.

The Mayor remonstrated to the effect that half the wells in the town were closed without sufficient consideration on the part of the Board.

Mr. Eyres remarked that the Board had taken action on the strength of the subject matter of the report.

The Board then adjourned until 2 o'clock.

A DISASTROUS FIRE.

Empire Carpet Factory Doomed—Blaze Broke Out at Midnight.

St. Catharines, June 29.—The extensive plant of the Empire Carpet Company was discovered on fire about 12 o'clock to-night, and is now burning fiercely, and will be a total loss. The loss will be between $30,000 and $35,000, with insurance of $23,000. The building and stock will be a complete loss. Cause of fire unknown.

Canadian Tug Seized.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., June 29.—The Canadian tug Davis, owned by William Davis & Son of Ottawa, Ont., was seized here Saturday while entering the harbor for fuel. The owners hold a contract for enlarging Cardinal Canal, and sub-contractors permitted a scow to collide with the steamer Dean of Ogdensburg in passing through the canal. The seizure was made the first time the Davis was found in American waters, to force settlement of damages.

Big Increase Over 1902.

Winnipeg, Man., June 29.—Dominion Immigration Commissioner Smith has just received from land and immigration agents throughout the west exhaustive reports on the condition of the crops. They are particularly interesting, as many are coming from new districts where there is an enormous increase in acreage. Their general tenor is that the acreage is one-third larger than last year and the crops never looked better at this time of the year.

Winnipeg Editor Arrested.

Winnipeg, June 29.—Considerable commotion was caused in Winnipeg by the arrest of J. W. Dafoe, managing editor of The Manitoba Free Press on Saturday afternoon, on a charge of criminal libel, preferred against him by Hon. D. H. McFadden, Provincial Secretary of the Roblin Government. In addition to this, Mr. McFadden has also commenced criminal proceedings against The Manitoba Free Press Company.

Government Offers a Reward.

Toronto, June 29.—The Ontario Government has issued a circular offering a reward of $600 for the arrest and conviction of the murderers of little Glory Whalen at Collingwood on May 27.

PHYSICAL CULTURE DON'TS

Don't exercise for at least an hour after meals.

Don't forget that a bath should follow exercise.

Don't use iron dumbbells, but wooden ones. The former chill the blood.

Don't use too much force. If exercise is too vigorous you will be exhausted before you can complete it.

Don't exercise one part of the body too much and another part not at all. Let the development be symmetrical.

Don't exercise beyond the ability of the heart to keep pace with you. Palpitation is a certain indication of excess.

Don't forget to inhale slowly and deeply when performing any exercise. This will make the chest deep and full.

Don't have intermittent attacks of exercising your muscles. In order to receive any benefit you should devote some time daily to athletics.

Don't protrude the hip and abdomen or rest the weight unevenly upon the feet. No exercise is of any benefit whatever unless the correct standing position is taken every time.

Washing Fine Lace.

The woman who values the appearance of her lace should wash it at home. She will find the following recipe a valuable one for her purpose both for lace and finely embroidered cambric: Immerse the article that requires cleaning in warm water and suds of white soap to which a little borax has been added in the proportion of two teaspoonfuls to a gallon of water. Dab the lace gently, but do not rub it, as this is liable to tear the fabric and to pull the stitches apart. When the lace or cambric is thoroughly clean rinse it in very much diluted blue water in the case of the cambric or in water that has been colored with coffee essence if a cream or dark shade is desired for the lace. Stretch the lace or cambric tightly, right side upward, over a sheet of glass or wind it round a broad glass bottle. The former is the best plan for a collar, the latter for flounces and edgings of lace. Pull the fabric carefully into shape as you arrange it on the glass. When dry the raised work of the lace or embroidery will be seen to stand out distinctly, and the texture will have a delicate gloss.

Our Clothes.

We cannot deny, we womenkind, that we are happier, more confident and better prepared to face the world if we are conscious of being really well dressed. One of us has been even bold enough to express this sentiment to a bishop. Appearance means so much, and half the battle is won if we make a favorable impression. A certain old Roman orator, Hortentius, gave as much thought to his toga as he did to his oration, and, though it is a fact, we should hardly any of us have given Daniel Webster the credit for always appearing in a new suit of clothes whenever he addressed the senate.

There is a moral side to the question. It is said that we are better able to meet temptation when we are self respecting, and how can anybody respect herself when she is out at elbow and shabby? Certainly not the modern woman. We have never studied appearances more than we do in this twentieth century. It is a great test of breeding not so much to be fashionably dressed as to be carefully arrayed.

A Bad Practice.

"Women who get into the habit of closing a bureau drawer by a pressure of the knee," says a doctor, "do not realize the harm that may result from this practice. I have known many serious cases of water on the knee that were caused in this way.

"The force required to shut a drawer in this way is slight, and one scarcely notices the contact of the knee with the drawer. But the knee joint is a delicate structure, and a bruise may easily be caused that will lead ultimately to very serious consequences. I have had many patients who from indulging in this habit have brought on illnesses that lasted from one month to six. So my advice to all women is to lean over and shut the drawer.

"It is better, although it may seem more troublesome at the minute. The leaning over instead of being a disadvantage is really an excellent means of exercise, and no way of closing a drawer is so dangerous as to push it with the knee."

A BEAUTY COMPARISON.

Lady Mary Jeune Contrasts Beauties of Bygone Centuries With Those of Now—Types in 300 Years.

The pictures and miniatures of a bygone age often cause one to wonder whether beauty is a fact or a question of opinion.

The pictures of the women of 300 years ago are all more or less of a manly type and do not convey any idea of the delicacy and refinement we associate with real feminine beauty. Queen Elizabeth is not beautiful. There are strength and vigor and magnificence of apparel, but any real charm is wanting. She is a woman to command, not to love. Queen Mary and the women of her day are simply ugly. When we get to the highest exposition of beauty and charm which the world has ever seen—beautiful, bewitching, unhappy Mary Stuart—we are fairly baffled, for, though there are grace and dignity, she does not represent to us the beauty which was the cause of bloodshed, conspiracy and crime and expiated its sins on the block at Fotheringay. The beauty of Mary Stuart must have been no dream, no matter of opinion, for the men who fought and died for her did so, in many cases, from a passion inspired by her dazzling and unspeakable charms, but there is only one small miniature which conveys even an impression of the charm she must have possessed.

Vandyke does at once strike a new note, and his men and women are not only beautiful, but distinguished and picturesque.

It is not, however, till the days of Reynolds and Gainsborough and Romney that we are compelled to admit that there may be some truth in the opinion that there was more beauty in those times than there is to-day. There are no women more beautiful, none better endowed with ease, grace and simplicity, than the women of their day. They found two of the greatest painters that the world has known to immortalize them. We hear of the beauties of the beginning of the last century and of the early Victorian era, but they fail to impress us with any sense of the dignity and beauty of the predecessors.

What the great masters owe to the fashions of their day it is impossible to exaggerate, for, though the beauty of the women Reynolds, Gainsborough and Romney painted was of a high standard, it was enhanced by the prevailing fashion of the time, and to it we owe, in a great measure, our conception of the beauty of the women of the eighteenth century. The women of our day have not deteriorated or lost the charm of earlier generations, but there is not the same beauty in the early Victorian era, and it is, we believe, because the fashion was ugly, grotesque and unbecoming to the highest degree. The long waists, the crinolines, the poke bonnets and befounced skirts would have ruined the beauty of a Venus, while the ringlets, the bandeaux and chignons utterly destroyed the beauty and shape of every head and the hair which covered it. The old saying "beauty unadorned" is independent of any of the adventitious adjuncts of dress, but there is an average of good looks which is not in so unassailable a position, and the beauty of a period is enhanced or spoiled by the fashion of the day, of which the women of the early Victorian era are an example.

There is no beauty so great, so absolute, as not to be enhanced by the framework in which it is set, and the lovely women of every age owe some of their charm to the background in which they stand.—Lady Mary Jeune.

Hindoos for Servants.

An old Anglo-Indian living in Clapham, one of London's suburbs, has offered a novel suggestion to solve the domestic servant problem, which appears to be growing worse and worse in the British metropolis. "Why not offer inducements to servants from India to come to London?" he asks.

At first blush the sight of white turbaned deccan-wallas and red puggreed surtees and maharattas on "dear old Lunnon's" streets would be a picturesque and attractive feature, but the question of caste and climate would figure largely in this matter. The Hindoo servant to keep his casto cannot work, eat and live like English and Canadian domestics do. However, the Indian's faithful devotion to his employers as well as that of the ayahs or native women nurses to children, even at the risk of their own lives, is well known.

Whether the East Indians could be brought to this country for the same purposes as that suggested for London may be doubted. But the experiment might be tried as a possible solution of the long standing and vexatious domestic servant problem.

In Case of Poison.

When any one is accidentally poisoned and you are not sure of the antidote give an emetic of some kind immediately. Mustard and salt are two things found in every household, but a bottle of ipecac costs little and is better than either and should always be kept in the house. If mustard is to be used put a dessertspoonful in a glass of lukewarm water and make the patient take two or three glasses. Then by tickling the throat with the finger vomiting is certain. The dose should be repeated in about ten minutes so that the stomach may be thoroughly emptied. No matter what the poison, remember, the thing you should do is to give an emetic.

Absent-Minded.

The Duke of Buccleuch, King Edward's host at Dalkeith, is one of six men who own between them one-sixth of all Scotland, and there are customs still preserved on his estate dating back to King Alfred. It was the father of the present Duke who rode at a breakneck pace from Bath to Longleat to apologize to Lady Charlotte Thynne, whom he had only just left, for having forgotten to propose to her.

Wind and Temperature.

The wind does not affect the thermometer, as any one may find out for himself by a simple test. Take two dry bulb thermometers of exactly the same kind and hang one of them where it will be exposed to the wind and the other where it will be sheltered—say, on two sides of the corner of the house—and after allowing them to hang thus for a few minutes you will find that they register the same. And yet the person who stands near the thermometer that hangs in the wind will feel the cold more sensibly than the person who stands near the sheltered one.

The wind is simply air in motion, and air in motion is no colder than the same air in a state of rest. We feel colder in the wind simply because its blowing over us takes the heat away from the body by causing a more rapid evaporation from the skin. There is no evaporation from the dry bulb of a thermometer, and therefore the wind does not affect it.

Thomas Carlyle and His Wife.

As a married couple they were indeed to be pitied if the world had known it. They were childless, and therefore half the world was dark to them. No man can be a "sage" who has no children. A barren woman is like half a story. Let her be ever so clever, so literary, so witty, when it comes to the essentials of life she is open to the retort, How do you know? And so it was with the Carlyles in their unsatisfying world of literary eminence. Pity them, gentle reader! When they shut the doors of their several bedrooms at night a mouse might not squeak or a fly buzz but they must start full awake in the blessed dark and moralise, the one on eternity and the other on Thomas.—London Outlook.

Wagner as an Acrobat.

Ferdinand Praeger related an incident of a visit to Wagner at his Swiss home. The two men sat one morning on an ottoman in the drawing room talking over the events of the years.

Suddenly Wagner, who was sixty years old, rose and stood on his head upon the ottoman.

At that moment Wagner's wife entered. Her surprise and alarm caused her to run to her husband, exclaiming, "Ah, Richard, Richard!" Quickly recovering himself, he assured her that he was sane and wished to show that he could stand on his head at sixty, which was more than Ferdinand could do.

Frogs and Snakes.

The common snake is very fond of water. Its food consists exclusively of frogs and fishes. All snakes eat either living food, including eggs, or creatures they have themselves killed. When pursued by a snake the frog seems to be half paralyzed with fear, leaping less and less powerfully as the snake approaches it more nearly and uttering feeble cries. If a stick be so pushed through the grass toward a frog as to imitate the movement of a snake the frog will exhibit the symptoms of terror just noted.

AFFAIRS AT ST. THOMAS.

Elgin Loan Purchase of Coal Stock—Mrs. Rowley's Illness.

St. Thomas, June 30. — John Baird, President of the Elgin Loan, and other directors, were seen yesterday in regard to the placing of $2,500 mortgage on the house of George Rowley, worth about $4,000, and already mortgaged for $3,500. They all tell the same story. The company had been granted a Dominion charter to deal in stocks, and permission had to be secured from the Ontario Legislature to operate under it, which was granted, but was not signed by the Lieut.-Governor. It was thought a favorable time to purchase Dominion Coal stock and Dominion Steel preferred, and, at Manager Rowley's suggestion, the mortgage was put on his already mortgaged house, the stock purchased to be security for the mortgage. Some 150 shares of Dominion Coal was purchased, the average price being 119. The stock was purchased outright, and is now in the vaults as security for the mortgage. The mortgage was not registered until after the directors had under consideration the winding up of the affairs of the company, which made Rowley apprehensive, and ultimately led to his discovery. Rowley is improving in health, and, it is believed, will be able to appear for trial on Thursday.

Mrs. Rowley's condition Sunday night was so serious that she was not expected to survive the night, but she was somewhat better yesterday.

KILLED BY A TRAIN.

LOST MONEY IN STOCKS.

Joseph Jeffrey, of Hamilton, Shot Himself Through the Head.

Hamilton, June 30.—Joseph Jeffrey, one of the social lights of the city, and a man who was able to retire five years ago on his wealth, placed the muzzle of a revolver in his mouth yesterday morning and pulled the trigger. The bullet passed through his head, came out behind his ear, and lodged in the ceiling. He fell forward and died a very short time afterwards. He did not go to the trouble of dressing, but sat on the edge of the bed and fired the shot. He died about 8.30.

His friends hold the Ames failure in Toronto responsible. His sister, who lived with him, knew that he was worrying about money he had dropped on the stock market. He was in no danger of poverty, however, as he had an annuity of at least $800, and owned some valuable property. He seemed to fear that through the loss of so much money he would lose his place in society, and his life of luxury.

He was 59 years of age, and had never married. His brother, William, is a traveler for R. H. Macy & Co., New York, and Mrs. Surtees, Ottawa, is a sister.

Dogs' Faithful Watch.

Killed at the Throttle.

Winnipeg, June 30.—An engineer named Stratton was killed at the throttle Saturday evening. While leaning out of his cab his head struck a projecting rock and for miles the train went on its way before the accident was noticed. A brakesman on the rear end saw Stratton projecting in from the cab window and went forward to investigate. The accident happened just west of Schreiber, and at Ross Port, the next station, a doctor was secured. Stratton never recovered consciousness, and was taken to the hospital at Port Arthur, where he died.

A Child's Narrow Escape.

London, June 30.—Hazel, the 8-year-old daughter of B. J. Walker, Windsor's well-known piano dealer, has escaped death by half an inch and the timely services of a doctor. While amusing herself on a swing and when 15 feet from the ground, the ropes broke, throwing the child violently to the ground. Her neck struck the edge of an axe, that cut to within a fraction of an inch of the jugular vein. It was feared that the closing of the wound would break the strip of flesh that held it together, but the operation was successful, and the child is out of danger.

Helpless at Well's Bottom.

Ingersoll, June 30.—Struck by a falling block of wood, while making some repairs in a well, Daniel Robinson of this town was rendered unconscious and after lying helpless at the bottom for five minutes was hauled out almost lifeless. Law of their fellow-workman's predicament, and volunteered to climb down the well and assist in his rescue.

Drowned in Brewery Creek.

Ottawa, June 30.—Emil Douchard, aged 9 years of age of Hull, was drowned yesterday afternoon in Brewery Creek. He was trying to put his dog in the creek, and the dog shoved him in. His playmates could not help him out and ran away. The body was recovered five hours later.

A Pleasant Dream.

"I've been thinking of taking a couple of months off this summer ——" began the man at the desk.

"A couple of months off?" repeated the man near the door. "Why, I didn't know you ever got but a couple of weeks."

"I don't, but I can think about taking two months, can't I?"

And only the hard-working electric fan was heard for the next five minutes.—Montreal Herald.

TUESDAY, JUNE 30, 1903.

CANADA'S BIRTHDAY.

To-morrow is the thirty-sixth birthday of the Dominion. There is abundant reason why the day should be loyally observed, not in any spirit of boasting or vain glory, but in a spirit of thankfulness for the magnificent heritage we possess — thankfulness for a country, imperial in the great extent of its expanse, for the great variety and extent of its scenery, for the great variety and abundance of its resources of soil, and mines and inland seas; for its beautiful and healthful climate, and for the sturdy and enterprising character and high quality of its people. The recurrence of our national birthday, suggests the taking of national stock, to show how we have progressed. Previous to Confederation, thirty-seven years ago, the British possessions on this continent were a series of scattered and disconnected provinces, without natural cohesion or any bond of connection except the common tie of connection with Great Britain. Now the Dominion consists of a closely united continental empire, stretching, under one government, and with a community of national aim and national interest, from sea to sea. In 1867 the Confederation included only four provinces, Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Now Canada embraces all the British possessions on this continent, except Newfoundland. Let us for a moment take stock of our national progress. In 1867 our population was 3,600,000; in 1891 it had grown to 4,800,000, and the census of 1901 shows a population of 5,400,000, a small but important share of the 400,000,000, comprising the great British Empire. In 1867 the total trade of Canada amounted to only $131,000,000 per year. It gradually increased, until in 1903, it had reached the splendid figures of $425,000,000. When the returns of 1903 are completed we shall see this figure largely increased, and at the present rate of expansion our trade will soon reach $500,000,000 per year. While the figures of our total trade are absolutely very creditable, yet they become more so by comparison with other countries, and taking into consideration our comparatively small population. The total trade of the United States is $30 per head of the population, while that of Canada is $71 per head of the population, a per capita ratio greater than any other country in the world, except Great Britain. And Canada's trade has only just begun to grow. We have all noticed in a tree that for a time after it is planted it grows slowly—sometimes barely holding its own. But it becomes fixed and seated in its place; its roots take a grip of mother earth and it flourishes and grows apace. So with Canada's trade. Stationary and sometimes even retrograding in the past, in 1896 it began to grow with leaps and bounds. At that time the total trade was $239,000,000; in 1902 it was $425,000,000—an increase in six years of $186,000,000, nearly equal to the total trade in 1900, which was $189,000,000.

But the national and moral advance has kept pace with the material advancement. Our Imperial relations have have been deepened and intensified; our national spirit has become unified, a higher standard of culture and marked advance in industrial importance are features of our condition. We have made great strides. We have developed a national independence of spirit, a community of national interest, which auger auspiciously for a greater future. With a thrifty, enterprising, moral, law-abidng people, with the best of laws admirably administered and generally respected, with the thrill of enterprise quickening the national body from ocean to ocean, Canada can not only proudly and thankfully regard its present condition, but look hopefully to an increasingly great future. From the view point of our thirty-sixth birthday, we can look forward with a robust hope and well warranted expectancy to a glorious future, and can, with well-based faith, pray that "Heaven bless the Maple Leaf forever!"

ST. ANDREW'S.

Sermons by Rev. A. B. Hassard and Rev. J. G. Potter.

The service in St. Andrew's church Sunday was of a specially interesting character. The pulpit and communion table were most tastefully laden with flowers by the hands of willing workers. The Rev. Mr. Potter conducted the service, and Rev. W. E. Hassard, B.D., of Crawford street Methodist church, gave a very forceful address from the theme "Wanted, Fathers and Mothers." He expressed a deep appreciation of their important influence in the training of the children, and urged fidelity, genuineness, strong example, kindness, sympathy and, withal, wise parental authority.

A solo by Miss F. Miller, "I Have a Saviour," was much enjoyed.

In the evening the pastor, Rev. J. G. Potter, occupied the pulpit and preached an instructive sermon from the text, "Stand Ye in the ways and see the old paths wherein is the good walk, and walk therein and ye shall find rest unto your souls."

MOUNT IRWIN.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mrs. John McGann, an old resident of this place, died last week. Although the deceased lady had been ill for some time the end came suddenly and unexpectedly. She leaves a husband, four sons and two daughters to mourn her loss. The sympathy of the community is with them in their bereavement. The funeral took place on Monday, the 22nd, and was largely attended. The pall bearers were Messrs. Ed. Smith, Thos. McNamara, William Dolan, James Allen, jr., David Henderson and Thos. Burns.

Mr. Jas. Allan, sr., is on the sick list. We hope to soon see him around again in his usual health.

SHAKY NERVES.

Sufferers From Nervous Troubles are in a State of Continuous Torture—Suggestions as to How the Trouble can be Overcome.

When your nerves are shaky your self control is shattered—your will power is broken. Sudden sounds startle you; your temper is irritable; your hands tremble; there is weakness in your knees; your skin is pale and parched; you are restless at night and tired when you wake. It all comes from nervous exhaustion, perhaps due to overwork and worry, late hours, hot days and want of blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the only cure; they make new, rich, red blood. They brace up jangled nerves and strengthen tired backs. They give health and energy to dull, weary, despondent men and women. Strong proof is offered in the case of Mrs. William Westcott, of Seaforth, Ont., who says: "For a long time my health was in a bad state. I was subject to headaches, dizziness and nervous exhaustion. My appetite was poor, and I was so badly run down I could not stand the least exertion. I tried several medicines and consulted different doctors, but they did not help me any. One of my neighbours strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and before the second box was finished the turning point for the better had been reached, and by the time I had used half a dozen boxes, to the surprise of my friends and neighbours I was again enjoying good health, and have since been strong and well. I do not know anything to equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when the system is run down."

What the pills have done for others they will do for you if you will give them a fair trial. Sold by all medicine dealers, or sent postpaid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

True, All the Same.

The man with the bronzed face and the rolling gait was entertaining an attentive circle of acquaintances when Mr. Button edged up just in time to catch the words, "And so the ship went down, with all of us on board."

"She went down," asked Mr. Button, excitedly.

"Yes, sir," smiled the brown-faced man; "she sank slowly but surely, and scarcely a ripple was left to mark the spot where she had sunk."

"But where were you?"

"In the captain's cabin."

"And couldn't you get out?" again questioned Mr. Button.

"Why, no; I never thought of getting out," was the cool answer.

"Oh, I suppose it was all so unexpected?"

"No; we all knew she would go down."

"And how did you escape?"

"I didn't have to escape."

"How's that?" Mr. Button enquired. "If the ship sank with all on board and there was no chance for you to escape, how do you expect us to believe your story when we see you sitting here alive and well?"

"It was a submarine boat," explained the man with the bronzed face.—Tit Bits.

KIDNEY TROUBLE CURED.

General Health Greatly Improved by Pe-ru-na.

MRS. M. J. DANLEY.

Mrs. M. J. Danley, Treasurer of the Rebecca Lodge, I. O. O. F., writes from 124 First street, N., Minneapolis, Minn.:

"I was afflicted for several years with kidney trouble which became quite serious and caused me considerable anxiety. I spent hundreds of dollars trying to be cured, but nothing gave me any permanent relief until I tried Peruna. It took less than three months and only ten bottles to effect a permanent cure, but they were worth more than as many hundred dollars to me. I am fully restored to health, know neither ache nor pain and enjoy life."—Mrs. M. J. Danley.

This experience has been repeated many times. We hear of such cases nearly every day.

Mrs. Danley had catarrh of the kidneys. As soon as she took the right remedy she made a quick recovery.

DUTIES ON TOBACCO.

Excise on the Foreign Leaf Has Been Largely Increased.

Ottawa, June 30.—Important regulations have been adopted by the Government for the protection of Canadian tobacco. At present foreign raw leaf pays an excise duty of 10 to 14 cents, whether used for the manufacture of tobacco, cigarettes or cigars. On and after the 1st of July foreign raw leaf tobacco will also pay the following rates: "Except when used in the manufacture of cigarettes, 20 cents per pound on unstemmed leaf and 28 cents per pound on stemmed; when taken for the manufacture of cigarettes 37½ cents per pound on unstemmed leaf; and 53 cents per pound on stemmed; when taken for use in the manufacture of cigars 16 cents per pound on unstemmed leaf, and 23 cents per pound on stemmed."

Licenses For Yukon.

Ottawa, June 30.—J. K. Barrett, Inspector of Inland Revenue for the Winnipeg district, has, in addition to his present position, been appointed Inspector of Malt Houses and Breweries of the Dominion.

An Order-in-Council has been passed giving the Minister of Inland Revenue power to issue licenses for manufacturers of beer and other malt liquors in the Yukon.

Manitoba Elections July 20.

Winnipeg, June 30.—It is understood that the writs for the Manitoba general elections will be issued to day fixing Monday, July 20, for polling day.

The Evidence You Value.

By word of mouth from friend to friend Dr. Chase's Ointment has received more unsolicited recommendation than probably any medicine you can mention. The fact that it is an absolute cure for piles has put it in a class all by itself as a preparation of inestimable value and people recommend it knowing that it is a certain cure.

A Trick to Try.

Place your two open hands together in front of you and put a penny between the two third fingers. Next bend the little fingers down until they touch the palms of the hands and bend the middle fingers in the same way, keeping the hands together as close as possible. Now try to open the third fingers so as to let the penny drop without opening the hands or taking the little and middle fingers from the palms of your hands. You may think that you will be able to do this, but it really is quite impossible.

The Laughing Hyena.

Although the hysterical laughter of the laughing hyena is not, as was once supposed, the outcome of a deliberate attempt to decoy unwary travelers to their doom, this strange animal is, nevertheless, one of the most cunning of dumb animals. He is so suspicious of everything he does not understand that the sight of even a bit of string at once puts him on his guard. Trappers are aware of this fact, and generally use the stems of creeping plants instead of string of any kind in setting their spring traps.

Game For Rainy Days.

Here is a little game for rainy days: Select a very long word, the longer the better; give each of the players a large piece of paper with the selected word written at the top and let each write out as many words as he can spell from the long word. Award prizes for the most words.

For a Switch Off.

"I wish you'd send ma to one of those electricians' schools, pop."

"Why, what do you mean, my son?"

"She's altogether too careless with the switch, pop."

The Proof is in the Eating.

People have been talked to so much about what they should eat for breakfast that mere words have lost their value. The real test of a food is found in the numbers who continue to use it after they have given it a fair test.

Sunshine Furnace

OPEN DAMPERS—BACK TO BED.

The "Sunshine" consumes so little fuel during the night that plenty remains to make an instant and strong fire when the dampers are opened in the morning. The operator may then return to his warm, cosy bed while the house is heating—heats in 15 or 20 minutes.

Self-acting gas damper works automatically so that disagreeable odors always escape through the gas-pipe — never pass through registers into the house.

The "Sunshine" is simple in construction, easy to operate, requires very little attention and will produce more heat from the same amount of fuel than any other heater.

Government Nearing a Decision Re. Quebec-Winnipeg Line.

INDICATIONS STRONG FOR IT.

Sir William Mulock, Who Favors a Publicly-Owned Road From the Ancient City to Winnipeg, Conducts the Negotiations—Forty-Eight Hours May Witness Official Announcement of Government Policy.

Ottawa, June 30.—Messrs. Hays and Wainwright conferred with the Government yesterday morning, and last night had a lengthy consultation with the Postmaster-General. As Sir William Mulock is said to strongly favor the Government building a line from Quebec to Winnipeg, it is most significant that he should be entrusted with the negotiations. The probability is that the Government and the representatives of the Grand Trunk are nearer a conclusion now than at any time before, and that the next 48 hours will witness the long-looked-for official announcement of Government policy. Many of the Ministerialists, in fact a good majority, are hoping that the Government will announce their intention of building the Quebec-Winnipeg section. The indications last night pointed very strongly in that direction, but the final exchange of views has not yet taken place. Until that has been done it cannot be said that a decision binding upon anybody has been reached. A report was in circulation to-day that the matter would be laid over until next session, but this probably originated from the fact that the negotiations have consumed considerable time, with apparently unimportant results, but in reality the negotiations have been of an earnest and serious character. Propositions and counter-propositions have been put forward and discussed. The exchange of views has necessarily required several conferences, but there is reason to believe that the matter has almost reached its final stage, and that the public will soon know whether the principle of Government ownership is to prevail. At present the putlook in that regard is most promising.

THE C. N. R. AID.

As to Transportation Policy Government Has Reached No Decision Yet.

Ottawa, June 30.—Replying to Mr. Thompson of North Grey in the House yesterday, Mr. Prefontaine stated that during the past six years the repairs on the steamer Bayfield amounted to $6,571. The steamer was sold in March to John Harrison of Owen Sound for $3,250.

Mr. Wilson was informed by the Minister of the Interior that $20,000 was advanced to the Doukhobors in 1899. None of the loan has been repaid. Interest at the rate of five per cent. will be charged, and it is intended to make the amount of charge against the homesteads of the persons assisted.

Sir Richard Cartwright stated that the first inspector of binder twine appointed was Joseph L. Haycock. He will be employed most of the year. His traveling expenses are borne by the Government.

County Judges.

Mr. H. Lennox called attention to the reported appointment of C. W. Coulter, K.C., to the county judgeship of Haldimand. He said the question of appointing judges to the county in which they lived had been discussed before, and he asked the Government to state its policy in this respect.

Mr. Fitzpatrick replied that resolutions concerning county court judges would soon be brought before the House and the subject could be discussed then.

Deals With Cigarettes.

Mr. Fitzpatrick introduced a bill to amend the criminal code. He explained that the amendments related only to details in the criminal code and that no general principle was involved.

Mr. E. F. Clarke asked if the amendments bore any relation to the bill introduced by Senator Lougheed in the Senate. Mr. Fitzpatrick replied that his bill had been drawn up without any reference to the Lougheed bill.

"Does the bill deal with cigarettes?" asked Mr. Henderson of Halton.

"I may say," replied the Minister of Justice, "that there is a clause in the bill dealing with cigarettes."

Insurance Company's Stock.

The House went into committee on the bill respecting the Central Life Insurance Company. Mr. Walter Scott moved that subscribers to the stock of the company should be held liable for the balance of their shares notwithstanding the extension of time granted in the bill. He said the conditions under which the stock was subscribed might be changed by the legislation and he desired to safeguard their interests. "They have been told," said Mr. Scott, "that if the extension is granted they will be pursued in the courts for the balance of their shares."

Mr. Morrison, who has the bill in charge, objected to the amendment, and his objection was sustained by the House.

The bill to incorporate the Alliance Bank was read a second time.

The Grand Trunk Pacific.

The House went into committee on the bill guaranteeing the bonds of the Canadian Northern Railway. Mr. Borden asked a statement of the Government's transportation policy in so far as it affects the country west of Lake Superior. He said the House had not only to consider the Canadian Northern but also the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. "This line," said Mr. Broden, referring to the Canadian Northern, "cannot stand by itself and form a general scheme of transportation. It extends far towards the Pacific coast. It has a charter to the coast. We have a right to know whether the Government has made up its mind to leave the question of a transcontinental railway entirely in the hands of private individuals or companies aiding them, as may seem reasonable, or whether it is proposed to extend the Intercolonial Railway westward."

The Minister of Railways said that the question of aid to railways has no connection with a general transportation policy. The Canadian Northern had not been aided from the standpoint of a transcontinental road. It had never asked to be considered as a transcontinental project. "We want these lines to be built with all possible expediency," said Mr. Blair. "We want its promoters to be placed in a position to finance the lines, and to that purpose we are aiding them."

Mr. Blair said that the construction of another road north of the Canadian Northern would in no way affect the lines that are being aided by a guarantee of bonds. He was not prepared to make a definite and detailed statement of the Government's policy on the Grand Trunk Pacific project. Therefore he would make no announcement at all. The Government, Mr. Blair declared, was anxious to take the House into its confidence, but it could not do so yet. He could not yet say whether Parliament would be asked to take action in the matter of the Grand Trunk Pacific this session or whether the consideration of the question would be deferred. He hoped to be able to make a statement in a few days.

Mr. Clarke said the Government should now announce some definite conclusion as to its transportation policy, or frankly tell the House it had no policy to announce.

"I have nothing to add to the statement already made on this subject," Mr. Blair replied, "which was that the Government had not sufficiently matured its plans to lay them before Parliament."

Mr. Blair said that a condition preventing amalgamation with the C.P.R. existed in the original charter of the Ontario and Rainy River Railway, and in the Canadian Northern arrangement with the Manitoba Government there was a stipulation forbidding amalgamation with a United States railway.

Mr. Tarte insisted upon the advisability of inserting a clause to prevent amalgamation with an American railway.

Mr. Sifton Speaks.

Mr. Sifton said he sympathized with Mr. Tarte in his desire to have Canadian products transported through Canadian channels. But he also agreed with Mr. Blair that the practical way to affect that was to make the Canadian the most advantageous route. He submitted that there was no more danger of the Canadian Northern amalgamating with an American road because it went through 50 miles of the State of Minnesota to reach Port Arthur than there was of the C.P.R. Railway amalgamating with an American corporation because it ran through part of the State of Maine to reach St. John.

Mr. Davis moved an amendment to clause seven that the Government should have power at any time to take over the lines covered by the guarantee of bonds.

Mr. Blair said he could not consent to this amendment until he had consulted with his colleagues. The clause was allowed to stand.

The committee reported progress.

Railway Labor Disputes.

The amendments made by the Senate to the bill to aid in the settlement of railway labor disputes were considered. All these amendments Sir William Mulock endorsed, with the exception of the one providing that witnesses shall be paid for attending arbitrations.

Money For Harbors.

The bill providing for further advances to the Harbor Commission Board of Montreal was read a third time. Mr. Fielding informed the House that $3,748,514 had been advanced as a loan to the Harbor Commission of Three Rivers.

Railway Clerks' Superannuation.

After explanation by Sir William Mulock the House went into committee on the bill to amend the Post-office Act, but none of the clauses were amended when the committee rose and reported.

Reserve Force.

The healthy body has a certain amount of strength reserved in case of emergency, attack by disease or unusual physical exhaustion, without this power of resistance a person is an easy prey to every ill that comes along. By enriching the blood and creating new nerve cells, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food keeps the health at high water mark and fills the body with the vigour and vitality that overcomes and defies disease.

Keep your Stomach Healthy.

When you get up in the morning with a bad taste in your mouth that the tooth brush will not remove, a coating on your tongue, and a general "out of sorts" feeling, don't blame it on what you had to eat the night before. A healthy stomach would be able to look after that. It's poor digestion that makes you feel so badly. A teaspoonful of Abbey's Effervescent Salt in half a tumbler of water at rising will make you feel better —will cure you if you follow directions. Abbey's revitilizes every organ of the body—it clears away fermenting matter and refreshes and cleanses the stomach. It prevents the suffering that often follows a pleasant evening.

SHOW PLANTS AND FERNS.

Excellent Instructions for Growing Flowers for the Autumn Exhibitions.

How many readers raise plants for show purposes? I do, and enjoy both the plants and the showing of them. Let me tell you some of my ways that I have practiced for years, writes F. H. in Montreal Star. If I have a shrubby plant to deal with, and am not very well acquainted with it, I first find out whether it requires sun or shade, much or little water, etc. This I can learn from the catalogues, of which we all have so many. Then, in spite of much advice to the contrary, when the weather is warm enough to put them out of doors, I put them into large pots of very rich earth, and plunge them in such a part of the garden as most nearly meets their requirements. Now they are kept well watered, and, above all, carefully cut back, and pinched in to make them grow in good shape.

Insects seldom trouble plants out of doors, so they do not need much care in that respect, and, being in large pots, they will make a very vigorous growth, and most likely have the pots so full of roots as to be in good blossoming trim before September. I pick off all buds that form until August.

Besides being in good condition for the autumn fairs, they are just right for fine bloom in the winter. I do not know how it may be with others, but I would rather have one good, large, healthy plant than three little ones, no matter how good the latter may be. My people tell me sometimes I like big plants so well that the family will have to move to the barn to make room for them, and sometimes, in the dark days of winter, I am tempted to discard some of them to free the windows a little, and let in more light, but my heart always fails me, and they stay right where they are.

Just try a hibiscus, or a choice rose, or jessamine in this way this summer, and see if the results are not most satisfactory. Do not plunge the hibiscus in the full, hot sunshine, or the rose in partial shade. On the other hand, I never could see any good results from putting palms out in the open, even in the pots. They need some spot, outdoors, of course, but not exposed to strong winds, which twist and break the leaves.

Take an old abutilon, that has grown all scraggy, and cut it back without mercy; just leave short stubs of branches; never mind whether there are any leaves, or but very few. Now put it out in the pot, and water it as it needs, and if it is not in good shape for winter I will never set up for an authority on plants again. There are a few plants that resent an over abundance of water without perfectly good drainage. One good soakage will not kill the plant, but it will most likely show its displeasure by dropping its large leaves. Do not be discouraged by this; just make sure that the holes in the bottom are well opened the next time of over supply, and be almost sure that a new branch will start in the place where nearly every large leaf came off, thus greatly improving the plant. This is, however, a poor way to prune.

I tried fern culture many times before I met with any noticeable success, or found out that they neither needed to be dry or very wet, just damp, and that all the time alike. Provide either a small topped table or a stout bracket for each one, because if the leaves are always being bruised against other things they will turn brown at the ends. Besides, they are much more beautiful in grown where they can droop at their own sweet will.

The only insect that bothers them much is the scale, and if one keeps close watch and cuts off the first frond that is affected I think there will be little trouble with them; but if neglected until the whole plant is infected it is cheaper to throw it away at once, and so get rid of them before they spread; or, if it is summer, cut off the whole top close to the ground, and watch if the new growth is free from them. If it is, well and good; if not, burn the whole thing, and be thankful to be so cheaply rid of them.

If one has a shady place, well protected from strong winds, like the angle of a house, it is a fine place to summer them, if a separate support can be offered each one high enough that the fronds cannot touch the ground. Blocks of wood will do if nothing better offers. The dew and dampness is natural to them, and they thrive wonderfully on it. Ferns and palms make a western or northern window a thing of tropical beauty in our dreary winters, and if some flowering plants are added, like cyclamen or primula, they are things of beauty indeed.

When one gets a little used to their culture, they are as easily managed as any house plant I know of, and are very beautiful and satisfactory.

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson.

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, President of the Grand Trunk, who has just left Canada for England after his recent visit, was born in 1831, and was educated at Eton and in Balliol College, Oxford. He became an officer of the British Treasury, and rose steadily until from 1874 to 1894 he held the post of Comptroller-General of the national debt office. Over three thousand million dollars was the debt total then, so that Sir Charles had often to draw on the reserve of ciphers. For a little while he was in Egypt as Finance Minister, where there was nothing but ciphers to draw upon. He was also for many years on the Suez Canal Council Board.

"That doesn't correspond with your wife's statement," replied a member of the skeptical faction.

"That you were in the habit of talking to yourself," answered the other.

NURSES RECEIVED THEIR DIPLOMAS.

Highly Successful Closing Exercises Last Night.

THE NICHOLLS HOSPITAL TRAINING SCHOOL

Rev. J. P. Wilson's Eloquent Address to the Graduating Nurses.

An Excellent Programme was Rendered—Mr. Richard Hall Presented the Diplomas—Miss Dick's Valedictory.

The three young ladies who compose the graduating class of the Nicholls Hospital Training School for Nurses were last night presented with their diplomas and medals proclaiming them fully competent nurses, before an assembly which filled the spacious Y.M.C.A. Hall. The event was in every particular highly successful and reflects great credit upon the Superintendent and those who had charge of the arrangements. The hall was very tastily decorated with red, white and blue bunting and the platform upon which the members of the graduating class and the other nurses who are in training sat was surrounded by beautiful flowers.

Those who graduated this year are Miss Edythe Carfrae Dick, of Toronto; Miss F. E. Munt, of Kinmount, and Miss Ida Houlihan, of Chesterville, while the other members of the school who are still in training and who were with the graduating class on the platform are,—Miss Sharkey, Miss Gordon, Miss Dainty, Mrs. Richardson, Miss Jenkins, Miss Wilson and Miss Foster.

The scene was indeed a beautiful one. As the members of the school, garbed in the cheery and pleasing hospital costume, took seats on the platform beneath the folds of the old Union Jack, the appropriateness of the arrangements must have impressed all present, and while, no doubt, the thought came to every mind of the almost inestimable value of the services of the members of the nursing profession on the battle field when the flag has been assailed, their mission is just as truly heroic and as indespensable in the homes of those far removed from the carnage of the field of battle.

Mr. Richard Hall, chairman of the Board of Trustees, presided over the exercises of the evening, and in opening said:—

"We are glad to see so many present to-night, indicating, as it does, interest in the hospital and its work. I may say this is the ninth graduating class, 37 pupils having graduated from our school. Of this number eight are doing private nursing in town, several are married, while the rest are holding positions and doing good work in various places. Our hospital life for the past year has been a busy one — 332 patients having received treatment, 104 operations performed, of which 75 were minor and 28 major.

"Our Board recognizes that the time has come when provision must be made for the proper isolation and treatment of infectious cases, which we frankly admit is not possible under present conditions. Recent legislation has placed duties which cannot possibly be carried out by the present hospital accommodation.

"The people will have to face the question very soon of a separate isolation hospital, properly equiped and efficient to meet the needs of a rapidly growing industrial town. We have no hesitation in saying that our hospital has done its best to meet the requirements, but the best at present is not sufficient, as was evidenced in the recent outbreak of scarlet fever and diphtheria.

"I shall not take any more of your time now as we have a very interesting programme before us."

Following the remarks of Mr. Hall, Mr. Lawrence, in a particularly pleasing voice, sang "True Till Death," after which Mr. C. N. Brown delighted the gathering with a dialect reading. Mr. Markie then, to the evident enjoyment of all present gave a perfectly rendered violin solo.

Rev. J. P. Wilson then delivered a most eloquent and forceful address to the graduates. The Examiner regrets that owing to lack of space a verbatim report of it is impossible to-day, and as a condensation of it would not do it justice, it will be held over until the next issue of the Examiner, when it will be published in full.

Following the address came the charge to the graduating nurses given by Mr. Richard Hall. The declaration was solemnly attested to by each as they repeated the following:

"I do hereby solemly affirm that I shall endeavour, in my life and conduct, and by a faithful discharge of my duties as nurse, to honour the diploma—to be this day conferred upon me—that I accept the medal awarded me, acknowledging that I shall hold it, subject to the will and pleasure of the authorities, that I shall cherish a feeling of loyalty to the Training School for Nurses, of the Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, and do whatsoever within me lies to promote its well-being and prosperity."

Mr. Hall spoke as follows:

"It is with no small degree of pleasure that I undertake the duty of presenting you to-night with the diploma of the Nicholls Hospital Training School, you having served faithfully the required term of service and study and having passed an examination set for you by the medical staff of the hospital.

"While, to all outward appearance, you have reached the goal of your ambition, yet you must readily perceive that you stand only at the portals of your chosen profession.

"To be a nurse, in the full sense of the word, carries with it such responsibilities in action, such qualities of character, that I hesitate to assume the duty of directing you how to acquire the necessary traits of character and training as to thoroughly fit you in your calling — the duty of ministering to the sick—to forget yourself in your God-like love of humanity, and your one desire to alleviate its sufferings.

names will be enrolled among many who have passed their period of training here, and are pursuing their work—a credit to themselves and to the Alma Mater.

"I have no doubt but that you will strive to maintain the same high standard as they and by so doing merit the confidence placed in you as a graduate of the Nicholls Hospital.

"I would remind you that the diploma awarded you to-night is not earned until you have completed your full period of service and at the same time to point out that your right to wear the uniform and badge is not yours only so far as you remain true to your trust as a woman and a nurse.

"May the Great Healer teach you the divine art of your choice, and may you prove to be, as I sincerely trust you may, faithful in the discharge of every duty pertaining to your calling."

The diplomas were then presented by the chairman, and Miss S. Margaret Coleman, the superintendent amid hearty applause made the presentation of the medals, which were very gracefully acknowledged by the recipients. Master Wilfrid Hall then performed the pleasing duty of conveying to the graduates the numerous and beautiful floral gifts with which they were almost deluged.

After this interesting feature, Miss Bella Coleman rendered a pleasing solo, which was followed by a solo from Mr. Lawrence.

Dr. W. D. Scott, in a neat speech, presented the prize for bandaging to Miss Munt. He said it afforded him great pleasure to have the honour of making the presentation, and congratulated Miss Munt on her success, adding that it had been a most difficult matter to decide which was most deserving of the prize, the contest had been so close. It has been truly said that the "life which is the most successful is that which is spent for others," and he hoped the young ladies would reach in their lives the true ideal of life, and that they would look back with pleasure upon the time they had spent in the Nicholls Hospital.

After a reading by Mr. C. N. Brown, Miss Edythe Carfrae Dick read the valedictory address in a clear, rich voice, and with a captivating manner. The address was as follows:

Mr. Chairman, Lady Superintendent, Ladies and Gentlemen:—To my lot has fallen the honour of delivering the valedictory of the graduating class of 1903—a distinction which I should appreciate, could one readily find words to express the thoughts and emotions which are included in the word Farewell.

To an ordinary observer, graduate day would seem to be the happiest one of a nurse's course, and truly so—were it not for the association which must now be severed, and for the many pleasant memories, which at this time, crowd to our minds. The weariness and worries of past months are forgotten, and only kind acts and red-letter days stand forth, reaching out unseen hands to beckon us back to the wards. The very walls of the building in which three years have been spent, have suddenly become dear, and never before, did we realize the esteem in which we hold our associate nurses.

The class of 1903, has been usually favoured in having qualified under the regime of two efficient heads, Miss Bolster, the former Lady Superintendent, to whom our thanks are due for painstaking instruction, and Miss Coleman, the present Superintendent—a lady possessed of exceptional experience.

The nurses who are still in training, should, indeed, consider themselves fortunate in enjoying a New York system of instruction, while being privileged to remain at home in Canada.

Our sincere thanks are offered to both Lady Superintendents.

And what shall be said to the Medical staff of the hospital, in appreciation of their courtesy and kindness?

Never has a doctor been too busy or too hurried to ignore a question, or patiently to explain to the class some knotty point.

Thanks, indeed, and again thanks, with the assurance that this class shall not cease being grateful for an equipment which can not fail to make of any woman, a more useful citizen, than otherwise she could possibly have become.

For the benefit of our successors, may we be allowed to express the hope, that the town will soon provide an Isolation Hospital, wherein diphtheria and scarlet fever patients may be satisfactorily cared for, and where the health, if not the lives, of the attending nurses, be not endangered by insanitary quarters.

In conclusion, Mr. Chairman, we would beg to wish the Nicholls Hospital and its management every success.

And, for ourselves, we trust to hold fast our ideals, and that the petition, which, during the South African War, was daily implored for the British nurses, may descend upon their Canadian Sisters, and that to us, also, may be granted "Zeal with wisdom, and tenderness with skill."

After a solo by Miss Bella Coleman, which was highly appreciated, the graduating exercises of 1903 were brought to a close by singing the National Anthem, the graduates being immediately surrounded by their friends, anxious to offer congratulations. Thus closed a most happy occasion in the annals of the Nicholls Hospital, and the Lady Superintendent and those who, with her, had the exercises in charge, are to be complimented upon the success which attended their efforts.

The following gentlemen compose the Board of Trustees of the Nicholls Hospital: Messrs. Richard Hall, chairman; W. H. Hill, hon. secretary; John Crane, treasurer; Chas. McGill, Rev. J. G. Potter, W. Madill, A. P. Poussette, John McClelland, J. Stevenson, Wm. Aldridge, Rev. W. L. Armitage, S. R. Armstrong, G. M. Roger, Mayor, (ex officio.)

The examiners for 1903, were: W. D. Scott, M.D., W. E. Brown, M.D., J. H. Eastwood, M.D., T. P. McCullough, M.D.

George Forbes' News Stand.

This morning George Forbes, the young man who lost both hands in the Cordova mines, installed his portable news and "notion" stand at the corner of George and Hunter streets. Though some may object to this privilege being granted, this is a case of exceptional hardship, and it will be felt that the council has done well in consenting to a privilege which will permit the carrying into effect the generous impulses of the gentlemen who have provided the young man with his outfit. Persons blessed with all their members should extend a helping hand to him who has no hands with which to help himself.

A Tip to Volunteers.

The men of the 57th. who are preparing to go into camp at Picton, should provide themselves with an up-to-date swagger stick at the Peterborough Bookstore before closing their kit. Before taking your favourite outing call and see our many pretty lines of moderate-priced fans. A. H. Stratton & Co.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT THE LIFT LOCK.

A Fall of 35 Feet on to the Concrete Floor.

Two Men Were Injured—One man, Wm. Craig, Since Dead—The Other, Robt. Smith Badly Hurt.

An accident, which it is to be deplored, ended fatally, occurred about ten o'clock this morning at the lift lock.

It is learned that three men, Wm. Craig, Robert Smith and a Mr. Murphy, were at work rivetting bolts in some iron work at the east side of the new structure. The men were standing on a scaffold, and Murphy had just stepped off the scaffold when it suddenly, and without any apparent reason gave way. Craig fell some 35 feet on to the concrete basement of the lock. Smith, when he felt the scaffold giving way, jumped to a projecting concrete platform, a distance of some fifteen feet beneath him. As a result he has sustained a very badly sprained ankle and wrist.

Craig, who fell fully 35 feet, was picked up in an unconscious condition. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, Ashburnham, where he succumbed to internal injuries about an hour later. Dr. McGrath, who was in attendance, stated that there were no bones broken, nor any visible wounds.

The deceased leaves a wife and three children in Ottawa, from which city he came to Peterborough a short time ago.

The other injured man is not expected to be about for fully six weeks.

THE LATEST NEWS OF LOCAL SPORT.

Excelsiors and Lindsay Played Fast Game Last Night.

Flaherty Sustained His Reputation—Lindsay Team Made Good Showing.

BASEBALL.

Those who went to the Murray street grounds last night expecting to see a good game of baseball were not disappointed, for they were treated to eight innings of the fastest kind of ball. The opposing teams were the Excelsiors and the fast Lindsay nine, which a few weeks ago defeated the Excelsiors in Lindsay.

Flaherty, the clever twirler for the locals, had the visitors well in hand and only in two innings were runs scored on him. Miller was on the rubber for the visitors and was touched up for six hits, one of which was a three-bagger by Sheridan.

Lindsay went first to bat with McWilliams up. He hit a low grounder to Flaherty and was thrown out at first. Little and Cinnamon followed and both struck out.

For the Excelsiors, Sheridan and Belleghem both fanned and Wareham hit a little grounder to Miller and was thrown out at first.

In the second Lindsay scored two runs, after Miller and Workman had been struck out. Stinson walked on balls, stole second. Stalker made a safe hit which Wareham fumbled, advancing Stinson to third. Menzies, who was next up, made a fine two base hit, scoring Stinson and Stalker. Brooks was an easy out on a dribble to Flaherty, who threw him out easily at first. In the second half J. Pilling, who came first to bat struck out. Howell made a one base hit, stole second and third, scoring on a wide throw to Menzies by Miller, Flaherty and Simpson were both easy outs on little jabs to the pitcher.

In the third McWilliams was first up and fanned, while Little and Cinnamon were both caught at first by Flaherty's clever pick ups, retiring the side.

In the last half Cavanagh fanned, E. Pilling drove one to centre which looked like a safe one, but by Brooks' quick work was thrown out at first. Sheridan in his turn was out in the same manner.

In the fourth Lindsay again scored, thus ending their run getting. Miller, who was first up, struck out, Workman made a two base hit, stole third on a throw to Sheridan, which he missed, and scored on Stinson's run to first, after having the third strike called on him which Belleghem missed. He was put out attempting to steal second.

Belleghem, in the locals half, popped up a fly, Wareham walked on balls, J. Pilling did the same on being hit by pitcher. Howell hit low to Miller who figured in a fast double play with Menzie and Workman, retiring the side.

Brooks, in the first half of the fifth, drove a foul fly over first which Pilling caught, winning applause from the spectators. McWilliams fanned the air and Little drove one at Howell who threw the runner out at first. Flaherty walked to first on balls, but was caught stealing second. Simpson made a hit and reached first, but was put out stealing second. Cavanagh retired the side by striking out.

In the sixth, Cinnamon who went to bat first, struck out, likewise Miller. Workman, who followed, was an easy out at first on a low hit. In the locals half E. Pilling went to bat and foul flied to Cinnamon. Sheridan, in his turn made the hit of the game, a three bagger. Belleghem fanned and Wareham made a safe hit scoring Sheridan. J. Pilling ended the innings by his low grounder, which Miller secured, throwing the runner out at the first bag.

The next innings opened very unpromisingly for Lindsay. Stinson and Stalker fanned out in succession, and although Menzies made a hit in his attempt to brighten the prospects, it was unavailing, as Brooks also struck out, Menzies dying at first.

Howell secured a hit reaching first, but in a magnificent attempt to steal second was called out on a close decision. Flaherty, who followed, shot a grounder to Miller who threw him out at first. Simpson took a base on being hit by a pitched ball, stealing second on pass, while Cavanagh struck out.

In the last innings played McWilliams, who went first to bat, went out on a low hit which Flaherty secured. Little fanned and Cinnamon hit a hot one to Howell, who fielded his position splendidly, and threw the Lindsayite out at first.

The locals went to bat with the score three to two against them, and things were rather blue. E. Pilling was put out at first, but Sheridan made an elegant two base hit, which made the fans breathe easier, but the sighs were heard again when Belleghem and Wareham fanned out in succession. But "suddenly the fan's eye flashed, his plans soared up again like fire," when J. Pilling made a low hit scoring E. Pilling. Howell stepped to the plate with the score three all, two out and one man on third. He saved the day by making an elegant hit, scoring Sheridan. Flaherty was not able to connect with Miller's shoots and struck out.

The game was called at this stage on account of darkness.

Mr. Clark Earls made a very satisfactory umpire, his decisions being satisfactory to each team.

The following are the scores:—

THE CANAL TRAFFIC.

The Canal Trade of the Canadian Sault Ste. Marie Increases.

During the two months of April and May the total freight carried through the two canals at the "Soo" was 6,039,856 tons, which is 74,963 tons more than the quantity carried in April and May of 1902, and 4,591,811 tons more than recorded for the same two months of 1901. The quantity carried through the Canadian canal was 706,510 tons, against 532,188 tons in 1902, and 151,679 tons in April-May, 1901. During April-May, 1903, the Canadian canal carried 11.64 per cent. of the total; in 1902, nearly 8 per cent., and in 1901, 6.80 per cent. The season, therefore, opens with an increase of 264,322 tons in the quantity carried by the Canadian canal, and an increase of 3.65 per cent. in the proportion carried by our canal compared with the total carried by both canals. The eastbound freight carried by the Canadian Soo in the two months of 1903 was 616,543 tons, compared with 444,864 tons in 1902, and 113,740 tons in 1901. The westbound freight was 179,967 tons, against 87,324 tons and 37,939 tons in 1902 and 1901 respectively. Compared with the total carried by the two canals the tons conveyed through the Canadian were: Eastbound, 12.10 per cent. in 1903, 7.06 per cent. in 1902 and 6.85 per cent. in 1901. Westbound, 10.20 per cent. in 1903, 7.40 per cent. in 1902 and 6.85 per cent. in 1901, showing a great gain in the business of the canal both absolutely and relatively. The registered tonnage going through the Canadian canal was 14.53 per cent. of the total for the two canals in 1903, 9.98 per cent. for 1902, 8.28 per cent. for 1901, showing a steady gain by the Canadian canal in the proportion of the tonnage using the canals. The quantity of wheat carried east by the two canals in April-May, 1903, was 15,347,173 bushels, a decrease of 3,414,000 bushels compared with the same period of 1902. There was also a decrease in flour of 217,890 barrels, in iron ore of 434,048 tons, in lumber of 16,345,000 feet. The chief increases were grain other than wheat 2,970,864 bushels, and general merchandise 5,111 tons. In the case of wheat, while there was a decrease of 3,414,000 bushels in the total carried, there was an increase of 3,131,136 bushels in the amount carried by the Canadian Soo. In 1902 the Canadian canal carried 25.3 per cent. of the wheat that came through the two canals, and this proportion was increased to 48.5 per cent. in 1903.

LUMBERMAN TELLS HIS EXPERIENCE

How Dodd's Kidney Pills Quickly Cured His Lame Back.

William N. Baskin, of Norwood, Gives Good Advice and Others are Following it With Splendid Results.

Norwood, Ont., June 29.—(Special)—William N. Baskin, the well-known lumberman and railroad contractor of this place, tells of an experience with Dodd's Kidney Pills that is bound to be of interest to the public generally.

"For two years," says Mr. Baskin, "I was laid up with lame back and kidney disease. I would at times become weak and have to lay off work. People who knew me as lumberman and contractor on the C.P.R. and Parry Sound Railways knew how sick I was.

"Reading of wonderful cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills led me to try them. I used three boxes and am completely cured. I can say now I have not had any pains since I used Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Others who have followed Mr. Baskin's advice and tried Dodd's Kidney Pills, report similar results. No form of Kidney Disease can stand before them.

BROTHER GARDNER

He Lectures on Hypnotism and Telepathy.

"My frens," said Brother Gardner as he rose up in Paradise hall and motioned to Brother Gliveadam Jones to lower a window, "dar was a time in my life when if I went out in de mawnin' an' found a cow tract in my back yard I was surprised. Tonight, if I should be told dat Mark Hannah had opened communicashun wid de people of de planet Mars an' had tooken a contract to build a trolley line for 'em up dar, I should almost take it as a matter of co'se.

"De world has been gwine ahead till nuthin' kin amaze us any mo'. It won't be five y'ars longer befo' we become as familiar wid de occult as we am wid reform politics, an' dat assertion brings me to de subjeck of my lecture.

"I reckon dat mos' of yo' have heard mo' or less 'bout de matter of hypnotism, but yo' has been so busy rentin' post office boxes an' wearin' dimun pins an' bettin' on race bosses dat yo' haven't looked into it werry fur.

BROTHER GARDNER.

"Hypnotism is one pusson controllin' another by lookin' into his eyes. Fur instance, Waydown Bebee cum ober to my cabin last night to borrow $2. I felt it in my bones as soon as he knocked on de doah. Brudder Bebee belongs to my church, but he's an absent minded man. He may borrow a dollar of yo' tonight an' furgit all about it fur a year or two. I don't say it to his detriment, as he was bo'n dat way. He had sot around fur awhile, tryin' to git his courage up to de stickin' pint, an' he had just opened his mouth to ax fur dat $2 when I fixed my eyes on his. De effect was magical. He sot dar wid his mouth open an' his eyes hangin' out, an' it was two minutes befo' he could say a word. Den, instead of axin' fur $2, he wanted to know if I would lend him a spade.

"Dat's hypnotism, an' it's one of de mysterious fo'ces developed doorin' de last few years, but we am comin' to somethin' greater, an' that's telepathy. Yo'd better write de word down an' keep sayin' it over an' over, so yo' kin git it off in de grocery an' at de wood yard.

"Telepathy am de act of talkin' wid another pusson at a distance. He may be only around de co'ner or he may be a thousand miles away. He may be up a tree or down in a coal mine. It am no new idea, but we as a people have bin so busy wid patent churns an' barbed wire fences dat we haven't had time to take it up an' develop it. I begun to work at it about six weeks ago, an' my progress has bin all dat could be hoped fur. I don't want dis audience to go home tonight an' have nightmare an' dream of ghosts, but I do want to speak of a few facts.

"My fust experiments war made on de old woman. Gwine around de co'ner an' walkin' a block down de street, I'd tell her dat I wanted tripe fur dinner or codfish fur supper, an', lo, she'd prepare de said dishes. I could make her carry out ashes or bring in coal.

"I could not only communicate wid her, but could receive communicashuns. I was a mile away one day when she told me dat de flour bar'l was empty an' de last of de taters in de kettle. On another occashun I was comin' home at midnight wid a couple of chickens under my arm when she communicated to me de fact dat a policeman was bangin' around de gate to interview me. Again as I was goin' up an alley wid a baskét on my arm to look fur coal she warned me dat de fust shed I should come to on my right had a man an' a shotgun in it. I could cite yo' numerous other incidents, but dose I have menshuned will suffice.

"Havin' got at de key of telepathy, I purceeded to enlarge operashuns. Yo' all remember Uncle Reube Jackson, who used to be a member of dis club, but moved to New Jersey three years ago. Happenin' to think of him one night, I kept my mind on him fur three or fo' minits an' den said in a whisper:

"'Uncle Reube, yo' went away owin' me $3 an' I want it.'

"'Brudder Gardner, yo' am a pesky old liar,' was de answer almost befo' I could draw my breath.

"Two years ago Brudder Artichoke Johnson of dis club had de misfortune to find a gold watch in de middle of de road. He was arrested an' tried an' sent to Sing Sing fur leben years. I believe dey somehow made out dat dere was a drunken man attached to de other end of de watch chain. It struck me to communicate wid de unfortunate, an' arter fixin' my thoughts on him I said:

"'Brudder Johnson, how am yo' feelin' jest now?'

"It was 10 o'clock at night, an' I reckon he was asleep, but not ober a minute had passed when he replied:

"'None ob yo'r dratted bizness.'

"In de past two weeks I has made other experiments—experiments dat would have made de chills go up yo'r backs six months ago. I has sent messages to Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans an' Boston. I has communicated with Siberia an' Africa. I has got my old woman so skeered of me dat she dasn't spend a cent fur a stick of gum widout tellin' me, an' my old dog sits up on end an' howls dismally ebery time I look him in de eye.

"I shall keep right on until telepathy is as plain to de human race as telephony, an' if I am de fust to solve it's mysteries it will be my pride an' yo'r satisfaction dat it was accomplished by a cul'd man an' one of de downtrodden race.

"In conclusion, let me say dat I am now receivin' a telepathic message from de old woman axin' me to bring home oatmeal fur breakfast, an' in reply shall tell her dat de groceries am all shet up, an' she must stir up some flour an' have pancakes."

WAS IN A CRITICAL CONDITION.

System was Run Down.

FELT DROWSY AND MISERABLE.

Burdock Blood Bitters

BUILT UP THE SYSTEM AND ADDED TEN POUNDS IN WEIGHT.

Mr. Ed. J. Harris, Newbridge, Ont., was in poor health, but has now been restored to full health and vigor. Here is what he writes us: "Last spring I was in a very critical condition, my system was all run down. I felt drowsy and miserable, and thought I would surely die if I did not get something to build me up. After reading one of your almanacs I decided to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and before I had taken two bottles I had gained ten pounds in weight, and am now in perfect health, and I can certainly recommend Burdock Blood Bitters to build up the system."

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Is the best Spring medicine on the market to-day. You may need one this Spring, if so, get B.B.B.

For Emergencies.

If a housekeeper lives at a remote distance from the market and stores it would be well for her to equip herself with an emergency closet. Again and again she is surprised by the sudden appearance of a relative or friend who has come to "stay for tea," and of course the larder is always destitute on that day. The emergency closet would need nothing more than a can of tomatoes, peas and salmon, a bottle of good salad dressing, a box of bread or cracker crumbs, a can of grated cheese and an Edam or pineapple cheese, some canned fruit or preserves and a fruit cake whose good qualities have been previously tested. This last article, with the addition of a hard or soft sauce, is an excellent substitute for plum pudding.

Use, Don't Waste, Time.

The busy woman who has discovered how to use time may reckon on success. The bustling, rushing woman very often impresses other people with the idea that she is a great worker, but as a matter of fact she generally achieves but little. She fritters time and strength in bustle and chatter. It is the quiet, self possessed woman who is the really busy one. She works persistently and quietly, for she understands that if she takes care of the minutes the hours will take care of themselves, and the practice of this belief is what makes her successful in her business, whatever it may be.

The Modern Girl.

Girls no longer round their shoulders and narrow their chests over their embroidery frames or faint from fright when a mouse scuttles across the floor or a spider drops from the ceiling. They play golf and hockey; they go in for deep breathing and muscle stretching; they cycle fifty miles a day without turning a hair; they can drive a motor as well as the most expert of chauffeurs, and their appetites are borrowed from the proverbial wolf.—London Black and White.

Coffee Stains.

Coffee stains are quite difficult to remove, and sulphur seems to do the work most efficaciously. Moisten the spots and hold them over a bit of smoldering sulphur in an iron dish. As sulphur is an acid, the spots must be washed at once in water containing a little soda and ammonia.

Too Much Bile in the Blood.

Stomach Troubles, Biliousness and Headache the Result of Torpid Liver.

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

The action of the liver is important in two ways. It filters from the blood the poisonsous impurities which cause biliousness, headache and stomach troubles. These, in turn become bile in the liver, and are passed into the intestines as a cathartic to keep the bowels regular and active. By acting directly on the liver Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure torpid, sluggish liver and all ailments arising therefrom.

Mr. Rogers Clancy, farmer, Chepstowe, Bruce county, Ont., states: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and would say that there is no medicine that equals them as a cure for stomach troubles, biliousness, torpid liver and headache. I was troubled a great deal with these ailments before using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and they have proven wonderfully successful in my case.

"I would not think of being without a box of these pills in the house, and whenever I feel any symptoms of these disorders I take one of these pills, and they set me all right again. I can strongly recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the troubles mentioned above."

Mr. John Baker, Deseronto, Ont., states, "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills and can truthfully say that they are perfect in their work. I was subject to pains in my sides and back. At times I had to lay off work and feared that I would never get rid of the ailment, which was causing my sufferings. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills were recommended to me, and I found them to be exactly suited to my case. Since using them I have never had a return of my old troubles."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author are on every box. 2

A NORTHERN FOREST FIRE.

Terrifying Experience of Three Explorers on the Western Shore of Hudson Bay —300 x 75 Miles Burned.

A geologist who explored with two companions a region on the western shore of Hudson Bay had an experience in a forest fire which could hardly be equalled in scope and fierceness farther south, where the woods are broken by settlements. The men had pushed far to the north of Port Nelson into a land inhabited by tribes of Indians, where no white had left a trace.

"We had crossed the mouth of a stream," he says, "which forked twice some distance from where it opens into the bay, making two long, narrow deltas. By sundown we had gone a mile or so north of the upper branch. The air grew hot and dry. The light in the western sky was more dense and solid than that of the sunset, and it extended round to the north beyond the range of the setting sun. We knew that it was a fire, and halted on a rising slope, where we could get a broader view of the sky.

"The wind was from the northwest, and the fire must be coming straight toward us. In the hope of reaching one of the deltas of the stream which we had crossed over about a mile to the south, we turned back and walked for our lives.

"We reached the upper branch of the stream before the fire overtook us, crossed it, and sat panting on the southern shore. The sun had set, and the fire marked its limits in a wide sweep covering the northwest.

"As we sat waiting, the brush across the stream crackled, and five or six deer broke from the woods and stood on the bank, sniffing.

"The air grew dense. A dull roar like a distant surf was blown to us from the north. I climbed half-way up a small tree, and then I saw a sight. Perhaps five miles away came the fire, a sea of red flame under a wall of smoke that rolled on in advance.

"Before I descended from the tree the smoke was on us. One of my companions, noting that the trees on the delta were of a smaller growth, thought we were safer on the lower delta, with two strips of water and an island between us and the fire. So we moved on for a few hundred yards to the next mouth of the stream.

"We were wrapped in smoke. The roar of the fire grew like a storm. We waded into the water, took off our coats and wrapped them wet about our heads. Then we noticed that we were not alone. Round us, only a few yards away, stood groups of horned creatures. Behind us a black shape lay in the water, evidently a bear. The danger had made the whole world kin, and fear of the common enemy had made all the driven animals tame to each other.

"Ashes and cinders settled over us, and we bowed our heads close to the water. The heat grew intense. Then with a stride the fire burst over our northern bank. We waded to the south shore and waited. Our coats grew hot on our heads, and we ducked again and again. I turned and looked at the fire. I mounted, I should say, more than a hundred feet and leaned across the stream, which was fully two hundred feet wide. Under that leaning bank of flame we crouched in the water, which grew tepid, and was foul with the countless animals that for miles up were seeking shelter in it.

"It was impossible for us to push on to the next stream. We were dazed and parched, and if the fire leaped this stream it would have caught us in the woods.

"Suddenly I raised my head, and saw the flames like clouds of fire leap over our heads and seize the tops of the trees on the southern bank. The fire had jumped the stream.

"For an hour we stayed in the water, waiting for the fire to burn out on the northern shore. A great weariness and stupor weighed us down. Presently we felt the air grow cooler. It was raining; and we dragged ourselves to the northern bank, where we lay with our noses close to the baked earth and slept.

"Afterwards we learned that the fire had ruined a stretch of timber three hundred miles long and seventy-five miles wide."

Neuralgia

is Rheumatism of the face. Uric Acid left in the blood by disordered kidneys lodges along the nerve which branches from the eye over the forehead, and across the cheek to the side of the nose. The cause is the same as in all Rheumatism— disordered Kidneys. The cure is likewise the same—

About Lord Minto.

Marquise de Fontenoy, in Chicago Tribune: Lord Minto, whose term of office of Governor-General of Canada has just been prolonged for another year, is a man whose life has been more replete with excitement and adventure than most of his predecessors at Ottawa. Thus, during the Turko-Russian war of 1876 and 1877, he was attached throughout the campaign to the Ottoman forces, was present at the bombardment of Nicopolis, besides taking part in many other engagements. Subsequently, he served under Lord Roberts throughout the Kurrum Valley campaign, and it was only by mere chance that he was prevented from joining the mission of Sir Louis Cavagnari, who with his entire staff and retinue, was massacred at Kabul. He took part in Lord Roberts' celebrated march to Kandahar, was in the Egyptian war of 1882, and in the subsequent Soudanese campaigns, and, while in Canada as military secretary to the Governor-General, in 1885, acted as chief of staff to the expedition for the suppression of the Riel insurrection. He is a fine soldier and a manly fellow, and, as such, the personal popularity which he has won for himself in Canada is great, and the news that his term of office has been prolonged is giving, so I hear, general satisfaction.

Lemons in the Toilet.

Lemons are a necessary adjunct to every woman's toilet; besides their healthfulness, which is not to be questioned, they are also beautifiers. A teaspoonful of lemon juice in a cupful of warm water will remove all stains from the hands and will make the nails soft and pliable, rendering them easy to polish.

"The square peg in the round hole" figuratively expresses the use of means unsuited to the desired end. A great many people who have been cured of dyspepsia and other diseases of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery say: "We tried many medicines with only temporary benefit. It was not until we began the use of 'Golden Medical Discovery' that we found a complete and lasting cure."

It is undoubtedly true that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery holds the record for the perfect and permanent cure of indigestion and other diseases of the stomach and associated organs of digestion and nutrition. It is not a palliative. It cures the cause of disease and builds up the body with solid healthy flesh, not flabby fat.

"It is with pleasure that I tell you what Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pellets' have done for me," writes Mrs. T. M. Palmer, of Reede, Kaufman Co., Texas. "Two years ago I was taken with stomach and bowel trouble. Everything I ate would put me in distress. I lived two weeks on milk and even that gave me pain. I felt as though I would starve to death. Three doctors attended me—one said I had dyspepsia, two said catarrh of the stomach and bowels. They attended me (one at a time) for one year. I stopped taking their medicine and tried other patent medicine; got no better, and I grew so weak and nervous my heart would flutter. I could not do any kind of work. Now I can do my house work very well; am gaining in flesh and strength, and can eat anything I want."

Accept no substitute for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the paper covered book, or 50 stamps for the cloth bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Doan's Kidney Pills

FINALLY MADE A COMPLETE CURE.

Mr. Jacob Jamieson, Jamieson Bros., the well-known Contractors and Builders, Welland, Ont., tells of how he was cured: "For fourteen years I was afflicted with kidney trouble which increased in severity the last five years. My most serious attack was four years ago, when I was completely incapacitated. I had terrible pains across my back, floating specks before my eyes and was in almost constant torment. I could not sit or stand with ease and was a wreck in health, having no appetite and lost greatly in flesh. I had taken medicine from five different doctors and also numerous other preparations to no purpose. I finally began to take Doan's Kidney Pills and before I had taken five boxes the trouble left me and I now feel better than I have for twenty years. Those who know me know how I was afflicted and say it is almost impossible to believe that I have been cured, yet they know it is so. I have passed the meridian of life but I feel that I have taken on the rosy hue of boyhood."

AN AID TO MOTHER.

Ways In Which the Daughter of the Home May Be a Help.

There are many ways besides usurping the role of housekeeper in which the daughter of the home may relieve her busy mother and imprint her personality upon the family life. One way is to study the matter of arranging furniture in the rooms. With much occupation the mother may easily have lost the artistic nicety of care in detail with which she began her housekeeping twenty-five years ago, or perhaps she has lost the ambition to keep up with the constant development in taste and knowledge of values that mark life at the moment. The daughter will have plenty of time to study and investigate the subject and will surely find something to change. She will learn that to put a statuette in a window recess shut off from inside view by hanging draperies and to be seen, therefore, only from the street shows very poor taste. It is a frank confession that the beauty of the piece is for outsiders and not for family enjoyment. Any artist friend will tell her, too, that potted plants, palms, etc., do not belong, as they too often are seen, around the fireplace in a room. This should focus the family companionship and also its hospitality. Chairs and sofas, a tea table perhaps, a table with a reading lamp, may be included in the semicircular sweep that radiates from the hearthstone, but plants do not belong there. Study the other furnishings of the room from the same practical point of view. Use and comfort come first, it being always possible to associate with these the full degree of beauty and effect of which they are capable. Don't put the piano or the writing desk off in a dark corner where no light is available, giving up the window niche perhaps to a table or slender chair or ottoman upon which no one is expected to sit.

Dressy Sash Curtains.

Nothing gives such a cachet to a house as its window blinds and curtains, and they are, or should be, a detail to which every careful housewife gives her personal and constant attention. Sash curtains are extremely popular and come in various styles.

BRISE-BRISE IN SILK AND LACE.

Among these the brise-brise ranks as one of the first favorites whether, as in the example illustrated, made of silk and renaissance lace or of net, lawn or linen. They are finished across the top with a row of tiny ivory or brass rings to be slipped through the slender brass curtain rod. The bottom hangs free.

Two Evils.

"I can't imagine a worse gilly than the man who's forever indulging in small talk."

"Oh, I don't know! He's no worse than the fellow who is forever talking big."

ABOUT THE LOON.

A Bird That Is Very Stupid, Yet Clever In Its Way.

A party of sportsmen one day killed a great bird that seemed to be a very expert swimmer and diver. The guide said that the victim was a loon, says an exchange.

One of the hunters was professor in a natural history museum. He carried the loon to the camp on the lake shore where he was spending a few weeks. There he showed it to his little son, who was his companion in his northern outing.

"What a handsome bird!" the boy exclaimed as he examined the loon.

"But a very stupid one," his father replied. "I lured it near the boat by waving a red flag in the air."

"No wonder people say, 'Stupid as a loon,'" the boy said.

"Yet it is very clever in its way," the professor continued. "Few of the other waterfowls can swim so well as the loon, and none of them equals it in diving. It is sometimes called the great northern diver. Those short legs, set well back on the body, and the webbed feet make it very clumsy on land, but on water it moves about with much grace. Part of the year the bird spends along the coast from Maine to Maryland.

"In the spring the mother bird builds a nest on the shore of a lake or somewhere in a swamp, and there the young birds are hatched. They are brownish gray during the first year, but in their second one the feathers are black and white, like those of the parents. Beautiful iridescent blue and purple touches shine on the neck, and the feet are blue and gray. The loon's cry is a very peculiar one. It sounds something like the howl of a wolf and is terrifying if you do not recognize it."

The Feast of the Doll.

In flow'ry Japan, the home of the fan,
The land of the parasol,
Each month has its feast, from greatest to least,
And March is the feast of the doll-dolldoll,
And March is the feast of the doll.

The wee slippered maid in gown of brocade,
The baby with shaven poll,
The little brown lad in embroid'ry clad,
All troop to the feast of the doll-dolldoll,
All troop to the feast of the doll.

How pleasant 'twould be, 'neath an almond tree,
In sunshine and perfume to loll,
Forget our own spring, with its wind and its sting,
And sing to the praise of the doll-dolldoll,
And sing to the praise of the doll!

Come, sweet Tippytoes, as pink as a rose,
And I will get Betty and Moll;
Let us follow the plan of the folk in Japan
And dance for your feast, little doll-dolldoll,
And dance for your feast, little doll.
—Nora Smith in St. Nicholas.
